WINTER TERM OPENS MONDAY, JAN. 3rd, 1910

GEO. SPOTTON, PRESIDENT — J. A. McKONE, PRINCIPAL

COOK, THE DESPERADO

Cutting Remarks Are Passed at the Meeting of Town Fathers Over the Escape of Man Who Wounded Constable — Shotgun, Rifle, Revolver and Club Included In Arsenal of the Sleuths.

Orangeville, Nov. 3.—Citizens here are divided between disgust and amusement at the "pursuit" of Bob Cook, the gentleman who on Saturday night, in resisting arrest, terribly slashed the wrist of Constable Halbert and walked away from Chief Constable Speers.

Early yesterday morning the chief, armed, resumed his search at the head of a party composed of a short Englishman with a shotgun, a tall chap with a rifle and another fellow with a revolver and a club. Nothing done.

At noon a rig drove rapidly down the main street and the two occupants were promptly spotted as Bob and his brother Bill. A posse of seven men was gathered together and set out in chase. Returning in half an hour later, the announcement was made that it wasn't Bob after all.

A number of houses in the neighborhood have been searched and a party went out to Orangeville Junction yesterday afternoon, but with no result.

At Monday night's meeting of the town council some cutting remarks were made about the way Cook had been allowed to get away.

Cook comes of a highly-respected family, and he himself is a good-natured chap until he gets drinking. Then he's fierce.

The opinion is expressed by many that Cook by this time is five hundred miles away from here.

Among the bravest of the posse is a brother-in-law of the desperado, who has a reputation as a sleuth. He is armed with a cudgel resembling somewhat a limb of an apple tree, on the end of which is attached a large hook or spike. It is said he is not big enough to carry a gun. Another member of the posse has been termed the "wild man from Borneo," who, it is believed, will scare Bob Cook into submission immediately should the posse ever run across him.

Beheaded Wife and Daughter.

Pottsville, Pa., Nov. 3.—Neighbors who broke in the door of Daniel Schoke's house at Pine Grove yesterday, found that Schoke had cut off the heads of his wife and twelve-year-old daughter with a knife, and then committed suicide by shooting himself. He was 55 years old and a butcher.

In a note Schoke said he was not being treated fairly and that he did not want to leave his wife and daughter to their own resources after he was dead.

About a week ago he got up during the night and went down stairs and sharpened the butcher knife with the intention of killing himself, but his nerve failed him. When he told his wife next day, she exclaimed: "What would I do then?" This remark is supposed to have inspired the double murder in addition to the suicide.

Two Men Electrocuted.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—A despatch from Chambly says that Elsear Brodeur and Adelard Robert were killed yesterday by an electric shock while in the employ of the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co.

Victim of Railway Accident.

Five Perish in Fire.

Pittsburg, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Wm. Marlow and four children were burned to death yesterday by fire caused by the upsetting of an oil lamp.

GAYNOR ELECTED

Judge Gaynor Is New Mayor of New York City With Otto Bannard Second, and W. R. Hearst Third—Republicans Will Administer the Finances—Hard Fight In the City of Philadelphia.

New York, Oct. 3.—Elections were held yesterday in many of the United States and cities, with no national issue involved to bring about concerted party action.

In New York city W. J. Gaynor swept the five boroughs to victory as mayor by at least 70,000 plurality, defeating Otto T. Bannard, Republican-Fusion, and William R. Hearst, Independent. He failed, however, to carry his ticket with him, and the Republican-Fusian forces will control absolutely the board of estimates and apportionment, which will disburse approximately a billion dollars during the administration. This is more than half a defeat for Tammany, for the control of the board of estimate was one of the principal issues of the campaign.

In Philadelphia, another battleground on reform issues, Samuel P. Rotan, Republican, was elected district attorney over D. Clarence Gibboney, representing the Law and Order Society and the reform element. Rotan's majority exceeded that in a previous reform campaign, being estimated at upwards of 30,000.

The returns from San Francisco, where reform issues are uppermost, are meagre at a late hour, and give no indications of the outcome.

In Massachusetts, the returns indicate that Governor Eben B. Draper, Republican, had been re-elected over James H. Vahey, Democrat, by a greatly reduced majority, estimated at 10,000. Governor Draper's majority last year was 60,000.

In Virginia, returns indicate that the Democratic ticket, headed by Judge Mann for governor, has been elected by about the usual majority.

In Maryland, the constitutional amendment disfranchising the negro, is still in doubt, the Baltimore vote being strongly against the amendment, while returns from the Interior indicate increasing strength for the amendment.

Some New York State mayors are:

Rochester—Hiram Edgerton (Rep.), re-elected with entire ticket.

Syracuse—Ed. Schoeneck, (Rep.).

Rome—A. R. Kessinger (Dem.), re-elected.

Troy—Elias P. Mann (Rep.), re-elected.

Johnstown—Abram Harrison (Dem.)

Oswego—John Fitzgibbons (Dem.).

Elmira—Dan Sheehan (Dem.), re-elected.

Watertown—F. M. Hugo (Rep.), re-elected.

Schenectady—Chas. Durge, (Dem.).

Indianapolis, Ind.—S. L. Shank, (Rep.).

THE SMITHS CONVICTED

Sir William Mulock, Sitting on Case Arising Out of Death of Old Man, Finds That William and James Smith Are Peaceable Farmers and Victim Was an Ugly Customer — Sentence Withheld.

Barrie, Nov. 3.—Guilty of unlawfully inflicting grievous harm on the late Michael Kelly was the verdict returned by a jury after three hours' deliberation in the case of William and Jas. Smith, who were tried on charge of manslaughter before Sir Wm. Mulock in the Criminal Assizes here yesterday. The penalty is three years, but his lordship told the jury he was willing to receive individual representations as to the sentence to be imposed.

On Sunday, June 27 last, Michael Kelly, an aged man, stopped the Smith brothers as they were driving past his house and began a quarrel over an impounded cow which ended in the Smiths striking him. He died during the night.

The brothers gave evidence yesterday. James said Kelly had struck William twice with a stick, and he (witness) had tackled Kelly when he tried to hit William after he had slipped from the rig. He had called to William to hit Kelly, who had threatened to kill him, and who had five years ago struck him with a stick on the face, and on May 24 last, had hit him with a large stone. Witness had also heard of Kelly throwing axes at other men, and laying in wait for another with a gun.

William Smith said he was rattled when he struck Kelly. He only hit him once and his brother administered but one kick. Kelly had threatened to kill him, and two days before the fatal affair, had said, "Jim Smith's cows have been bothering me. I'll kill them before a week."

Other witnesses gave corroborative evidence and agreed that the brothers were peaceful and quiet. His lordship's charge to the jury was quite favorable to the prisoners.

Laid Corner-Stone of Y.M.C.A.

Oshawa, Nov. 3.—Lieutenant-Governor Gibson yesterday laid the corner-stone of the new Y.M.C.A., in the presence of 2,000 people. Bull, J. A. Schofield, C. A. Jones, F. L. Fowke, M.P., J. C. Eaton, W. Eaton, Judge McCrimmon of Whitby, Mr. Hopkins, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; Rev. Mr. Hodges, Lewis and Hall, John Owens, W. J. Watson and E. Mundy.

Winnipeg Fire Department Criticized.

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—The Free Press editorially demands a searching investigation into the work of the fire department, and the reasons why, in the face of the vast outlay for a high pressure system and new and up-to-date apparatus the department failed in broad daylight Saturday to cope with a fire that was discovered in its incipient stages.

School Law Bars Negroes.

Jackson, Miss., Nov. 3.—Because no provision is made for the education of negro children, the law for establishing county agricultural high schools was declared unconstitutional by the State Supreme Court yesterday. The law specially states that the schools are to be for "white youth."

Did Black Hand Inspire Murder?

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 3.—The Provincial Government is offering $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest of the murderer of Salvator Andrea here. Two suspects are believed to be hiding in Vancouver. It is believed the black hand may have inspired the murder.

Her Lesson In Loving

It Was a Severe One, but It Brought Her Happiness

By LOUISE OLNEY

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

After a good night so listless that her mother sighed at the change in her daughter, Anne Morton went to her room and locked the door. Throwing aside her lace cloak, she turned on all the lights and, tall and graceful in her clinging yellow gown, studied herself in the mirror.

Richard Hunter had not asked for a single dance, but had devoted himself to Mollie Pierce. Anne began to realize that this had been the order of things for some time. Morris Trevor also had not come near. And only a year ago, before she had broken her engagement with Richard, there had not been dances enough to satisfy her admirers. Surely at twenty-seven a woman has not lost the power to attract! Was she becoming a wallflower?

The mirror was reassuring. Her fine brown eyes were large and clear, her heavy dark hair perfectly arranged, her oval face and small head certainly distinguished. She smiled ruefully, and a dimple deepened in her cheek. But when her face fell to repose she noted critically that she looked bored, almost unhappy; the corners of her mouth drooped and two cross little lines showed between her eyes.

Anne began to take stock of herself. Tonight she had actually sat out three dances with the chaperons. She faced the fact that her friends were becoming fewer; that the men called less often, invited her less often to share their pleasures. "The girls" no longer dropped in to gossip of clothes and merrymakings and beaus. Yes, even in the family things had changed. Her mother, always loving, was also patient. Harry, with the frankness of fourteen, remarked, when she was irritated with him, that she was becoming a cross old maid. Jean assumed condescending younger sister airs.

She was quite sure that it was Richard's place to make the first move toward reconciliation, even though she admitted to herself that the fault had been mostly hers. At last she went to bed and cried herself to sleep. But she awoke early, so much earlier than usual that, as she lay thinking, it came to her that not for months had she really seen her father, not for months had she breakfasted with the family. On impulse she rose, took a cold plunge and dressed for the street. She had nearly finished when the rising bell rang.

She stood nervously adjusting her collar at the mirror, a little sensitive about going down lest some member of the family might comment on her unwonted presence, when she noted that she looked positively cross. It made her seem old. She by an effort made herself smile, and the dimple again showed itself. Then she started for the door just in time to encounter Harry, who was coming with an old gong to awaken her. Yesterday she would have complained to her mother; today she laughed as he scampered back to his room to finish dressing.

When she heard the breakfast bell she started slowly downstairs, and as she reached the lower hall she caught her own name spoken by her mother in an anxious tone. Involuntarily she paused. Her father replied:

"Don't worry, mother, Anne needs a lesson in loving. She will have to suffer till she finds out that no woman is loved and sought unless she is loving—lovable. She will not be her old attractive self till she stops being bored and sarcastic and is pleased and interested and shows that she is. She is getting selfish, and nothing but thinking of others will do her any good."

"But, Fred," her mother's voice continued, "Richard never came near her last night nor Morris nor Henry Parker. Do you suppose they resent her treatment of Richard? And she is never about when our older friends call and never up in the morning. Has it occurred to you that Richard may have shown her he wanted to break with her and that she is unhappy about it? Last night he was so devoted to Molly Pierce!"

"Nonsense! Richard simply had a real man's self respect. She dismissed him for nothing, and I don't blame him for not crawling back like a whipped puppy. Perhaps he is getting interested in Molly—a live young fellow is not going to let the caprice of one woman spoil life for him. He did care. He told me himself when it first happened that he was all cut up about it, but that she would have to call him back herself. She hasn't done so. Well, there is nobody like him. Yes, another cup, dear, please." Anne fled softly back to her room, her cheeks and eyes ablaze, fury in her heart. How dared they! How dared they discuss her affairs and slide with Richard! Then it came upon her that these two dear persons, the dearest in the world, loved her and had a right to say to each other what they thought about their own child.

And they were right—that was the worst of it. What should she do? After a moment's hesitation she went quietly down and took her place at the table, bidding them good morning as if nothing had occurred. Harry and Jean came chasing each other down the hall to join the family, and then everybody seemed to begin talking and laughing. In spite of herself Anne became interested. She laughed, and at her new good nature Harry offered to play golf with her—supreme condescension on his part. She accepted.

Then as her father left his seat she followed another impulse; she offered to walk to the office with him for the exercise. His eyes widened a little with surprise, but they started off joyfully together, father and tall daughter, arm in arm, through the crisp autumn air the full mile downtown. It was a good mile, and the air stung a red stain into her cheek.

Leaving her father at his office, she started back, remembering her "date" on the links with her brother. She had an hour yet and was minded to wander off by herself and think. At heart she was still furious and a little fearful about Richard's supposed change of heart. Mollie Pierce, indeed! That little silly doll! Yet stranger things had happened. She suddenly realized what a blank she had made of her own life. She turned into a quiet side street and walked swiftly along, hardly seeing where she went. Once she raised a hand to wipe her eyes—they smarted strangely. Everything was strange, especially this new, fearful wakening from the apathetic dream she seemed to have been lost in for a year. Of course it was too late for Richard to forgive her, but at least she could make it up to her dear family.

Remembering that she must meet her brother, she suddenly turned a corner and ran into a big man who, from the impact, must have been coming along at some speed. She gasped to see that it was Richard, as astonished as she, gazing at her as if he had never seen her before, at her fresh color, her bright eyes, the fugitive tear on her cheek. He hardly knew what he said, but she laughed merrily.

"I really did not intend to—knock you down! I'm sorry, Dick." She called him Dick with manifest good feeling. The man's heart leaped as he looked at her glowing face. He turned to walk with her a little.

"Going home? You don't look like a girl who danced till 1 this morning, Anne, I must say."

"I sat out three dances," she answered coolly. "Harry says I'm getting to be a cross old maid. Is that why you did not ask me for a waltz?"

"You have—refused me so many times I began to accept my fate. I"—

"I'm—sorry—Dick." She interrupted him to say what she would not even have thought a few days before. "I'm sorry," she repeated.

He turned to her eagerly. "Anne," he said in a low voice, "you could not possibly cross your heart and hope to die and say you are sorry for—anything else. Oh, Anne, could you?" She only nodded an instant while she swallowed the remnant of her old pride. He was looking down at her, glorying in her blush. Then she spoke fully and freely, gladly.

"I treated you very badly, and I am very sorry, Dick." Her eyes, full of tears, bravely met his gaze. Of course Richard Hunter knew he could not kiss her on the street, but he also knew that it would not be long till they reached her home. He knew, too, that whatever demonstration he made Anne's mother would not care. He bided his time. Meantime he and Anne were very happy.

AFTER SUFFERING YEARS

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Fox Creek, N.B.—"I have always had pains in the loins and a weakness there, and often after my meals my food would distress me and cause soreness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me much good. I am stronger, digestion is better, and I can walk with ambition. I have encouraged many mothers of families to take it, as it is the best remedy in the world. You can publish this in the papers." — Mrs. WILLIAM BOURQUE, Fox Creek, N.B., Canada.

The above is only one of the thousands of grateful letters which are constantly being received by the Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass., which prove beyond a doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, actually does cure these obstinate diseases of women after all other means have failed, and that every such suffering woman owes it to herself to at least give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial before submitting to an operation, or giving up hope of recovery.

Mrs. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health and her advice is free.

A Common Freak.

When P. T. Barnum was in the museum business in New York one of his most jovial friends was Gaylord Clark, a famous litterateur in the days of our fathers. They were a well matched pair of practical jokers. One day when Mr. Clark dropped in at the museum, as was his custom, Mr. Barnum, apparently much excited, hurried his friend into the private office and said: "Gaylord, I was about to send for you. I want your advice. I have a chance to purchase the most wonderful of all zoological freaks. It's at first a perfect fish, then it changes to a four legged land animal, then it climbs trees and"—

"Bah! You're joking," interjected Mr. Clark.

"On my honor I am not," impressively replied the showman. "But the expense!"

"Oh, hang the expense!" interrupted Mr. Clark, brimful of enthusiasm over the business project of his friend. "If you can get any such freak as that your fortune's made. But what's the thing called?"

"Well," replied Mr. Barnum, with just the faintest suggestion of a twinkle in his left eye, "it belongs to the batrachian family of animals and in the vernacular is called the—the—tadpole!"

Errors of Alma-Tadema.

In spite of all the pains I have taken to be accurate in matters of archaeology I have often been reminded how easy it is to fall short of absolute perfection. There is always some one whose specialty enables him to know more than you do on some particular point, and, besides, there are many details about which classical archaeology is unfortunately silent. Once, for instance, I introduced a sunflower into one of my pictures, thinking, as it belonged to the Jerusalem artichoke family, I was quite safe in this. Alas, I learned too late that the sunflower and its forty species are quite a modern importation from South America! Nor was this the only botanical slip of which I have been accused. In one of my Roman canvases I am said to have introduced the Clematic jackmanni, credit for whose discovery belongs to the gentleman whose name it bears. In my "Sappho" I was told by a critic that I had painted a seat which belongs to quite another period. This time I was right, for the same seat is to be found on many early Greek vases.—Alma-Tadema in Strand Magazine.

The korrigans, superstitious peasants believe, are the black dwarfs of Brittany who dwell in the sacred Druidic circles of the menhirs and count their cash in the moonshine.

The Victoria falls of the Zambezi river are over a mile wide, more than twice as broad and twice as high as Niagara. They have a drop of 400 feet.

Hair Growth.

The Cossacks.

All know what the Cossack cavalry of the czar are, but not all are aware how these famous soldiers got their name. It is derived from the Slavonic word kosa (scythe). In early times when the rude and hardy peasantry of Russia went to war with any neighboring country for want of other offensive weapons they were compelled to use their scythes, which circumstance gained for them the cognomen of Cossacks (scythemen).

Hissed Into Slumber.

A curious remedy for sleeplessness is used by the inhabitants of the Samoan islands. They confine a snake in a hollow bamboo, and the hissing sound emitted by the reptile is said to quickly induce slumber.

The Stinging Ray.

The stinging ray possesses two large pouches in which it secretes soles and other fish upon which it preys. It has a long whiplike tail, terminating in a forked end, which contains its sting and is its weapon of offense and defense. It has a huge liver that yields an oil which is esteemed a valuable specific for burns.

Printed Books.

The earliest example of a book printed on both sides of the leaf with metal type dates from 1460. The first book printed with a date was a Latin psalter, 1457.

HUNTING ROCK HARES.

How long the Arab has inhabited the deserts of the near east is a much discussed question. How long he has indulged in the old time sport of falconry it is equally difficult to say. Sure it is that this keen blooded race has not lived all these centuries in those sun scorched wastes without some sort of recreation, and his delights today are probably much the same as those of his ancestors a couple of thousand years ago.

Curious to see what natural sport these barren regions could afford, the writer accepted an invitation to join a party of Syrian Arabs for a week's hunting. Our quarry was the rock hare, an animal about the size of an English rabbit, but with very fine developed ears, which frequents these deserts in small numbers, living on what scanty herbage it can find.

We started straight away in search of it by forming a chain about a quarter of a mile long and drawing likely tracts of desert in long semicircular sweeps. The herbage was very scant indeed. These sand hills, being scorched by a tropical sun and having a yearly rainfall of only some three inches, support but few plants of any kind. I noticed a few insectivorous birds pursuing their prey with keen voracity, as though they found it hard to make a living, but saw no trace of wild animals.

On we marched in silent order, merely following the lead of our falcon bearer, whose face seemed invariable, his manner unmoved. Hours passed by. It was now 11 o'clock. The sun was hot above us, drying up our parched lips. I began to think that rock hares must be a myth when suddenly the hound leaped forward with a great bound, our horses instinctively following at full gallop. But we had not far to go. It was only a "garbour." The hound was soon up to it, and I thought it was all over; but, no—the little creature leaped, as it were, right out of his mouth.

One spring brought the greyhound alongside again, but again this agile quadruped had slipped out of the grasp of his sharp teeth. The speed of the tiny thing was so great and its actions so sudden that it was as much as the eye could do to follow it at all. Again its great pursuer sprang upon it; again this nimble animal slipped from his very jaws. But it was no good. It was outclassed in size. These great leaps shook the very life breath from its frail body.

At last it fell an easy prey to its relentless enemy, and one crunch put an end to its miseries. It was an interesting little beast, its body about the size of a rat. It carried a fine long coat, was gray on the back, with white under the belly, having a long bony tail with a pretty tuft at the end. But its hind legs were its great feature. They were very long, being, like those of the kangaroo, specially adapted for jumping. I noted, too, that each hind foot was provided with only three toes, whereas on those of the fore legs, which were very short, there were the normal five. Altogether it was a most interesting and sporting specimen.—"Near East."

King Edward's Favorite Horses.

The report that Lord Marcus Beresford, who has long had charge of the King's racing stud, will shortly retire from that position recalls the fact that when a favorite horse of the King or Queen dies its hoofs are cut off and polished, and the horse's name is inscribed on each hoof. These are placed in a row in one of the harness rooms at Sandringham. Their Majesties have their favorite dogs, as well as their favorite horses. Against a wall at the back of their residence at Sandringham may be seen a stone: "To the memory of dear old Rover."

Continents and Population.

Asia comprises 32 per cent. of the total land surface of the globe, and has a population of 830,000,000. America comprises 28 per cent., population 125,000,000; Africa 22 per cent., population 130,000,000; Europe 7 per cent., population 380,000,000; Australia 6 per cent., population 5,000,000.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Put hot flannels over the seat of neuralgic pain and renew frequently.

A change of shoes and stockings completely will be found as soothing as anything for tired feet.

A bad bruise can be eased by applying turpentine. This is also excellent if one has run a nasty nail into the flesh.

Nothing relieves the sting of mosquito bites or the itching of hives like bathing them in a weak soluton of carbolic acid and water.

If the clothes seem to have stuck to a wound do not tear them off, but soften with warm olive oil the parts that adhere, having first cut away the clothing close to the wound with sharp scissors.

For a bad sprain put first under hot water and then under cold. Keep this up until the doctor arrives. Or bandage the wound in some of the clay preparations recommended to reduce swelling and pain.

It is said that chewing pieces of cinnamon bark gives relief to sensitive teeth and gums. For the sensitiveness brought about by acid fruits cleaning the teeth with precipitated chalk and water is satisfactory. The brush must be soft.

Stout people should limit the amount of potatoes and sugar they eat, as these articles of food favor the deposit of fat underneath the skin. Dry toast, lean meat, stewed fruit and fish are suitable foods in treating obesity, and rich, fat, sweet and greasy dishes ought to be avoided.

To breathe deeply is to stimulate the heart and circulation. It means a full, high chest and broad shoulders. It means practical immunity from the dangers incurred by exposure. It means a good carriage and a well poised head. And, best of all, it means perfect physical health.

A Health Hint.

These resolutions of the Order of Peace and Good Will if put into practice will help in the attainment of that calm mental state so helpful to good physical health:

"We agree to deny ourselves, so far as possible, every expression of complaint, fault finding, resentment or bitterness. If we are fractious we will not show it. We will not complain at our circumstances, however meager, uncomfortable or lonely they may be. We will not complain of the weather or the state of our health. We will not answer back with anger, as much as by a look, even if we think ourselves treated with disrespect or injustice. We will bear it if we receive less of love, honor or attention than we deserve. We will not stretch out our hands to demand more than we get."

The Sort of Table He Wanted.

Joiner—Please, sir, I've brought the table you ordered me to make.

Customer—Well, put it down here my man, and let's see what sort o job you've made of it.

The man set it down in the middle of the room, and the customer examined it with the air of a critic.

Joiner—Yes, sir. Well, sir, I know about that, but it won't be noticed when it sets hard.

Customer (coming across some more putty)—But here's some more, my man. What is the meaning of this?

Joiner—Well, sir, you see, a little bit of wood chipped off the corner, and just put a little putty there to fill up It won't do no harm, sir, when it's set hard.

Customer (finding some more putty patches)—Look here, my man, this won't do. Why, here's a big hole right in the middle of this leg. What can you say about that?

Joiner (scratching his head and trying hard to find some excuse by which to retrieve his honor)—Well, sir, that's no harm whatever, and the putty when it gets hard will be firmer and harder than the wood. So, you see, it will be all the better if you wait a bit, sir.

Customer (sarcastically)—Here, my good man, just take this table home and bring me one made of putty altogether. I want a good strong one, and you can fill up the cracks with wood.—London Tit-Bits.

Lettuce Salad With Fried Cheese.

Dress the lettuce in the usual way with French dressing. Have a mild cheese, rather dry, cut in strips like French fried potatoes, dip the strips in beaten egg, roll them in fine bread crumbs and drop them into boiling fat to brown as quickly as possible. Serve with the lettuce.—Boston Post.

Passing Events.

Time is a sort of river of passing events, and strong is its current. No sooner is a thing brought to light than it is swept by and another takes its place, and this, too, will be swept away.—Marcus Aurelius.

Vengeance should be left to women.—Petrarch.

Women's Attractiveness an Asset.

Cicely Hamilton, author of "Diana of Dobson's," the sociological play seen in New York city for a few nights last season, is about to publish in London a series of essays on woman and matrimony. In expressing her views briefly on these puzzling subjects Miss Hamilton recently remarked it was obvious the highest salaries commanded by women, except great prima donnas, were those obtained through their getting married. "As a matter of business," the playwright observed, "woman specialises in personal attractiveness, and the care, the time and the thoroughness which many women devote to their adornment is thoroughly professional and a complete contrast to their amateurishness in other respects.' Miss Hamilton is strongly in favor of matrimony for women, she says. Her objections along this line are, she asserts, the difficulty many girls have in getting the right kind of a husband.

Cynicisms.

All the difference between men and women is that men say what they don't mean, while women don't mean what they say.

Love is a house with many stories and to be happy one should never climb beyond the first floor.

It is one of the curiosities of sex that a woman will face any number of men boldly and quail before one woman.

Love is an easy lesson when one has a capable teacher.

No man ever remembers that which he wishes to forget.

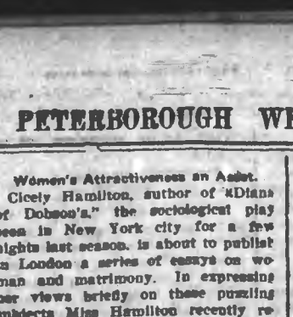
There are never more than two people in the world at a time, oneself and somebody else.

His Ambition.

"So you're saving up to buy an airship? You're quite an ambitious little boy."

"Yes'm. I wants ter fly over Jimmie Jones' yard an' drop bricks on to him!"—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Getting a Hair Cut.



Sure to Do It.

"He is such a lazy man that he took to manufacturing fans as the easiest way of making a living."

"The easiest way?"

"Sure. Isn't it certain to raise the wind?"—Baltimore American.

He Told Her Again.

She—Tell me once more that I am an angel fallen from heaven.

He—All right, but it's a pity you fell on your nose.

He Spouts.

"He is a fountain of information."

"Fountain? More like an artesian well."—Philadelphia North American.

Disciplined For a Duel.

The Hague, Nov. 1.—Queen Wilhelmina has approved the sentence for Baron van Der Capellem, colonel of horse, condemned to imprisonment for duelling. She refused commutation though the baron is one of her closest friends, and though he did not start the fight.

"Cecilie" All Right.

New York, Nov. 1.—The "Kronprinzessin Cecilie" by wireless Saturday night was reported 340 miles east of Cape Race, and all well. A Paris cablegram had given rise to fears that she had met with mishap.

Teamster Killed.

Guelph, Nov. 1.—William Ferguson, a teamster, 66 years of age, who lived with his wife at 80 Water street, was run over by his own wagon while it was filled with a heavy load of sand, and instantly killed.

Trying to Place Him.

Boody—I'd have you to know, sir, that I'm not the idiot you think I am. Knox—Oh, I beg pardon. Which idiot are you?

INDIGESTION GAS—WATERY RISINGS.

Do you belch up gas?
Does your head feel light and dizzy?
Is your tongue coated?
Do you hawk and spit?
Have you distress after eating, and gnawing sensation in the stomach?
Is there a constant bad taste in the mouth, and a rush of blood to the head?

Do Not Despair

Norviline is the best stomach tonic known to science—it cures every case promptly. By sending warmth and comfort to the tired organs that need assistance, Norviline corrects fermentation and gas-belching, drives out dyspeptic pains, clears away bile and bilious feeling. The appetite grows enormous—you digest and assimilate all you eat—this means you gain reserve vigor and cast off depression.

NERVILINE will "set" you up—will make your well. Every doctor who has seen its formula is surprised how many ingredients of wonderful power it contains. Good for young and old, and safe to use at all times. Large 25c bottles, all dealers.

Norviline Cures Stomach Trouble

A Haughty Personage.

Professors in Germany are important personages and know it, but few probably ever reach the pinnacle of haughtiness attained by the one of whom this anecdote is narrated.

He was one of the greatest men in the faculty at Heidelberg. One day the authorities of that city ordered that the street in front of the professor's house should be paved.

"If you don't stop that noise," remarked the professor to the pavers, "I shall give up my position as a member of the Heidelberg faculty."

The pavers stopped work at once. The municipal authorities sent around to inquire respectfully of the professor when they might pave the street.

"When I take my vacation," he replied.

Then, and then only, was the street paved.

Influence of Sunshine.

M. Pouillet, an altogether competent authority on the subject, concluded from some experiments he made that the cold of void external space must be at least 253 of Fahrenheit's scale lower than the temperature of freezing water—that is, further below freezing water than boiling water is above it. Such would certainly be the condition of things upon the surface of the earth in the entire absence of sunshine, and such the earth will eventually become, for it is as certain as anything in the world that the time will come when the heat of the sun will cease.—Exchange.

"The Bold Buccleuch."

Preparations are already being made in various parts of Scotland for the celebration of the golden wedding of the Duke and Duchess of Buccleuch, although that event does not occur until November. No one enjoys more popularity north of the Tweed than the Duke and Duchess. They have lived on their lands, dividing their time impartially between their various Scottish residences, and the interests of their tenants and neighbors have always been theirs. One of the homes of "the Bold Buccleuch," Dalkeith House, is perched upon a rocky height looking over the Esk. More than once Queen Victoria was a guest at Dalkeith, and has immortalized the house in her "Journal" as the place where she first tasted porridge.

Badly-Written "Copy."

The following is from the pages of "Anglo-Indian Literature," compiled by Thacker, Spink & Co., of Calcutta, and is a part of a letter from the superintendent of a native printing press to an official whose writing was, let us say, hurried. The superintendent obviously was quite unable to read the writing, but he had no intention of owning this:—

"We are working day and night, but the advanced state of ignorance of our men, which inclines them to regard your writing as mystical, and to start strange and wild speculations over inscrutable dissyllables, is demoralizing to courage. The writing is the best I have seen, but they still are prone to consider the copy-book style as the only pure and virtuous method."

A Royal Fad.

Queen Alexandra's especial fad has a daintiness well in keeping with her personality. It is that of having her pocket money made perfectly clean and bright before she fingers it. Whenever a check is turned into hard cash for her use the coins are scrubbed in a lather of spirits of wine, water and soap before being placed in her purse, and any change that may be tendered her when making purchases is taken charge of by a lady in waiting until it has been subjected to a like process of purification.—Cassell's Saturday Journal.

An Odorless Onion.

Wing Hop, a Chinese gardener living in California, has for years been engaged in the philanthropic labor of trying to grow an odorless onion that should have all the virtues of the old familiar vegetable of that name without the one quality that has offended so many of the fastidious. He says that his efforts have been crowned with success.

Japanese Building.

The Japanese begin building their houses at the top. The roof is built first and elevated on a skeleton frame. Thus it affords shelter to the workmen from storms.

Breeches.

The Kitchen Sink.

Instead of passing hours of labor cleaning a greasy sink, especially one of glazed ware, put a little paraffin oil upon a piece of flannel and rub the sink. It will remove all grease. Then wash with hot water and soap and flush with cold water. It also cleanses pipes at the same time.

The Conjugal Metal.

In Paris they call radium le metal conjugal because it was the joint discovery of husband and wife. It was Mme. Curie who first suspected the qualities of uranium and drew her husband's attention to the subject.

Brief Names.

The shortest geographical name on record is "U," an island east of Quelpart island, on the southern coast of Korea. Ma, an island in Korea bay. Ui, an island on the western coast of Korea; Uo, an island in the Inland sea, Japan, and Po, a river in Italy, are close seconds for brevity.

Alligators.

French Postal System.

The French postal system was started in the reign of Louis XI., but the first director general was appointed by Louis XIV. He farmed the office, paying 1,000,000 francs a year for the privilege.

Your money back if Purity Flour does not prove entirely satisfactory in the baking.

DON'T simply buy flour from the dollar and cent side of it. Buy high-quality flour. That means PURITY FLOUR. The first little extra cost is more than made up by the extra number of loaves of bread it makes—by the superiority of the bread and pastry in sweetness of flavor and nourishing qualities. Buying Purity Flour is a safe investment. You get large returns, not only on account of Purity's ability to produce more, but because Purity contains the greater nutriment and the vim of a strong hard wheat flour. Food made from Purity Flour gives the consumer health, snap and force, which cannot be gained from the use of the weaker soft wheat flour.

"MORE BREAD AND BETTER BREAD"

PURITY FLOUR

You can buy as little as a 7 pound cotton bag or in 14, 24, 49, and 98 pound sacks. Also in barrels and half-barrels

Purity may cost a little more than some flours but you'll find its more than worth the difference. To be genuine, must bear the Purity trade mark.

WHAT CAUSED THE BLUES

London, Eng.—Doctors have discovered that the "blues" or "mental depression and irritability" is really a disease caused by defective circulation in the cells of the brain.

The "British Health Review" says "by improving the circulation, there is an immediate improvement in the mental outlook".

If this is the case, we Canadians do not have to wait for the foreign scientists to pursue their investigations any farther. We have the cure for the "blues" in those wonderful fruit liver tablets called "Fruit-a-tives".

It is doubtful if the greatest physicians abroad will ever discover anything to equal "Fruit-a-tives" to purify and enrich the blood and improve the circulation.

They go straight to the root of the trouble, stimulating the torpid liver and kidneys and regulating the bowels. Thus they cleanse the whole system and renew vitality, mental as well as physical.

COWED BY MOSQUITOES.

A Clergyman's Experience on a British Columbia Trip.

In 1860 the Rev. John Sheepshanks, later on the bishop of Norwich, was traveling through British Columbia. His book, "A Bishop in the Rough," relates his experiences on the Douglas trail, where the greatest discomfort was caused by the swarms of ferocious mosquitoes. He met with Indians covered with paint, carrying branches of trees in their hands, which they were sweeping around them as they walked. They were evacuating their country, being temporarily driven out by these pests. If by chance a traveler arrived at a clearing or an open space where there appeared to be an immunity from them, ere long they would appear.

"Quite early in the morning after meeting those Indians I issued from my tent and found an open space on the river's side where I could get my bath. But no sooner had I emerged from the water than I found swarms of mosquitoes assailing me, and, do what I would, slaughter them by dozens, I suffered severely.

"It was on that same day, dining at a wayside house, that I took part in a scene which I can never forget. There were twenty-five men going up to the mines. Food was on the table. There was a ceaseless hum in the apartment, for it was literally brown with thousands of mosquitoes.

"It was sweilteringly hot, yet every man had made himself as impervious as he could. Each man wore his coat buttoned up, strings were fastened round his cuffs, and trousers also if he had not on top boots. They had gauntlets on their hands, their hats were on, and veils hanging down covered face and neck. A man would stick his fork into a piece of meat and pop in under the veil as quickly as possible. When drinking their coffee the men would hold the cup underneath the veil, first clearing out the bodies of the mosquitoes which possibly had been feeding upon the hairy miner close at hand.

"Not a word was uttered during that brief meal, for we were beaten down and cowed by the insects. The first words spoken were by a miner in pushing away his chair from the table, 'Oh, this God forsaken country!'"

ABSENTMINDED.

The Dinner to Which Wills, the Artist, Invited a Friend.

Mr. Wills, the artist, was renowned for his absentmindedness, and the following story, says Henrietta Cockran in her book, "Celebrities and I," was told of him by a friend: "Wills invited me to dinner one afternoon when I met him in the Strand. I accepted, reminding him that as he was absentminded he had better make a note of the evening. As he had no paper in his pocket, he wrote the date on his shirt cuff.

"When the appointed evening arrived I went to his studio. The door was opened by Wills, and I could see that he had forgotten all about the appointment.

"'Ah, old fellow,' he exclaimed, 'do not be too hard on me. The cuff went to the wash and the date with it. But there is a fowl in the pot boiling here,' continued Mr. Wills. 'Just come in and wait a few minutes.'

"I had my misgivings, but walked inside and sat upon the only chair not crowded with paint brushes and palettes.

"After waiting for about twenty minutes, feeling deucedly hungry, I groaned. This had its effect.

"He exclaimed in a dreamy voice, 'The fowl must be boiled by this time,' and, coming forward, he lifted the lid of the pot and peered inside. 'It is very odd,' he remarked, 'but I cannot see the fowl. Extraordinary! No one has been here, so the bird cannot have been stolen.'

"Well, the long and short of it is that a week or two later I called again at the studio, noticed a peculiar odor and discovered the fowl wrapped up in a piece of paper.

"'Ah!' said Wills. 'Now I know how it all happened. When the fowl was brought in there came a smart visitor—Lady G.—about sitting for her portrait. I must have thrown the fowl behind a canvas and forgotten about it.'"

Kissing the Book.

In England and all the English speaking countries the kissing of the book before the oath comes from the practice of touching a "haliqamen" or sacred object, as the old Roman touched the altar or Harold the casket of relics. The form "So help me God" is inherited from ancient Teutonic-Scandinavian law, under which the old northmen, touching the blood daubed ring on the altar, swore, "So help me Frey and Niordh and the Almighty God"—that is, Thor. The first and last of these are the two old English gods, whose names we keep up in Friday and Thursday.

Give Him a Show.

Oh, you high up one, you who roost
On fame's broad ridgepole high,
You who have got your bald old head
In fame's alluring sky,
Don't look so grouchy at the cub
Down on the lower rung!
Once you were but an amateur.
Once you were green and young.

You do not need to hold him by
His ill fit pantaloons
You do not need to buoy him
For countless suns and moons.
But don't discourage him for aye.
He's human, and he's true.
Give him a show to climb and let Him perch beside of you.
—Boston Herald.

Not Heartless.

"He is such a cold, stern, unemotional man," we say of the gentleman who has just left us. "Is he really as heartless as he appears?"

"Not at all," explains the other person. "The doctors have taken his appendix, half his liver, part of his stomach, one lung, his spleen and so much else that really about the only thing he has left is his heart."—Chicago Post.

Mosquito Musketry.

Slap! Slap! Slap!
It sounds like artillery's sinister snap.
Over the front porch, back on the stoop,
Out 'neath the trees where the sufferers troop.
You hear it, while fervently floats through the air
A word here and there
Quite distinct from a prayer.
The echoes come back from all points of the map—
Slap! Slap! Slap!
—Washington Star.

The Cent and Half Cent.

First coined in 1787 by the United States government, the federal cent piece was antedated by coppe cents struck by several states. Ver mont before being admitted to th Union coined the first cents in th country in June, 1785. Connecticu Massachusetts, New York and Ne Jersey also put the copper coins in circulation. Under the constitutio the first coinage act, passed in 179 authorized a cent of 264 grains. I 1793 it was reduced to 208 grains an in 1796 to 168 grains. The 168 grai "copper" remained unchanged, excep in pattern, until 1857, passing throng seven designs. Until 1857 half cent also were coined. In that year th half cent was abolished and a ne cent was ordered, weighing only sev enty-two grains and composed of 8 per cent of copper and 12 per cent o nickel. In 1864 the present bronze cen was authorized. This weighs forty eight grains and is composed of 9 per cent copper and 5 per cent ti and zinc.—Argonaut.

A Little Crowded.

A backwoodsman went to New York city for the first time, says the Saturday Evening Post. He stopped at a Broadway hotel which was pretty well downtown. Next morning his nephew who lives in New York, came to take him out and show him the sights. They walked down Broadway until they got to Canal street. The backwoodsman stopped and contemplated the great congestion of traffic there, hundreds of trucks going every way.

"Son," he said to his nephew, "you have a nice city here, but it 'pears to me that your folks is a hull passel behind in their haulin'."

Must Suit All Tastes.

"My wife wonders why the papers waste so much space on mere news."

"What does she read?"

"Oh, she reads the weather probabilities, the bargain probabilities, the marriage notices and the love story. But an item about a big battle or the fall of a dynasty looks piffling to her."

Animals He Had Met.

Little Harry was visiting in the country and while there became very much attached to his cousin's pet dog. "Haven't you any animals at home?" he was asked.

"Oh, yes," replied the little fellow. "We have roaches and flies."—Chicago News.

Why Women's Minds Are Cleaner.

"Of course women should vote," he said. "Women deserve the suffrage as much as men—more, because their minds are purer and cleaner."

"Cleaner?" cried the sweet young thing he had taken in to dinner. "Of course they are, ever and ever so much cleaner! But how do you know that?"

"Because they change them so much oftener," said he solemnly.—Exchange.

THE NEW CORSET CLASP.

A Tongue or Clip Which Acts as a Safety Guard.

An invention of interest to women is the new corset clasp here shown, which is designed to add much to the comfort of the user. These clasps are so shaped that when a corset provided with them is fastened on the wearer they incline slightly outward from about the waist line to the top of the corset, and because of this outward inclination the steels cannot press uncomfortably against the wearer. In some makes of corsets this fault of inward pressure is so pronounced that it causes real suffering, and the after effects are sometimes serious. It frequently happens that corsets after they have been worn only slightly develop this fault and have to be discarded. In this new design, on the left hand clasp on the inner edge, near the top, is a little tongue or clip that acts as a locking means and prevents the clasps when hooked from coming unfastened, which is another annoying feature of many of the old style clasps.

SHOWING THE CURVED STEEL.

LIFE IS A FAIRY TALE.

Everyday Occurrences Regarded in a New Light.

Some people claim that we ought not to tell children fairy tales. Perhaps we ought not. But what else in life is there? Isn't it a fairy tale, this living from day to day, this struggle for fame and power and glory? Isn't it a fairy tale to suppose that one man has it within his power to be happier than another? Could anybody but a fairy bring peace to grownup children who are wet with sweat of work and worry?

Palaces there are in abundance—only they are not construed on the fantastic lines of dreams. Goblins are everywhere—and bobgoblins; imaginary bean stalks to be climbed by daring Jacks and giants to be slain by giant killers. It is all a fairyland when you come to think about it—every good woman a princess, every tired shopgirl a lovely Cinderella; the white steeds of ambition standing caparisoned, ready to be mounted by knights and couriers; ships laden with their wealth coming into silvery ports from odorous oceans; caravansaries with the fruit of a thousand looms trailing across the plains to the castles; moats in which flow molten gold and drawbridges which one can only cross by whispering the secret word "Success." It is all a fairyland. Flowers bloom upon every wall, the mystic music of the unseen muses, seraphs bathing in the summer seas, cherubs romping through a tangled wilderness of blooms and blossoms—oh, it is a fairy world, all right, if it is anything.

Why American Girls Marry Abroad.

Tired men fill our vaudeville theaters—for there at least the audience is largely masculine—even in the daytime. They are too near exhaustion to do more than listen to wit quite easy of comprehension.

Our girls are accustomed to amusing tired men. That joy of being amused, of being interested by a man of the world, is not to be omitted in any just weighing of the question of why they find foreigners attractive, and as time passes, in spite of all the bitter disillusionments of the past, our rich girls will make more and more unflattering selections from among suitors from across the seas. And it is full time our young men awakened to their own share in the causes which lead to such a condition. The whole social system of England and of Europe generally spares a girl from such shameful sales. The mothers, the fathers, the men about her, are equipped to protect her, and they take the time and spare the energy to do so. Justly considered, it is a social, psychic question, quite apart from a man's commercial value in the world.

The Worry Habit.

The worry habit is one that grows rapidly. The more it is indulged in the stronger it becomes. When you discover that you are its victim just stop and consider: What do I gain by it? If so, what is the gain? What do I lose by it? Health, strength, cheerfulness, the power of helping others. Whatever you do don't say, "I can't help it." The worry habit is easily overcome if one is determined.

May Be Dean of Radcliffe.

Vassar graduates will be interested to know that it is rumored that Lois Kimball Matthews will be the next dean of Radcliffe. She is a member of the faculty of Vassar college, but a graduate of Leland Stanford university, and, coming east, took her Ph. D. degree at Radcliffe in 1906. If she is not already chosen she is thought to be the most likely candidate for the position.

In the adversity of our best friends we often find something which does not displease us.—Rochefoucauld.

The Way of the World.

"When we were poor," remarked the prosperous man reflectively, "we looked forward to the time when we could have a summer home."

"Well?"

"Well, when we got rich enough to have one we didn't like going to the same place every summer because it was monotonous, and we looked forward to the time when we could have another for variety."

"Well?"

"Well, we got another, and then we began to long for a winter place, so that we wouldn't have to be so much in the big house in the city."

"Well?"

"Well, we've got them all now."

"And are you happy?"

"I suppose so—at least, I suppose my wife is. She keeps them all shut up and spends most of her time in Europe, but she knows she has them."—Chicago Post.

Wrongly Placed.

It is astonishing sometimes how unconsciously careless we are of the feelings of the person to whom we are talking. A young guardsman told me the other day that a friend of his went with him to consult his lawyer. The solicitor, a shrewd looking and kindly old gentleman, was listening to an irate explanation of how his clerk had failed to do something that had been expected of him. "Yes, you are quite right, it was his fault," said the solicitor.

"But why are these confounded lawyers' clerks so stupid?" asked the angry soldier.

"I do not know, my dear sir," replied the solicitor kindly, "but would you mind alluding to them as 'lawyers' confounded clerks?'"—London M. A. P.

A Strenuous Hint.

He had been a regular Sunday caller for six months, when one evening he dropped in arrayed in a new suit.

"That's a lovely wedding suit you have on," remarked the dear girl.

"Well," rejoined the d. g. calmly, "I mean business."

And the very next day he put up $19.98 of his hard earned wealth for a solitaire.—Chicago News.

The Reason.

"Why do so many women rest their chins on their hands when they are trying to think?"

"To hold their mouths shut so that they won't disturb themselves."—Cleveland Leader.

Happy Parents.

Distraught Mother—And what with these heducation bills an' all, miss, I sometimes says to myself: "'Appy are the parents what never 'ad any children," I says.—London Bystander.

Zablone, an Italian Dessert.

This is one of the most famous delicacies in Italy, but is seldom made in this country. It is made as follows: Beat together one whole egg and the yolks of two others; beat in half a cupful of sugar and put in a saucepan over hot water, stirring constantly. Gradually add half a cupful of sherry, continue stirring until the eggs begin to thicken, then little by little pour in a tablespoonful of lemon juice and the whites of two eggs beaten to a stiff froth. Do not leave off stirring until the whole is smooth and thick. Serve hot in glasses.

Lest You Forget.

There is something good in all weathers. If it doesn't happen to be good for my work today it is good for some other man's today and will come around for me tomorrow.—Dickens.

For my part, I've never been able to see what satisfaction people get out of being ill mannered. It takes twice as long as it does to be polite, and it's not nearly so good for the digestion afterward.—Ellen Glasgow.

Not Sisters

Now and again you see two women passing down the street who look like sisters. You are astonished to learn that they are mother and daughter, and you realize that a woman at forty or forty-five ought to be at her finest and fairest. Why isn't it so?

The general health of woman is so intimately associated with the local health of the essentially feminine organs that there can be no red cheeks and round form where there is female weakness.

Women who have suffered from this trouble have found prompt relief and cure in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It gives vigor and vitality to the organs of womanhood. It clears the complexion, brightens the eyes and reddens the cheeks.

No alcohol, or habit-forming drugs is contained in "Favorite Prescription." Any sick woman may consult Dr. Pierce by letter, free. Every letter is held as sacredly confidential, and answered in a plain envelope. Address: World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R.V. Pierce, Pres., Buffalo, N.Y.

There are Stores in this City that would be Greater Stores----Hustling, Bustling Successes

ADVERTISE IN "THE EXAMINER"

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

The U. S. Postoffice Department will issue a 12-cent stamp.

Two prisoners in a jail at Lordsburg, N.M., were burned to death in a fire that destroyed the building.

The sawmill of the North River Lumber Co., at Widdifield, near North Bay, was destroyed by fire. The loss was $10,000, partially covered by insurance.

Fred Cook, serving a life term in San Quentin, Cal., Prison for murdering his wife, hurled an iron bar at Henry Mayer, serving a term for arson, killing him instantly.

At New York, Frank Miller shot and killed his father-in-law, John Scesin, and probably fatally wounded his wife. Miller was arrested. His four children saw the shooting.

At Fitchburg, Mass., when Mrs. F. Berry, who kept a boarding-house, announced that she was going to give up the business, Edward J. Dickson, a boarder, shot her and tried to kill himself.

Two horses worth $600, belonging to William Chaplin, formerly of Montreal, were burned to death in Capt. MacKie's barn at St. Catharines, destroyed by fire, as the result of a Hallowe'en prank.

At the annual meeting of the Medicine Hat Conservative Association, C. A. Magrath, M.P. for Medicine Hat, and John Herron, M.P. for South Alberta, came out in strong denunciation of Canada's toy navy.

Wind velocity in the Straits of Juan de Fuca on Oct. 27 was so great that seagulls were driven upon the waves and drowned by scores, is reported by Captain Charles Santa of the American cruiser Taurus. He estimates the velocity at 150 miles an hour.

Too Mighty to Fight.

London, Nov. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Speaking at the Royal Colonial Institute, Lord Charles Beresford said the future was black. We could only hold our own by keeping our supremacy at sea. The navies of the Empire should be interchangeable, should have the same discipline and uniform signals. He had found Canadians to be strong, healthy, cheery and energetic, and the best specimens of the British race he had ever seen. Canadians' loyalty was unbounded.

Having alluded to the excellent feeling between Canada and the United States, he declared we should not talk of having a fleet that could win a battle, but should rather aim at having such an Empire fleet that nobody dare attack at all.

What Wrecked Hestia?

St. John, N.B., Nov. 3.—S. C. Stewart, third officer of the wrecked steamer Hestia, in a letter to Mr. Gillies, superintendent of the Donaldson Line, says: "My direct complaint is that the old Proprietor Ledge buoy was neither light nor fog signal, and it is supposed to have both. When it is known that the Hestia must have passed within a few feet of this buoy, it will readily be conceded that had it been lit and its bell sounding the Hestia would have been warned."

Again, the keeper of the Gannet admits he did not fire a warning gun because he was afraid he might awake the doctor.

Two Men Asphyxiated.

Toronto, Nov. 3.—Henry Kerr and John Harcourt, his nephew, were found dead in their home at 86 Deloe street, yesterday morning. An open gas jet in the dining-room which filled the entire house with the fumes was the evident cause. Kerr was 87 years of age. Harcourt was 53 years of age and was in the habit of stopping off at Toronto to stay all night with the old man. He was a traveler for the Walkerville Bobbin Co. His wife and family live in Walkerville. Chief Coroner Johnson is investigating.

Gouin and the Charges.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Sir Lomer Gouin was at the Government offices yesterday morning. Asked if he had anything to say regarding the accusations of Armand Lavergne against Hon. Mr. Turgeon which appeared in Le Nationaliste, Sir Lomer said: "The position of the Attorney-General is well defined, and very clear on the point, and will be indicated during the present campaign to the entire satisfaction of the electorate."

Four Men Held-Up Laborers.

Paterson, N.J., Nov. 3.—Fifty Italian laborers employed by a construction company on a trolley line were held up early yesterday by four armed men, and robbed of nearly $1,500.

The bandits represented themselves to be officers of the Government, sent to investigate a report that liquor was being sold. One by one the laborers were called out of the barracks which they occupied in common and securely bound and gagged.

Toronto Application Fails.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—The Dominion Railway Board yesterday refused to vary the order made in July concerning the high level bridge at the Don improvement, Toronto. W. C. Chisholm, for the city, had moved that the different companies affected by the order should advance their proportionate shares as the work advanced, so that the city would not have to finance the whole proposition.

Chicle Forests Thinning Out.

City of Mexico, Nov. 3.—The Chicle growers of Yucatan have been tapping the trees too often and the trees are being destroyed at a rapid rate. Unless new chicle forests are discovered or a system of reforestation is put into effect, Yucatan will have no chicle to export in a few years.

Rains Damage Salt Crop.

Turks Island, Bahamas, Nov. 3.—A rainfall of over ten inches Monday overflowed the salt ponds and caused an immense loss of salt, the raking of which is the most important industry in the Turks and Caicos Islands.

Rubbers Will Be Dear.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Rubbers are likely to go as high as two dollars a pair this season. The price of crude rubber, has gone up from 150 to 200 per cent. So far the advance to the public in rubber goods has only been 5 to 15 per cent.

Lit Pipe and Gas Exploded.

Chatham, Nov. 3.—William McColl and an English immigrant named Green, walked into the door of a natural gas regulator shed to light their pipes. In the explosion that followed, both were very badly burned.

MRS. ROBINSON SAVED.

She Will Not Hang, But May Not Get Full Pardon.

Ottawa, Nov. 3.—Mrs. Robinson, the unfortunate woman under sentence to be hanged at Sudbury three weeks hence for the murder of the infants of her daughters, will not have to suffer the death penalty. This much has already been decided after a review of the evidence and the circumstances of the case by the Minister of Justice. It is very doubtful, however, if the Cabinet Council will see its way clear to grant a full pardon. There is no precedent for such a course in the history of the Dominion. In the only similar instance where sentence of death on a woman was commuted some years ago to a limited term of imprisonment the term was made fourteen years, and she was liberated after serving seven years.

The case is clearly one of murder, and even though the circumstances all cry for mercy, it is doubtful if under the criminal code a full pardon can be granted. The matter will come before the Cabinet this week for consideration. Meanwhile the flood of petitions for clemency and pardon pouring into the Department of Justice is unabated. It is estimated that over one hundred and fifty thousand persons have already been heard from. All sections of Canada, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, are represented, and many letters are being received from the United States. Some of the petitioners couch their prayer for mercy in original poetry; others write essays or diatribes on the various aspects of the case.

Coal Company Case Goes On.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 3.—The coal operators' conspiracy case is dragging on in the Police Court. Yesterday General Manager Duggan of the Dominion Coal Co. produced a pile of correspondence between Mr. Morrow and General Sales Agent Dick. The letters had to be admitted individually, the process taking a long time. W. B. A. Ritchie, for the crown, argued that conspiracy had been proven, for the purpose of gaining permission to question witness Morrow in regard to prices of coal, and was successful. Every company at present is at liberty to make its own charges for freight. It transpired that there was an arrangement by which the Bay of Fundy trade was not sought after by the Dominion Co., the price for ports on the bay being f.o.b. Sydney. In 1899 the dealer at Halifax would pay $2 a ton at the mine, now $3.80.

Canadians Pay More.

Winnipeg, Nov. 3.—A special from Chicago says that Manitoba white fish is selling on that market at seven cents a pound wholesale, and nine retail, pickerel, wholesale, 7 1-2, retail nine. The whitefish are taken largely by hotels and restaurants because cheaper than Lake Superior fish. Chicago consumes about six carloads of Manitoba whitefish per week.

The point is that yesterday Manitoba whitefish sold at ten cents per pound wholesale in Winnipeg. The facts are interesting in view of the prospective trip of the federal fish commission, which has been looking into northern fisheries, to Chicago. The Booth people practically control the Lake Manitoba output and the price.

Counsel Sued by Company.

Vancouver, B.C., Nov. 3.—Barrister J. R. Grant of New Westminster was yesterday made defendant in a suit for unstated damages for alleged slander. The write was issued by the Vancouver Power Co.

The action grows out of certain statements made by Grant, acting counsel for the municipality of Coqueitlam, at a conference held with the Hon. Frank Oliver on Oct. 16.

Ex-Mayor a Candidate.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 3.—A. J. Morley, formerly mayor of Victoria, announces his intention of running as an Independent candidate, opposing Premier McBride. He has a large personal following, including Labor, Socialists and moral reformers, and the Liberals may find a place for him on their ticket. John Jardine is the Liberal candidate in Esquimalt.

Fatal Fall.

Barrie, Nov. 3.—James Deegan, an employe of the Barrie Tannery Co., fell five storeys, receiving fatal injuries. It is believed the ladder on which he was working slipped. He had several ribs broken on the left side, internal injuries, right leg broken below the knee, and a deep scalp wound. He leaves a wife and three children.

Paid Organizer For Ottawa.

To Climb Mount McKinley.

Fairbanks, Alaska, Nov. 3.—A party of five Alaskans, all familiar with Mount McKinley, has been organized to climb the peak this winter and put an end to the controversy whether Dr. Cook reached the summit. The party will start November 15.

Montreal, Nov. 3.—Peter Patterson, the United Mine Workers' official, now in Cape Breton, did not turn up as a witness in the trial of Dan McDougall, for criminal libel yesterday, and a bench warrant was issued for his arrest.

Dr. T. J. Holmes Injured.

COMMITTED FOR TRIAL ON CHARGE OF STEALING A WATCH AND RING

Jesse Airriess Appeared Before Magistrate Dumble in Police Court This Morning for Theft at the Hotel National Fire.

THE EVIDENCE GIVEN

Jesse Airriess was committed for trial by Magistrate Dumble at the police court this morning on two charges of theft that took place during the progress of the recent fire at the Hotel National. Crown Attorney R. E. Wood conducted the prosecution, and Mr. R. F. McWilliams defended the accused. The first charge taken up was that of stealing a watch, the property of Mrs. A. P. Poussette, and the second one was for the theft of a gold ring, owned by Mr. G. Clarke.

The Watch Theft.

Mr. A. P. Poussette stated that he and Mrs. Poussette lived at the National Hotel, their room being twenty-one. On Friday last the hotel took fire, about 4.45. Their room was locked, both Mrs. Poussette and himself being out. Mrs. Poussette and witness were standing across the street, about 6.15. Suddenly they noticed the lights come on in their room, and some one running around in it. He went across and hurried to the room. The smoke was very dense, the lock was smashed, and on making a rough examination he found some one had been ransacking the place.

Before going up to the room, Mrs. Poussette said as soon as she saw some one in it, "My watch is there, also try and find my glasses." He found neither, but when the smoke had subsided they went up together. They made a thorough search, but found neither watch nor glasses. The watch produced in court was identified as Mrs. Poussette's. The matter was reported to the police. Later, while the witness, his wife, and P. C. Newhall were in the room Airriess caddel and asked for Mr. Poussette. On going to the door Airriess said: "Mr. Poussette, I have come to give you your watch." P. C. Newhall then stepped out and arrested him.

P. C. Newhall stated that he had heard from the proprietor of the hotel that there were things missing. About eight o'clock he met Mr. and Mrs. Poussette on the stairs. Mr. Poussette told him they had lost a watch and spectacles. One of the girls working there gave him a description of a man with a watch in a wrist band. It was so accurate that he at once suspected Airriess, as he had seen him about there that evening. He went to Mr. Poussette's room, and while there waiting, he heard someone coming along the corridor. Witness got behind a curtain. A moment later, the prisoner entered the room saying to Mr. Poussette "You lost something to-night." P. C. Newhall then stepped out and told him that he was looking for him. He asked him where was the watch. He said that he had come to bring it back to Mr. Poussette. He brought him to the police station. He searched him and found a watch fob, and a gold ring, set with a carbuncle, which had been identified by Mr. G. Clark, acting Post Master.

Ring Was Gone.

Mr. G. Clarke, acting Post Master here, was called in the second case. He said that he occupied room 58 at the Hotel National. He stated that he was on his way to the hotel shortly after five o'clock last Friday; he saw smoke coming from the building. At first he did not go to the room because he thought the fire was confined to the basement, but when he saw the fire wasn't lessening any, Dr. Buchanan and witness went up a ladder into the room adjoining his own. He went on to fifty-three. The lock on the door had been broken. He began to pack up his clothes, and on opening a receptacle, where he kept jewellery, he missed his ring. Later, he found his gun-metal watch gone, an ebony box containing studs and cuff links, and a small nickel-plated box, in which were a dozen Gillette safety razor blades.

P. C. Newhall told of finding the ring on the prisoner.

He was also committed on this charge.

ACTION DISMISSED

Mr. Justice Clute Throws Out the Request to Quash the Local Option By-law

Special to The Examiner.

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 3.—The action to quash the local option by-law was dismissed by Justice Clute at the county assizes without calling upon the defence, the case of the petitioner being very weak.

RESERVED JUDGMENT

In the Case of Angus McDonald Charged With Assaulting and Robbing Wm. P. Whitney—Will Give Judgment on Friday.

WAS REFUSED BAIL

The defence in the case of Angus McDonald charged before Magistrate Dumble with assaulting and robbing Wm. P. Whitney of a gold watch and chain and thirty-eight dollars on the night of Thanksgiving Day, opened yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The prisoner and Chief Rossel were the only witnesses called. After hearing their evidence, his Worship stated that he would reserve judgment for one week.

Angus McDonald, the prisoner, went into the box for his defence. He stated that he did not know what was meant when he elected to be tried summarily. He thought he was to have been tried by jury. He denied the statement of one witness that he (prisoner) followed the complainant out into the yard. He did not see Whitney about at all. The first time he saw him was when he came to identify him.

To Crown Attorney R. E. Wood, he positively denied that he knew what a jury was. He thought it was "High Court" of some kind. He admitted to the Crown Attorney that he was thirty-three years of age and did not know that a jury was composed of twelve men. He was not drunk on Thanksgiving night, but might have been "half-shot." The drink he had at the hotel, he paid for himself. It was the last five cents he had.

Mr. Ruddy called Chief Rossel.

"Did you have an interview with the prisoner?" asked the lawyer for the defence.

"I did not," said Chief Rossel.

Chief Rossel stated that last Tuesday McDonald was arrested and brought to the police station. Whitney called later and was asked "Is this your man."

He answered, "He looks like him; I believe he is the man."

Asked if he was prepared to swear that he was the man Whitney replied:

"I would not care to."

The prisoner was then allowed to go.

After McDonald was gone Chief Rossel sent P. C. Meagher and Whitney to the City Hotel to make enquiries. In consequence of the investigation an information was sworn out.

PLENTY OF GRAIN

Enough at Port Arthur and Fort William to Keep the Boats Busy for Rest of the Season.

Special to The Examiner.

Port Arthur, Nov. 3.—In the Port Arthur elevators there are about 2,000,000 bushels of wheat and slightly over 1,000,000 of oats, barley and flax; Fort William elevators contain something over a total of 4,000,000 bushels, those amounts fluctuating day by day with receipts of grain by rail from the west and shipments east by boat. This is regarded as sufficient, with the receipts as will accumulate during the remainder of the season, to keep all the boats that may offer to take cargoes, busy for the remainder of the season.

TOTAL AMOUNT OF CHEESE WAS MUCH LESS THAN YIELD IN 1908

A Review of the Past Year's Showing From Records of Peterborough Cheese Board and a Comparison With Last Year's Figures---Average Price Was Lower and as Result Farmers Will Not Divide as Much Money as Expected---Difference, However, Cannot be Very Material.

Total Receipts for 1908 .. $418,083.13
$34,099.65

The above figures tell a story that is by no means welcome to the farmer. The past year has witnessed a falling off in the amount of cheese sold on the Peterborough Board the difference amounting in dollars and cents to $34099.65. Quite a figure in the farmer's eye. Last year the townships adjoining the city and a few of the other factories which board at Peterborough were enriched to the extent of $418,083.13 through the cheese industry. This year the total amount of money received by the salesmen representing the factories is $383,983.48.

A Comparison.

The following brief statement of the conditions affords a comparison of the cheese industry, as shown by the records of the Peterborough Cheese Board for the years 1908 and 1909:

The Year 1908.

Total number of cheese boarded, 41,420.

Average number of cheese boarded, 3451⅔.

Average price, 11⅞ (nearly).

Average weight of cheese, 85 lbs.

Total amount paid salesmen, $418,083.13.

Number of meetings, 12.

The Year 1909.

Total number of cheese boarded, 39,214.

Average number of cheese boarded, 3268.66.

Average price, 11.62.

Total money paid salesmen, $383,983.48.

Number of meetings, 12.

The Past Year.

A number of causes combine to explain the decrease of 167,510lbs. in the output of cheese factories that Board here. Some of the factories that were included on last year's list did not board at Peterborough this year. Bensfort factory was burned down about six weeks ago and it has been learned that a large quantity of cheese was sold off the Board. When these facts are taken into consideration the showing is not so bad as it first appears. Moreover the average price was lower than in 1908, and it appears that no blame can be attached to the cow.

The yield of milk has, according to statements of representatives of the factories, been as heavy as during the previous year and if the patrons receive less substantial cheques at the close of this season they cannot lay the blame upon their faithful herds.

Among the buyers on the Peterborough Board Mr. G. A. Gillespie is one of the favourites with the salesmen, and has probably been the heaviest buyer. W S Cook, of Belleville, Mr. Kerr, Mr. Weir, Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Norton are other prominent buyers. Considering all things the Peterborough Cheese Board has had a successful year. The prices have invariably been the highest and the salesmen have been well pleased with the prices. Another satisfactory condition is the fact that there was no friction between the buyers and the salesmen and in consequence there has been no trouble during the entire year. It is to be hoped that 1910 will see another good year and that the number of factories will be increased.

Will Not Built Pavement On Charlotte Street This Year

The Board of Works, at a meeting held yesterday afternoon, decided not to build the Charlotte St. pavement this year. There was an argument in Council over the matter on Monday night, and it was decided to have the Board deal with the matter.

At yesterday's meeting City Engineer T. A. S. Hay was present, and he stated that to build any more walks this year would be taking an unwarranted chance as the weather is very unreliable and there is liable to be a heavy frost at any time which would destroy the work.

That ended the discussion for this year. The Charotte street walk will not be built.

The chairman of the committee informed the committee that on account of the high water in the river the contractors on the Smith Street bridge were being held back in their work. The blame seemed to be put on the Peterborough Light & Power Company, who control the flow of the river along that stretch and can raise or lower the water at their dam with stop logs as they see fit.

The committee, however, could do nothing as it is a matter between the company and the contractors, although the aldermen would like to see Messrs. Conroy get along with the work.

A Ratepayer Wants The Delay In Installing Lights Explained

A ratepayer asks the Examiner to ask the Fire, Water and Light Committee to ask the Peterborough Light and Power Company to ask itself why the contract for putting a dozen incandescent street lights on Gilmour street has not been even begun. These lights were passed by the Council a month ago, and in due course, it is stated, the work of installing them was intrusted to the Light and Power Company. It is also suggested that at the early date at which it is hoped the lights will be put up, that they be placed on south side of the street—first because the pole line is already installed there; and, secondly, because the lighting would be more effective. On the north side there is a continuous stretch of large trees, whose foliage would obstruct the spread of light; whereas there are fewer trees and smaller on the South side; so that the light placed on that side would afford much better service.

Larder Lake, Oct. 29.—The camp continues in its activity and the outside public are taking more interest in the country than ever before, with the result that many claims are changing hands at good figures, and there are two large deals pending. This growing interest is caused by the legitimate mining work that has been done this past year, the different companies spending the money economically and proving the worth of their properties.

The Tournenie Co. have a large force of miners continually at work and are finding good pay ore. Next week they commence on the dam on the Raven River. Contracts have already been taken to supply power to two of the compnies operating and others have made application for same.

The Victoria Creek Co. are now down to the 160 foot level and have commenced cross-cutting. They are well pleased with the ore got out to date, and the indications all go to show that as good a grade of rock will be encountered as they continue.

The Dr. Reddick Co. are also down 100 feet and are drifting with good results; this company are mining right they are blocking out plenty of ore before starting the mill at its full capacity.

The Combined Goldfields are doing good prospect work on their claims, and reports from their manager are that better assays are being secured with depth.

The Berkshire Mining Co., have started a large force of miners at work on their properties at Dane. This company have 240 acres and have had mill tests made of the different veins, which gave $35 to the ton; they have started a 300 foot tunnel on the O'Donald discovery. This vein is fully 6 feet wide and is a true fissure vein. These claims run alongside of the railroads and a large creek travels through the properties from which power can be very cheaply obtained. Mr. J. C. O'Donald, the manager of the company is at present on the ground and is hustling things into good shape.

J. W. Callanan, the owner of a copper property in the Township of Boston, near Dane, had made all arrangements for shipping ore, and the T.N.O. quoted him $6 per ton freight; now they have raised it to $10.40. At the former figure t small profit could be made, but at the latter it is impossible to work the property.

This does not look a bit the promises made previous to the last election by the sitting member are being fulfilled. Such a policy as in this instance retards instead of advances the country.

All the companies and private individuals are working away and receiving plenty of encouragement, and the coming winter will be a busy one for the freight trains, a lot of machinery being order for the first snow.

Windigo is still receiving a lot of attention and men of experience predict a boom this fall in the district. D. W. Brooks, F. D. Keals and others are sinking and getting good ore.

The following are registered at the Collingwood Hotel: Prof. Sharp, W. J. Blair, New Liskeard, M. Bracken, G. Portsmouth, J. Crosby, W. Richardson, Toronto; E. H. Ward, Grand Rapids, Mich.; D. S. GEO. A. GILLESPIE
Again the choice of Peterborough Cheesemen to the Board of Directors of Eastern Dairymen's Association.

CHOSEN AGAIN

Ald. Gillespie Honoured by the Dairymen of Peterborough.

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie was for the third time chosen as the representative of the Peterborough Dairymen on the directorate of the Eastern Dairymen's Association. He was elected unanimously during the past two years, and has so ably fulfilled his position that he was again chosen. Mr. Gillespie, from his practical experience, has risen to a place of prominence in the dairy world of Eastern Ontario, and has the confidence and respect of the dairymen of Peterborough County, and is an active representative to the Eastern Ontario Association.

THE ROYAL WELSH CHOIR TO-NIGHT

The Royal Welsh choir who will be heard to-night in a grand concert at the Conservatory of Music Hall, appeared last night in Belleville before a crowded opera house and received a most enthusiastic reception, so enthusiastic, in fact, that the choir will pay a return visit to Belleville. Their appearance here to-night is one of the biggest musical events of the season and no doubt they will be heard by a very large audience as they come with the most flattering commendations earned on both sides of the Atlantic.

CURED WHEN DOCTORS FAILED
Mr. Felix Villeneuve, Clarence Creek, Ont., writes: "I was a great sufferer from kidney disease and inflammation of the bowels and liver troubels and doctors could not help me much. Could not sleep, water contained sediment, had frequent desire to urinate and often passed blood. Had dreadful headaches, one side almost paralyzed, and was deaf in left ear for eight years. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cured me and I am very grateful. I want to thank you."

MEDICAL EXAMINATION OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL CHILDREN

Prominent Agriculturist Who is Addressing Peterborough Cheesemen To-day.

Mr. D. W. Dumble Introduces the Matter, Which Will be Considered by a Special Committee—Is Done in Prominent American and Canadian Schools.

WILL BE INVESTIGATED

Mr. D. W. Dumble, at the meeting of the Board of Education introduced the question of the regular examination of the children of the Public schools for sanitary and hygienic purposes. His intention was to place the matter before the Board for a thorough consideration and if deemed advisable that steps be taken for the appointing of properly qualified person or persons to conduct such examinations.

A special committee composed of Messrs. Hill, Dumble, Dr. Burnham and Dr. Morrison was appointed to take up the matter and to report as soon as possible.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said that at the last meeting of the Board he brought up the matter of examining the pupils in the schools for sanitary purposes, and for the purpose of classifying the pupils. He pointed out some of the advantages and disadvantages of his classifications. He thought that the comfort of the children should be looked after carefully. He thought it well to have the children examined by a physician. It would be a great benefit to all and especially to those whose parents are not in a position to give them the best of medical treatment. He thought the board should have an inspector, a well qualified man, to do his work.

Mr. Dumble then moved a motion that the medical health officer of the city be employed by the board and make a monthly examination of the children and report all deficiencies to the board.

Dr. Morrison said he entirely agreed with the spirit of Mr. Dumble's motion, but he did not agree with his method of arriving at the last part of the motion re selecting the examiner. He did not think, however, that in Peterborough there was very much necessity for medical examination. There were, he knew, several scholars in the schools who were suffering from troubles and these he thought should be placed in a position to be treated. Dr. Morrison thought the matter should be referred to a committee to thresh out.

GUM MAY BE SCARCE

Reports From Mexico Say the Supply of Chicle Will be Curtailed Owing to Too Frequent Tapping of the Trees.

'FRUITLETS' NOT AFFECTED

City of Mexico, Nov. 3.—Dire woe is in store for the gum chewer. In fact his favourite non-perishable delicacy is threatened with extinction, according to Franklin Canning, an officer of the American Chicle Company, who has been investigating the chicle supply in this country. Owing to the great demand and consequent prices, the chicle-growers of Yucatan have been tapping the trees too often, and as a result the trees are being destroyed at a rapid rate. Unless new chicle forests are discovered or a system of reforestation is put into effect Yucatan will have no chicle to export in a few years.

A representative of the Peterborough Chicle Company stated to the Examiner that he had previously arranged for a large supply of chicle and twenty tons of it are now on the way from Mexico. They are therefore not affected in the least by the reported condition and the supply of Fruitlets and Spearmint will not be exhausted.

The Globe says: Mr. J. A. Phin, the Toronto manager of the American Chicle Co., said last night that while the chicle supply in Yucatan had been badly handled, his company had more than enough to meet all their demands. The American Chicle Company has 1,000,000 acres under lease from the Government of Mexico. They were compelled to take this step by reason of a threatened shortage in the supply.

HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY.

All good citizens who take an interest in the fostering and development of the higher element of civic conditions are concerned in knowing that the annual meeting of the Peterborough and Ashburnham Horticultural Society will be held on November 5th next next, in the City Council chamber. This society is the only organized expression we have of solicitude for the aesthetic improvement of the city. It's usefulness is, however, lessened, or falls short of what it should be, by the narrowed scope of its activities, and influence. Its influence as things go is merely local and spasmodic, instead of being general and immanent. Its scope should be broadened, so that many of the details that now engross its attention should be left to the body of citizenship, under the influence of the general force the Society, rightly equipped and with a broad inclusive policy, might exercise. It should be made more educative and stimulating than executive. With necessarily limited means at its disposal it cannot carry out an extensive policy of city beautification—its practically sole raison d'etre—but it is capable of being made to do the next better thing, influence public opinion and taste, and arouse public interest to the point that the public would do from conviction, generally and persistently, what the society is struggling to do fragmentarily and spasmodically. The Society can and should be made a power, not only in developing taste and stimulating action in respect of the great mass of citizens, but a force in removing the dead weight of inertia that now oppresses our civic authorities in the matter of providing conditions that will conduce to the production and preservation of the beauty of the public places of Peterborough, streets, parks, boulevards, etc.

The Horticultural Society can be made a powerful, well-organized and powerful machine, instead of being a mere cog in an unorganised engine of usefulness. It can be made a good deal more important agency than a mere planter of a few bulbs in a few private flower pots or lawn plots. It can be made the leader of the aesthetic forces that would make for the general, the universal improvement of city conditions. It should become a propagator of principle, instead of a distributor of roots. The Society deserves great credit for what it has done in the face of indifference and comparative indifference; but conditions demand that it should take itself seriously and become, as it can do under a proper organization and definite policy, a real educative and stimulating force in the city.

To this end it should receive greater encouragement—or, rather, less discouragement—than it now gets. It should have the sympathy and cooperation of the city authorities, as well of all citizens, having the higher interests of the city at heart. It is to be hoped that as many good citizens as possible will seek admission to the annual meeting on Friday night, and encourage the Society, by their presence, sympathy, and assurance of support, in an effort to reach a higher and broader plane of usefulness.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Conservative Montreal Star in a lucid and loosed moment, declares epigrammatically—"Corruption is not the sin of any party; it is a sin, born of a neglectful people and mercenary politicians, whenever they marry.

As the Toronto Star would say without turning a hair, the election of Gaynor as Mayor of New York is one Ta-manny.

The National Transcontinental Railway has opened up for settlement in Northern Ontario and Western Quebec, more land than was under crop last year in Alberta and Saskatchewan combined—and the land under crop there yielded nearly a hundred million bushels of wheat.

Mr. Foster denounces the Liberals for stealing the Conservative policy when they came into office; also for giving the country a corrupt and inefficient administration. Perhaps, aptly suggests the Winnipeg Free Press, it was a case of cause and affect.

The post office surplus last year was $809,237, or more than $100,000 greater than the post office deficit in the last year of Conservative rule. Since the Liberal Government began to manage our post office department the accumulated surplus amounts to $4,201,137.

Mr. Borden, Conservative leader, speaking at Halifax recently, said that the Liberal Government were neglecting the waterways of the Dominion. The answer to this is that last fiscal year the Government expended $4,547,733.43 upon dredging to improve Ontario waterways.

Work on the Eastern division of the National Transcontinental Railway is not so slow—as we are told it is. Up to August 31st, 1909, 551 miles of track were laid and 921 miles of grading done; this is east of Winnipeg; and 1,000 miles of railway are finished and carrying grain west of that city.

The "people" of New York have spoken and declared in favour of Tamanny, and all the traditional rottenness of Government that name implies. Civic "reform" in the person of Brannard, the Republican candidate for mayor, has been defeated. It is New York's own affair, however, if it chooses to be ruled by "grafters."

THE SMALL CHURCH NEAR THE PEOPLE.

(Brockville Recorder)

Archbishop O'Connell, of Boston, holds that the answer to anarchy is the small church. In blessing a small church at Cambridge on Sunday last, the Archbishop made some declarations on the subject that will probably be regarded as novel. He congratulated the congregation upon "this kind of a church, for I believe this is to be the kind of church of the future." The magnificent churches of the past had been built at enormous expense, and it had taken the lifetime of the pastor and the congregation to pay the interest on the mortgages. "The day has come to realise that we have other things to do, that great churches are ont the things. Many churches are to be placed near the homes, and these will furnish plenty of work ofr priests and people. We have other work besides piling stone upon stone. The time is here for churches that will not be a burden to the people." All this, it is important to remark, was part of the Archbishop's answer to those manifestations in the Barcelona riots and in the more recent developments in other European cities, and to an invasion of the homes by anarchist literature which he knew to be actual in American cites. Indeed it so happened that on the day he spoke an anarchist procession marched up Fifth avenue, New York, and as they passed St. Patrick's Cathedral, yelled, "Down with the Pope; down with Alfonso, down with the Church." The New York Times ,says the paraders were persons of no consequence, but suggests that "they need a lot of watching." In view of what happened at Barcelona they undoubtedly do. Archbishop O'Connell's new plan is therefore as timely as it is novel.—Montreal Herald.

THE CALL OF FAME.

(Montreal Herald)

The pronouncement made by Sir James Whitney before the Canadian Temperance League in Toronto was more mellow than his past utterances would lead people to expect. Hitherto, no doubt because of the position in which fate placed him, Sir James has been looking outside himself, generally in the direction of his opponent. He used to scold dreadfully when he was in Opposition. He has been very self-assertive since he came to power, generally with an opponent in plain sight. But now he confesses that he has the longing "to be identified with something that will be of lasting advantage to the world," the longing for fame, in short, which soon or late gets a grip on the heart of every man who has the chance, or even the desire, to do big things. It is not a revelation, exactly, because the man without strong ambition, which is twin brother to the eagerness for fame would willingly bear the kicks and cuffs that come with political life as long as he has borne them. But it is something new in Sir James to sound the same note that has been sounded by so many younger men, who lamented that their first youth had passed "and nothing done for fame."

It would be worth something to know just what he has in mind, just what sort of combination, and what result from it, "will enable the cause of temperance to make more progress in one year than was ever deemed possible." If he means what repressive legislation against liquor selling could be put through the Legislature if the parties would sink their difference in order to accomplish that result, no doubt he is right about the thoroughness with which the job could be done. But it would probably be fair to him to doubt whether that is what he has in mind. "As one who has seen and known," as the hero not so long ago, of the Napanee episode, he must know tha tthe great work that has for its object "the minimising and ultimate doing away with the evils of the drinking habit," has to be wrought not so much on the pages of the statute, as in the mind and conscience, aye, and in the bodies, of the people who are there to be enslaved. The emancipation of people from their own weak wills, from appetites beyond their control, is not easy for those who have the best of will. It is possible, if the right kind of intelligence could be brought to bear upon the physical training, the moral discipline, and the intellectual equipment of youth, to rid the body of the man of the craving that will not be denied. It is rarely that individual will power can be reached and sustained by statute alone.

LOOKING AHEAD.

(Brantford Expositor.)

Some of the Western American papers, in boasting about this year's bumper wheat yield of 16.5 bushels to the acre in Minnesota, have called forth some interesting comparisons, on the part of Western Canadian papers, between the wheat yields of the Western Canadian provinces and those of the Western states. This year's yield in Minnesota of 16.5 bushels to the acre was the largest since the early years of wheat raising in that state, but the average yield for the province of Manitoba for a period of 20 years has been 18.98, while in many years the average yield ran from 20 to as high as 27. The lowest yield on record was that of the drought year of 1889, when the average dropped to 12.4, while as recently as 1906 Minnesota's average was only 10.9.

The Northwest Territories from 1898 to 1904 had an average yield of 18.5 for spring and 19.98 for fall wheat. In the five years since 1904 the average wheat yields of the three western provinces have been as follows:

	1905	1906	1907	1908	Approx. 1909
Man	21,07	14.49	14.22	17.28	15
Sask.	23,09	18.50	14.04	13.68	19
Alberta	21,46	23.07	18.25	18.81	25

The average yields for the three big spring wheat states for the same years were:

	1905	1906	1907	1908	1909
Minnesota	13.3	10.9	13.0	12.08	16.5
North Dakota	14.0	13.0	10.0	11.6	13.7

The average wheat yield of the Canadian West is one to be proud of, when it is taken into consideration that so large a percentage of the farmers come from countries where they had no previous knowledge of agriculture whatever. When, however, the average of yield is placed over against the many individual yields of 35 and 40 bushels per acre on farms where there has been careful and intelligent cultivation it shows plainly that the farmers of the Canadian west, as a whole, are not doing their duty by the splendid soil which they have to cultivate. If care is not exercised there will come a time in the history of Manitoba and Saskatchewan and Alberta when the average yield will be no higher than it is in Minnesota and the Dakotas to-day.

While this deterioration in fertility may be overlooked by the average farmer who in his eagerness to get all that is possible from the soil at the present moment has failed to look to the future, it is gratifying to reflect that the contingency looming up in the future has not passed unnoticed by the Federal Government, Hon. Sydney Fisher, the Minister of Agriculture, has, in various speeches of his for a number of years back, pointed out the danger of exclusive grain growing in the West and advocated resort to more mixed farming as a means of giving new fertility to the overworked soil. As a result of his recent trip through the West it has been announced that it is the intention of the Government at Ottawa to establish a number of experimental farms throughout the Canadian West in order that the Western farmer, may have the benefit of scientific ideas in his cultivation of the soil. When the West was scarsely populated it was necessary that grain should be grown almost exclusively, but now that settlers are pouring in, a local market is provided for the products of mixed farming. The time is at hand when the Western farmer, in the older settled districts at least, must begin to make use of a greater variety of crops and must resort to a more varied crop rotation. The government at Ottawa, in its determination to establish experimental farms throughout the West, has shown itself to be fully abreast of the times and keenly alive to the agricultural needs of Western Canada.

With A Deliveryman On His Saturday Night Late Trips

UP ON THE DRIVER'S SEAT

The life of the "Groceryman" is indeed a very tough and a very hard one. When I say the "groceryman" I do not mean the man who owns the big store on George street, with the big plate glass windows, and long shelves, which run the whole length of his store, covered with goods of all descriptions, but I mean the deliveryman, that often abused individual who day in and day out peddles the goods from one house to another. It would be hard to find a more hard-worked man and yet he is often called upon to take and suffer considerable abuse, when it is really not his fault.

"The groceryman" is always an object of awe and delight to the childish mind, and he is always a welcome visitor to a house where children belong. It is he who brings the good things to the home—candies and nuts and everything that tastes good to the mouth of a child. Besides he drives a horse, and that in itself is a height of attainment to the undeveloped childish mind.

A good deal depends upon the same deliveryman, too, in every town or small city. He acts as a general scapegoat for the firm, and upon his head descend the anathemas of the housewife when foodstuffs come too late for dinner or supper. Night and day, rain or shine, winter or summer, these men pursue their occupations regardless of weather. Their's is no easy or lazy life.

For all that, as a type, the men who deliver the groceries are generally a jolly and a good natured bunch, with light hearts and ready wits.

On Saturday night recently, I was permitted to ride on the seat with one of these driver, a typical delivery man, and for more than an hour I was entertained by his novel, if erratic, conversation, and his curious trend of thought. His constant touch with every portion of the city enabled him to know most of the doings, but he was nevertheless no gossip. Private affairs had no place in his conversation.

It had rained the previous day and the roads, to say the least, were abominable in one place the wheels of the light waggon ground through the gritty gravel, next they sank well nigh axle-deep, and with a soft flop, went down in a mud hole. (I think it was Aylmer street.) At times the waggon would perform a series of manoeuvres much like a bucking broncho over a number of bumps and hollows. It was difficult for me to keep my seat but to my companion it was no trouble and his body swayed with every motion of the waggon.

"This is where you need your sea legs," he commented with a grin, as I grabbed futilely for the reins, being in danger of falling off, and seeing nothing else to reach for.

A brief stop was made while a parcel was being delivered. The house was a few steps up a side street and I waited while he ran up with the basket.

"Get a great trainin' for a Marathon on this job," he observed.

I agreed with a nod.

"Yes, and you see lots of scenery, too," he went on.

The horse, a stout nag, with a persistent job, stumbled. His driver heaped maledictions upon its head, explaining meanwhile, in a half apologetic tone, that he "din't no good at skatin'."

We drove into a backyard on McDonnel street, and I watched him look carefully around.

"Scared?" I suggested, for it was one of these back yards surrounded by high buildings, and as dark as Erebus.

"Naw," he replied, "but there's a lot of clothes-lines hanging around here loose, and a fellow gets a bad jolt if they catch him directly under the chin. I tear them down every time I get a chance," he chuckled maliciously.

The next residence we called at was that of a well-to-do citizen on Gilmour street, and if that worthy ratepayer had heard his reputation and pedigree from Mr. Driver's lips, as I did, he would not have an exalted opinion of himself. He had ordered his Sunday goods at 10 p.m. on Saturday night, when he might have sent in his order many hours earlier. I meekly and silently concurred with all the driver said about this member of the community when I had heard all. That a man who works a few hours daily and has abundance of spare time, should put off ordering his goods until such a late hour at night, thereby adding to the long hours of the driver, seemed incomprehensible to me, and I did not feel sorry in the least for what the driver had said about him.

The deliverymen as a rule are not very careful about what they say; perhaps they have many provocations—who has not in any walk of life—but this particular driver cursed roundly at anything which incurred his vacillating displeasure. For instance, he carried a heavily-laden basket into a house, and, as is the general custom, with deliverymen, walked around to the side door and pulled the bell. No answer came. A second and a third ring met with the same result, and then the "swear words" were forthcoming. The door opened during the pause in which the driver was catching his breath and the mistress of the house appeared.

"Oh, I'm so sorry I kept you waiting," she said very softly, "but I was busy. I heard you talking though and hurried just as fast as I could."

He mumbled something unintelligible to me, and then turned as fast as he possibly could, without as much as saying "Good night." I was doubled up with laughter—I could not help it. "Heard him," she had said, and I shoved my glove into my mouth and nearly dislocated my neck in a vain effort to keep from bursting into an uproarious fit of laughter. "Hear him!" Gracious, goodness, what would she think. His face bore a half-comic, half-annoyed expression when my friend the driver climbed up beside me quizzically.

"Ah, chase it, chummy, what's all the joke about," he said, with a belligerent look in his eye. Discretion seemed to me the wisest thing just then, and I straightened up and looked as innocent as I could. However the incident did not appeal to me as a joke a few minutes later and I think it cured him to some extent of giving vent to his feelings under such circumstance at any rate.

To relate the circumstances of that trip, which lasted until midnight, when I bade good-bye to my acquaintance of the evening, might be wearisome to many. To me it was most instructive and afterwards I have always felt a fellow feeling for these drivers of delivery waggons, because I know some of their troubles. If others would endeavour to see a little inside of the routine of their lives, perhaps they would do more to make the deliveryman's burden lighter. There are many ways in which this can be done, the chief of which is to order groceries or any other produce early. Proper addresses and street numbers should also be given, so that these true servants of mankind might be helped along in their tiresome and wearisome travels day by day.

RUNABOUT.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

ST. PAUL'S.

Despite the rain and the dark night, there was a splendid attendance at the evangelistic meeting in St. Paul's Presbyterian church last night. The choir and congregation sang some of the gospel hymns with great heartiness, and Miss Davies, the soloist, gave a touching rendition of the hymn of comfort, "Come ye disconsolate."

A pleasing feature was the presence on the platform of the Rev. Mr. Pearson, of George Street Methodist Church, who took part in the service by leading in prayer.

The Rev. Mr. MacBeth said that he had greatly enjoyed the day, in which special events had been the joy over the last night's meeting, a conference with the pastors and other missioners in the morning, and a grand meeting of the men at the noon hour in one of the industrial establishments of the city. His text last night was from Luke 14, where in the parable of the Great Supper, the invitation is sent out "Come for all things are now ready." Jesus was the most approachable and hospitable man the world had ever seen. Any one who came to him was made welcome. He could harmonise all the elements of society and kept open house in the Kingdom of God. The air of the Old and New Testament was vibrant with the sound of invitation, and if any one stayed outside and was lost, it was not the fault of Jesus Christ, but the fault of the one who refused the wide invitation. Invitation implied absence from God. Men had through sin wandered away from God, but they had always found to be absent from God, was in the long run to be unhappy and miserable and they strove to get back. Their hearts cried out for the living God. But men found out that in their own strength they could not bridge the chasm which their sin had dug between them and God and the life of holiness. The gospel offer is made freely, but it cost the life of Christ, and we should understand its supreme necessity and value. To refuse to come was to choose separation from God in this world and the world to come.

The meeting throughout was very impressive.

KNOX CHURCH.

Knox church was the scene of several impressive meetings yesterday. At 3.30 p.m. a number of the ladies of the congregation met for prayer and held a very impressive service under the leadership of Mr. MacPherson, Stewart St. They decided to meet each afternoon at the same hour and ladies are invited to attend and enjoy these gatherings.

At 4.30 the Mission Band met for its regular meeting. They took the second part of a trip through China. At the close of their journey Rev. A. E. Mitchell arrived and gave the young people a most helpful talk.

The evening service assembled at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dr. Byckman was present and gave his personal testimony to the satisfaction in the Christian life. His one regret was that he had not commenced his service of Christ earlier. He is now 80 and served 50 years in the ministry.

The service commenced with a song service which this evening will begin at 7.45. In addition to the assistance given by the choir a mixed quartette sang, "Jesus is tenderly calling," and Miss Robson sang, "The hand that was wounded for me."

Mr. Mitchell's address was one of the clearest statements of salvation his hearers ever listened to and not one who was there but followed him closely as he illustrated in all simplicity the redemption of Christ. His text was Col. I: 14, "In whom we have redemption through His blood." He introduced this subject by a reference to the early systems of justice in old England when a kinsman had to come to the rescue of any condemned person. He illustrated this by recalling the systems of redemption prevailing in Old Testament history. From these he pointed to Christ and His redeeming work for us.

How to make use of Christ's redemption was clearly illustrated by Mr. Mitchell. Faith is the usual word to express the relationship, but Mr. Mitchell brought it into everyday life and made it exceedingly simple. He made an appeal to accept Jesus as Saviour.

At the close of the meeting he announced an after meeting and it was gratifying to see nearly every one remain. He pointed out the duty of the people in working for the salvation of others. The service was deeply impressive and heartily enjoyed.

A large congregation is looked for this evening. Mr. Mitchell's subject is "Finding One's Soul."

POULTRY MEETING

Regular Monthly Session Will be Held To-morrow Night.

The regular monthly meeting of the Poultry Association will be held to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock in the Orange Hall, Simcoe street. As the time draws near for the annual show to be held in the market hall, the members are urgently requested to be present as the success of the affair will altogether depend on the efforts put forth by each one. The show will be taken up and discussed at to-morrow night's meeting.

THANK OFFERING SERVICE HELD

The annual Thank offering service of the Women's Mission Circle of the Park St. Baptist church was held last evening and was a very interesting and profitable event. Rev. W. C. Riddiford, the pastor, occupied the chair.

After the usual devotional exercises, Mrs. Ellie gave a very helpful address on Thankfulness, which was followed with close attention. Miss Ethel Hill contributed to the programme with an enjoyable recitation and Mrs. Moore rendered a solo in excellent voice.

Lifebuoy Soap is delightfully refreshing for bath or toilet. For washing underclothing it is unequalled. Cleanses and purifies.

Didn't Bother Him.

A commuter was walking up and down the platform waiting for the train that always seemed to be delayed.

"This is a terrible road," he said, addressing a prosperous looking bystander.

"I've heard a great many complaints about it," was the reply.

"Yes," went on the commuter, "nearly every morning I'm late to business, and when I get home at night the dinner is cold. How do you find it?"

"Oh," returned the other, "I have no kick coming. I'm president of the road, and I always travel in an auto."—New York Life.

Let It Spin.

Some one thinks we soon will know
How the earth doth turn and go;
How we circle round the sun—
If it's true that this is done;
How we swing along through space
In a dizzy, reckless race.
Some one thinks that through the pole
All these secrets will unroll.
Ah, but then why should we care
How we whirl through endless air?
Ignorance is surely bliss
Matched with knowledge such as this.
Let the sphere through space be cast,
Just so long as we stick fast,
Swinging out, or swinging in.
We can't stop it—let it spin!

JUST IN TIME.

The Squire Wasn't Actually Nigh, but He Was a Little Close.

They were discussing the salient traits of old Squire Gregson's character, the funeral being a thing of the past. "Some way or 'nother, between his goin' an' the buryin', nobody felt free to speak," Abel Nutting had said as an introduction to his remarks. "It seemed more'n likely he'd come to again an' call us to account, same as usual."

"He was free to give to philanthropy in the church," said Barton Sedgwick when his turn came, "but in the family circle I called him kind o' close. I won't go so fur's to say he was actin'ly nigh, but he cert'nly was kind o' close."

"As how?" inquired three voices in unison. They all had plenty of instances of the old squire's "closeness," but it was Barton's privilege to speak first, he being a cousin once removed.

"Well, I was there to a Sunday dinner with him last December," said Barton slowly. "He invited Sally an' me, same as always, once a year.

"Well, Sally had one o' those stuffy colds that make you feel worse'n if you had pneumony, an' she vowed she wouldn't go. She said she couldn't taste anything anyway, an' the mere thoughts o' his cold pork an' boiled potatoes went against her. But she wanted I should go for policy, same as all us relations went, an' I did.

"Well, when I got there an' told squire he said, 'Baby not comin'?' an' slipped it right out into the kitchen, leavin' the doors open all the way.

"'Here,' he said to old Jane Wills, that cooked an' done for him, 'have those potatoes boiled soft yet? That's good. You lift out Mis' Sedgwick's potato, an' it'll be just right to fry for my breakfast tomorrow,' he said, 'for Mis' Sedgwick is kep' at home with a cold. Lift it out careful! That's right!'

"An' when he come back to me he was all creased up with smiles, he was so pleased with himself."

SEEING UNDER WATER.

One of the most peculiar things in connection with life under water is what is known as the limiting angle of vision. This applies to fishes, divers, submarine crews and, in fact, any being possessing the power of sight and desiring to look through the water at objects in the air. The effect is not due to a defect in vision, but to the refraction or bending of light, and no telescope or other optical instrument can get around it.

The effect consists of the impossibility of seeing anything on the outside unless the observer directs his line of sight within forty-eight degrees of the vertical. If a forty-nine degree angle or over is taken, the surface, no matter how clear the water is, acts as a perfect mirror and reflects objects at the bottom of the water, thus not allowing anything on the outside to be seen. The consequence of this property is the most startling of all, for everything on the outside can be seen and thus has to be seen in the cone described by the forty-eight degree angle from the eye. This shows all outside objects huddled together and appearing high in air. Thus, if one dives into the middle of a wide river, on looking up the banks will appear close together, but, at a great distance from the observer, high in air.

This angle is called the "critical" angle and of course varies with the two media in contact.

If one desires to make the experiment a square glass box or an aquarium will answer very well. Suspend this from the ceiling or support it on a wall bracket and look under it at an angle. The phenomenon will be observed as indicated. The clearer the water and the stronger the light the more clearly will things appear.

Why He Was a Heathen.

Sir Arthur Fanshaw related an amusing story of a Mohammedan servant who when asked his religion replied:

"Beg pardon, sar, I'm a heathen."

When asked by his master what he meant by a heathen the man answered:

"Confound it," remarked the master, "I can't keep a man like that in my service."

To which came the immediate rejoinder:

"Beg pardon, sar, in your highness' service no time to worship anything!"—London News.

He Spoke Too Soon.

A well known business man attended his daughter's commencement exercises at an eastern college. He had been greatly pleased with the beauty and dignity of the exercises and was discoursing to his wife upon the refining influences of college life. Suddenly his impressive monologue was cut short. A girl in cap and gown came dashing down the steps of the main hall waving her diploma and shouting, "Educated, by gosh!"

Not Anxious.

"You have quite a number of the poets," said Goodby, who was inspecting Woodby's library. "Ah, there's Browning! Do you understand him?"

"No; I don't," said Woodby.

"Ah," said Goodby, continuing his examination, "have you Pread?"

"Certainly not. What's the use of praying? I ain't anxious to understand him."

Up on Grammar.

When she was eighteen Mabel thought she was old enough to go out to work and, naturally turned to stenography as the line of her endeavors.

"I've studied grammar," she told her mother, "and I know all about punctuation, spelling, division and those things."

"I don't think," teased her mother, "you would know a pronoun if you saw one."

However, Mabel was firm and secured a place. She did not reveal her ignorance (for, of course, she did not know everything) until she wished to divide the word "invisible." Then she turned to a girl working on her right.

"Say," she remarked, "invisible is divided invi-sible, isn't it—divided and accented on the pronoun?"—Philadelphia Ledger.

HE WAS LIBERATED BY MINISTER OF JUSTICE

Cobourg, November 2. — Through the intervention of the Commercial Travellers' Association and the clemency of the Minister of Justice, at Ottawa, J. S. Walker, a well known traveller, who lives with his wife and family at Ottawa, was liberated from the county jail here on Saturday, after serving three weeks of a month's term imposed by Magistrate R. H. Holland, of Port Hope, because he raised his hat to a woman whom he didn't know on the streets of Port Hope.

According to the story told the newspaper man by Mr. Walker here, his case is a peculiar one, so peculiar that the Commercial Travellers' Association has taken the matter up to see if some redress cannot be secured.

Walker, who travels for a tea firm, is a middle-aged man. He went to Port Hope on business, and called there for the first time, when he got in to trouble. After supper on the first night he was there he went out for a walk, and, according to his own story, a woman whom he never saw before smiled as he passed her. Walker raised his hat and passed on. Later, the same night, he passed her again, and the same performance was gone through.

Business necessitated a two days' stay, and the second night he passed the woman, who, by the way, is married twice. She smiled, and he raised his hat on both occasions.

The third one was the fatal one. He was on his way back to the hotel when the woman again passed him, this time with a man. As she passed she turned around and smiled. Once more Walker raised his hat, and a moment after the strong arm of Chief Bond gathered him in.

"Come with me," said the chief.

"What for?" asked Walker.

"You'll find out."

He did. He was unceremoniously taken to the lock-up, where he remained all night. Next morning he was taken before Magistrate Holland who read out a charge of disorderly conduct.

"Guilty, or not guilty?" he asked.

"Not guilty to that," said Walker, who did not have a lawyer. "May I make a statement?" he asked.

"Go ahead," said magistrate.

"Well," said Walker, "I'll plead guilty to raising my hat to a woman I didn't know."

"That's enough," said the magistrate. "A month in jail without the option of a fine."

Walker nearly dropped. All he expected was a small fine at the most.

He was then taken to the county jail at Cobourg, where he immediately got busy to secure his release. A deputation from the Commercial Travellers' Association carried a petition to the Minister of Justice at Ottawa, but that took time, and Walker had put in all but seven days of the month's term before he was liberated.

Everyone who has heard Walker's side of the case, Major Snellgrove, governor of the jail included, is of the opinion that Walker was treated harshly, but there has been considerable holding up of women on the streets of Port Hope.

MR. BAILEY ON THE PICTURE SHOWS

Sir,—Your correspondent's complaint about the picture shows may be right, but there is evil in everything, and we should learn to extract the good only. In my opinion these places of amusement are the one bright outlook for the century in the fight against those enemies, the highwaymen who hold up the public so successfully, who would limit our pleasures for their own profit. The picture shows belong to the people who will learn that evil prevails throughout the world, and be on their guard. W. A. BAILEY.

MI-O-NA
RELIEVES STOMACH MISERY ALMOST IMMEDIATELY

If the food you ate at your last meal did not digest, but laid for a long time like lead on your stomach, then you have indigestion and quick action should be taken.

Of course there are many other symptoms of indigestion, such as belching of gas, heartburn, dizziness, shortness of breath and foul breath, and if you have any of them, your stomach is out of order and should be corrected.

Mi-o-na tablets have cured thousands of cases of indigestion and stomach trouble. If you have any stomach distress, Mio-na will relieve instantly.

But Mi-o-na unlike most so-called dyspepsia remedies, does more than relieve; it permanently cures dyspepsia or any stomach trouble by putting energy and strength into the walls of the stomach, where the gastric juices are produced.

A large box of Mi-o-na tablets costs but 50 cents at Wm. Madill's and are guaranteed to cure or money back. When others fail, Mio-na cures. It is a producer of flesh when the body is thin; it cleanses the stomach and bowels; purifies the blood and makes rich red blood.

Woman With The Serpent's Tongue

New Verses by William Watson Make a Stir in Literary and Social London.

London, November 3rd. — The publication of a new book of verses by William Watson, the English poet, has set literary and social London in a whirl. The particular bit of verse to cause all the commotion is a three stanza piece entitled "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue," in flavour not unlike Kipling's "A Rag, a Bone and a Hank of Hair," but is said to be more direct and personal in its application. The book is published by the John Lane Co., and it is said that the verse in question was included only after the publisher had made a vigorous but ineffectual protest against its inclusion. The verse reads:

The woman with the serpent's tongue,
The haggard cheek, the hungering eye,
The poisoned words that wildly fly,
The famished face, the fevered hand—
Who slights the worthiest in the land,
Sneers at the just, contemns the brave,
And blackens goodness in its grave.

"In truthful numbers be she sung,
The Woman with the serpent's Tongue.
Concerning whom Fame hints at things
Told both in shrugs and whisperings;
Ambitious from her natal hour,
And scheming all her life for power
With little left of seemly pride,
With venomed fangs she cannot hide,
Who half makes love to you to-day,
To-morrow gives her guest away,
Burnt up within by that strange soul
She cannot stake or yet control;
Malignant-lipp'd, unkind, unsweet;
Past all example indiscreet;
Hectic and always overstrung—
The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue.

"To think that such as she can mar,
Names that among the noblest are,
That hands like hers can touch the springs
That move who knows what men and things;
That on her will their fates have hung—
The Woman With the Serpent's Tongue."

To everybody conversant with the gossip of what goes on behind the scenes in London life, the picture is regarded as a likeness of a woman who has occupied the public attention from the days before her marriage, when she was the leader of a select coterie known as "The Souls" to these later times.

Everybody who knows the lady who is supposed to be the original acknowledges that she has a sharp tongue, and it is surmised that the poet may have experienced its keenness. Another suggestion is that Mr. Watson may ascribe to this particular woman's influence the fact that he has not been the recipient of any of those titular honours which are occasionally awarded by the British Government to poets of more or less merit.

The society known as "The Souls" attracted much attention in England several years ago. Among the leading members were Arthur J. Balfour, Mrs. Beerbohm Tree, Lady Granby, Lord Elcho, Margot Tennant, George Wyndham and Alfred Lyttleton.

"The Souls" were a small band of men and women of aesthetic tastes. They were well known in the ultra-fashionable world or in the world of art or letters. A painful incident caused society to frown upon "The Souls," and they disbanded.

CANADIAN FLAG SONG

(Words by Katharine Hale; Music by J. W. Garvin.)

Not the least of the many-sided mental equipment of Mr. J. W. Garvin, a former Peterboroughonian, and even now proud to be quoted as of Peterborough, is his musical ability. He is well known in political, educational and literary circles. He is also a hard-headed and shrewd man of affairs, a circumstance that emphasizes his success as a musical composer—a melodist—as exemplified in his musical setting of the stirring words of Katharine Hale's Canadian Flag-song. Peterborough people are familiar with others of Mr. Garvin's musical compositions, but in the Canadian Flag-song he has struck a more lofty note—one more consonant with the heroic measure of his genius. In his new music he has given congenial melodic expression to the noble words of Katharine Hale's poem and the robust patriotic spirit it breathes. The music, written in march time, has a tuneful sweep of melody, and at the same time, it possesses a dignity and stateliness worthy of its subject; it has, so to speak, the swing and stride one should expect in a patriotic air fitted to harmonize with the buoyant spirit of a country of partially achieved, and infinite possibility of, greatness. Without having heard the new song, the majestic measure and melody of the music conjoined, with the beauty, fire, and fitness of the words, lead one to hearty approval of Mr. Garvin's greatest melodic work. It might not be extravagant to suggest that Canadians, in search of a suitable national hymn, might now, with Euclid of old, be justified in crying, "Eureka!"

Mr. Garvin's song is written in an easy key (B flat), to make it adaptable to popular singing, which is no small matter in a national song. It is excellently harmonized, and as to be seen by the copy to hand, has been excellently printed by the "Primrose Music and Book Concern," Toronto. A strikingly appropriate cover vignette has been designed—a wreath of maple leaves inclosing the title and addition to the song. Mr. Garvin's sterling song should find a place in every true Canadian's heart and home.—TREBLE CLEF.

A LARGE CLOTHING PURCHASE

There are times when other people's misfortunes are appreciated by us.

In this case it is the large wholesale clothier who had the misfortune to have several orders on his books of retailers who during the quiet summer have failed and left him with their orders in the process of manufacture. In order to right himself at once he is compelled to make radical reductions in these lines.

At this particular time Lang & Maher were on the spot and picked out what they wanted of the lines which suited their trade at their own price, and are preparing to give the citizens the benefit of their large purchase. The goods will be placed in stock and all marked for Saturday, Nov. 6th, expect bargains.

Will Peterborough Teachers Be Apportioned Shares Of A Special Grant For 1909?

Interesting Matter the Board of Education Has to Deal With—Depended on Grant and Raised Teachers' Salaries—Must Hand Over the Grant Also—Cannot Keep it for School Expenses.

OPINIONS EXPRESSED

Anticipating a special grant from the Educational Department, and following their own policy of equipping the Public Schools with the best teachers that could be obtained, the Board of Education has, during the past two years, greatly increased the salaries of the teachers on the local staffs, and now it learns that the grant for 1909 must be divided among the teachers according to their professional standing and handed to them directly. This, it may be said, the Board objects to. At least, the members feel that they have lived up to the spirit of the Act, and the regulation or request from the department is hardly applicable to Peterborough.

The question is one of particular interest to the teachers and should also claim the attention of all the citizens. In 1908 the department, in order to encourage teachers to remain in the profession, decided to make a special grant, which was to be appropriated to the teachers according to their schedule standing, and experience in the work. A great many of the Boards, however, pocketed the money, so to speak, and used it in connection with the ordinary expenses of their schools. This defeated the idea of the department and in many cases the teachers received no extra money. The disposal of the grant for 1909, however, must be made directly to the teachers and this fact is emphasized in no uncertain manner.

Mr. Mowat's Letter.

The following letter, received from the department by Mr. Mowat, P. S. I., explains the matter:

Mr. A. Mowat, Peterborough.

Sir,—I am directed by the Minister of Education to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 1st of October, with reference to the special grant to urban schools. In view of the issues raised by your inquiries, a short explanation regarding the special grant is given:

In 1908 the grant was paid through the Municipal Trustees, to the various school boards; the object in view being to encourage the Board to engage properly qualified teachers and to pay adequate salaries.

In some instances the school boards complied with the wishes of the Department, and engaged such teachers and increased the salaries of their teaching staff generally, but for the reason that by far a larger number did not use the special grant for this purpose, but expended it in other lines of school administration, it was decided for 1909 to request that the money should be paid direct from the various urban boards to the teachers entitled to it.

This mode of dealing with the grant applies to 1909 only, and is not retroactive and was adopted this year principally in the interests of teachers whose boards did not increase the salaries of their staff upon the receipt of the special grant in 1908.

Although the Peterborough School Boad appears to have dealth fairly by their teachers in the matter of salaries, still you will be kind enough to advise them respecting the wishes of their department as to the mode of apportioning this grant in 1909.

A. H. D. COLQUHOUN.

Board's Position.

The Peterborough Board of Education has, as stated above, a schedule of salaries that is better than the great majority of towns and cities of the province offer. It was stated at last night's meeting that the most recent increase was made, dependent upon the special grant. It is now contended that the department refers to those Boards which have not given their teachers the advantage of the grants and are not paying salaries which will be of sufficient inducement to remain in the profession, and not forsake it for more remunerative occupations.

Mr. Mowat wrote to the department explaining what the local Board had done, and the reply in brief was to the effect that Peterborough's Public School teachers should be apportioned their shares of the grant regardless of what had already been done. A part of the letter is as follows:

"The Minister directs me to say that he recognizes with pleasure the action of the Peterborough Board of Education in relation to teachers' salaries and to the other important matters affecting educational interests with which they have had to deal. He trusts, therefore, that even at the risk of a little inconvenience in rearranging the revenues for the year, that the Board will pay over the special grant to the teachers.

"The Minister is satisfied from the attitude of the Peterborough Board of Education towards the higher educational interests of this Province durng some years past that the Board will not remit its enterprising efforts."

Mr. Hill stated that if this money is paid the Board's account will be overdrawn. Mr. Mowat stated that the Department's wishes are explicitly set forth.

On motion of Messrs. Crane and Morrison the matter was referred to the Committee on Appointments. The Board intends to move slowly, as many other cities are in a similar position and the general opinion of the local board is that Peterborough's teachers are receiving salaries which are practically the highest.

A letter was read from the secretary of the Ottawa Board, asking what steps Peterborough's Board intended to take and it was decided to reply that Peterborough and Ottawa were in the same position. Just what action will be taken here is difficult to surmise, for the members consider that they have well provided for the teachers on the staffs of the different schools in the city.

The Bidding.

Mr. Cook opened at 12½c., much to the delight of the salesmen. The price was too stiff for the rest of the buyers and he called Fraserville, Indian River, Cavanville, Warsaw, Oakdale. A number of factories refused his offer.

Mr. Norton offered 11¾ for further selections and the following factories accepted, Lang, Westwood, Villiers, Keene, Warminster, North Dummer Central Smith, Selwyn, Lakefield, Pine Grove, Maple Leaf, Myrtle, Trewarn, Cedardale, Bensfort, Young's Point, Shamrock.

Stony Lake sold to Mr. Fitzgerald at the same price.

Final Business.

This concluded the sales and to wind up the Board for the season, a vote of thanks was tendered the Bank of Montreal for the use of the room, and the appreciation of the services of the press was suitably expressed.

On motion it was decided that one pound for shrinkage should be allowed on the cheese for the last half of October, providing they are shipped on or before Nov. 10th.

Dr. MacPherson On The Local Line-Up For Saturday's Game Team Is Practising Hard

The Peterborough team will be greatly strengthened in Saturday's senior game against the T. A. A. C. by the fact that Dr. A. W. MacPherson has consented to play on the half line for the locals. The presence of the old Peterborough and Varsity star half-back will not only be a great help because of his own brilliant playing, but also because he will steady the young players of the teams, and imbue the whole line-up with a confidence that will make them formidable adversaries for the crack Toronto Club. The team had a great practice at Riverside Park last night in preparation for the game and the back division is having another workout this afternoon when a couple of hours will be spent in kicking and catching. The team will practice again to-morrow night at 8 o'clock, and a signal practice on Friday night will round out their training for Saturday's big game at Riverside Park. The Petes are not yet out of the running, the result of Saturday's game changing the complexion of affairs and a win for the Crimson Saturday will help things some.

T. A. A. C. expect to win handily here Saturday, but they will find a different team from the one that met them in Toronto two weeks ago, and they will have their work cut out for them if they expect to repeat that victory. The Toronto bunch realize that they will have much stronger opposition, and will therefore take no chances of being caught with a weak team, McCrimmon, DeGruchy, Meredith, Mara, "Rubber" Mack, Holden, Maguire, and other well-known men will be in teir line-up and they will have one of the strongest teams that ever wore the colours of the Athletic Club. Great interest is being taken in the game among local enthusiasts, and as it is likely to be the last game of the season no matter which way it results, there should be a banner crowd out for the battle.

The teams in the bowling contest at the Y. M. C. A. are as follows. The first named is captain:

1.—Business College—J. A. McKone; two students.
2.—Grafton's Store—J. Allen, W. J. Devins, H. Conway.
3.—W. D. Campbell, C. E. Sisson, S. R. Hall.
4.—R. P. Best, W. B. Warne, W. P. Hetherington.

WATER GAUGE BURST

C. P. R. Fireman Badly Scalded.

"It so happened," said Duffus to our representative, "that I had a box of Zam-Buk in my pocket, which I used for a sore on my lip, and when I had recovered from the first shock of the accident, I produced the balm and had it applied freely to the scalded parts. At the time I applied it I was suffering acute agony, but within a wonderfully short time Zam-Buk gave me ease. I was able to continue my journey, and upon reaching home I obtained more Zam-Buk and continued the treatment. It acted wonderfully well, and in a few days had the wounds nicely healing. I don't know anything so fine as a healer of burns, scalds, cuts, and similar injuries which workers are so liable to; and in my opinion a box of Zam-Buk should be kept handy in every worker's home."

There is something different and superior about Zam-Buk. Time and again workers in all branches of trade have proved its vast superiority over the advertised ointments and salves of the day. No doubt the fact that Zam-Buk is made entirely from herbal essences and extracts, while ordinary ointments contain more or less animal fat and oils, goes a long way to explain Zam-Buk's superiority. However, this may be, the fact remains that in four continents to which it has been introduced within ten years it has become the leading household balm!

For burns, cuts, scalds, bruises, eczema, piles, ulcers, ring-worm, itch, salt-rheum, bad leg, festering sores chapped places, cold sores, frost bites, and all skin injuries and diseases, Zam-Buk is beyond doubt a most marvellous cure.

Druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box and the Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, will mail a box, post free, upon receipt of price, to any of our readers who may have difficulty in obtaining a supply of the genuine Zam-Buk from their local stores.

WEDDING BELLS

LE FEVRE—TATE.

Lakefield, Nov. 2.—Examiner Special.)—One of the prettiest and most fashionable weddings that Lakefield has ever witnessed was solemnized at two o'clock this afternoon, when Miss Gwyneth Tudor Wallace Tate, only daughter of Mrs. F. J. Tate, of Harborne, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Alfred George LeFevre, son of the late Mr. Henry LeFevre, of Uplands, Lakefield. The day did not break auspiciously for the ceremony, but nevertheless the Church of St. John Baptist, was crowded to the doors with a large assemblage, comprising many of the inhabitants of Lakefield, as well as visitors from a distance, who had been invited to be present on the occasion. The church had been beautifully decorated with palms and chrysanthemums by Mr. Francis Mason, florist, of Peterborough, and the splendid effect produced was the subject of much favourable comment by those present. Nothing had been left undone by Mrs. Tate to conduce to the comfort and enjoyment of her guests. For the convenience of those coming by train, carriages were in waiting at the station to convey them to the residence of Mrs. Thomas Gordon, where rooms had been engaged for them, and where refreshments were served. At Harborne, an extensive marquee was erected on the grounds, and here the reception immediately following the ceremony at the church was held.

Precisely at 2 o'clock the bride entered the church, leaning on the arm of her brother, Mr. F. R. Tate. It was a beautiful sight to see the procession wending its way down the centre aisle to the strains of "Cortege Nuptial," played by Mr. R. J. Devey, organist of St. John's church, Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. W. J. Creighton, late rector of St. John Baptist Church, assisted by Rev. F. J. Sawers, the newly appointed incumbent of the parish. The bride looked most charming in white satin en traine, trimmed with old Honiton face, which belonged to her great-grandmother, and seed pearl embroidery, tulle veil and orange blossoms. She wore a diamond and emerald ring, the gift of the groom, and a diamond and pearl pendant, the gift of Hon. J. C. Patterson, an old friend of the family. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses and heather. The bridesmaids wore yellow broadcloth tunic dresses, black Beaver hats, and carried bunches of deep red chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids were Miss Gertrude Tate, of Toronto, cousin of the bride; Miss Yvonne Nordheimer, of Toronto, and Miss Adelaide Montsambert, of Brantford. The gifts of the groom to the bridesmaids were gold bangles. Mr. Harold Morrow, of Peterborough, acted as best man. The ushers were Mr. George Millard, of Lakefield, and Messrs Otter Stewart and Gwyllym Dunn, of Toronto.

Over two hundred and fifty invitations had been issued for the wedding. Amongst those invited were the following ladies and gentlemen from Peterborough:

Mr., Mrs., and Miss Collins, Mr. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Travers, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. D. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hayes, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, Mr. and Mrs. Peter Campbell, Mrs. Hamilton, (Auburn), Mr. and Miss Cecil Hill, Mr. and Mrs. F. M. DeLaFosse, Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Langfeldt, Miss Strickland, Mr. and Mrs. Blackwell, Miss Dunlop, Miss Burritt, Dr., Mrs. and Miss Halliday, Mr. and Mrs. Hasen Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Morrow, Mr. H. Morrow, Miss Lundy, Mrs. F. J. Tate was most becomingly dressed in a costume of Pause velvet and toque trimmed with touches of gold and ostrich feathers. Mrs. E. R. Tate looked lovely in pale blue broadcloth with touches of silver and black beaver trieorne hat. Mrs. Mytton, cousin of the bride, also was very handsome in black satin, with large black hat, and white fox furs. Mrs. Marling was in white broadcloth and black velvet hat. Mrs. Evans Atwood, another broadcloth, black hat with amethyst plumes; Miss Sydney Tully, aunt of the groom, was handsomely gowned in violet broadcloth. Very many beautiful presents were received by the happy couple, testifying in ample measure to the great esteem and affection in which they are held in the community and by their many friends throughout the country. Conspicuous amongst them were noticeable a set of splendid black lynx furs, a present from Mrs. F. J. Tate, to her daughter; also a large silver tray from the same donor to the groom; From Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Tate, a large, handsomely finished brass-bound box; from Mrs. Marling, a cut-glass bowl; from Mrs. Evans Atwood, a Turkish table, with large Benares tray; from Mrs. W. M. Grieve and Mrs. Mytton, two handsome centrepieces; from Mrs. Rollerton, the grandmother of the bride, silver mounted brushes.

Organ Concerto . . . . . Handel
"Cortege Nuptial" . . . . . G. P. Moore
"La Cinquantaine" . . Gabriel Marie
"Bridal Chorus" . . . . . Wagner
"Wedding March" . . . . Mendelssohn

The reception at Harborne was on an extensive scale, and the beautiful grounds and the house and marquee were crowded to overflowing. The usual toasts and speeches were made amid which the newly-married pair took their departure en route for Toronto and other points.

COURNEYEA—BRION.

At St. Peter's Cathedral this morning the marriage of Miss Matilda Brion, daughter of Mr. Thos. Brion, of Tweed, to Mr. Felix Corneyea, son of Mr. Simon Courneyea, was solemnized by Rev. Father McColl. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Guerin and Mr. David Brion acted as groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Courneyea left on the morning C. P. R. train for Toronto, and will return on a trip to Toronto and points west. They will reside in Peterborough.

McDONELL—DORIS.

Keene Special to the Examiner.

Peterborough, Nov. 3rd.—A pretty wedding was celebrated this morning at the Catholic church here, when Miss Ada Doris, third daughter of Mr. John Doris, of Otonabee was united in marriage to Mr. Charles McDonell, son of Mr. C. McDonell, of Downer's Corners. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father MacFadden, of Peterborough and was witnessed by quite a number of the relatives and friends of the young couple. The bride, who looked charming in a smart travelling suit of blue was assisted by her sister, Miss Lena Doris and Mr. Frank McDonell was best man. After the ceremony the nuptial party drove to the bride's home, where a sumptuous breakfast was served. Many handsome presents testified to the esteem in which the bride and groom are held. Mr. and Mrs. McDonell drove to Peterborough this afternoon and left for Toronto where they will reside.

GRAHAM—JEWETT.

The wedding was quietly solemnised on Monday night at 8 o'clock of Mr. Thomas Graham and Miss Rose Jewett, both of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. W. C. Riddiford, of the Pork St. Baptist church, Mr. and Mrs. Graham will reside on Bethune St., city.

REMEMBER THE SELLEN-SIMPSON RACE

Percy Sellen, who races Fred Simpson here on Saturday night, is one of the most phenomenal runners who has ever performed in Canada and holds a number of records. His break into the professional ranks in underpin run in the Canadian Marathon Derby has been one of the sensations of the season in the athletic world. Up to fifteen miles he is one of the fastest men in Canada and has rarely been beaten under that distance. He is a runner of the Shrubb type and a plucky, determined runner. He and Simpson have hooked up before and each has a victory over the other, so that it is pretty hard to dope out the probable winner. Both men are in good shape and it promises to be a hard race. The contest which is a ten mile go, will start sharp at 8.30 o'clock, and there will be skating before and after. The band will be in attendance.

WORK COMMENCED CONTRACT NOT LET

Unusual Condition of Affairs in Which Local Contractors are Interested

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 3—A somewhat unusual situation has developed in connection with the letting of the contract for the building of the Kippewa dam. The dam is part of the Government's great scheme to conserve the waters of the Upper Ottawa, so that there will be a gradual irrigation during the summer months, and the period of low water cease to be. It seems that when the tenders for the dam were opened, from some half-dozen contracting firms, it was found that Morrow and Beattie, of Peterborough, were the lowest. Their figure was $26,310. Acting upon this, and before the contract had been awarded, Messrs. Morrow and Beattie began operations on the Kippewa River, so as to get as much as possible done before winter. The contract will soon be let. Meanwhile, therefore, is the serious situation that a firm has begun work for which it tendered but for which the contract has not been let.

FARM HAND ATTEMPTS TO WIPE OUT HIS EMPLOYER'S FAMILY

Quill Lake, Sask., Nov. 4.—One of the most atrocious tragedies in the history of western Canada was perpetrated here, probably on Sunday, when the happy little family of a homesteader named George Thoburn was almost wiped out by a Hungarian farm-laborer named John Mesci.

George Thoburn, his wife, and mother-in-law, Mrs. McNiven, were murdered in a most brutal manner. A little boy, aged four, was also attacked and left for dead, having been rendered unconscious by a blow on the head from a club, while his little sister escaped by hiding in the oven of a stove.

Just what the incentive for the terrible crime was has not as yet been learned, but it is known that Mesci was a sullen and dangerous-tempered young man of 23 years, who had before manifested murderous tendencies. Only a few days ago he chased Thoburn with a pitchfork when his employer disagreed with him.

After committing his gruesome crime Mesci stole the horses and left, in an attempt to make his way to Regina, where his home is. His trail was easily followed, as he had coolly stopped at several houses along the way to obtain meals and feed the horses, and he was arrested early yesterday evening beyond Wynyard, by the police, after a short and swift chase.

The crime was discovered almost by accident Tuesday afternoon when a neighboring homesteader named Dixon, who was passing, was attracted by the absence of any signs of life around Thoburn's home, and upon hearing the cattle roaring for want of attention, he went to investigate, and was horrified by the ghastly sights which met his eyes. He entered the house and was at once attracted by the fretful wail of a little child in the cellar, and, upon opening the door to go to its relief, was confronted with the corpse of Thoburn on the stairway, down which he had fallen head-first when death overtook him. He had been dead about 48 hours, it is believed, and had been shot through the body at close range with a gun, the whole charge having struck him in the back just below the left shoulder, and passed through the lungs.

Proceeding into the cellar and opening the inner door, Mr. Dixon found a little boy there in a dazed condition from a blow on the head which Mesci had dealt him. The little chap informed Mr. Dixon that "John had shot papa," and afterwards struck him just before he went to sleep.

Upstairs Mr. Dixon found a little baby girl hiding in the oven and weeping for her mother, whom she said Mesci had thrown into a hole outside, meaning the well, which is about fifteen feet deep. Horrified by his distressing discovery, Mr. Dixon alarmed the neighbors and word was at once sent to the Mounted Police at Humboldt, while a search was instituted for the bodies of the murdered women and a body of officers also took the trail of the murderer. The alarm reached here, and every person almost promptly went to give assistance in running down the fugitive.

Yesterday searchers found the body of Mrs. Thoburn in the well, where the baby had said it was thrown, while the remains of Mrs. McNiven were found, fully dressed with her throat cut, in a bluff about a quarter of a mile away. How they came to be there is not yet fully explained, but it is surmised that when Mesci began his murderous work she fled from the house, and was pursued and killed.

Mesci explained the occurrence as follows: "I wished to go to town on Monday morning to enter for a homestead. Mr. Thoburn objected, I went and got a gun and shot Thoburn twice. Then he ran inside and the women came out and started to run for Mr. J. Morley's, a neighbor. I came on Mrs. McNiven first, hit her with the gun, knocked her down, and cut her throat." He then proceeded to hunt for Mrs. Thoburn, who got into a small bluff to hide. He found her, knocked her down, cut her throat, and sat on her body until life was gone.

MICHIGAN MAN LOST IN WILDS MET DEATH NORTH OF EDMONTON

His Brother's Sad Search---Found Forsaken Hut and Note But no Trace of the Missing Man---Fire Burned Food and Clothes---Started to Walk to Edmonton.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—A thrilling story of the western wilds is told by D. W. Dowling, of the Geological Survey, who has just returned from the country west of Edmonton.

A young American named Alva Anderson, from Michigan, went into the country in 1908 to spend the winter trapping. He got an old trapper to lead him into the interior, parting when he had reached "Prairie Camp," on North Brazeau River, 300 miles from Edmonton.

Anderson was not heard of after that, and a brother, Clyde Anderson, of Nelig, Nebraska, came into Canada this spring to look for him. He got away off in the mountains at the foot of the Rockies, and he would never have got to where his brother was supposed to have spent the winter but for a party of tourists. He journeyed with Mr. Dowling for several days until "Prairie Camp" was reached. Here they found a rude shack, made of slabs of wood and branches of trees, woven together into the semblance of a hut.

"When we got inside," says Mr. Dowling, "here's what we find—a revolver, which had been left behind by the poor fellow, an old pail with some flour at the bottom of it, the remains of a fire, some burned rags, and, most important of all, a slab of wood, on which had been written with the lead of a bullet this message: January 10, 1909:

"I have had a fire here and have burned all my clothes and food. I am starting to w[illegible] to Edmonton.

(Signed) "Alva Anderson."

"We followed the trail for a considerable distance, but never found any trace, and there is no doubt that he is dead."

ON RETURNING HOME HE FOUND MAN HANGING IN THE KITCHEN

Robert Irwin Committed Suicide at Home of Mr. John Green, Near Millbrook, Yesterday Afternoon —Had Been There Only a Few Days.

NO MOTIVE FOR RASH ACT

Millbrook, Nov. 4th.—On returning from the village last evening, Mr. John Greer, who resides about four and a half miles from here, was startled to find Robert Irwin, who had been staying with him, hanging from a rope in the kitchen, dead. During Mr. Greer's absence Irwin, a man between sixty and seventy years of age, had apparently committed suicide by hanging himself. He had arranged a rope from the ceiling, and then fixed it about his neck and strangled. There were no marks of the rope on the neck, the coat collar having been turned up, this evidently having been done to prevent there being any. Mr. Greer notified the authorities, but no inquest will be held.

The unfortunate man had, until a few days ago, been an inmate of the House of Refuge at Cobourg, when he left there and came to Mr. Greer's house. A wife, two sons, and two daughters survive him, but it is said that they have had nothing to do with the deceased for some years. The village council are looking after the burial of the body, which will take place to-morrow.

VITAL STATISTICS

Peterborough Made Gains all Along the Line During October.

The statistics for the city in regard to the births, deaths and marriages during October might be termed gratifying, when compared with those of October, 1908.

Deaths	26	31
Births	31	44
Marriages	31	19

The deaths were fewer and the marriages were more numerous. Those of the Roosevaltian turn of mind may shed a tear at the fewer number of births recorded.

A DIFFICULT PROBLEM.

Dealing with the effort to curb the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors in Northern Ontario, and the comparatively futile result, the Toronto Globe says:

It is surely worthy of consideration whether it would not be better, after this unsatisfactory experience, to legitimatize the sale of alcoholic liquors, but have it carried on entirely by salaried Government officials, who would be under no temptation to push sales in order to make profit from them. The northern settlements are rapidly extending, and before very long a radical change of some kind must take place. It would be a mistake in policy to multiply licenses; it is an excellent chance to try an experiment of an entirely different kind, which might be extended over the whole Province if it proved successful in the new settlements.

Our big contemporary is talking heresy, especially from a local option and prohibition point of view. It seems to be an admission that prohibition will not prohibit and that local option, while it may banish the bar, will not destroy the drinking habit. Would not the entry of the Government into the saloon business, which is implied in the suggestion to legitimatize the sale of liquor by Government bar-tender, be a retrograde movement? Such a suggestion, coming from one of our most influential exponents of opinion, serves to emphasize the magnitude and complexity of the drink problem, which has so malign an effect upon the domestic and social life of the country. Squaring the circle seems to be a simple problem compared with finding a generally practicable remedy for the intemperate use of strong drink. Prohibition cannot entirely cure the evil, any more than laws against stealing and other crimes avail to prevent them. That is not to say that effort should be relaxed. The question seems to lead up to the conclusion that the only effective way is to bring to bear sufficient moral force to make abstinence from strong drink a matter of general conviction. Then how to bring this condition about is another problem.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUG.

A few days ago the Examiner called attention to the desirability and, even necessity, if Peterborough is to go ahead, of taking some more energetic measures to advertise the industrial facilities of the city, and some more effective means for the bringing in of new industries. Other towns and cities who have made great advancement in industrial development owe very much of that advance to the employment of a special commissioner, whose duty it was and is to give his energy and ability to making known their resources, and the advantages they present as a home for manufacturing industries. Conjoined with the employment of such a commissioner in the case of Peterborough should be a strengthened and rejuvenated Board of Trade and a City Council, impressed by the force of public opinion with the necessity of inaugurating a more energetic and progressive policy in regard to the capture of manufacturing industries.

In this connection it might be well to point out what other cities, less generously endowed with natural and acquired facilities, are doing and proposing to do. Brantford is proposing the establishment of a "Forty Thousand Club," an organization with the object of working to advance to that figure. The following reprint of an article in the Brantford Expositor, applies, mutatis mutandis, so aptly to Peterborough's condition, that it will be read with local interest and profit:

Mr. Lloyd-Harris, M.P., concludes the contribution made by him to The Expositor's Greater Brantford number as follows:

Let me suggest that we form ourselves into a "Forty Thousand Club," and let every citizen boom Brantford to this end. The city should spend money in preparing advertising matter, which would contain short, concise facts showing the advertising of Brantford, and every citizen should have a supply and every letter sent out should contain some interesting information about the city. This information would be effective adv ertising, and I am sure the results would be satisfactory.

The suggestion is a good one, and ought to be followed up. Is there any good reason why Brantford should not have 40,000 of a population within, say, 10 or 15 years? We do not think so. Evidence is afforded on every side that this city has passed the halting stage, and is making rapid strides forward. Progress is written large on our walls and pavements, and is spelt with a capital P in every one of the city's factories. The rapid development which is taking place in the West is just awakening the eyes of our people, and of outsiders as well, to our possibilities. As the West develops, Brantford must certainly grow, because here are manufactured the chief requirements of the prairie province. This idea is well voiced in The Greater Brantford Expositor by Mayor Wood, who on this point says:

What is the inevitable result of banding together in one place a large number of manufacturers and mechanics of the highest type under favourable industrial conditions, each determined to make or work up to the highest state of perfection the implements and machines demanded by a rapidly growing country like our Western land, with whose very life we are already interwoven? There can be only one result, namely, a great increase of population and wealth. We have before our eyes the proof of it. Every shop in the city has been taxed to such an extent that time again addition after addition has been made, and this year is no exception to the rule . . Thousands of American farmers are turning their backs upon their own country and pouring into Canada, to grow hard wheat and use Brantford machinery, and the files of our Industrial Commissioner show some very interesting enquiries from American manufacturers, who are wide-awake to the advantages we possess. It is a well-known fact that the new industries located here will gain immensely by their association with manufacturers who have been sending all kinds of goods all over the world for generations past. The unqualified, almost unprecedented, success, of the past is the best possible guarantee of the future. A new star has risen in the Western sky. Brantford stands close to the heart of the great young nation whose growth in trade is a constant surprise to the nations of the world. Millions upon millions of acres of the best wheat land in the world lie still unbroken within the boundaries of our beloved Canada. When we think of the prestige and the reputation we now possess, and the remarkably close way in which our industries are related to the restless activity and bounding development of Western Canada, not to speak of other parts of the world now opening up, our growth during the next twenty years will far exceed that of the past. One might as well try to check the swelling tide of the ocean, as to stop the forward march of this busy city with its ever-widening trade, and many of those now resident here will see a population of 50,000 or 100,000 in the Greater Brantford of their own day.

Why not form a Forty Thousand Club? And why not form it now?

Peterborough must wake up. We have a big work before us. We are equipped with transportation facilities, central situation, and power capacity to become a very important manufacturing centre. In this age of grab for manufacturing industries, we have competition in every considerable population centre in Canada in the slightest way adapted to industrial operations. We must do our duty; we must overcome this competition. We have to consider and practically deal with the problem of giving Peterborough the publicity in the quarters where it will do the most good that will command attention, and, having done that, or in conjunction with doing it, we must undertake to meet the conditions which a publicity campaign successfully waged will create. If we get in new industries our available power will become exhausted—may it be soon—and the acquirement of new will become a live question if, indeed, it is not a live question now.

We must enlarge our ideas and work up to the higher standard. We must discourage halting timidity and the reactionary forces that may exist. We must unite our citizenship in one energetic body fired with a common aim, and that aim to realize the Greater Peterborough.

The leaven is working and an evidence is afforded by the fact that on Tuesday night next in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute will be held a joint meeting of the Board of Trade and citizens, to discuss the situation from a practical point of view, and, it is hoped, take action that will bring Peterborough prominently into the industrial limelight, and lead to speedy results.

THE GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY.

The Toronto News compiles some interesting figures to show the improvement that has taken place in the Grand Trunk Railway system under the regime inaugurated by Sir when the great system was practically derailed. It says in part:

Since those dark days of less than a decade and a half ago what a revolution for the better has occurred. The road has been entirely rebuilt and re-equipped with more than a thousand miles of double-track. The company has one stretch of double-track eight hundred and eighty miles long, from St. Rosalie, near Montreal, to Chicago—said to be the longest stretch in the world. Over $8,000,000 has been spent on bridges alone at Niagara and elsewhere. These structures have been strengthened and rebuilt until the most powerful engiuess can draw the heaviest loads unbroken over the one thousand one hundred and forty miles intervening between Portland and Chicago. Yard accommodation at Toronto, Montreal, and elsewhere has been enormously extended. In 1895 the locomotive hauling capacity of the Company was under 2,000,000 tons. To-day it is 3,577,000 tons. The number of cars was 25,515, and is 83,019. Their capacity was 473,000 tons, and is now 896,000 tons.

This is only a part of the story of advancement made by the pioneer railway of Canada, which has done so much to contribute to its prosperity. With the man on the spot available in the management, it is to be expected that the story of advance will become continuous, and with the completion of the National Transcontinental as a feeder the good old Grand Trunk will become in an increasing degree, not only a thriving railway system, but a tremedous factor in the development of our national resources, and the growth of Canada.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

There are some sensible persons in the United States—anxious to facilitate trade between Canada and that great country. Freedom of commercial intercourse between nations is a measure of the advance of civilization. The democratic candidate for governor in Massachusetts made reciprocity of trade with Canada a plank in his platform, and he cut down the Republican majority from 60,000 to 10,000. This shows the growing popularity of the reciprocity idea amongst our New England neighbours.

Premier McBride, the Conservative head of the Government of British Columbia, is not finding the great give-away bargain with the Canadian Northern Railway an easy load to carry. It lost him two members of of his cabinet and now another lion rises in his path. Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper declares his entire disapproval of the McBride Government's railway policy, which he characterises as "wild and unconsidered, and announces that he will vote for the Liberals if they will oppose it. He thinks McBride's object is to snatch a verdict before the public grasps the import of his latest railway deal.

A NOTABLE VISITOR.

(London Advertiser.)

The proposal to form a civic federation in this city follows a line of thought which is being worked out in the United States with encouraging success.

The relations of capital and labour form the greatest problem confronting modern civilization. No longer can these two factors, necessary to each other, be left to an uncontrolled and unregulated warfare. The modern state has recognized this; hence an increasing volume of labour legislahowever, it is at bottom a moral one, and the church is following the state in taking cognizance of it. Among the men who have made this vital question their field of labour one of the most priminent is Charles Stelzle. Born in the tenement house district, and living on the east side of New York City for 25 years, he was a machinist in that city, where he had an unusual opportunity of studying the industrial problem at first hand. He is most popularly known as the superintendent of the Presbyterian department of church and labour. In this capacity he is familiar to myriads of workingmen, who know little, and care less, about the church. Stelzle they know, because he has a vital message to speak in their own language.

For years he has been writing every week a human interest article, which has been syndicated to 350 labour papers, through which he speaks to 10,000,000 working people. On every Sunday afternoon during the winter season Mr. Stelzle speaks to great mass meetings of workingmen in the largest cities in the United States. As a member of the International Association of Machinists he has access to the labour unions of this country, of which he has been a close student ever since he began to wear overalls in New York City. Annually he attends as a fraternal delegate the two weeks' convention of the American Federation of Labour, whose 400 delegates represent about two and a half million trades unionists, and his stirring addresses have created the greatest enthusiasm.

Mr. Stelzle's visit to the city in a few days will no doubt give a stimulus to the movement for the creation of a civic federation, the first in Canada, and will pave the way for the later meeting at which John Mitchell, the labour leader, will be present—perhaps, also, the Canadian Minister of Labour, Mr. King. The messages of such men are at least worth hearing, especially by representatives of the employing and the working classes.

FERROZONE

"Six months ago I experienced a serious illness. It commenced with splitting headaches, dull pains through my chest and shoulders. I found it hard to get satisfying sleep—would roll and toss, and in the morning felt tired all over. Then I grew nervous, lost flesh, got pale, and had heavy dark circles under my eyes. My strength got so low I couldn't do housework. I was worried and unable to eat, and feared I would not get well. Ferrozone braced me up in a few weeks. It seemed to supply wonderful strength. I gained in flesh, looked better, and was able to sleep. In all I took twelve boxes of Ferrozone, and my cure was complete."

If Ferrozone doesn't help you, and cure you—then nothing ever will; your druggist sells it in 50c boxes. Better try Ferrozone.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES GIVEN BEFORE PETERBORO' DAIRYMEN

By Messrs. G. A. Glendenning and J. F. Sinclair in the City Council Chamber Yesterday Afternoon —Attendance Only Fairly Representative.

A SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Only a very small representation of the dairymen of Peterborough county was present yesterday afternoon at the meeting in the City Council chamber. It was regrettable that there were not more in attendance since the addresses given were of such vital importance in their work, and they would certainly have heard much useful information. The chairman was Mr. G. A. Gillespie He stated that they had come to the close of the year. Probably there was not more money in circulation, but the quality of the milk had been better.

The speakers were Messrs. G. A. Glendenning, Vice President of the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association, and Mr. J. F. Singleton, instructor of the Kingston Dairying School, and Assistant to Mr. Publow.

Mr. R. M. Warde's Report.

Mr. R. M. Warde, the instructor for the Peterborough District, in making his report, stated that his eleventh season's work had been most gratifying. The improvements in connection with the factories had been most marked, the meetings held at the close of the year, probably more than any other factor being the cause of these. The officers, patrons, owners and makers were always ready to co-operate with the instructor in bringing about these improvements which were of a permanent and lasting kind.

The dairymen of Peterborough were well pleased with the results of the year's work. There had been a good demand for the product. The price had been good and there was a good supply of milk at the closing day.

Mr. Ward had charge of thirty-six cheese factories and one creamery.

The milk had reached the factories this year in better shape than ever before. The patrons had done much along the line of improvement. The strainer on the can was a good indication of the condition of the milk. Rusty cans had been discarded. In 1910 he hoped to see all the patrons take up the matter of cool curing rooms. The aim should be to have the best product at the least possible price. He advocated the use of cow testing associations. The factories were kept clean and sanitary.

Of the thirty-six factories under him fourteen paid by butter fat test. The cows should be liberally fed and properly cared for. In conclusion, he stated that for better dairying the factories should be equipped with Alkali tests, curd and fermentation tests and all milk paid for by the butter fat test.

Again Appointed. ... .

The next business was the appointment of a director to the Eastern Ontario Dairymen's Association. Ald. G. A. Gillespie was again unanimously chosen, this being the third time.

Milk Production.

The above was the subject of Mr. G. A. Glendenning's remarks yesterday afternoon. No cow, he said, will give good results unless it be well fed. There was no Timothy hay that will produce a lot of milk. Cows should be fed those foods that contain the material for milk production. A cow wouldn't give the best results pastured in a dry field. Mr. Glendenning said that he noticed the corn around here was grown too thickly. It must be given plenty of room. He believed it was grown thicker around here than anywhere. In about forty-two inches there should be six or seven stalks. The corn gave a succulent food for the winter. While it was an excellent food it doesn't supply the best material for milk production. The feed that contained the most protein was best. Clovers had a high percentage. Wheat bran was the best, but timothy was poor.

Alfalfa hay was good and the speaker did not know where there were better natural facilities for growing Alfalfa than around Peterborough. Where it had been grown, the land had greatly advanced in price. It would not grow on wet ground. In answer to Mr. Glendenning's question, (did any person grow it), only two held up their hands.

Mr. Glendenning went on to speak about feeding cows. They must be given plenty of water and also a liberal supply of salt. The stables should have plenty of air. Their food should be bulky, succulent, and palatable, to get good milk production.

Payment of Milk.

Mr. J. F. Singleton spoke along the lines of the payment of milk at the cheese factories. He began by analyzing the constituents of milk, giving the various percentages of water, fat globules, casein, albumen, and ash. The cheese was formed from casein. The souring of the milk was due to the fermentation of the sugar. The ash was the mineral in the milk.

Of the 1,177 cheese factories in Ontario, ten per cent. of them were paying by tests. The advantages to be gained by the above system were many. It tested the actual value of the milk. Tests prevented dishonesty. Since this means of payment was started, people were taking greater precaution with their milk. The speaker explained the process of testing by taking a sample from each delivery, and placing it in a bottle.

He then went on to explain two methods of dividing the money. The most favourable one was on the straight fat basis. A person was paid so much to the pound of fat. The other method was by adding two per cent. to each reading.

Then followed an instructive discussion, in which Mr. Singleton answered a number of questions.

Mr. H. C. Duff, representing the Agricultural School at Norwood, in a few remarks bore out what Mr. Glendenning said in regard to the raising of corn. It was raised altogether too close. He spoke about farmers' Clubs, which would be started in a short while.

Mr. Cowan, of Farm and Dairy, Secretary Hawthorne, of the local cheese board, and Mr. Davey, Secretary of the Ottawa Dairy Association, made a few brief remarks.

A vote of thanks was tendered the speakers, the press, and the City Council for the use of the hall, after which the meeting adjourned.

The palate is almost tickled with Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil. The stomach knows nothing about it, it does not trouble you there. You feel it first in the strength it brings; it shows in the color of cheek and smoothing out of wrinkles.

It was a beautiful thing to do, to cover the odious taste of Cod Liver Oil, evade the tax on the stomach, and take health by surprise.

It warms, soothes, strengthens and invigorates.

Her Daughter
Took Very Sick As Result Of Catching Cold.

Mrs. Dennis Delaney, Friar's Head, N.S., writes: "At the close of the year 1907, our youngest daughter, five years old, took very sick as the result of catching cold. She became very weak and could not move around at all. We consulted doctors and gave her various kinds of medicine but they did not seem to relieve her any. On the advice of a friend I procured a bottle of your valuable remedy, Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and after using the first bottle noticeable improvement was the result and after using three bottles she was entirely cured. I can certify that it was through your valuable remedy that she regained her strength and would advise every mother having young ones similarly afflicted to obtain your valuable remedy. For myself I would not be without a bottle in the house."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup contains all the lung healing virtues of the Norway pine tree combined with Wild Cherry bark and other pectoral remedies. It has stood the test for many years, and is now more generally used than ever. Price 25 cents at all dealers. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

MR. CHARLES H. ASHLEY ON ATHLETICS AND THE MAN

Well Known Athletic Instructor Entirely Contradicts Hamilton Man Who Said That "A Young Man Could Not be An Athlete and Be Decent."

The following letter in the Toronto Star will be read with interest by sport lovers here:

Several athletes have asked me to make reply to the article in your paper on Wednesday, October 27th, quoting an address made by the Rev. J. M. Robinson of Hamilton, under the caption: "Can An Athlete be a Decent Man?"

I had hoped that the many physical directors in Canada would take up the question publicly through the medium of the press, with the feeling that it was of enough importance to require their very best thought.

I noticed a couple of physical directors did pause in their busy life to call the reverend gentleman a few names, but it hardly seems that this can have been an effective answer, and, from the way the athletes have spoken to me, I am sure that it has not left them satisfied.

A Ridiculous Statement.

The bald, bold statement made by Mr. Robinson, as a declaration, that a man cannot be an athlete and a decent man, is, indeed, to my way of thinking, ridiculous enough to make the calling of these names almost excusable.

We have in Canada about fifty first-class outdoor athletes. We have a couple of hundred men and boys who are very near athletes, that is, men and boys who show every indication of becoming "top-notchers," but we have a greater class than this, thousands of young men and boys who are emulating the lives of these successful athletes, who are following their example, copying their mode of training; in fact, worshipping them as heroes (for we are all hero worshippers), and the result of this worshipping of clean-limbed, strong-minded men cannot help but leave the coming generation a better one.

I call to mind a meet that I had the privilege of assisting in—a Sunday school meet, held at University track, in 1907—where such men as Frank Haulbaus, Will Worthington, Jack Tait, Alec Cameron, Harding Langstaff, and several other first-class athletes competed. Could the reverend gentleman reasonably claim that such men as these would lower the moral tone of the Sunday school? The statement is ridiculous in the extreme.

The Young Men's Christian Association up to the time that they adopted athletics was in many ways a howling failure. That is, their principles were always good, but they were not able to get young men with red blood to come into their institutions. See what they are to-day—the greatest athletic organization in the world, as well as the greatest means for uplifting young men.

Mr. Robinson goes on to say:

Psychologists tell us (though they are agreed that environment exerts a great influence in the life of man) that no man does wrong who hasn't within him the latent desire for wrong. That is, the young man who finds himself alone in a jewellery store with the priceless gems within his reach, and who reaches out and takes that which does not belong to him, did not become a thief at that moment, but was always a thief, and opportunity crystallized his dishonesty into action. It is true that there are men who follow athletics who could not be classed as decent men, but is this not true in all walks of life But, believe me, that athletics did not make them crooks. I read in your paper the other night of a minister who had just been sent to the penitentiary for being the possessor of five wives. Would the Rev. Mr. Robinson claim that religion was to blame for the development of such a cur? Hardly.

No, neither athletics nor religion are to blame for young men going to the devil, because the principles of both are entirely too high to make men do wrong. If men do wrong in either it is because the men were wrong to start with.

Statement to Women Only.

I note that Mr. Robinson was talking to a party of women, and I fear that the good man allowed his desire for oratorical impression to overbalance his good common sense.

I feel very sure that were the audience composed of these strong, virile, manly men whom he has maligned, he would have been apt to use an entirely different argument. I feel that such men as Rev. Mr. Morrow (himself one of Canada's greatest athletes) should insist that Mr. Robinson retract what he said, for surely the young athletes and would-be athletes in this country who know the statement made by Mr. Robinson is false will discount all things coming from the pulpit that allows such speeches to go unreprimanded.

And when we realize that the Churches' greatest problem to-day is to interest young men, this fact becomes quite serious.

CHAS. H. ASHLEY.

THE BEST HERITAGE

Good health is one of the first requisites to success. Prolonged application to any subject cannot be sustained without well fed nerves.

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportion than any other cereal.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

GIRLS.

The theatre-goers of Peterborough were again indebted last night to the Shuberts and Messrs Turner and Sons for another splendid evening's entertainment through the appearance at the Grand of "Girls" one of the brightest and cleverest comedies written by the late Clyde Fitch and presented by a most capable company to the delight of a large audience. After seeing the comedy it is not hard to understand the reason for its long metropolitan run or the popularity which it has achieved wherever it has been produced. With a cleverly evolved story, most amusing situations and bubbling over with the Fitch brightness of dialogue "Girls" is naturally and spontaneously funny from the first curtain and the comedy never falters for a moment throughout the action.

It deals with the adventures of an anti-man league formed by three young girls who swear on crossed hat pins to have nothing to do with the sterner sex. They occupy a studio together and their anthem is "No Wedding Bells for Me." One night as they are retiring (and this scene is undoubtedly the masterpiece of the play, a mere man seeks refuge in their apartments and the downfall of the league commences. Of course he is indignantly driven forth but not before he has made an impression upon all three, but more particularly upon the leader of the League, Pamela Gordon, a stenographer. The impression is strengthened when he turns out to be a junior partner of the law firm with which Pamela has secured a position and in the natural course of events she falls in love with the lawyer. The other two "man-haters" are paired off with other mere men and as the lawyer expresses it, "When a man hater and a woman hater get together it's a Nelson clinch."

Miss Bessie Toner, as Pamela and Frederick Sumner, as the young lawyer, gave most artistic interpretations of their roles which were created by Miss Ruth Maycliffe and Charles Cherry, who appeared here recently in "The Bachelor," another successful Fitch comedy. Their successors demonstrated splendid ability and made a most favourable impression, while Miss Dorothea Sadleir as another member of the League, and Miss Caroline Locke, as Lucille Parcelle, whose inclinations are directly opposite to those promulgated by the Union, won laurels for themselves by their clever work. The other parts were capably looked after and the production was staged with the usual lavish Shubert investiture. The play was one of the best offerings of the season and was heartily enjoyed.

The next attraction at the Grand is the appearance here to-morrow night of the Joe Weber Travesty Company in a sumptuous production of the "Merry Widow and the Devil" a strikingly successful burlesque of two big successes in which all the beautiful music of the original Merry Widow is preserved. The company which is headed by the well known comedian Sam Collins, assisted by Oscar Ragland and other principals of equal importance comes from a year's run at the Joe Weber Theatre, New York, and will be one of the biggest productions of the local theatrical season. The company is one of the largest ever seen and is well fitted out in the matter of costumes and scenery.

Reason Why York Loan Co. Cheques Were Not Larger

Postmen Have Delivered Monied Missives in Peterborough and Most People Were Disappointed —Overdue Payment and Share Loans Taken Out of Dividends.

LIQUIDATOR EXPLAINS

During the past few days the postmen of this city have been delivering the letters containing cheques from the York County Loan. There was a big bundle of these letters received from Toronto several days ago, and practically all the shareholders have received their long expected allotments. It is needless to say that the great majority were disappointed. "I thought I'd get fifty dollars" one man said, and I only got eight seventy-five" Another was going right away to enquire about the $35 which he had given the company on the instalment plan.

The announcement on Saturday that the liquidators were issuing 89,000 checks for dividends, to as many shareholders, set a good many folks smiling in expectation of the windfall. The majority of the shareholders made a rough guess; "Let's see, I had $80 in the York Loan; that means I'll get a check for $20; that will help some," or thoughts to that effect.

They figured out that they would get one-fourth of their claim. Consequen tly,when their dividend envelopen came, with checks for only one fortieth, one twentieth, or something else a good deal less than one-fourth, they were considerably disappointed.

They forgot that under the judgments of the court all their share loans, if any, and all their payments due and not paid when the company went into liquidation, are to be deducted from this first dividend, together with all accumulations of interest — and interest accumulates mighty fast when you're not thinking about it. There were also big law costs to come out somewhere.

Mr. Herrington who has been directly connected with the liquidation under the National Trust Co., said yesterday that the estate of the company was so complicated in character and the number of investors so great that the work of winding it up had proved most difficult.

"It has been found to be an impossibility to include the whole amount of money due on the dividend on one check in a great many cases," Mr. Herrington said. It often happened that an investor held three or four or even five different kinds of stock, and it was impossible to get trace of these all at once. The investors holdings had to be worked out bit by bit, and checks on the above basis will be issued as rapidly as possible.

Some Complication.

"Matters have been still further complicated by the amount of transferring done by shareholders. In many cases their holdings were switched. from one class of stock to another. It is some time since the York Loan Company went down, and it has happened frequently that stockholders have forgotten that they held more than one kind of stock. Then, again, when loans were made against stock held that cancels this first dividend as is also the case where pass books were in arrears on November 27th, 1905.

"We have not had any special complaints since the issue of these checks, but of course people have hardly had time yet. We answer all correspondence relative to the matter. We have had a great deal of enquiry, and many callers, but it is simply because the winding up process is so complicated that the average stockholder does not understand it. It is not possible to define the different classes mentioned in the anouncement; they were fixed by the judges. Copies of the judgments can be obtained, of course, but at considerable expense, and they are at great length.

Sale Of Immoral Post Cards Should Be Done Away With

Halifax, N. S., Oct. 28, 1909.

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir, — Regarding the indecent post cards and photographs which have been so boldly circulated throughout Canada and the United States in the past few years. We notice of late there has been many engaged in the business who have been arrested and severely punished, but apparently this does not seem to stop the circulation of them. The reason of this might be placed to the large profit that is made from their sales. The vendors are willing to take chances in selling them. A comparison might be made to that of the Sunday vaudeville and picture shows in Montreal, where it is unlawful for them to do business on Sunday, but the large profits that are made enables them to pay the fine, and they continue to do business which can but show a great defect in the law. There has been a great deal done in the past year or so to try and suppress the sale of the immoral post cards and other forms of immoral literature, and the display of them in the stores has been much lessened, but still it is not what it should be. The vendors do not seem to know where to draw the line at decency in regard to the sale of them, as you still can see cards displayed openly in picture and other stores in most all cities and towns throughout Canada and the United States on most suggestive and vulgar lines. These, they claim to be amusing but instead they are simply depicting rudeness among girls and men. This class of card is easily obtained. It is not only through the many stores but there have been even slot machines placed over our country for their distribution. Then you see advertisements in American papers soliciting people to write for packages of the high art post cards, giving box number at Chicago or some other American city. The cards that are received are mostly on the lines of something obscene and vulgar. This class of suggestive and obscene literature is doing more harm than the more obscene cards and photographs that are sold secretly to men, owing to their being so easily obtained by young people and are sent through the post.

With all the many debasing features that have come upon us of late, such as the demoralising plays, the bad class of moving pictures and vaudeville shows, bad books and other publications, I do not think there is any one which has done so much to poison the minds of the youths as the obscene post card craze, In England they are taking stringent steps to rid the country of these cards and other forms of demoralizing literature by imposing heavy fines and also imprisonment.

We notice of late that there have been many penny weeklies on the line of the one called "Photo Bits," which have given away entirely to obscenity in their make up, that have been confiscated. This vein of indecency seems to have made great headway among all classes of cheap literature, and this is more noticeable abroad, and many of them find their way into Canada.

There are also numbers of obscene pictures which are published under the disguise of fine art, and those on the lines of the Salome and other such dances, which are demoralising and should not be permitted. The same vein has also found its way into the numerous forms of advertising matter which can be found displayed in public places. The reason of so much of this indecent literature creeping in is on account of not enough protest being brought against it at the right time. Therefore, the people have become gradually accustomed to it, and it has gone from bad to worse. The only way to drive out the immoral cards and other things on these lines is to have stringent laws made that will punish people who are found carrying them, as well as those who have them for sale.

Citizens Invited To Attend Important Public Meeting

A number of prominent citizens and the members of the Board of Trade have arranged for a public meeting in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall on Tuesday evening next for the purpose of considering a number of civic problems. The President of the Board of Trade, Mr. G. A. Gillespie, appeared before the Board of Education recently and on requesting the use of the hall was cordially granted it. To the Examiner a prominent citizen who is interested in the meeting said that the time is now opportune for an effort to be put forth by the citizens to lay the foundation of Peterborough's future manufacturing prosperity. Canada is rapidly growing and during the next 10 years or so manufacturing cities will have to spring up in Ontario as the result of its geographical position. Only those places which are making an effort to get factories will succeed. From its natural resources, its location, its position on the Trent Canal, its railway facilities and its water power, Peterborough possesses advantages not equalled by any other municipality in Ontario. Aggressive action therefore, should be undertaken in the near future for the purpose of making Peterborough a manufacturing city. For this reason a citizens meeting will be held, when it is hoped means will be devised of securing a complete knowledge of the resources of Peterborough, thus placing the city in a position to offer favourable terms to manufacturers to locate here. The citizens will appreciate the importance of this meeting (on Tuesday night next) as the matters to be discussed are of general public interest and a large attendance is expected.

HOW TO MAKE A MAN FALL IN LOVE WITH YOU

The act of falling in and out of love has been brought to a fine art by some young ladies. But there is nothing to condemn in this. A girl shows her sense by a desire to get married; and when she casts her favors first on one man and then on another she is not flirting, she is, to put it plainly, sampling the goods.

A girl, say, thinks she has fallen in love with a young man, but discovers in time that she made a mistake, and likes some one else better. No sooner is she off with the old than she is on with the new. This s not flirting, it is fair game; and ten to one her first lover has all the time had his eyes and thoughts on another girl.

But there are some girls who positively do not know how to be loved. No doubt you yourself have noticed pleasant, pretty girls who never seem to bring a Romeo to their feet. Whilst on the other hand, you know girls by no means pretty or specially attractive, but who seem to lure the young man in their direction as a magnet does a needle. The saddest part of it is that you know the loverless ladies would have lovers if they could—but they can't.

When in the company of young men some girls have a positive knack of saying the wrong thing. Instead of making a young man feel at ease, they put him on a bed of thorns. These young ladies have not tact. Now, if there is one sense a girl must have if she is going to get a lover it is tact. It is the first art of pleasing.

She must get on pleasant, although not familiar terms with him, make him feel that he is in the company of a girl who shares a few of his views le thim see that she thinks for herself, sometimes; takes an interest in what concerns him and what goes on in the world. The great advantage of this will be that the conversation will never flag; and there is nothing more uncomfortable than those dreadful lulls in conversation, when either party is at a loss to know how to recommence it.

Another thing a girl should remember, is that, when a man is taking her for a little trip up the river, or to the seaside, not to be forever making objections to this, that, and everything else. It makes a man feel as if he cannot please her, and that he has spoiled her day. Let her not, for instance, object to the hostelry where he proposes to take lunch. He didn't build the place, remember, and if she is in company of a decent fellow he will not omit to take her into the best place.

She need not be told it is unmannerly to pass comments on the comestibles provided. But some girls do, and the man not only feels a "perfect ass" but he resolves that when he has seen her home he will never take her away from it again.

Although dress is not the beginning and end of securing a sweetheart, it goes a long way in that direction. A girl should dress neatly and smartly, and should eschew everything gaudy and flashy. If she made her own dress let hi mthink to himself, "Well, here's a smart little girl. I'll bet she put that dress together for next to nothing," as no doubt she did. It is well to bear in mind that a man fights just a little shy of girls somewhat free-handed in the matter of spending money, for the simple reason that they make expensive wives.

Don't talk to a man jeeringly and slightingly of the marriage state, because it is very foolish. Every girl wants to get married and so does every man, if he can only find the girl. As it is he who is to provide the money for a home, so he is on the lookout for a maid who is bright and companionable, simple in tastes, and not too flighty.

If a girl possesses these qualifications and is pleasing without being forword, she can make almost any man love her.

THE WELSH LADIES CHOIR

At the Conservatory Music Hall last night an audience fairly large in numbers, but intensely large in delight, listened with enthusiastic appreciation to one of the most charming and enjoyable concerts ever presented in Peterborough. The Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir gave a varied programme of fourteen numbers, which roused such enthusiasm of appreciation that the set limit was doubled, every number having been encored. The ladies were dressed in the quaint Welsh costume—steeple-crown hats, red cloaks, short skirts, and silver buckled shoes. They were under the leadership, or rather, magnetism—for she could make them do what she willed—of Madam Hughes-Thomas. It is hardly conceivable that so small a number of female choristers—twenty-five—should create such a formidable body of melodious sound. Their singing may not have met all the demands of technical art, for there are some hyper-critical folk that bring hop to a concert and talk about head notes, chest notes, or improper breathing—but they can sing and did sing deligtfully. The programme opened with that melodiously robust song "The Man of Harlech," and the fire the choir put into it, the perfection of harmony and smartness of attack and release made that, and all their concerted work, masterpieces of charming musical effect. The part songs were chic and delightfully clear cut. The "Italian Salad," a charming mixture of moods and melodies, was splendidly sung, and their medley of American airs—and plantation melodies— was enchanting. A word of praise cannot be witheld from the soloists, including a soprano of a voice marvellously sweet and not strong, but of fine range, reaching high C without effort or impairment of tone or pitch. A superb contralto was also among the soloists, with a rich, melodious voice that, in a closing cadenza, reached, clear and musical, G below the line. Her voice was of such depth and volume that in the chorus one felt that some male voice of unusual sweetness was singing in the wings, which, of course, was not the case. She was heard as Azucena in the prison scene from Il Trovatore. Miss Langdon, who represented Leonora, took her part with splendid dramatic taste, spirit, and the contralto, Manrico, sounded from the prison tower like a soft, mellow male tenor, the humming accompaniment of the choir simulating an orchestra in an almost weirdly effective manner. Much could be said in praise of the whole work of the choir and soloists. They sang a splendid programme in a manner to give unalloyed delight—enthusiastic at times—to the audience of more than ordinary musical intelligence. The visit of the Welsh Ladies' Choir was, from a musical point, a novel and artistic success.

Kidney Troubles Attack Peterborough Men and Women, Old and Young.

Kidney ills seize young and old.
Come quickly with little warning.
Children suffer in their early years.
Can't control the kidney secretions.
Girls are languid, nervous, suffer pain.
Women worry, can't do daily work.
Men have lame and aching backs.
The cure for man, woman or child.
Is to cure the cause—the kidneys.
Booth's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys—
Cure all forms of kidney suffering.
Peterborough testimony proves it.

Mrs. A. Graham, of 547 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says: "My back was so weak and tender that I could not turn in bed. A heavy, dull pain had settled across the small of it, and caused me almost constant suffering. I became weak and languid. I was run down generally and had little ambition to move around. Headaches were frequent and often accompanied by spells of dizziness. Spots would dazzle before my eyes, and I would be unable to see. I had tried numerous remedies without getting results. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at McDermid & Jury's Pharmacy, which I tried, and soon found relief. The kidneys were quickly regulated and each and every symptom of kidney trouble was quickly cured. I am glad to recommend Booth's Kidney Pills, as I believe them to be the best and most reliable of all kidney remedies.

WOMEN ON BOARD OF EDUCATION

Three of Them on New York's Board—Meetings Will be Very Quiet Now, Will They Not?

New York, Nov. 4.—As one of the few important official acts which fall to Mayor George B. McClellan before his six years' administration closes on December 31, he appointed to-day three women to the Board of Education, and thereby conceded one of the principal demands of women suffrage organizations.

It is the first time in more than a quarter of a century that women have gained representation on the Board of Education, and the news, heralded through woman's suffrage ranks tonight, was welcomed as a victory. In 1881 Mayor William R. Grace first recognised women's rights to be represented on the Board of Education, and appointed two members. Mayor McClellan went one better than the precedent.

Where Children Learn All Kinds Of Trades At School

Dr. Seath Tells of Remarkable System in Vogue in Munich—Many of the Classes are Held on Sunday—Unskilled Labour is Nery Scarce.

MASTERS' SCHOOLS TOO

The Superintendent of Education in Ontario, Dr. Seath, is home. He has been abroad for seven weeks studying trade and technical schools in England, Scotland, France, Switzerland and Germany. He told of the fourteen schools in Paris, how the French are so careful to train the children in the artistic side of everything, how drawing and designing is part of almost every course, and how in Germany the system is so perfect as to be almost understandable to the visitor from Canada or the United States. London, Liverpool, Manchester, Edinburgh, Glasgow, Paris, Berne, Vienna, Zurich, Munich and Cologne—these were some of the places that he visited, but the greatest of these was Munich.

"Trade schools are more completly developed there," he said, "than any place else that I saw. They are under the direction of a Dr. Kerchensteiner, who took hold of the work about eight or ten years ago, and revolutionized the system. The theoretical and practical work go together. That city is about the only city in Germany where this is done, although that is the rule in the other countries that I visited.

"In Munich they have a trade school for every trade. For instance, there is one for tailors, one for machinists of a certain kind, one for elevator boys, and one even for chimney sweeps. In most of the States of Germany they have a law that allows the Board of Education, or whatever it happens to be called, to take charge of the schools. They are allowed to compel the manufacturers to send their apprentices there from six to ten hours a week. They enforce that law in Munich, and after the lad or the girl has attended the primary or elementary school, he or she has to go on to a continuation class.

SCHOOLS HELD ON SUNDAY

"It is a funny thing that many of these classes are held on Sunday. In fact the trade school there is said to have grown out of the Sunday school. The schools are open on the seventh day, but as a matter of fact the authorities are now trying to discourage the habit.

"In Munich they not only have classes for apprentices, but for journeymen and master workmen also. Only a master workman can employ men under him, just as only a druggist can manage a drug store here. When a journeyman is out of work there is a school where he may fill in the time.

"Of course, Munich is a city of small industries. If it were, as in many parts of Germany, a city of large factories, where the work is divided up between a great many people, the system would not perhaps work out so well. But they have so many small factories that it enables the workers to get any idea, at least, of the completed article, as it is turned out."

"But," objected the reporter, "if there are schools for every trade, and people must attend them by compulsion, there can be no unskilled labour?"

"Well,—well, I don't know whether they have any unskilled labourers or not. Of course, the apprentices—they are unskilled, you might say. I don't know if they have any really unskilled at all."

"Well, in the case of the children of wealthy parents, are they forced to attend the trade schools, too?"

"Well, I'm not very sure; I fancy they go to gymnasiums or something like that."

SON FOLLOWS FATHER

"Of course," continued the doctor, "Germany is much different from us. The son follows the father's trade pretty much all the time from generation to generation."

"Did you particularly notice what is the effect of all this on the people? Is this elaborate system leaving any marks on the people that you notice?"

"Well, of course, Germany is the greatest manufacturing country in the world. You know that, I guess, but—so, I didn't notice particularly any effect."

Speaking of the material product of these schools, Dr. Seath said that in many places these were sold in competition with local manufacturers. Sometimes students in plumbing were sent out to do outside work. There was great objection to this in communities where the trade interests were strong.

As for the founding of the schools in Germany he said that it could be done either by the State on petition from the people or, as in the majority of cases, where a factory owner set up a school in connection with his work, that could be enlarged until finally taken over by the Government.

CANADA'S FINANCES

Country Borrowed More Than a Hundred Million Dollars During the Year Ending March, 1909, Accordcording to Statement Just Published — Receipts For Year Are Over Fifty-Five Millions.

Ottawa, Nov. 4.—The public accounts for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1909, were made public yesterday. They show total disbursements amounting to $133,441,324 divided as follows:

Consolidated fund expenditure $88,-064,232.

Capital expenditure $42,588,166.

Railway subsidies $1,785,887.

Other charges, including bounties $4,998,837.

The receipts were $86,693,040, so that there was a bookkeeping surplus on current account of $1,029,171, and a deficiency on disbursements of $45,-969,418.

The net debt of the Dominion at the close of the fiscal year was $323,-930,279, or an increase of $45,969,419 over the figures of March 31, 1908.

The principal items accounting for this increase are:

National Transcontinental Railway $24,892,351.

Other railways, canals and public works $15,659,997.

Railway subsidies $1,785,887.

A considerable portion of the introductory report is taken up with details of the loans which the Government found itself obliged to contract during the year. The list is as follows:

3 3-4 per cent. loan of 1908, maturing 1912, £5,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. loan of 1930, maturing 1950, £5,000,000.

3 3-4 loan, maturing 1914 £6,000,000.

3 1-2 per cent. loan of 1930 maturing 1950 £6,500,000.

In all, since 1903, there have been placed on the London market new issues amounting to £31,331,298. In addition certain other obligations have been assumed which bring the total up to $34,492,851. During the same period loans amounting to £24,169,-790 have matured, leaving a net increase in the debt of £10,353,060. During the fiscal year one loan of $21,-900,000 matured, over $9,000,000 of it being defrayed by new issues.

A number of miscellaneous transactions are noted. The guarantee of G.T.P. bonds now amounts to £5,-200,000; of this sum £2,000,000 were issued in Oct. 1909.

The Montreal Harbor Commissioners obtained in the course of the year paid an advance of $1,030,000, while the Quebec Harbor Commissioners are paid an advance of $87,254.

In September 1908, capitalized railway subsidies amounting to the sum of $2,394,000 were paid over to the Province of Quebec. This was the outcome of an old agreement and interest had been paid on the sum for some years. In December, 1908, the Government took over the Quebec Bridge & Railway Co. incurring a liability of $6,424,781, which becomes an addition to the debt of Canada.

New Church Inaugurated.

Brampton, Nov. 4.—Rev. Father Williams of Toronto laid the cornerstone of the new Roman Catholic Church here yesterday afternoon. The sermon was preached by Rev. Father Canning of the Church of Our Lady of Lourdes, Toronto, the services being conducted by Rev. Father Hand. There were several clergy present in addition to Father Egan, the parish priest, through whose energetic efforts the new building was commenced. The old church has been torn down, the new one being erected on the same site. It will be ready by Christmas.

Robinson Signed Petition.

Kingston, Nov. 4.—"I do not care if I stay in here for fifty years, as long as they do not send me to the gallows," remarked James Robinson of Warren, sentenced to 28 years, as he was taken into the prison yesterday. He will work on the stone pile. While in jail at Sudbury he signed the petition asking for clemency in his wife's case.

Steinheil Trial Causes Big Sensation In France.

Paris, Nov. 4.—Not since 1902 when Frederic and Therese Humbert were convicted of a $12,000,000 swindle has a trial in Paris excited the intense interest exhibited in the case of Madame Adolphe Steinheil, which was opened before Judge Devalles in the Sein Assize Court yesterday.

Mme. Steinheil is on trial for her life charged with the murder of her husband and her stepmother, Mme. Japy. They were strangled. The alleged motive is found in the defendant's hatred for her stepmother and a desire to rid herself of the husband in order that she might marry Maurice Borderel, a wealthy merchant. The talents and attractiveness of the woman, combined with the mystery of her career and her connections with persons high in the public life of France, have led the public to believe that startling disclosures are imminent.

Judge Devalles has received 25,000 applications for seats in the courtroom, but refused all with the exception of those made for members of the press, the Bar and others directly concerned with the trial. The first 100 persons who stood in line outside yesterday morning were also admitted. Places of vantage in this line commanded as high as $200.

Most of yesterday's session was occupied with the selection of a jury.

Effigy of Blythe on Streets.

Toronto, Nov. 4.—A gruesome evidence of the sentiment of the citizens of Agincourt with regard to the outcome of the two trials of Walter Blythe, now serving 18 years in Kingston Penitentiary for beating his wife to death in the little village, swings from a telegraph pole at the corner of the public highway just to the south of Knox Church, in the very heart of the village.

There is an image said to bear the inscription "Murderer Blythe." The ghastly figures is suspended at the end of some ten feet of rope and swings about fifteen feet from the ground. It was strung secretly during the darkness of Monday night and early drivers on the road saw it there just as the day was breaking Tuesday morning.

No move has been made to remove the lay figure. While it is regarded generally as the Hallowe'en trick of boys, the comment made upon its presence is, to say the least, not adverse.

Dynamite Jars Boat.

Windsor, Nov. 4.—Five men were injured in a dynamite explosion that shook Amherstburg and vicinity as if by an earthquake. The explosion occurred off Bois Island just as the big steel drill boat Destroyer was passing. The boat was badly damaged, while Charles Borgineau got a compound fracture of the left arm, and Henry Brush, Bud Bellecoure, Eli Mero and Henry Deneau were less seriously injured. All the victims live in Amherstburg.

The boat started to leak after the explosion, but signals brought assistance and tugs reached the boat in time to save her. Expert drill men are at a loss to understand how the boat escaped complete destruction.

The explosion is believed to have been caused by several blasts which were placed in the channel bottom some time ago and forgotten.

Pietermaritzburg, Nov. 4.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—Col. Greene, Natal's delegate, speaking on behalf of the Government, deprecated the desire for publicity of the proceedings at the defence conference. He denied that three South African delegates betrayed a tendency towards secession and eulogized the imperial spirit of New Zealand and the other dominions. He declared South Africa's contribution to the navy inadequate. The motion for publication was withdrawn.

The Latest Guess.

Case Against Mrs. Rumble.

Chatham, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Mary Rumble, the woman who is charged with dynamiting her husband's house in Harwich, came up for preliminary hearing in the Police Court yesterday morning before W. G. Merritt. Aylesworth Cole, a C. W. and L. E. conductor; Peter Bellaire and Mrs. Rose Boilargeon testified that they had seen the prisoner on the morning after the explosion at the third concession, Chatham Township. She took the car there and went to Wallaceburg. Marsdon Whiteley, a Pere Marquette conductor, testified that on the morning before the explosion Mrs. Rumble had caught the train at Sarnia for Chatham. She appeared to be nervous, and acted queerly. She carried two parcels, and the witness identified the paper which was found at the Rumble home after the explosion as the paper which covered the parcels which the prisoner carried on that morning.

The case was then enlarged for a week.

Suffragists Triumph.

New York, Nov. 4.—As one of the few important official acts which fall to Mayor George B. McClellan, before his six years administration closes on Dec. 31, he appointed yesterday three women to the board of education, and therefore, conceded one of the principal demands of woman suffrage organizations.

It is the first time in more than a quarter century that women have gained representation on the board of education. In 1881 Mayor William R. Grace, first recognized two members. Mayor McClellan went one better than precedent and named three women, each of whom represent a different religious faith. Mrs. Herbert D. Robbins, Miss Olivia Leventritt, daughter of State Supreme Court Justice Leventritt, both of New York City; and Mrs. Alfred B. Post, of Flushing, L. I.

SOCIETY WOMEN'S HAIR

A Simple Treatment That Will Make it Truly Fascinating—Wm. Madill Guarantees It.

Nowadays every up-to-date woman has radiant hair.

What a foolish creature a woman would be if she lost the opportunity to add to her attractions.

Yet in Canada to-day there are hundreds of thousands of women with harsh, faded, characterless hair who do not make any attempt to improve it.

In Paris most women have beautiful hair, and in Canada all women who use Parisian Sage have lustrous and luxuriant hair.

And any woman reader of the Examiner can have attractive and lustrous hair in a few days' time by using this great hair rejuvenator, Parisian Sage.

Wm. Madill sells a large bottle for 50 cents and he guarantees it to banish dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

Berlin, Nov. 4.—The production of Ernst von Wildenbruch's posthumous play, "Der Deutsche Koenig," which met with the greatest success upon the first performance at the Royal Theatre Tuesday night, was carefully superintended by Emperor William, who had a deep admiration for the poet and dramatist. During the dress rehearsal on Monday the Emperor suggested the elimination of what appeared as an objectionable incident, and which had no bearing on the plot. Frau Wildenbruch consented, but when the Emperor suggested another modification, she replied that her husband had attached particular importance to the passage in question.

"In that case," said His Majesty, "it shall stand as a matter of course."

The sleuths followed a trace of Rapley in Brockville on Thursday, Oct. 14, when he came here from Smith's Falls. There was nothing in his demeanor to indicate anything wrong.

Great Interest Being Taken In Saturday's Rugby Game
T. A. A. C. Expect To Win

There will be a full practice of the Peterborough Rugby Club to-night in preparation for Saturday's big senior O.R.F.U. game with the T.A.A.C. of Toronto, which the locals hope to win Every senior player is expected to be out in uniform at 8 o'clock at Riverside Park for the last workout.

Saturday's game should be one of the most interesting seen here in years and will likely attract a big crowd of enthusiasts judging by the interest that is being taken in the result. With a chance of winning out before them the local team will go into the game with the determination of beating the invaders. With Dr. MacPherson on the half line and other changes on the line-up that should strengthen the team immensely, T.A.A.C. will find themselves up against a different proposition than when the two teams met before this season. Last year it will be remembered that T.A.A.C. beat the Petes in Toronto 30 to 0, but there was a great change in the return game two weeks later, when the locals outplayed the visitors all the way and were leading 6 to 2 with but three minutes to play, when a sensational fifty yard run by Mara gave the visitors the victory. That game was one of the most exciting ever seen here and is still talked of by the fans.

There is every reason to expect just another such game on Saturday, but the Petes are hopeful of different determination. The team is in good shape and the players will do their prettiest to put the Indian sign on the Crimson team. It is likely that Jim MacDonnell, the old Queen's player and Jack McDonald, outside wing of the Varsity team, will handle the game.

SIMPSON SAYS SELLEN WILL HAVE TO STEP TO BEAT HIM

Fred Simpson says that Percy Sellen will have to step around in record time to beat him in their ten mile race at Brock St. rink on Saturday night. The Hiawatha runner is in fine condition and is confident of beating the great little English runner once the pride of the Irish Canadians, and now one of the most prominent professional runners on this continent. There are old scores between the two men which will be settled by Saturday night's go, and this will help to make the race one of the most exciting ever seen in this city. The race will start at 8.30 o'clock with skating before and after and the band in attendance.

RUGBY

The people in this town are beginning to take a lot of fun out of a rugby game. They are beginning to see the fine points and the game last Saturday was enjoyed immensely, even though one spectator couldn't figure out how the referee was right when he called out once, "Peterborough's ball," when this same onlooker was confident the ball was purchased by the Lindsay club and paid for.—Lindsay Warder.

* * *

Opinion on the Hamilton-Varsity game is varied, although it is granted in all quarters that a great game should result, says the Spectator. The friends of the Tigers are basing their claim that the championship will come to Hamilton again on the following facts: That the Inter-Collegiate brand of Rugby is far from being as classy as the Inter-Provincial; that the Tigers of this year are fully 30 per cent.. stronger than last fall, and that last year the Tigers had a big margin on the Inter-Collegiate champions in form and ability, although carelessness and lack of condition enabled the college team to give the Mountaineers a close run in the final game. The Varsity fans claim that the College team is equal to Casey Baldwin's famous aggregation of champions of some years ago, and that the college half-back line is far superior to the Tiger back division, while the team work is unequalled by any other team in the game this fall. In addition, Varsity has had a very easy time of it in the Inter-Collegiate, and has rolled up more points than any other team in the game this fall.

WALKING CLUB.

A new club has been formed at the Y. M. C. A. that promises to be decidedly popular among the boys of the institution. Mr. A. H. McLaughlin, the new physical director, has organized a boys' walking club, which already has a large membership. A walk of ten or twelve miles will be taken on Saturday and the distance will be increased for the following walks.

SOMETHING NEW

ANNIVERSARY OF GILMOUR MEMORIAL

Central Smith, Nov. 2.—Special.—In the history of Gilmour Memorial Baptist Church, Oct. 31st, and Nov. 1st, were two red letter days, and not since the Harvest Home Festival of 1903, have the anniversary services and tea been such a marked success.

Sunday was a glorious autumn day and both the morning and evening services were attended by large audiences to hear Rev. J. B. Kennedy of Toronto, Secretary of the Baptist Home Mission Board. Both these services were helpful and inspiring as the speaker emphasized the importance of living members in the Christian church.

On Monday evening tea was served in the basement and it was a grand function for the supply of eatables was both varied and bountiful, and the crowd was handled in a way to give comfort to those partaking of the meal. Gilmour ladies upheld their reputation for liberal hospitality, and also in the preparation of salads, for there were salads of every flavour, colour and shape with suitable garnishings and embellishments. And the pies—from the common apple to the pumpkin variety, under a white blanket. Oh, yes, they were all good anyway, and showed that the rural dwellers are not behind the times in the culinary art.

After supper adjournment was made to the auditorium of the church, where a pleasing and select programme was given to an audience which completely taxed the seating capacity.

The musical numbers of this programme as well as of the services on Sunday were given by the home choir, which established a new record by the acceptable manner in which the several selections were rendered. The chairman of the evening was the Rev. J. R. Bonner, the Gilmour pastor, and he expressed himself as well pleased with the attendance and the result of the efforts on this anniversary occasion. The special feature, however, of the programme was the lecture given by Rev. J. B. Kennedy on "A Man's a Man For A' hat." The speaker treated this subject with an orator's skill and kept his hearers always at attention by the presentation of his thoughts in an attractive form. His fluency of speech is very marked, and his descriptions are clear and impressive. The discourse was well seasoned with humour, especially that part portraying self-important people.

The address was highly appreciated by all present as was shown by the splendid attention given, although the clever exposition of Burns' famous poem occupied fully an hour.

The financial side of this year's tea and anniversary services is represented by the sum of $107, which is very gratifying to the committee in charge.

Heart Trouble Cured.

Mrs. Wm. Elliott, Angus, Ont., writes. "It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you stating the benefit I have received by using Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I suffered greatly from heart trouble, weakness and smothering spells. I used a great deal of doctors' medicines but received no benefit. A friend advised me to buy a box of your pills, which I did, and soon found great relief. I highly recommend these pills to anyone suffering from heart trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Hiawatha Indian Made $21 In One Day Trapping Mink

James Howard, of Hiawatha, otherwise known as Jim, felt like a king of frenzied finance a few days ago as he clasped twenty-one dollars in his hat and remarked "that's pretty good going for a half a day" Jim's season at Rice Lake is over for the present. He bade it a temporary farewell and moved his Lares and Penates, and other things to his annual fall camp on the Indian river, directly east of Peterborough. He is now located along the banks of Indian River setting traps for the elusive mink and meeting with more or less success. Yesterday, Jim, with the brown burlap bag over his shoulder, entered K. G. Lech & Sons' fur store to dispose of three mink pelts. He failed to make a bargain with one of the junior members, but ultimately sold them to Mr. Lech himself. Later in the afternoon Jim admitted that he had made high wages for that day. Mink hides are bringing from $6 to $7 and according to Howard's story he got the highest price. "If I could make that much money every day," he said, "I'd be riding into town in one of those gasoline gigs."

WAS AWARDED THIRTY DOLLARS

Edwards, of the Crystal, claiming fraudulent misrepresentation in the disposal of a moving picture machine, His Honour Judge Huycke gave judgment in favour of the plaintiff. Mr. Guthrie gets thirty dollars for false misrepresentation, the costs of the action and retains the machine. O'Connell and Gordon, for the plaintiff, and Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr for the defendant.

CURE FOR WHOOPING COUGH

Mrs. William Ball, Bracebridge, Ont. writes: "My three boys had whooping cough and we could get nothing to help them until we used Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It arrested the coughs at once and they kept on improving until they were cured at the cost of one dollar. This was not a large bill for so dangerous and distressing an ailment."

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Counter attractions, which were excellent in their way, did not prevail against the loyalty of the people of St. Paul"s church last night, as the largest week evening service congregation that had assembled since the opening of the service, came together. Mr. MacBeth said that Mr. Pogue had reason to be gratified and helped in his work by the manifest readiness of the people to stand by it, and on the other hand he said the people had every reason to stand by Mr. Pogue who so absolutely devotad himself to the welfare of his congregation. Last night several laymen led in prayer and Miss Davies sang by request the hymn "I shall know Him by the nail prints in His hands." Mr. Macbeth's text was from John 20, "On the first day of the week when the disciples were assembled together, the doors being shut for fear of the Jews, came Jesus and stood in the midst saying: "Peace be with you" and when He had so said, He showed them His hands and His side." The goodman of the house made himself immortal in history when he gave Jesus the use of his upper room. To this day it is one of the sacred places of the world. The assembly of the disciples indicates how they were being hunted already by the enemies of their Master, but it tells their loyalty to each. This is a warning to men that locked doors and sacred places do not exclude Christ and on the other hand it is a comfort that no one can bar the way when Jesus knows His friends need His presence. He offered them the gift of peace that evening, and to prove that He could bestow it, He showed them His hands and His side. He was their old leader, and they could trust Him. Here Mr. MacBeth said that as a lawyer he had studied the resurrection of Christ from the standpoint of evidence and that he was more certain of its truth than of the great events of history generally accepted by everybody. Our Lord proved His identity when He showed the nail prints. He demonstrated His power over death and sin and gave His disciples then and now the assurance that they were being sent out not to defeat but to conquer. The address was made vivid by many incidents and illustrations. At the close prayer was offered by Mr. Pogue for some who had expressed desire for help in the midst of temptation. No names of course were mentioned. The meeting was very impressive and promises well for the success of those that remain.

KNOX CHURCH.

A much larger congregation attended Knox church last evening and a most impressive service was held. Mr. Mitchell took as his text Luke, 15: 17, 20, "And when he came to himself, he arose and came to his father." He pointed out in taking up the parable of the Prodigal Son that the three parables in Luke XV are but one thought revealing different elements of the same truth. His first point in connection with the prodigal was that the man was not himself, else it would not be said that he came to himself. He was not his real self, first, because of his wrong ideas about home. He looked upon it as a prison and many people regard religion as slavery.

Again, he was not himself, because he took all he had with him. A man who will mortgage his next year's salary to engage in gambling is a fool. Many take all they have in their hand and make no provision for eternity.

Then again he wasted all he had. No man with his senses would do that. How many to-day are wasting time, energy and vitality and realizing no obligation to God.

Again, he turned for help to those who had beggared him. The moth returns to the fire. The fish returns to the bait only to be caught, so we continue in sin. We are told that the prodigal came to himself and this implies two things. First, he realized that life was no more than meat. He came to see that he was a soul with a body. He inverted the order to God, first, others second, self last.

Again, he realized God was the home of the soul and no wonder he became homesick. So we are often homesick, for the things of heaven and cannot be satisfied until we are assured of its life. The best thing to do when homesick is to return. A number at the close decided that his was the thing for them to do. Mr. Mitchell will speak to-night on what Tennyson calls the "most pathetic utterance in history."—"It is finished."

KIDNEY OR BLADDER DISORDERS VANISH

A Few Doses Will Clean and Regulate the Kidneys and Make You Feel Fine.

A real surprise awaits every sufferer from kidney or bladder trouble who takes several doses of Pape's Diuretic. Misery in the back, sides or loins, sick headache, nervousness, rheumatism, pains, heart palpitation, dizziness, sleeplessness, inflamed or swollen eyelids, lack of energy and all symptoms of out-of-order kidneys vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night), smarting, offensive and discoloured water and other bladder misery ends.

The moment you expect kidney or urinary disorder, or feel any rheumatism, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere else in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a 50-cent treatment oof Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

It is needless to feel miserable and worried, because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order kidneys and urinary system, distributing its cleansing, healing and strengthening influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realise it.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic, and a few days' treatment will make any one feel fine.

VISITORS TO GRAND TRUNK BUILDING

The Advertising Department of the Grand Trunk Railway System are now in receipt of complete figures as to the general attendance at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition at Seattle the past summer. The total number of people who visited the Grand Trunk building was 265,287. The exhibit is now on its way to Canada, and the Company are preparing their plans and exhibit for the International Exhibition at Brussels, which will behold next year. The Grand Trunk will erect a handsome building at this exhibition, which will be equal to any they have constructed for the exhibitions in the past.

ST. ANDREW'S CHURCH.

Increased attendance and interest marked the special meeting in St. Andrew's last night. The Rev. Mr. Atkinson gave a most lucid and earnest address on "Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sins of the World."

The attention was most marked and greater devotion to the importance of the work begun was manifested.

Mr. Atkinson will sing to-night.

Meeting begins at 8 o'clock. Everybody welcome.

THREE SHOTS AT HIS SWEETHEART'S GIRL FRIEND WHO SUSPECTED HIM

George Neilson Seriously Wounds Esther Hazel Who Had Tried to Persuade Alva Tucker Not to Have Anything to do With Him —Shooting Affair at Street Corner.

GIRL WILL RECOVER

Toronto, Nov. 5.—In a jealous rage because she had sought to estrange his sweetheart from him, George Neilson, 19 years, an employe of the Massey-Harris Co., living at 767 West King street, opened fire upon Esther Hazel, 19 years, 16 Henderson street, with a revolver in the full glare of an electric light at Clinton and Henderson streets at 9.40 last night.

The girl is in Grace Hospital suffering from three or possibly four bullet wounds, but will live.

Neilson was arrested at the home of his sweetheart, Alma Tucker, 19 years, 826 West Queen street, who was present when he did the shooting.

Last evening Miss Tucker had tea at the Hazel house and later in the evening Richard Howarth, butcher boy, a friend of Miss Hazel, called there.

The three went out for a walk and just as they stepped into the street, they met Neilson, who joined the party. He asked Howarth and the Hazel girl, to walk in front and they walked on a few paces in advance of Neilson, who was with Miss Tucker.

At Clinton street Miss Hazel with Howarth started to cross diagonally to the northwest and just as she stepped into the roadway, Neilson drew the revolver and opened fire. Miss Tucker said later that she heard three shots and that the wounded girl started to run and would have fallen but was caught by Howarth.

The girl was assisted home by the doctors, and later removed to Grace Hospital.

Meanwhile the police had been securing the city to locate Neilson and finally Detectives Moffatt and Tipton found him at the home of Miss Tucker. The girl had also returned to her room. He was taken to the Esther street police station, where he is held without bail, charged with shooting with intent to kill.

Miss Tucker explained the motive by saying that Neilson and Miss Hazel were at variance because of her friendship for him. The man had been telling her for a long time that she should have nothing to do with Esther Hazel, and Miss Hazel was equally emphatic in her importunities to have her throw over the young man. Immediately after the shooting she said to Miss Tucker: "There I told you he was not the sort of man for you to have anything to do with."

Ure After Balfour.

London, Nov. 5.—The House of Commons Wednesday night had the unusual experience of hearing Alexander Ure, Lord Advocate of Scotland, defend his honor from the recent onslaught of ex-Prime Minister Balfour.

Mr. Ure lengthily set forth his reasons to disprove the guilt conveyed in Mr. Balfour's charges as to what Mr. Ure intended his audiences to believe regarding the old age pensions in the hands of the Unionists.

Mr. Ure concluded by saying the shabby charges which Mr. Balfour had stooped to level at him were unparalleled in the history of Great Britain since the days when it was open to a man to defend his honor with his own right arm.

But Mr. Balfour would not withdraw a word of the attack. When Mr. Ure tried to make his audiences believe that certain obligations were not held as sacred by his present opponents (the Unionists), Mr. Balfour thought it absolutely inexcusable.

Publicity to Help Police.

Cleveland, Nov. 5.—Secretiveness and press censorship, two policies, which in the past have hampered the police department in the work of solving mysteries, are to be done away with, according to an order issued by Chief Kohler.

All reports of thefts, robberies, assaults, burglaries and other crimes are to be placed on file for the inspection of the public. The only exception made to this is in the case of complaints that may be false and might disgrace some innocent person.

McBride Majority Certain.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 5—Chatting over political probabilities yesterday, J. H. Hawthornthwaite, the provincial Socialist party leader, who has continuously represented Nanaimo in the Legislature since 1900, said that the Socialists stood a good chance to secure five seats in the coming contest to be decided on the 25th.

"As for the Liberals," he added, "I can't for the life of me, see where they can get more than ten seats, conceding them every possibility as well as probability."

CASHIER KNOCKED OUT AND OFFICE AT NIAGARA FALLS LOOTED

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 5.—On the pretext of looking for a trunk, a man went into the Canadian Express office at five o'clock last night, and while the cashier was looking up the records, struck him over the head with a loaded pipe, knocking him out, and disappeared with a parcel of money containing $14,165. The money came from the banks in this city, and consisted of old bills which were being sent to headquarters for cancellation.

William Dobson, the cashier, was alone in the little brick office situated a few feet west of the G.T. station, making up the parcel of money for the 4.55 p.m. Grand Trunk train, when the man entered and asked if a trunk was there for him. A companion stood on guard at the door.

Dobson had just come out of the money cage with the money, intending to take it to the express car on train 98, which was just about ready to leave. He placed the packages on a back counter in the office and asked the stranger his name.

He could not make out the name as the man did not enunciate clearly.

He asked the name a second time, and still being unable to make it out, he stooped down behind the public counter to get the record book in the hope that it would assist him. This was the opportunity the stranger sought. The ruse had worked perfectly. With a movement like lightning he drew from his overcoat a piece of inch steel pipe about a foot and a half long, bound with insulating tape, and loaded at the top, and struck Cashier Dobson a terrific blow over the head. The cashier sank to the floor without a groan and the stranger jumped over the counter, picked up the package of money and walked leisurely out of the office. Dobson's scalp was split open, and he was rendered unconscious.

The pair strolled nonchalently up the tracks and disappeared. Outside the office were a number of railroad men and attaches of the express office, but the robbers were so cool and deliberate in their behavior that they did not attract any attention.

The train outside was awaiting to depart and several seconds later the express messenger asked one of the clerks to see if Dobson had the money ready. R. Bruce Brown, the agent, and the clerk went into the office to tell the cashier to hurry and on getting there found a pitiful sight. With the blood flowing from the gash, Dobson lay unconscious on the floor, with instrument beside him. Clerks and police tried to get Dobson to describe the men.

"Two men," were the only words which came from his lips and he lapsed back into unconsciousness. At eight o'clock last night he was sufficiently recovered to give a description of his two assailants. The man who struck him, he describes as a short stout man of about 28 with dark complexion and black moustache. He was dressed in a black overcoat. The other man was taller and wore a black derby hat. Both looked like foreigners.

Two men who answer the description of the robbers were arrested on the arrival of the train at Hamilton. Another man, W. Gilmore, was arrested at Merritton, but all three give a good account of their movements and are not supposed to be the authors of the assault.

Gilmore is detained here, however. The police theory is that the men got away to the American side. They do not suppose the robbers would have the boldness to travel on the G.T.R. train west. Dobson is in pretty bad shape, but his doctor says he will recover.

HUSBAND, APPARENTLY DAZED, DID NOT MAKE EFFORT TO SAVE HIS WIFE

Uxbridge, Nov. 5.—The McLaughlin inquest was resumed in the fire hall last night at 7.30, before Dr. Bascom, coroner, with the exception of the jurymen, reporters, and about thirty witnesses, no one was admitted.

Mrs. Norman Beal, the first witness, stated that her husband and she were on their way home between 11 and 12 o'clock on Friday night, when they noticed McLaughlin's house on fire. They gave the alarm and ran to the house, met McLaughlin at his own door coming out of the kitchen with his little girl in a baby carriage. They immediately questioned him regarding the safety of the rest of his family, but could get no satisfactory reply. He did not appear to know what part of the house his wife was in, or whether she was in the house at all, but he thought she might be. Ladders were carried to the house by Mr. Beal, aided by Mrs. Chinn, while McLaughlin sauntered about in an apparently dazed condition. When the windows were at last broken in it was found to be too late to save the unfortunate victims. Mrs. McLaughlin and her two little boys, about two and four years of age, were taken out of the burning building at 2 o'clock, dead. It was the opinion of the witness that all three might have been got out by 12 o'clock had their location been definitely known to Messrs. Beal and Lee, as there was found to be in easy way of access to Mrs. McLaughlin's room, over a back kitchen roof. This information was at last obtained from the little daughter, Monta, in the baby carriage. The evidence of Mrs. Beal was fully corroborated by Mrs. Chinn, Mr. Lee, and others. The firemen found the body of Mrs. McLaughlin lying, as asleep, with the hands folded over her breast, and the bed clothing unruffled. The poor little babes were lying under the bed.

James Alexander, merchant, testified that McLaughlin had been dismissed from his service as bookkeeper owing to abuse of confidence.

Several other witnesses gave evidence to the effect that McLaughlin had been for some time paying his attentions to other young women, to the neglect of his wife and family.

The inquest adjourned at midnight.

SHE HOLDS HER OWN.

Mme. Steinheil Maintains Her Story of Crime.

Paris, Nov. 5.—Dramatic situations followed fast one upon another yesterday in the Assize Court, where the trial of Mme. Marguerite Steinheil, who is accused of having murdered her husband and her stepmother, Mme. Jappy, was continued.

In the midst of her inquisition by the presiding judge, her attorney, M. Aubin, with melodramatic effect, suddenly pushed to the forefront a man who said he wished to confess that he had taken part in the murders of which Mme. Steinheil was charged.

On further examination before a magistrate, Lefebvre said that his name is Rene Collard, and that he is an actor. He admitted that he had not the slightest connection with the crime, merely acted on a chivalrous impulse to save Mme. Steinheil, of whose innocence he was convinced. He was detained pending specifications of his identity.

As on the opening day of this sensational case, all Paris was wrought to a high tension over the promised disclosures and, although it was known that but few could pass within the precincts of the court, hundreds remained outside to watch and discuss in excited tones the progress of the case as it came to them through the newspaper extras that flooded the streets.

She refused point blank to mention the name of the late President of France, Felix Faure, the mystery of whose fatal attack of illness in her home eight years ago is the feature of international interest in the present trial.

"I had one dear, good friend," said Mme. Steinheil, softly. "But I will not mention his name."

"Tell his name! Tell all the names!" fairly shouted the Viscount de Valle, president of the court.

A summary of the day's evidence shows that the judge failed to shake Mme. Steinheil's original version of the crime. She admitted intrigue but bravely denied that she sold her mother to solicit money from her lovers; and she insisted that her husband had never profited by her own immoral life. Admitting she had done wrong, in a tearful voice she beseeched the jury to pardon her faults. She defended herself by saying that since she did not live with her husband as his wife she longed for sympathy and love.

Kaufman Arrested.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—Martin Kaufman of New York was arrested last night by former U. S. Postoffice Inspector Hill, on a charge of fraud amounting to $107,000, in connection with the Cotton Goods Converters' Co. of New York. The case has many ramifications. Kaufman for a long time was considered one of the most trustworthy business men of New York. His partner, M. A. Isaacs, had such implicit confidence in Kaufman's integrity that, according to Hill, he induced a number of his friends to take shares in the business. One of these friends was named Blum, a Cincinnati merchant, who put in $27,000. Others invested smaller sums.

New Gold Diggings.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 5.—Rich placer diggings, not fifty miles from Victoria—diggings from which coarse gold, in grains like wheat, with occasional little nuggets—is being taken, are reported.

The mining field will be shipping its clean-up to Victoria banks in the course of the next six months, reports Railway Contractor M. B. Carlin.

The camp is at Sombrio River, a mysterious stream midway between the Jordan and the San Juan, which debouches into an unexplored cavern of Titanic magnitude. The gold is found in magnetic iron sand. The "pans" run up to 40 cents each.

Spread of Hookworm.

San Francisco, Nov. 5.—The hookworm disease has been brought to San Francisco from Hawaii and the orient, and hundreds of cases of hitherto supposed lack of moral initiative are now attributed to the inroads of the little parasite.

To Make Money From Waste Mica.

Kingston, Nov. 5.—A new industry is on the point of beginning operations at Cape Vincent, N.Y., across the St. Lawrence from here. A syndicate of Watertown men have taken hold of the business of grinding the mica waste or broken mica of the Canadian mines. The reason of the establishment of the mills is the excessive tariff laid on the finished product, $100 per ton, when sent over, where it must be sold for $40 per ton or even less.

On the mine waste and by-products unmanufactured there is no duty.

Minto's Cousin to Sing In Opera.

New York, Nov. 5.—Miss Christine Hellane, whose father is a cousin of Lord Minto, Viceroy of India, arrived here on board the Carmania of the Cunard Line, to begin a season with the Metropolitan Opera Co. She is a lyric soprano, and sang recently in Covent Garden. A contract to sing in the Royal Opera House in St. Petersburg had been offered her, she said, but she preferred to come to this country, not having been here before.

Killed on Railway Bridge.

Chatham, Nov. 5.—The mangled remains of Fred Shaw, aged 28, commonly called Dr. Roots, were found on the track just east of McGregor's Creek bridge, early yesterday morning. Shaw, who had been drinking, left home at ten o'clock Wednesday night, saying he intended to catch a train. He is thought to have fallen on the bridge, been caught by the cowcatcher and dragged sixty feet while unconscious.

MR. HERMAN DYING OF STONE IN THE BLADDER

Gin Pills passed the Stone

513 James St., Hamilton.

"Four years ago I was taken down with what the doctors called Inflammation of the Bladder—intense pains in the back and loins, great pain and difficulty in urinating. The pain was greatest in the region of the bladder, and the attacks which became more frequent, amounted to unbearable agony, and I became so weak that I could not walk across the floor. Doctors could do nothing to help me. My wife read in the paper about Gin Pills and sent for a box.

From the very first I felt that Gin Pills were doing me good. The pain was relieved at once, and the attacks were less frequent. In six weeks the Stone in the Bladder came away and the pain stopped entirely. I have had no return of the trouble and have not lost a day's work on account of it. I cannot express myself strong enough when I speak of what Gin Pills have done for me. When I remember how I suffered, and how now I am healthy and well and strong and able to do a full day's work, I feel I should speak and tell other sufferers of my experience and of the wonderful merits of Gin Pills."

JOHN HERMAN.

You don't have to buy Gin Pills to test them. Simply write The National Drug & Chemical Co. Dept. B. Toronto, and a free sample will be sent you by return mail. THE ETERNAL FEMININE.

It Did Assert Itself Just as Phil Had Predicted.

By HELENE WOOD.

"Elizabeth, the eternal feminine will assert itself."

Elizabeth put on her long blue painting apron without replying and began to stretch a canvas. She was adorable so, her gray eyes defiantly averted and a flush of anger on her cheeks.

"There you go again. If I don't know my own mind at twenty-six when will I?"

"At twenty seven or eight perhaps, I hope sooner. Your ideas are all wrong. Believe me, the day will come when you will long for a home of your own and some one nearer than a girl friend or masculine admirer."

He had the last word, for the arrival of the model, a thin, shabby looking girl, put an end to the discussion.

"Tomorrow at 5, then?"

Elizabeth gave a brisk little nod. She was already sketching in the outlines of her study, and Phil was forgotten before he had closed the door.

The young man was quite accustomed to such treatment. Admired as he was to her most intimate friendship on an understanding of strict camaraderie, he broke over the traces every year, was invariably refused and bore his defeat with easy aflount. Some day she was bound to change her mind, and he might be the lucky man.

Elizabeth's own opinion was very different. She had no time for thought until her work was laid aside for the day. Then she sank into a nest of cushions to think luxuriously.

No, Phil was wrong. She would never care to leave her studio—above all, to marry. Had not the art school girls who married ceased developing intellectually? Shut up in their own four walls, they became entirely absorbed in dear Tom or Dick and the children.

Children! Elizabeth shuddered. A child in a book or picture was very delightful, but the reality—a dirty little creature always crying or being ill! She would never leave her work, her studies, her pleasures, for a deadly stupid family life—never!

* * * * * * *

A cry of warning. The trolley car stopped with a lurch. In an instant the conductor and motorman were down in the street, followed by most of the passengers. Elizabeth, impatient at the delay, resolved to walk the block or two remaining. Her model would be waiting for her at the studio.

When she left the car she found herself the only woman in a large group collected about a sickening black mass which had splashed car wheels and cobblestones with blood. The conductor, a good natured looking young Irishman, stood with tears rolling down his face. He was holding a golden haired baby, a toddler of a year or two. The motorman, white and frightened, was telling how the baby had suddenly run in front of the car and the mother had thrown the little one out of the way, only to be crushed herself.

The child began to cry, and the conductor turned to Elizabeth imploringly. "You take the baby, mum. The ambulance is comin'. The cops will be after findin' its relatives."

Before she could reply he had put the baby in her unresisting arms.

Some moments later, hardly knowing how it had all happened, she found herself walking into her studio building carrying a little child. In her purse was a bit of paper inscribed "19 Plumley alley." It was the poor woman's address, to which she had promised to take him. A man she knew who was passing along the corridor smiled and remarked, "Rather a small model, Miss Blair." Elizabeth flushed as if she had committed a crime and was relieved to close the studio door behind her.

Then she put down her burden and looked at her watch. Ten o'clock! The model had come and gone. No hope now. She herself would have to take the child home. A short conference at the phone told her the whereabouts of Plumley alley, eight blocks south and just off the —th street car line.

When she left the phone she found the little one standing close by. Elizabeth studied him with half shut eyes.

"Not bad," she thought—"a Donatello if the forehead were a little higher and the curls not so fine and tight. How I should like to paint him! Come here, little one. What's your name?"

"Alan Campbell naughty."

"Are you naughty?"

"Es. I want my muvver."

His mother! Elizabeth felt a quick pang of horror. "Come here, and I will show you something pretty."

She held out her watch. The silver and gold ornaments on its long chain jingled attractively. Alan Campbell slowly drew near the shining object. He seized it just as a little stray dog would have done a bit of cake—seized it and walked away. Then Elizabeth brought out pictures. It was surprising how quickly they were friends, sitting on the floor side by side looking at pussies and doggies.

It was after 11 when Alan Campbell's face began to look doleful.

"I want a cup of millik," he announced.

There were a pitcher of cream, some biscuits and a glass of jelly in her stock of tea table provisions. With this luncheon spread out before him Alan Campbell was soon installed on the edge of the model stand.

When he had drunk all the cream except that which soaked into her pretty rug, when his face was gory with currant jelly and biscuits had lost their attraction, Elizabeth took one sticky little hand in hers and led him firmly to the washstand. After he was clean and dry she sank into a chair, exhausted.

She drew him up. For awhile he was amused by her velvet blouse. Then his eyes began to close. Alan Campbell's head was on Elizabeth's shoulder. His right hand clasped hers tightly. He was fast asleep.

Elizabeth had the true artistic nature, which when it feels does so with abandon. The soft little body in her arms, the warm, sweet breath on her face, touched the very depths of her heart. Never in her life had she felt so strangely happy—happy and yet troubled. She was embarrassed before her own emotions and bent her head, clasping him more tightly. The world thought of her as a woman. She had a womanly poise and a strong character, but her heart, a girl's heart, could not understand this awakening of mysterious instincts, the motherhood beneath her culture and ambition, and stronger than both. The flying moments, her beloved work, everything was forgotten as she held the sleeping child.

A half hour passed, an hour. Alan Campbell suddenly opened a pair of questioning blue eyes. Startled by the strange face, he cried: "Where's my muvver? I want my muvver!" His little body shook with sobs.

Rudely aroused from her dream, Elizabeth felt a quick pang of jealousy. Yes, she was jealous of the woman whose hold on the child even death was powerless to break. Silently she put on her wraps, gathered Alan Campbell, sobs and all, into her arms and hurried down to the —th street cars.

Plumley alley proved to be a neat flagged court and No. 19 a tiny white house with green shutters. A little old man, whose eyes were swollen with weeping, came to answer her ring. Alan Campbell called, "Huddo, grampy." The poor old fellow tried in vain to control his grief. The girl shook the trembling old hand and turned away, unable to express her sympathy. Alan Campbell smiled after her like a sunbeam.

Elizabeth closed her studio door with a shiver. Never had it looked more beautiful, more orderly or more cold and still.

"I want my muvver!" a little voice kept sounding in her ear. Ah, these mothers she had been pitying, how she envied them now! It was ridiculous to feel so, and yet, and yet she knew her arms would always be empty and her whole body hungry for the presence, the caresses of a little child, something of her own, her very own, to love.

There was hardly time to arrange her hair and light the spirit lamp before Phil knocked. Hoping that he would not notice her red eyelids, she concentrated her attention on the tea things. She thought she was succeeding until Phil said, "What's up, Elizabeth?"

"Oh," she replied, "I saw a frightful accident this morning. I can't seem to forget it." Tears rolled down her cheeks.

Phil longed to take the sensitive girl into his arms, but he only said cheerfully:

"There are many cruel things in this world. We can't help them. Try to forget all this. Put on your hat and come out to dinner with me."

She only sobbed.

"Please don't cry. It hurts me to see it."

It was very un-Elizabeth-like, but somehow she let her head droop on his shoulder and closed her eyes, as Alan Campbell had done. It was so good to feel some one near, some one who was strong and who loved her. Phil could not understand, but was grateful for the miracle which had made the girl he loved seek his arms like a child. He spoke low and tenderly.

"Dear, won't you let me be your consoler always?"

He bent his head to her tear stained cheek, and her little word of reply was not so loud as the glad beating of his heart.

"Only," said Elizabeth when she had recovered something of her usual spirit, "don't flatter yourself it was your conquest. It was nothing at all but the eternal feminine."

We Cannot Improve It

Taylor's Infants' Delight represents over forty-three years of constant effort along one line—the effort to make a perfect soap.

A liberal reward is waiting for any one who can tell us how to improve it in the slightest. We ourselves believe it to be perfect and can conceive of no way of improving it. The choicest oils from the Orient enter into its composition—olive oil from the first pressing of selected fruits—cocoanut oil, the best the market affords, and that refined with extra care—and with all this just sufficient otto of roses—that choicest perfume from the Sultan's Domain—to impart a delicate, wholesome fragrance to the skin. In we have produced a soap so mild and soothing—so wonderfully cleansing and healing, that it is universally used in homes of wealth and refinement where the best is considered none too good for the toilet.

We ask you to try at least one bar and know that we have not exaggerated its goodness.

One of Nature's Blunders.

During the first year of the Hosfords' residence at their newly acquired country home Mrs. Hosford was in a chronic state of surprise, with many periods of indignation. "Just because I've always lived in the city they take advantage of my ignorance to make me believe all sorts of stories," she said plaintively one night to her husband. "I have been real provoked, but now I'm just hurt."

"What's happened?" inquired her husband as he prepared to listen.

"Why, old Mr. Compton, our neighbor down the road, told me that the tree which had the most apple blossoms was likely to have the most apples," said Mrs. Hosford, "and I believed him."

"Seems reasonable," assented her husband.

"Oh, but it's just the other way," said Mrs. Hosford, with considerable heat for a person no longer provoked. "The tree that I got the very most blossoms from, the one that almost decorated the Hibbards' parlor when Margaret was married, has hardly any apples on it at all!"—Youth's Companion.

THE STANDARD OF PURITY

Laboratory of Provincial Government Analyst.

MONTREAL, 22nd February, 1909.

I HEREBY CERTIFY that I have drawn by my own hand ten samples of the St. Lawrence Sugar Refining Co's EXTRA STANDARD GRANULATED SUGAR, indiscriminately taken from four lots of about 150 barrels each and six lots of about 450 bags each. I have analyzed same and find them uniformly to contain 99-99/100 to 100 per cent of pure cane sugar, with no impurities whatever.

Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. For Weak Stomach, Biliousness, Liver Complaint, Pain in the Stomach after eating, Heartburn, Bad Breath, Belching of food, Chronic Diarrhea and other Intestinal Derangements, the "Discovery" is a time-proven and most efficient remedy.

THE APPLE SITUATION

From Farm and Dairy.

Rains last month helped the apple crop considerably but much of the fruit turned out under-sized. The crop is below the average. Prices have been fairly good. From all the provinces reports have been received by Farm and Dairy. The following are typical ones:—

Kings Co., N.S.—Quantity nearly equal to last year which was 700,000 barrels. About half will be stored. Prices range from $2 to $2.25 tree run; $2.75 for Kings, packed; $3 to $3.25 for No. 1 Ben Davis, inspected. —Ralph S. Eaton.

Kings Co., P.E.I.—Apple crop is not up to early expectations. Hardy varieties in cultivated orchards have a fair crop. Fall varieties are selling locally at $1.50 to $2.—D. J. Stewart.

Queens Co., N.B.—Apples are good size and quality, but not up to the average in quantity, free from fungi and worms. Prices better than last year. Alexanders bring from $1.50 to $2. Winter varieties held at $3 to $4.—Geo. MacAlpine.

Two Mountains Co., Que.—Wealthy, Fameuse and McIntosh have been good crop; prices good. Some barrels of Fameuse and McIntosh sold at $4 to $5.—G. Reynaud.

Jacques Cartier Co., Que.—Fameuse are large and of fine appearance; good crop. No. 1 selling for $3.50 to $4.50; No. 2, $2.25 to $2.75. McIntosh are higher in price.—R. Brodie.

Hastings Co., Ont.—Apple crop light. Growers selling for $1.50 a bbl., tree run, growers picking the apples and buyers furnishing the barrels. Other growers sold at $1.50 to $2 for No. 1 and No. 2 packed, the buyer doing the picking, packing and furnishing the barrel.—F. S., Wallbridge.

Durham Co., Ont.—Apple crop larger than expected, fairly good quantity. Ben Davis is light and poorly developed. Stark, Fallawater and Golden Russet have barreled up well. Newcastle Association were offered $2.75 f.o.b. but had previously promised their output.—W. H. Gibson.

Oxford Co., Ont.—Apples a fair crop but small and wormy. Buyers are paying $1.25 to $1.50 picked and $1 to $1.25 on trees.—J. C. Harris.

Wentworth Co., Ont.—Crop poor to good. We are picking 300 barrels an acre of fine Spys. They are free from worms and scab. Winds are bringing down much of the late crop.—Joseph Tweddle.

Brant Co., Ont.—Apple crop is variable, some orchards turning out well, others condemned to the cider mill. Apples generally are clean of fungus. Prices range from $1.00 in orchard to $2.75 a bbl., f.o.b.—B. J. Palmer.

Simcoe Co., Ont.—Apple crop is an abundant one. Fall apples sell for $1 a bbl., grower to pick; winter varieties $1.25, seller to gather. Co-operation in handling the product of the orchard would undoubtedly give the grower a much better return.—Wm. Bacon.

Grey Co., Ont.—Spys are of much better grade than expected. We are offered $3.15 a bbl. f.o.b. for No. 1 but have sold the most of our pack at $2.25 to $2.75 for No. 1 and No. 2.—Adam Brown.

Bruce Co., Ont.—Apple crop is better than expected, fairly clean and free from codling worms, but undersized. Price $1 on tree, $1.25 picked. —A. E. Sherrington.

Yale-Cariboo Co., B.C.—Apple crop rather light; good size and clean. Good percentage should pack Fancy. Two and two and one half cents a pound is being paid for No. 1 picked and delivered at packing house. Few will be stored.—Pommier.

BEST METHOD OF SELLING CHEESE

From Farm and Dairy.

During the past couple of years a lively controversy has been waged in Eastern Ontario in regard to the best method of selling cheese. Most of the factories have sold their cheese on the cheese boards, a few have shipped their cheese direct to the Old Country, while others have sent their cheese to Montreal and sold it there. A representative of Farm and Dairy had a talk on this subject with Mr. J. A. Campbell, of Ormond, who is interested in five factories. Mr. Campbell has shipped cheese direct to Montreal with excellent results.

"I believe," said Mr. Campbell, "that our dairymen should co-operate in the matter of selling their cheese. The cheese should be shipped to some central point, inspected there, and sold upon its merits. It seems to me that the factories in Eastern Ontario, between Montreal and Perth, could co-operate and ship their cheese direct to Montreal. One man could represent several factories and he would be able to go to Montreal with the cheese and see that it was sold on its merits. By several factories co-operating the expense of selling cheese would not be so great. At present the factories each send a sales man to the cheese board and the Montreal exporters have to send representatives to each board."

"Were all the cheese shipped to Montreal, the Montreal exporters would not have to pay a commission to the local buyers who now buy the cheese at the different cheese boards. Were cheese sold in this way, it would be possible for the buyers to inspect the cheese and, therefore, the buyers could not make any unjust cuts on the cheese after it was bought. Should the salesman not be satisfied with the price offered for the cheese, he would be able to dispose of it to the numerous other buyers in Montreal or hold it in cold storage in Montreal until the market improved. There are some splendid cold storage plants in Montreal where cheese can be stored for considerable periods at but slight expense."

"One of the leading Montreal exporters," concluded Mr. Campbell, "told me that the exporters would not object to such an arrangement as they were anxious to buy the cheese in the cheapest way possible. This exporter said that he would rather have one salesman at Montreal than 20 around at the different cheese boards as at present. He believed that such an arrangement would save expense. This is a question that should be discussed at dairy meetings."

A HOME MADE LITTER CARRIER

From Farm and Dairy.

Robert Smith, Lambton Co., Ont.

Two years ago, I came to the conclusion that the wheel-barrow was too slow an implement with which to clean out cow-byres. Having put in a system of water works in my stable and being complimented upon the work done, I thought that I could install a litter carrier as well. I accordingly set to work at it and installed it at a cost of $50. Several who have seen it claim it to be one of the best litter carriers that they ever saw.

For the track, I made use of flat irons, 2 by 1-4 inches. A blacksmith at the near-by cross roads put in the iron and shaped it. We use 75 feet of track in the yard. We use but one post. The scantling to which the track is fastened on this expanse of 75 feet is built up of four 1 by 5 inch boards nailed together making it when completed 4 by 5. This is fastened to the barn and to the post by means of bolts which are provided with long threads and by means of nuts by which we were able to screw it up tight. Guy wires run from the top of the post and from the barn plate to this scantling and hold it in position. The track is attached to this scantling. One shove will send the car from one end of the track to the other. The track as erected is rigid. All that see the outfit like it. It took us two and a half days to erect it. We did not count the cost of the labor in building it as we put it up late in the fall of the year when time was not worth much.

FATTENING DUCKS FOR MARKET

From Farm and Dairy.

Robert Smith, Lambton Co., Ont.

To fatten turkeys is often regarded as troublesome, but the average farmer worries more over the fattening of his ducks. He worries when the turkey turns away from the food with a sickly look, but Mr. Duck eagerly shovels down the food as ducks only can, and loudly proclaims his ability to get away with more much to the annoyance of the farmer. But, "cheer up," friend, you do not actually waste your feed, for ducks gain with as surprising rapidity as they eat. Ducks, to be profitably handled, must be sold at from 10 to 12 weeks. They should be hurried along as they grow very rapidly till that age. When older, they eat more and gain less. Ducks sell readily at summer resorts and at first-class hotels and boarding houses during the summer and fall. Chinese laundries are also good markets, as a rule.

The ducks should always be fed all they will eat for two weeks before they are marketed as they pay well for their feed. Do not allow them access to water where they can swim, as they will not gain as readily then. If they are fed all that they will eat they will seldom go far from their feeding place. Ducks can be fed more corn and heavier feeds than can be fed to chickens or turkeys. The feed used must depend to a large extent upon the feed on hand and upon the prices of different grains. Corn, oats and barley are the grains that are mostly fed; shorts is also good.

Ducks should be killed by the use of the knife. Hold the mouth open till the duck is bled as the blood will clot if the mouth is closed and death is slow. Scalding is the easiest method for the inexperienced in dry plucking, as dry plucking is difficult for any one but an expert. These birds may be much improved by proper dressing and packing.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

The hair is often improved by beating the hairbrush before brushing the hair. Frequently hold the brush to the fire, then brush the scalp. Hair highly charged with electricity is snappy and will fly about in the most unruly manner, but it can be evenly brushed with the heated brush.

A slight massage with the rotary motion should be given the face at least once a day, preferably twice. The work consists merely in rubbing in a circle with the finger tips over the cheeks, temples and forehead sufficiently to stimulate circulation. This serves to keep the tissues in healthy condition and will freshen the color.

Finger nails that retain their grayish tinge at the tips should be bleached, and this can be done with wet borax or borax dampened with ammonia or ammonia and peroxide of hydrogen. Moisten the nails on the under side, slip the cambric handkerchief over the orange stick and wipe the nail edges. In most cases the nails are instantly turned a shell white.

An oculist says that short distance looking is responsible for much of the trouble women have with their eyes. He advises them to go to a high roof and look down, as that will do in part what a long range of vision in the distance of the plains might be able to effect. Persons who have a wide expanse of sea or plain to look at do not as a general thing suffer with weak eyes.

Burning a little lavender in a saucer gives a delightful fragrance to a room and is a method that certain French physicians declare highly antiseptic. Another good way to deodorize a room is to add a tablespoon of some good antiseptic to a glass of cold water and spray it with a small hand spray around the room several times daily. In cases of contagious diseases most of these antiseptics can be used full strength.

Homemade Frames.

By holding spoiled negatives under the hot water faucet the gelatin is removed and a nice piece of glass obtained.

With a ten cent piece of passe partouting tape and a quantity of glass in different sizes to choose between it is possible to frame pictures from magazines for dens and nurseries almost without expense.

Spoiled negatives are frequently thrown away as worthless which could be washed clean in five minutes and put in good use. The glass which comes on both sides of honey cases in different sizes can also be removed, cleaned and used for picture making.

To Get Rid of Tobacco Smoke.

"My wife won't let me smoke in the drawing room because the odor of the tobacco clings to the curtains for so long," grumbled the young husband to his friend.

"I'll tell you what to do," said the man with more experience. "Place a large bowl of fresh water in the room at the end of the evening, and the odor of tobacco will be quite gone in the morning. I always do it, and my wife doesn't mind where I smoke."

Shopkeepers.

To play this game all sit together, and each chooses a trade. The first may say: "I am a tea dealer and have some green tea to sell. Is it animal, vegetable or mineral?" The next one must reply at once, "It is vegetable, because it is made of the leaves of the shrub which grows in China." She then goes on: "I am a shopkeeper and have some scissors to sell. Are they animal, vegetable or mineral?" The next replies, "They are mineral, because they are made of steel." And so the game goes on. Any one making a mistake in describing his neighbor's goods must pay a forfeit.

What part of a tree is the most polite? The bow (bough).

Hidden Skin Troubles

Free Box

Send this coupon and 1c stamp to Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, with name of this paper, and free trial box will be mailed you.

Have you on some part of your body a sore, or eruption, or ulcer, or eczemous patch which, hidden from the gaze of others, yet causes you hours and hours of pain and inconvenience? Have you tried this, and that, and the other remedy in vain, and are you feeling disheartened and discouraged? If so read the following instances of Zam-Buk's healing power, and apply it to your case:

"I had an ulcerated leg for several years. The ulcers spread all round the limb, which was swollen to nearly twice its normal size. Several doctors treated me. One suggested amputation. None did me any good. Zam-Buk healed the sores!" So says Mrs. Gilmour, of Princess St., Kingston. Or, read this:—

"My mother tried many things for abscesses and eruptions, but in vain. In Zam-Buk she found a complete cure." So says Miss A. Coggill, of Wapella (Sask.).

Sufferers from these "Hidden Skin Troubles" of any nature should profit by such experiences as this. Zam-Buk is seen at its best when applied to cases which have defied ordinary treatment. Write for trial box, and test it at our expense

ZAM-BUK

THE GREAT SKIN-CURE.

ZAM-BUK AND A MIRACLE OF HEALING

Over and over again Zam-Buk has performed a miracle of healing when applied to sores and skin injuries which have refused to heal under any other form of treatment. Why not let it heal your trouble? Immediately Zam-Buk is applied to a sore or wound or diseased portion of flesh it commences its work in two directions. It anoints the exterior, and its antiseptic properties prevent any germs and bacilli from creating trouble. Then the herbal essences and juices so finely purified and concentrated, penetrate the subjacent layers and stimulate the weakened or diseased cells to active, healthy operation. These cells then put forth their "Building" products and replace the diseased outer layer with fresh and healthy tissue. By degrees the whole diseased surface is thus replaced by new healthy skin.

In this way Zam-Buk cures cuts, burns, bruises, ulcers, abscesses, itch, eczema, eruptions, pustules, scurvy, salt rheum, blood poison, and other forms of skin trouble. Zam-Buk also cures piles, varicose ulcers, etc. All druggists and stores sell at 50c per box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. 6 boxes $2.50.

CUPID LIKELY TO WIN.

Countess of Granard to Remove Opposition to Elkins-Abruzzi Match.

The Countess of Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills of New York and is the niece of Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, has during her married life in England made an enviable reputation for herself as a witty conversationalist and a successful hostess. King Edward recently was the guest of the Earl and Countess of Granard at their splendid estate, and during this visit the American countess invoked his aid in behalf of her friend Miss Katherine Elkins toward removing the opposition of the dowager queen of Italy to the marriage of Miss Elkins and her grandson, the Duke of the Abruzzi. As everybody knows, the Duke of the Abruzzi, who has proved himself a man by braving in turn the snows of the arctic and of the Himalayas' loftiest peaks, is ready to renounce all claims to the throne of Italy if only he wins his American affinity.

Lady Granard's friends say, too, that as soon as the duke returns from India—and he is on his way—he, Miss Elkins and her mother will meet at

COUNTESS OF GRANARD.

Mortimer House, the splendid residence on Halkin street which the Earl of Granard recently leased.

They add that Mrs. Elkins and Miss Elkins are about to go from Bad Nauheim, in Hesse, to Marienbad, in Bohemia, for the sole purpose of being introduced formally to the king. He is at Marienbad for the "cure," as usual each year. When Mrs. Elkins and Miss Katherine Elkins went abroad last June the young lady's father, a senator from West Virginia, announced that she had "a slight affection of the heart" and was going with her mother to one or another of the European spas to take the waters.

Miss Elkins, a lovely and determined girl, seems to be able to brave the frosts and to climb the mountains of Queen Margherita's opposition. Meantime, it is reported from India, the Duke of the Abruzzi has scaled the highest peak in the Himalayas, Mount Everest, of whose height the minimum estimate is 29,000 feet, or about twice the height of Mont Blanc. This mountain is in an extremely inaccessible region. The statement that the duke has scaled it is not confirmed, but the fact that he is returning from India is assured.

Land of Perpetual Spring.

The most singular plateau in the world is in the island of Papua. The plateau is elevated 6,000 feet above the sea, and there are summits towering 5,000 feet higher, but the close proximity of the equator has covered the great plain with luxuriant vegetation. The climate is a perpetual May, birds sing in every bush, and the only animals are a few marsupials, such as ground kangaroos and possums. Yet this lovely region is literally deserted. The million Papuans live in the sweltering coast jungles and only occasionally stray to the uplands.

A MOOTED QUESTION.

Difference Between Suffragette and Suffragist Satisfactorily Explained.

In response to the repeated and numerous inquiries as to what may be the distinction between the suffragette and the suffragist it may be well at this time to define the difference.

Both are working for the cause at issue, but, while the suffragist plods along in the beaten track made by the great pioneers of the movement and contents herself with methods conservative, the suffragette is the product of the modern period. She is up to date in manner and method.

The suffragette is militant. She is awake to present conditions and employs methods which are in keeping with those conditions, realizing the helplessness of that important, though outclassed, part of the people—the women.

The suffragette, further, realizes the ineffectiveness of tea table and drawing room chat, of indoor meetings where the participants are mainly those who are believers in suffrage.

And, furthermore, the suffragette is conscious of the necessity of converting the masses—all the people—and therefore goes to the people direct, in the streets, on the highways and byways, and holds open air gatherings with able speakers to address the crowds. So does the suffragette spread the gospel of woman suffrage indiscriminately and effectively.

And still further does she recognize the necessity for recruiting and enlisting the men—the present voters. They alone can make woman suffrage possible, says Mrs. Sofia M. Loebinger in the American Suffragette. The voters must bring pressure to bear upon their political bosses, who in turn must instruct the legislators whom they have placed in office. It is love's labor lost to send large delegations to the legislature each year.

She wants it now, and she wants it quick. She needs it. It is her just right, her natural right and her constitutional right.

She is too sensible to be stung by any criticism, whatever may be the source, and simply follows along the path of duty in her own way.

Woman suffrage today is too serious a question to be treated sentimentally or theoretically. Practical treatment is needed.

The suffragette is an expert in her treatment of the disease known as anti-suffragitis. She uses her antitoxin in such treatment with wonderful effect.

"If you ever get into a wreck," he said, "and have time to follow out this suggestion remember this: Always stand in the aisle. Most of the injuries that are suffered occur because the victim is crushed between the seats. If you are in the aisle you may be thrown forward and bruised a little, but there is much less chance of receiving serious hurts. It isn't always possible to get out of your seat before the crash comes, but if it is follow that advice."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Use For Arithmetic.

"My boy," said the head of the firm, "I've noticed that you have a great head for figures, although you don't seem to be able to spell or write at all. How does it happen?"

"I studied 'rithmetic," replied the office boy, "'cause I wanted to know how to figure de battin' averages."—Chicago Record-Herald.

IS WORTH FOUR TIMES AS MUCH AS A HALF PAGE AD.

According to "Advertising Arithmetic"

There are Stores in this City that would be Greater Stores---Hustling, Bustling Successes

If They Were Only Advertised Just Twice as Much As They Are Now.

If any one of these Stores were to begin at once to Double its Advertising, or to use the Newspapers as a Medium for Advertising their goods, it would more rapidly increase their business than they ever dream of

Two Columns

of Space in a live Newspaper is worth more than TWICE as much as ONE COLUMN in Store Advertising.

A Full Page is worth FOUR TIMES as much as a Half Page, but of course is not charged for on that basis.

Moral :

It is important for you to find out whether YOUR Store may not be one of those that ought to be advertising just twice as much as at present.

IF SO, TEST THESE STATEMENTS IN

THE EXAMINER

We would like an opportunity of discussing the Publicity Problem with every Advertiser and Non-Advertiser in this city and district.

The Non-Advertiser has a business that has not reached its limit. His name is not a household word, and his trade is more liable to be stampeded than the user of Printers' Ink.

Intelligent use of Newspaper Publicity, backed up by quality is the only safe way of creating a name and a sale for your goods.

Family's Terrible Destitution.

Montreal, Nov. 5.—In a lane off Richmond street yesterday a family was found, the mother ill and terribly emaciated, a nine-months-old infant dead beside her on the bed, and six other children all far gone from starvation. Two weeks ago the father, Joseph Cadieux, left for the States to take up a job he had secured, leaving his wife and seven children with 40 cents to buy food. He was a heavy drinker.

Fix Date of Easter.

Berlin, Nov. 5.—The general synod of the state church yesterday approved in principle the suggestion to fix by legislation an immovable date to be observed as Easter Sunday.

This is proposed as a convenience to both the church and the public. Dr. Dryander, vice-president of the superior church council, said that the council had the matter under advisement.

Policeman Accidentally Shot.

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—Frank L. Robinson, a Dominion policeman doing duty at the Royal Mint, was accidentally shot yesterday morning. The revolver of Constable Carroll, who was on duty with him, fell out of his belt, and went off on striking the ground. The bullet glanced, hitting Robinson in the face, near the nose.

BUDGET GOES TO LORDS.

Celebrated Measure Passed by British Commons.

London, Nov. 5.—The House of Commons passed the third reading of the budget bill last night by a majority of 230, the vote showing 379 to 149.

As the Irish Nationalists had decided not to take part in the division, 528 members of Parliament thus attended out of a possible 587. Allowing for pairs, there was thus a very full attendance. The present standing of parties is: Liberals 374, Unionists, 150, Labor and Socialist 54, Nationalists 83. In all 630.

The scene in the House was a memorable one. Seldom has there been a larger attendance of members and peers, and the diplomatic galleries were crowded to their utmost capacity.

Chancellor Lloyd-George, Premier Asquith and Mr. Balfour, leader of the Opposition, all spoke during the evening, and there was tense excitement throughout the session, all present appearing to be imbued with the historic character of the occasion.

Mr. Asquith, in a brief speech closing the debate, said that it was incumbent upon those who objected to the Government taxes to provide some alternative scheme to meet the nation's necessities. Where was this scheme? asked Mr. Asquith.

Sooner or later Mr. Balfour must show his hand, and it would have to be a hand that would suit the game of tariff reformers.

The Government, continued the Premier, might well be content to rest themselves in patience. There were only two issues before the Houses—the taxes proposed by the budget or tariff reform.

The division was then taken and the announcement of the vote, showing the Government's majority to be larger than expected, was greeted with prolonged Ministerial cheering.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Half the business district of Cayuga, Ind., burned yesterday. Loss $60,000.

Frechette, a ship's laborer, of Quebec, broke his neck by a fall from a ladder.

James J. Murphy, dealer in builders' supplies, Quebec, has assigned his his estate, with liabilities of some $80,000.

At Green Bay, Wis., a lone robber held up the teller of the Farmers' Exchange Bank, and escaped with about $1,000.

Driver R. Patterson of the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery at Kingston, Ont., has surrendered at Fredericton, N.B., as a deserter.

W. T. R. Preston has been officially appointed Canadian Trade Commissioner to Holland, and left Ottawa yesterday afternoon for Amsterdam, via New York.

The latest official reports received at the State Department, Washington, tend to show that Nicaraguan revolutionists are daily gaining strength in men, arms and ammunition.

At Pittsburg yesterday, an appeal was filed in the Supreme Court in behalf of Helen Bogle, asking for a reversal of her sentence of 25 years' imprisonment for complicity in the kidnapping of Willie Whitla.

Lord Pentland, who has been mentioned as a possible Governor-General for Canada, was military secretary to Lord Aberdeen during his terms as Governor-General of Canada. He was plain John Sinclair then. On leaving Canada he was elected to the British House from a Scottish constituency, and became Secretary for Scotland. He was advanced to the peerage, with the title of Lord Pentland, a couple of years ago. He is a son-in-law of Lord Aberdeen.

Shot by Wife.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—Col. Talbot, M.P., has received news which shows that Alfred E Talbot, dangerously wounded by his wife in Reno, Nevada, is his brother.

Alfred Talbot is a miser and bookmaker, a well-known sporting man, and quite well-to-do. He recently had trouble with his wife, who sued him for divorce. The two were in a lawyer's office a day or two ago arranging about the divorce case, when a disagreement occurred over the financial arrangements. In the heat of the dispute, Mrs. Talbot drew a revolver and shot her husband twice, one ball passing through one of his lungs. It is believed, he will die.

Mrs. Talbot is an actress and a very beautiful woman, and sang in Ottawa once last winter.

Mutineers All Caught.

Athens, Nov. 5.—Lieut. Tibaldos, the naval officer who led the revolt against the Government and a companion, Lieut. Dimoulis, were arrested yesterday. All of the principals in the mutiny are now in custody.

Everyone Thought She Was Going Into Consumption.

Gained Ten Pounds in Two Weeks by the Use of Burdock Blood Bitters.

Mrs. Fred. Biggs, Kingston, Ont., writes:—"I was completely run down, my blood was out of order, and I used to get so weak I would be compelled to stay in bed for weeks at a time. I could not eat, was pale and thin; every one thought I was going into consumption. I tried everything and different doctors until a friend advised me to use Burdock Blood Bitters. I did not have one bottle used when my appetite began to improve. I used six bottles. I gained ten pounds in two weeks. When I began to take it I only weighed ninety-three pounds. It just seemed to pull me from the grave as I never expected to be strong again. I will tell every sufferer of your wonderful medicine."

The blood reaches every portion of the body to distribute nutriment and remove effete matter and waste products. Clearly then, any influence, good or bad, affecting the blood, must necessarily affect the entire system for good or evil as the case may be.

Get pure blood and keep it pure by removing every trace of impure morbid matter from the system by using Burdock Blood Bitters. It exerts a curative influence unapproached by any other remedy.

Inside Selling of B.C. Electrics.

London, Nov. 5.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Financial Press calls attention to heavy inside selling in British Columbia electric railways, remarking that the ineffectiveness of recent efforts to stimulate interest in these shares requires no further explanation.

Alberta Railway and Irrigation declared a dividend of 5 per cent., $87,818 was carried forward. During the year 12,000 acres of irrigable land was sold at $34 an acre.

Pellagra Due to "Booze."

Columbia, S.C., Nov. 5.—Not alone corn and the ordinary products of food made of that cereal but the distilled spirits of the grain, corn "licker", plays an important part in causing the dread disease pellagra.

This declaration was made at the second day's session of the National Conference on pellagra yesterday by more than one of the distinguished physicians in attendance. Among these professional men, who are here investigating what in this country is considered a "new" disease, there is a growing conviction, according to several of the speakers that pellagra already is ravaging horses, cows, hogs, etc., as well as human beings.

Last night a permanent organization entitled the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Pellagra was perfected.

Another Appeal to Denmark.

Washington, Nov 5.—"Let scientific American examine Dr. Cook's records," is in substance the message which the State Department was yesterday asked to transmit to Copenhagen.

One of the matters which the National Geographical Society's committee pressed upon the Department was a request that an official cablegram be sent to U. S. Minister Egan at Copenhagen asking that he pave the way with the Copenhagen Geographical authorities so that the committee which will soon be appointed by the society may be given the privilege of examining Dr. Cook's records.

Must Not Smoke on Elevated.

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Following initial failure to abolish smoking on the Chicago and Oak Park Elevated Railroad by polite persuasion, more vigorous methods were put in practice yesterday and with success. Men who insisted on smoking as usual in spite of the guard's order to the contrary received repayment of their fares with a request that they leave the train. If still obdurate, private detectives on each train ejected the offenders.

A small riot, in which two men were injured, accompanied the ejectment of one passenger.

The matter probably will go to the courts.

Gunnery as Science.

Quebec, Nov. 5.—The inauguration of modern science in artillery warfare will shortly be organised at the Quebec Citadel under the direction of Lieut.-Col. English, assisted by Capt. Mills of the Imperial army, who will shortly enter upon their duties. In the meantime a large fine building is in course of erection in the citadel, which is intended to serve as a lecture hall. This hall will be fitted with miniature forts and canponery, and will in itself be a regular military museum. Lectures will be delivered on the science of artillery and defence of forts in case of war.

Ship's Safe Robbed.

New York, Nov. 5.—Robbers boarded the Hamburg-American liner Prince Joachim lying at her pier here two days ago, jimmied open the safe in the purser's office and got away with $7,000 in gold, consigned to the Jamaica correspondent of the Bank of Nova Scotia. It was to have been taken by the liner on her trip to the West Indies, starting Saturday.

Ten Years For Horse Theft.

Cornwall, Nov. 5.—Ten years in the Kingston Penitentiary was the sentence handed Cyrus E. Seymour, here by Judge O'Reilly for stealing a horse and rig from Albert Fulton, of Chesterville on Oct. 18. Seymour drove the horse to Alver Beaudette by way of Cornwall, and under the name of R. B. Foster, consigned the outfit to R. B. Hamilton, Montreal, under which name he again took possession and endeavored to dispose of the horse and rig at a sales stable. The horse had been driven so hard that it died.

Jury Upholds Unwritten Law.

Gallatin, Mo., Nov. 5.—Believing Otis Claycomb, a young farmer, was justified in killing the man who wrecked his home, a grand jury refused yesterday to indict him for killing John Ward, a wealthy land owner, and Claycomb was given his liberty. Claycomb killed Ward, who was 60 years old, for taking Mrs Claycomb from her home and six children.

New York State Running Dry.

Watertown, N.Y., Nov. 5.—Out of twenty towns in Jefferson County where license propositions were voted upon, eleven went absolutely dry, five hotel licenses, two everything, one druggist, and one everything except saloon. Clayton, including Frontenac was among those that went dry on all propositions.

Drydock For Prince Rupert.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 5—The Dominion Government has decided to construct a floating dock, at a cost of a million and a half dollars, at Prince Rupert, according to announcement made yesterday by Wm. Wainwright, second vice-president of the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Lieut.-Col. Longworth Dead.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 5—The Maritime Provinces have lost another prominent public man in the person of Lieut.-Col. John A. Longworth, who died last night at his home in Charlottetown, P.E.I. On Tuesday he underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Tunnel Not Ready Yet.

Detroit, Nov. 5.—For another season at least the Michigan Central car ferries will battle with the ice in the Detroit River. It was expected that the tunnel would be ready for use this winter, but it is now authoritatively announced that no cars will be running through the big tubes until next spring at earliest. On the Canadian side especially there is still a lot of work to be done.

There is a general belief in Windsor that the Wabash and Canadian Pacific roads will use the tunnel.

The Flounder.

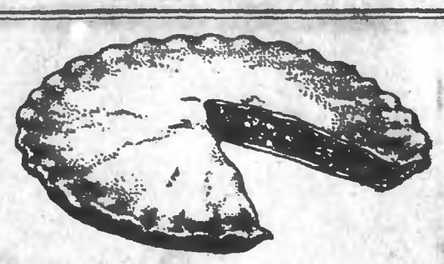
Didn't Murder Husband.

St. Paul, Nov. 5.—Mrs. Mina Arbogast, charged with the murder last May of her husband, Louis Arbogast, a meat dealer of some local prominence, was found not guilty by a jury here yesterday.



Twenty-five years ago it was difficult to sell spring wheat flour for pastry at any price.

People didn't want it—they were using soft, winter wheat flour, and saw no reason for changing.

But hard wheat flour was persistently pushed. The women tried it and succeeded with it,—to-day hard wheat flour is the favorite for Pastry as well as for Bread.

Ogilvie's Royal Household

is hard wheat flour at its best—milled by modern methods, retaining all of the good of the wheat. It is without an equal for every kind of baking in which flour is used. 16

DREW KNIFE ON FOREMAN

Italian From Montreal Engaged on Night Shift at New Dam Arrested on Serious Charge—Constables Had No Easy Task.

HEARD ON MONDAY

Leo Ghelarti is the name of an Italian who will appear before Magistrate Edmson on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock to answer to a rather serious charge. Several nights ago he was working on the night shift in the construction work at the new dam, and, according to the story, was told to leave off work for the rest of the night. Leo strongly objected, contrary to what might have been expected, and wanted to know "for why." In the end he is said to have drawn a knife and made a number of thrusts at the foreman, who eluded the weapon and got away from the Italian. High County Constable Cochrane was notified, and he, with Constable Moore, started out in the night to locate their man. After searching the premises they found him behind the offices of the Bishop Construction Co. The constables took him into custody, but from all accounts it was not a pink tea affair. Leo put up a stiff struggle, only to be overpowered and handcuffed.

The fracas will be aired in the Police Court on Monday.

How Comparison of Streets With Lindsay's Lauded an Industry.

Mr. Wm. Flavelle, of Lindsay, speaking at a meeting of citizens to consider paving Kent St., spoke as follows:

If we got the pavement down on Kent St. it would, in the course of time, be extended to other streets. While he was in the West he noticed they were putting down pavements on all sides. In fact they were laying them down in every progressive town, and Lindsay could not afford to stand still. The town endeavoured to get the Brinton Carpet Works, now stationed in Peterborough, and although Lindsay offered just as good inducements as Peterborough it failed, because, as the firm's representative had frankly said, he did not like the town with its muddy streets. And when it was contrasted with Peterborough they decided to locate there. Pavements appealed to him strongly on his trip to the West. They were comparatively noiseless. The laying down of permanent pavement was, he believed, the cheapest thing to do in the end.

Good, clean streets meet with the approval of every stranger and are suggestive of the municipality's progressiveness.

TWO YEARS IN CENTRAL PRISON FOR ASSAULT AND ROBBERY

Angus McDonald Sentenced by Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court This Morning---Found Guilty of the Theft of Gold Watch and Chain and $38 From Wm. P. Whitney on Thanksgiving Night.

Two years less one day in the Central Prison, was the sentence meted out to Angus McDonald by Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court this morning. He was found guilty of assaulting and robbing Wm. P. Whitney, of Cavanville, of a gold watch and chain, and thirty-eight dollars on the night of Thanksgiving Day.

Before giving judgment, his Worship explained to Mr. R. M. Ruddy, counsel for the prisoner, who had made application to have the election made by his client, withdrawn, that upon making investigation, he could find no authority whereby a magistrate could allow a prisoner, who had elected to be tried summarily, to change his decision. His Worship stated that he found the prisoner guilty, but before giving sentence gave him an opportunity to make restitution, or to say anything in his own behalf. He had nothing to say.

"There was a class of men here," said his Worship, "who made a practice of setting men, who came to town for a holiday, drunk, and then robbing them. The practice is altogether too common. We have had too many cases of it in this court. The judgment of the Court is that you spend two years, less one day, in the Central Prison."

The prisoner went down to his cell laughing, and appeared to take the sentence good naturedly.

Another Old Resident Of Peterborough Passes Away

One of the oldest residents of Peterborough passed away this morning at 2.30 o'clock in the person of Elizabeth Robinson, relict of the late John Armour. The deceased had been a resident of Peterborough for fifty-eight years, ever since she came to Canada with hre family at the age of twelve years. She was born in Edinburgh, Scotland, in 1838, and settled in Peterborough in 1850, the year the then village was incorporated as a town. She had there seen Peterborough develop from a hamlet of several thousand people to a flourishing city of 17,000 inhabitants.

The late Mrs. Armour was very well known to a large proportion of the people of Peterborough, who will regret to learn of her death. Her many good qualities had endeared her in the affection of all who knew her.

Her husband predeceased her but a few days over a year ago, and Mrs. Armour has not been in good health since that time.

She is survived by five sons and four daughters, as follows: Andrew, of Utica, N. Y., William of Newark, Cal., John, of Brooklyn, N.Y., George and Alexander, of this city, Mrs. Wm. Lyons, of Smith, Mrs. Thomas Kemot, of Smith; Mrs. Robert Hart, and Miss Isabella Armour, of Jamaica, N. Y.

The funeral will take place on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, from the family residence, 145 Rubidge St., to Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. Fitzgerald Secured All Cheese On Lindsay Board

The final sale of the Lindsay Cheese Board was held this morning. Mr. Fitzgerald, of Peterborough, secured the entire boarding, 696 boxes. The price paid was 11⅛ cents.

There was but one bid, which is a very unusual happening, and this was accepted by all the salesmen, the other buyers refusing to raise the offer. Mr. Fitzgerald secured the entire boarding at the last sale, also.

It was decided to allow one pound a box off to the buyers. Cheese at this time of the year is not as well-treated, many say, and this was the cause of allowing the pound off.

The buyers were: Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Gillespie, of Peterborough, and Mr. Flavelle, of Lindsay.

In Court Two Days In Succession Was Sent Up For Thirty Days

Johnathan Ferguson, who promised his Worship yesterday morning that he would never again show up in the police court was on hand to-day, and occupying his old seat in the prisoner's dock.

"I didn't keep my word," he said to the Magistrate.

"Are you guilty or not guilty of being drunk?" asked his Worship.

"Guilty," hereplied.

He was fined ten dollars, to be paid forthwith, or thirty days in jail. Johnathan had no money, so had to go up on the hill.

"I have spent lots of ten dollar bills, but I haven't any now," he remarked as he went downstairs.

POLICE IN THE DARK

The Niagara Falls Authorities Have No Clue to Identity of Hold-Up Men.

Special to The Examiner.

Niagara Falls, Nov. 5.—So far police are in dark as to identity of the two men who last night felled Wm. Dobson with piece of lead pipe and got away with $14,169. Chief Mains, of frontier police, admits frankly there is practically no real clue. This morning Dobson was shown a photo from the rogues' gallery of men who might be guilty of such crimes as that of last night night but declared none of pictures resembled his assailants. He is progressing favourably. Doctors say although the skull is fractured and splinter of bone broken off.

71 AND SUES FOR DIVORCE

Burr Peck Alleges That His 21-Year-Old Wife Has Been Cruel to Him—Refuses to Make Up.

GAVE WIFE $4,000 AUTO.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 6.—Taking the advice of the ninety-six-year-old mother, seventy-one-year-old Burr Peck decided to-day to sue his twenty-one-year-old wife for divorce. The papers have been formally filed in the Superior Court.

Peck alleges that his bride, who was waitress in a Yale boarding house when she married him, has been cruel to him. The specification of the cruelty will be kept from the court trial, Burr's lawyer says. The divorce papers were drawn last week, but were not served till later. An effort was made by friends of Peck's wife to patch up their troubles, but Peck's aged mother, who lives in the house with him and his bride advised him to take advantage of the act of cruelty which he alleges and order the young wife out of the house. Mrs. Peck says that she will fight the case. She denies that she has been cruel to her husband and insists that she still loves him dearly.

Refuses to Make Up.

Peck's friends say that no attempts at reconciliation by the young wife will be met by him. The case will be tried at the December term of the Superior Court.

The couple's friends have taken sides and a family feud of bitterness is being waged. Mrs. Peck's friends insist that some of Burr's wife's relatives have gotten hold of him and are at the bottom of the suit for divorce. Peck's first wife died in April, 1908, and he eloped with the Yale waitress, Mamie O'Brien in July. They were married in the City Hall, New York City.

Gave Wife $4,000 Auto.

Peck bought a $4,000 auto for his wife this spring, but in July inserted an advertisement in New Haven newspapers refusing to pay any bills contracted by her. He transferred some of his real estate to her last fall, but it was re-transferred to his own name this spring.

The pair separated a month ago after a bitter quarrel. Peck owns a number of business blocks and residences in the heart of New Haven. His property is assessed for about $85,000, but is worth more.

Children Of House Of Providence Now In The New Orphanage

New Home Splendidly Adapted for the Care of the Children on London Street---Children Were Transferred Yesterday---The Old People Will Have More Accommodation

The old Bradburn homestead on London street, was yesterday occupied by the children who have been at the House of Providence. This beautiful property was purchased by the Roman aCtholic Church some few months ago as a home for the poor children who were being cared at the House of Providence. This place has ben fixed up and furnished throughout and everything is very comfortable and homelike. There are about forty little ones housed there and for the time being are under the direction of the mother of the House of Providence.

A name for the children's home has not yet ben selected nor have the details of management been set tled upon as his Lordship the Bishop has been away for some time. He will, however, return this week and the details will be completed.

The House of Providence will now be devoted entirely to the care of the adults who come under charge of that institution. Much more room is available, and both the old and the young will be better away from each other.

Mathematical Prodigy Brought To Light At Harvard University

Cambridge, Nov. 5.—When William James Sidis, agde eleven, and looking somewhat younger, walked into the recitation room at Harvard to begin his course in Mathematics 6, there was a snicker from the assembled sophomores and juniors, who enrolled in the course with dread. For trigonometry was to be the work for the first half year, and for the ordinary mortal, even if he be a Harvard student, trigonometry is no sinecure.

This snicker came a few weeks ago. On Friday, the last recitation of the week, the snicker had changed to admiration, for William James Sidis had proved in that short time that there were just two persons in that course who knew trignometry and its attendant woes, logarithms, and those two were Professor Bouton, who gives the course, and the little boy of eleven.

At the age of eleven—young Sidis was born on April 1, 1898 — this Brookline lad is probably the most remarkable mathematican in the world. He is taking just one course in mathematics at Harvard this year. The rest of his studies he is pursuing at home, and the extent of his education is a tribute both to his remarkable genius and to the methods of his father, an expert in the study of the child mind. The boy has learned German, French, Russian and English at an age when the ordinary boy is trying hard to pronounce soldier and shoulder properly. He has studied Latin and Greek, and if his teachers in the Brookline High School are to be oredited, his knowledge of history is remarkable.

And more remarkable, perhaps, in the light of the fact that he is known merely as a mathematical prodigy, is his philosophical theory. Like his father, who is a Russian by birth, a Jew by race and an atheist by belief, he is ready to argue that there is no God, and that the systems of theology as expounded in the pulpits are all fallacies.

Mind at Expense of Body.

Many stories have been told about the one feature that distinguished young Sidis, from the ordinary genius of his years — that he was as healthy as the ordinary boy, that he loved to play, and that except in his study periods he was a normal, healthy boy.

Unfortunately all of these are untrue. Willis Sidis is very much like all over developed specimens. His mind has grown at the expense of his body.

When Willie was a school boy, and he was that for about two years and a half before entering college, his peculiarities made the life of his teachers one long nightmare. And the peculiarities were not those of the ordinary pupil.

William would not do his problems in arithmetic when he was in school, showing the work done at home, he had none to offer. He refused to do out on paper what he could do mentally and finally the matter was reported to the principal. The latter had a talk with the boy, and, realizing his wonderful gifts, let him have his way, but took him out of the classes.

The boy did not play at recess. He found no fun in the ordinary childish amusements, and the only mischief he saw any amusement in was doing the examples for his school friends.

CaNs Him "Poor Little Boy."

One of Willie's neighbours, a woman, was talking about him the other day, "Poor little boy," she said, "I'd rather have a stupid, active boy than him. I don't believe any little girl ever called him her fellow, and I am very sure that no boys ever hunted him to go out and play with them. He may be bright, but what's the fun?? My little girl can't bear him, and I don't know as I blame her very much. We'd like to have him come round and play with the youngsters, but he does not seem to enjoy it. He has played once or twice with my children, but his temper gets the better of him and the game is broken up."

That same temper cropped out in the Brookline High School, in the most unusual way. The children on the first day of school assembled in the main hall for th eopening services and instructions. Principal Hitchcock opened the services with prayer. At the first mention of the Deity up jumped Willie Sidis. Covering his ears with his hands he shrieked at the top of his voice, "No, no, there is no such thing. I don't want to hear it. It's all lies."

He was finally quieted and led away. The teachers were more careful with him after that, but the paroxysms of temper came back again and again. The highly nervous condition of the lad put him entirely beyond his own control and the mention of anything that did not seem to him to be true brought on a fit of that same temper.

It was in this high school that his same genius by working out the bi-White studying algebra he developed a system of logarithms, the subject he is now studying at Harvard, which brought him praise from all mathematicians who have seen it. It is a system based on the number twelve instead of the number ten, which has been used since the discovery of the system and the development of the table.

At the same time he showed the same egnius by working out the binomial theorem, one of the most difficult in algebra, in his own way when the other high school pupils, and college men for that matter, find enough difficulty in learning the theorem as taught in the books.

Those who have sought to explain the remarkable development of the young Sidis boy have invariably been led to one conclusion; that heredity and the methods of his psychologist father have combined to produce the marvel.

WAS RAPLEY THE SUICIDE?

Toronto Despatch Says Man Who Shot Himself and Missing Traveller May be the Same Man—Well Known Here.

THEIR DESCRIPTIONS TALLY

Toronto, Nov. 4.—Are Burton Rapley and the yet unidentified man who suicided near the St. Lawrence Market Sunday night one and the same? There are reasons for thinking so, and every effort is being made to settle the point.

Mr. Rapley is a resident of Belleville and a traveller for a Montreal firm. He was on business in Napanee on October 19, stopping at the Campbell House. That night he left the hotel, presumably to go for a walk, and since then has not been heard of.

The Thiel Detective Agency were given the case, and this morning Mr. J. E. Stein, the Toronto manager, paid a visit to the morgue, where the body of the suicide had been taken. After carefully examining the photo and the body Mr. Stein felt reasonably sure that both were the same.

A Strong Likeness.

"There is no doubt that there is considerable of a likeness," he told The Star. "The main difference is that the body in the morgue does not appear to be as heavy, of the same sturdy build, as that of Mr. Rapley, according to the photo."

To make matters certain, Mr. Stein called up Montreal on the long distance 'phone, and gave a description of the body in the morgue to Rapley's employers there. They stated that from the description given there are reasons for thinking that both men are the same, but are making further enquiries before being definitely certain.

The main point of similarity is in the ears. In the photograph there is noticeable a rather unusual formation of the ears on the inside and near the top. The same is seen on the body of the suicide. The forehead, mouth, and chin are quite similar, and the nose to a certain extent, though the nose of the dead man is not as broad as is that of Mr. Rapley in the photograph. The clothes are altogether different to those worn by Mr. Rapley at the time of his disappearance.

Will Keep Body for a Time.

This morning the body of the dead man was taken from the morgue to Harry Rank's undertaking parlours, to be got in readiness for burial. The remains will be kept there for two or three days longer for the purpose of identification.

If the body proves to be that of Mr. Rapley it is difficult to assign a reason for his suicide. A despatch from Montreal states that his accounts are all straight there, and that he has a deposit or $7,000 in a Montreal bank. A reward of $500 is offered for information that will result in his finding.

Letters on the Linen.

Another clue to the identity of the body at the morgue was discovered to-day by Harry Ranks, inspector of anatomy.

It was the mark of "W. C" on both the collar and shirt of the dead man, indicating that those two letters were his laundry mark, and possibly his initials. His Christy hat has the mark of a Peterborough store.

If the body is not identified it will be buried and the funeral expenses will be paid out of the $22 found in the dead man's pockets.

IN BROCKVILLE?

A Report From That Town Says Rapley Was Seen There on Tuesday.

Special to The Examiner.

Brockville, Nov. 5.—Burton F. Rapley, the young commercial traveller who so mysteriously disappeared from Napanee a short time ago, is believed to have been in Brockville on Tuesday, and efforts are being made to follow his movements from here. The bus driver of the Central Hotel and other persons around the town, when shown photographs of Rapley by Detective Jas. Murphy, of Thiel agency who came here on the case, identify him as the young man seen on the streets on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Wm. A. Latham, who live five miles out on front road say a well dressed young man answering Rapley's description applied at their home Tuesday noon for a meal.

ADVERTISING PETERBOROUGH.

Attention is again directed to the special meeting of the Board of Trade to be held in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute on Tuesday, November 9th. Thesubject for consideration is "to formulate a policy for better advertising the city with a view of securng more manufacturing industries."

There is only one more important thing than formulating a policy of this description, and that is applying it. But advertising—publicity—is not all. The city needs some one at the head of such an enterprse, somebody who will give it energy and direction, who will make our advantages tell. This means the appointment of a publicity commissioner—a live, capable, shrewd, judicious, industrious, energetic commissioner, who wll give his whole time to making the manufacturing and residential advantages of Peterborough known where knowledge of this will be most likely to bear fruit. Academic discussion of the subject without prompt and decisive action, is but beating the air. It is hoped that every citizen having the interests of Peterborough at heart will be present to join in the debate and thereby sanction and strengthen an energetic crusade of publicity. It is stated that many of our prominent business men are taking an active interest in the proposal to be dealt with at the special meeting of the Board of Trade on Tuesday evening next.

MR. BORDEN.

Mr. Borden, leader of the Conservative party and of the Opposition in Parliament, is on trial; his authority as leader is menaced by the mutiny of a section of his followers—the baby mutineers of the "baby navy." As remarked, a movement is on foot to depose Mr. Borden, or discipline him. In either event its success would be fatal to him. In the one case he would cease to be a commanding figure in Canadian politics; in the other his usefulness as a leader would be destroyed. As things have gone he has never had the unruly element of his following any too well in hand. He would lose control altogether if he permitted himself to be subjected to disciplinary measures. The revolt against Mr. Borden's authority in respect to the form of Canada's contribution to imperial naval defence is led by Hon. Mr. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba. While it would be bad enough to have to surrender a deliberately assumed position in the matter of policy at the instance of the respectable element of his party, to surrender to a statesman of Mr. Roblin's calibre and characteristics would be deep humiliation. Mr. Borden takes his stand upon the unanimous decision of parliament in the matter of the Canadian naval policy. If, in the matter of an imperial question the bitterness and pettiness of party politics is injected, it will be the fault of the revolting element of the Conservative party. That party is weak enough at present without introducing so formidable a disintegrating element as making a matter of imperial concern the football of party. If Mr. Borden stands firm he will strengthen himself from the point of view of statesmanship. He will yield. only to fall. In these days the Scripture is being fulfilled—a man's foes shall be they of his own household.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The kicking element of the Conservative party declares that Sir Wilfrid Laurier adopts his Canadian naval scheme because it is a step to Canadian independence. Mr. Borden adheres to the very same policy. What is his object?

Richard McBride, premier of British Columbia, is a risky politican, and as such has no very marked advantage over a local politician of identical name.

Mr. Borden, says the Winnipeg Free Press, is fairly safe for the same reason that preserved Charles II. from assassination. "They will never "kill me," said the merry monarch genially to his brother, James, Duke of York, "to make you king."

A movement has been made in Toronto to inaugurate a special street car service to, take at-ease-in-Zioners to church. Look on that picture and then on this and say which shall go up to his house justified. Last night at the evangelistic services in Knox church there were two ladies present each more than 90 years of age, and they walked to church, too. Where the spirit is willing the legs are not weak. The highway to the kingdom is always an up-grade, and the earnest traveller will present a stout heart to a stiff brae. A lazy Christian is as much an anomoly and misfit as a lazy man in any secular actvity of this world.

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S WAY.

Speaking at Dundee, Winston Churchill, a member of the Asquith Government, said: The Liberal Government will tell you in three words what that action will be: "Full steam ahead." (Loud and prolonged cheers.) We seek no parley. We offer no compromise. We will make no bargain. Let them stand aside.

That is all we have to say, and for the rest we count on you to back these words by effective action at any moment.

Be ready. It is a time of great importance. We have reached, I think, a decisive period in the history of our country. The foundations of our power are changing. To stand still is to fall; to fall is to perish. We must move forward. We will move forward and then we shall preserve and renew throughout all the years and all the centuries the pride, the manhood and the glory of the British race.

MR. BRODEUR ENDORSED.

Ottawa Free Press.

The business men of Montreal appreciate at their real worth the attacks of the Toronto News and other Conservative newspapers upon Hon. L. P. Brodeur. Last week representatives of the shipping and commercial interests of that city, accompanied the Minister down the rver and into the gulf to see for themselves what had been accomplished during the season of navigation. Upon their return Mr. Farquhar Robertson, president of the Montreal Board of Trade, reported to the Council of that body what he had seen and paid a tribute to Hon. Mr. Brodeur, whose interest, he said, in the port of Montreal and the St. Lawrence route generally was unbounded, and whose knowledge in the details of the work being carried on was a surprise to those taking part in the trip.

So long as Mr. Brodeur has the confidence of the business interests he can afford to pay little attention to the written insults and gross cartoons of the News.

'ROUND THE STORES

A visit yesterday, which should have lasted longer, was made to one of Peterborough's newest, handsomest, and most modern apopinted department stores, The Beehive, 392 George street. The efforts of its proprietor, Mr. Thomas C. Elliott, to concentrate all his business interests under one roof, have been in progress for a considerable time—since combining the Knitting Work and "Beehive," into one large premises, and under his own management and oversight. The altering and remodelling of his two establishments into one large departmental store in order to properly accommodate his varied lines of business has been undertaken regardless of expense or building difficulties, while a large business was going on at the same time. Mr. Elliott's one aim has been to perfect his place from a structural standpoint and to evolve a shopping centre where the general arrangements were as complete as modern skill could accomplish.

It was particularly gratifying, therefore, to note the many improvements made and others still in progress. The ground floor is now a well equipped show room for the lines of goods allied to women's wear. Special offerings were being made this week in ladies' coats, skirts, suits, and waists, as well as in underskirts, underwear, stockings, gloves, corsets, wool goods and fur muffs, stoles, etc. The second floor is devoted to a display of ladies' mantles and ready-to-wear garments. The room which was formerly used as the fancy goods section, is now filled with children's goods, such as misses' coats, skirts, millinery, ladies' whitewear and flannelette wear. The third floor, which was used for reserve stock, is being fitted up as an additional sales room. It will be known as "Toyland," in which a splendid shipment of toys direct from Germany, will be displayed, in anticipation of the approaching Christmas holidays. A new elevator is being installed and will run to all the different floors. This elevator, which it was stated is the only one of its kind in Peterborough, runs on precisely the same principle as our great hydraulic lift lock. There are no ropes to manipulate, and it is as safe as human skill can make it. The elevator rests on a cushion of water, it has no jerk or jar, and its movement is so easy as to be almost imperceptible.

The destructive fire which so seriously disturbed the south store of Messrs. E. F. Mason & Co's grocery business, has been a severe loss to the firm. But Mr. Mason is a man who faces his difficulties with intelligence and courage. He is bound to keep pace with his extensive business, and the widespread connection which he made in his south store is too valuable to give up. Workmen are now busy restoring the interior of the burned store, and Mr. Mason hopes to be again doing business at the same old stand in a few weeks.

The Warnie drug store creates a good deal of public interest by the catchy store windows it displays at different times. Just now, the attention of passersby is attracted by a pretty window trim in which the virtues of a certain patent medicine are extolled. The scene shows a neatly furnished dining room in which two young ladies are seated, enjoying the luxury of a five o'clock tea. Apparently, one of them has been indiscreet in her enjoyment of the delicacies and complains to her friend, "Oh, I have such a bad attack of indigestion." This suggests the reply from her friend that if she takes a few doses of the dyspeptic remedy referred to the world will again appear bright to her. The setting is not only effective but original, and makes a good ad. The firm's special Saturday bargain is Shell brand Castile Soap.

There is no one who burns fuel in stove or furnace but knows that he is losing more than half of his fuel in smoke, gas and clinkers, but, so far, he has been quite powerless to stop or remedy it. A visit to the stove store of Messrs. F. J. R. MacPherson & Co., was made quite interesting by an inspection of a new cooking range, called the Supreme Range, which, it was claimed, cuts the fuel bill in two. Its saving lies in the construction of the fire box, in which provision has been made for the constant and adequate supply of the oxygen which is absolutely necessary to secure the perfect combustion of the fuel.. It burns any kind of fuel, and the saving is greater according to the kind of fuel used. What is known as the secondary combustion tube supplies the oxygen which mixes with the fuel and produces the saving. See it.

Messrs. White & Gillespie, the grocers and dairymen, George street, have a star window dresser, who is quite prolific as well as original in his displays. Their north window has been made especially attractive by the appearance of a dove cot and rabbit run, in which a pair of live rabbits and several pretty white pigeons roam about quite naturally. The firm carries a large stock of high class food stuffs and believe that quality begets confidence and confidence is the basis of a profitable business.

There has been a continual rush to the fire sale at Richard Hall & Son's all this week. The interest taken in this sale by shoppers must prove encouraging to the firm after the serious interruption to their extensive business. It is no small wonder that women shop with confidence during this untoward event, because of the fact that the quality of Richard Hall & Son's goods, even if they did get smoked, are such as to make them eagerly sought after. An interview with one of the principals of the store reveals the information that there are still thousands of dollars worth of high-class goods to be sacrificed The principal leaders this week have been carpets, rugs and linoleums, evening dress goods, linens, blankets and read-to-wear garments. Every other department is sending out its attractions every day to women who can scent a bargain miles away.

The big retiring sale at the Peterborough bookstore is on. This business will change hands shortly, and the stock must be reduced to a certain limit, so it is understood, in order to make a mutually satisfactory basis for the transfer of the business to Mr. A. H. Stratton & Co's successors. This means, of course, that decisive reductions in prices will be the rue in this store from now until after Christmas. Gift goods buyers, who know the character of this stock, are likely to flock in large numbers for the money saving offerings at the Peterborough Bookstore.

Talking to Mr. Mendel, the other day, he remarked that it would prove a great relief to him and other photographers if the sittings were made right away for photos for Christmas. Mr. Mendel's studio is getting into the Christmas work already and he predicts larger demands upon his professional hours than on previous years. Begin now, and then the work will be completed satisfactorily, and in good time.

"Lose this days loitering—'twill be the same
To-morrow, and the next more dilatory."

Be sure you're right, then go ahead, is familiar advice, particularly of value to ladies in the purchase of their winter coats, suits, underwear and heavy household and personal needs. Robert Fair & Co, are out with a very strong bulletin of extensive preparations for Saturday shoppers. Regular values appear to have been cut out for to-morrow so that out-of-the-ordinary savings will be plentiful at the Golden Lion. Four good wide English oilcloths at 23c. per yard is just one example of these savings advertised, the regular price being 45c. Take another instance: Evening dress goods, for social events, at 35c. per yard—should be 75c.

TIGERS HAVE MORE WEIGHT ON THE LINE THAN OTTAWA

Wigle, Barron, Isbister and Gray the Big Four of the Jungle Team---Weights of the Players of Both Teams in To-morrow's Decisive Inter-Provincial Game.

T. A. A. C. will have a hard game at Peterborough Saturday. The Petes have strengthened up in all departments, and promise the Toronto team a big surprise. — Toronto Star.

The eyes of the football world are on the Hamilton-Ottawa game at Hamilton on Saturday. The Tigers need the game to make it a tie, while a win for Ottawa will give them the championship with a clean slate.

Despite the fact that Tigers are almost universally picked by the press outside of Ottawa to win, the Ottawa players boldly declare that they are prepared to back themselves to come out on top. Tom Clancy is positive his team will win. He will have the strongest line-up of the season, and he claims his team has what is known in sporting circles as the "Indian sign" on the Tigers, meaning that they know Hamilton's weakness and will win as a result of the play in that direction.

There is one point in which the Tigers have it on the Rough Riders, and that is in the matter of weight, the margin in favour of the Jungle Kings being a small matter of nearly 100 pounds, hardly enough to bother about. The weights of the two teams are as follows:

Hamilton		Ottawa
	Full Back.
Geo. Smith, 162		Johnstone, 150
	Half Backs
Moore, 161		McCann, 153
Simpson, 169		Williams, 155
Burton, 150		Gerrard, 150
	Quarter Backs
Awrey, 142		Kirk, 176
	Scrimmage
Bramer, 196		Kennedy, 196
Pfeifer, 174		Ferguson, 195
Craig, 196		McQuaig, 178
	Wing
Barron, 207		Phillips, 170
Gray, 200½		Church, 267
Isbister, 190		Vaughan, 175
Wigle, 200		Disney, 175
Marriott, 168		Stronach, 189
Turner, 162		Christie, 160
Total, Hamilton, 2,468½.
Total, Ottawa, 2,381.

The Tigers are heavier on the back division, and have a good margin on the inside and middle wing positions, but otherwise the Ottawa players are heavier. The difference is so small, as far as total weight is concerned, that weight will hardly figure, although there is no doubt a good margin in favour of the Tigers, owing to the fact that the big four of the wing line, Isbister, Barron, Grey and Wigle have it on the Ottawa four to a big degree. Awrey is the lightest man on both teams, while Wally Barron is the heaviest.

Hamilton		Ottawa
		McGee .. 178
		Sheriff .. 190
W. Smith	163
Loftus	160
Lyon	165
Bethune	193
Harvey	163

BOTH THE TEAMS HAVE STRONG LINE-UP FOR TO-MORROW'S GAME

T. A. A. C. Will Bring Down Their Strongest Team To-morrow---Officials Have Not Yet Been Decided Upon and Will Probably Have to be Appointed by the Union ---Locals Last Practice To-night.

The line-up of the Peterborough team for to-morrow's game at Riverside Park will not be chosen until after the final practice to-night, as there are a number of positions about which the management want to have another chance to size up the men. However, it is assured that the team will be the strongest that has represented Peterborough this season, and T. A. A. C. will have the time of their lives if they hope to stall off defeat here to-morrow. It is the last senior O. R. F. U. game of the season in Peterborough, and this, coupled with the fact that Dr. MacPherson will be back in harness with the Petes should attract a big crowd as it will be a hard-fought, interesting struggle from start to finish. The question of officials has not yet been settled and it is likely that the Union will have to select the men to handle the game. Peterborough suggested MacDonnell, formerly of Queen's, and McDonald, the Varsity player, but neither of these men were available. The T. A. A. C. were willing to accept Dr. MacPherson as one of the officials, but as the Doctor will be wearing a Peterborough uniform to-morrow, he, of course, is out of the question as an official. The T. A. A. C. will have the following line-up in action against the Petes: Back, Grant; halves, De Gruchy, McCrimmon, and Meredith; quarter, Sherriff; scrimmage, Arnot, Maguire, Drummond; inside wings, Crooks, Mack; middle wings, Mara, Holden; outside wings, McGiffin, Buckhart.

As a defeat for either team will put them out of the running there is no doubt about the fact that the game will be bitterly fought out, and it will be a battle that should be worth seeing. The kick-off will be at 2.30 o'clock, sharp.

The following line-up selected by the team committee this afternoon will represent Peterborough to-morrow unless there are other changes decided upon at to-night's practice.

Full back—Craig.
Centre half—O'Brien.
Right half—Corkery.
Quarter—Campbell.
Scrimmage — Ecclestone, Giroux, Thornton.
Inside wings—Dickson and Meagher or Hickey.
Middle wings—O'Connor and Turner.
Outside wings—Lundy and Staunton.
Spares—Hall, Gibson.

Double-breasted Sack Business Suits in Worsted, Tweeds and Cheviots, $20 and $25.

OPINIONS OF EXPERTS ON THE TIGER-OTTAWA GAME TO-MORROW

Tom Clancy declares his team will be fifty per cent. stronger next Saturday than last. It will be the strongest team Ottawa has placed on the field this season. For one thing, all the men will be in their regular positions. Williams should be about right by Saturday, and with McCann and Gerard on either side of him and Johnstone at full, all going well, the back line looks at its best, says the Free Press. That boy Gerard is playing a quality of ball just now that will open the eyes of those Hamilton people.

Stronach and Christie on the outside wings will make a vast difference to Ottawa. The big Scot has not played a full game since the Tigers were here three weeks ago. Indeed, from the way the team has been placed since that famous encounter, does it not look as though Ottawa was holding back its best men for the one big game?

RUGBY

Doc. McPherson, the friend, inspirer and progenitor of rugby in Peterborough, is to play centre half for the senior team of that city against the T.A.A.C. on Saturday. Doc. was a star half for Toronto Varsity at one time (anybody'll tell you that in Peterborough, they've learned it by heart) and is still some pumpkins in that position!

Anyway, MacPherson has the right idea to popularize rugby in Peterborough. He is getting the young fellows interested and teaching them the knack of punting, drop-kicking and the general ins and outs of the game. With an early knowledge of the game the boys grow to be experts. Watch for a mighty classy team from Peterborough in a few years.—Lindsay Warder.

Capt. Jack Williams, Ottawa: "I think we will beat them on all-round play. Tigers are a great team, but they will find Ottawa just a little bit better."

Capt. Ben Simpson, Tigers: "Our line will tear them to pieces."

Coach Tom Clancy, Ottawa: "Our back line will out-kick and out-run them, and our wings won't give them a chance to get away. Ottawa will win out."

Art. Moore, Tigers: "I don't think Ottawa has a chance against our team. Our line will prove to strong for them.

Dr. Nagle, Ottawa, president: "If I am not badly mistaken, Tigers will find out our team is even better than it was when they played here. I think Ottawa will win out. It will be close."

Chaucer Elliott, Montreal coach: "Tigers all the way as far as I can see."

Mac. McGilton, Ottawa: "Any team that can overcome a six point lead in as many minutes cannot be beaten by Tigers. Ottawa for me."

Joe Wright, Argonauts: "I'm going to Hamilton to see Tigers wallop Ottawa."

Tommie Stinson, Montreal: "Ottawa has a fine team, but they can't beat Tigers at Hamilton."

Walter Nixon: "This Ottawa team is the finest in years. They won't lose a game this season."

Hal. B. McGiverin, M.P.: "Ottawa will have the greatest back division and the line will hold its own against Tigers Yes, I believe Ottawa will down them."

George Ballard: "Tigers cannot be beaten on their own field. I call them to win by a big score."

George Kennedy: "We are in better shape and will stand the pace longer than Tigers. If we don't come home with the championship it will be a big surprise to me."

Pud Kent, Argonauts: "Ottawas are better 'stayers', and will win the championship."

Jim Jeffries has denounced the brutality of football. He said: "I'm against any game that kills seven boys while it's warming up, you might say. That sort of game isn't worth while. No game that kills men as a regular thing is worth while. There have always been a lot of men in this country who stand up on their hind legs and roar about the brutality of the boxing game. Their wives will pull their shirts away from the prizefighter, as if he was some sort of an animal, yet the same people go out to a football game and yell themselves black in the face at an exhibition that's too rough for men who fight for a living. But football is a fashionable game. Society stands for it."

HOCKEY

Fred Whitcroft, notwithstanding the reports that have been circulated about his plans to come after the Stanley Cup with the Edmonton team again this year, is through with hockey. In a letter to a local friend the old Peterborough star rover says that he has definitely decided to retire from hockey and that henceforth he will pay attention strictly to business. He has a new enterprise in sight and will have nothing more to do with the steel blades.

One of the best players who ever donned skates will be lost to the game in the retirement of Whitcroft, who has had a most creditable career since he broke into the game with the Peterborough Colts.

The "Hallowe'en Festival" given by the Girls' Guild of St. John's Church on Monday night in the school room was a decided success in every way, the attendance was very large, which greatly added to make the finances large. The school-room was appropriately decorated for the occasion with Hallowe'en decorations of all kinds and looked indeed beautiful and most inviting.

The "Witch's Tent" proved amusing and many visited it to have the witch tell their future, some encouraging, others discouraging. The Fish Pond managed by Misses Mabel Donnelly and Roxie Mackenzie proved a treat to the children and indeed greatly amused the older as well.

A refreshment booth, where all kinds of domestic candy and fruits of all kind could be purchased was arranged and managed by Misses Hinnie McWilliams, Stella Armstrong and Anna Bryans. This was also a great attraction. Another tent where all kinds of Hallowe'en jokes were played was successfully conducted by Misses Eva Lancaster and Edith Scott.

Refreshments were served at ten o'clock, after which the "Fake Cake" was passed around and five cents a slice was charged. It would take too long to mention the numerous things found in the cake. This was served by Misses Caroline Scott and Georgina Falkner. The orchestra in connection with the church rendered several selections, which were well received. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a very successful close.

The proceeds will go towards purchasing new music books for the choir.

The Montreal Daily Star, Oct. 21:—Miss Bessie Barton of Manchester, England, who has been the guest of Capt. and Mrs. T. A. Jardine, Forrester, Park Avenue, has left for Havana, Cuba, to be married to Mr. Leonard J. Spilsbury, B.A., C.E., formerly of Montreal and now at Sagua La Grande, Cuba. Miss Barton was the recipient of many handsome presents before leaving. Mr. Spilsbury is a cousin of Mrs. Harry Falkner of town.

Women Ruining Their Figures.

Hugh Cairns, the Boston sculptor, declares that women's figures have been ruined by devotion to fashion. He says it is impossible for a woman to be wasp waisted one year and free laced the next and still preserve artistic lines. He points out that a year or so ago women were pinching their waists and that at present frocks hang loose with hardly a suggestion of a waist line. Cairns certainly hits the truth when he says the fashions this summer are in execrable taste. Slim women are made to look like toothpicks and plump women can't, and, true to the contrariness of the sex, it is the woman of comfortable avoirdupois who pushes the fashions to the extreme. Three every woman above the normal weight for her height could gain in proportion by breaking her waist with a belt, but invariably they run straight up and down, thereby accentuating the fullness, which secretly, of course, they hate like poison. The failure in this respect of women to make the most of themselves forces the impression that the sex contains few artists.

French View of Women.

Is it all a myth about the gallantry and chivalry of the Frenchmen? A French journal put a string of questions to 20,000 Frenchmen, and out of the lot only 342 placed beauty among the first six qualities desirable in a wife. In thirteen desirable qualities wealth stood halfway down the list, and health was almost unanimously placed first. Courage, fidelity, cleverness and kindred virtues follow, while good nature, oddly enough, is put next to the last. An American woman reading over the verdict estimated that there might have been one married man in all the 20,000, else good nature would have stood first of all desirable qualities.

Lindsay Has Serious Notion Of Paving Its Main Street

Leading Citizens are Tired of the Mud and Acknowledge That it is a Drawback to the Town—Kent Street to Have a Coating of Asphalt.

CONSIDERING THE MATTER

Lindsay is considering the question of paving Kent St., and according to reports the majority of the business men are heartily in accordance with the proposal. They have passed the first stage and have appointed a committee to go to Toronto to examine the different kinds of pavement being laid down there. On Wednesday evening, R., Bangham, manager of the Ontario Asphalt Block Co., of Walkerville, spoke to a meeting of citizens. The Post says:—

The asphalt block which his firm manufactured was composed of asphalt imported from Trinidad, and small crushed rock from Lake Superior. It was harder than granite, and the asphalt cemented it together The block breaks with the break, and no stones pull out. The adhesion is perfect. The material is manufacured in Walkerville, and all blocks are made alike.

Sheet asphalt, the speaker said, was heated by direct heat, and if burned in the process, the life went out of it. His pavement was heated by steam. The material goes into a mixer at 290 degrees and one block is pressed at a time. Sheet asphalt is a one piece pavement, which expands and contracts. When you buy asphalt block you get

Three Inches of Pavement.

An asphalt block has all the advantages of other pavements with none of the disadvantages.

His firm recommended a five inch concrete base, 1½ inches of mortar of a proportion of three to one. The blocks are bedded in this and they lie close together. They are then grouted with cement to the consistancy of milk, making 3 ½ inches of solid cement block. The object is paving streets is to turn an arch over the thoroughfares.

The finest sheet of asphalt block he had ever seen was in Havana, Cuba. It had stood the test of climatic conditions there, while in Regina, with the thermometer at 60 degrees below zero the climate had no effect on it. The firm made no provision whatever for expansion, and blocks did not wear. The cubic dimensions of the sample shown was 5 x 2 inches, and three inches in thickness.

In conclusion Mr. Bangham stated that there was no better investment for a town than to put down permanent pavements. It showed that they were enterprising, and it had a tendency to induce manufacturers to locate there.

STOMACH DISTRESS AND DYSPEPSIA GO

Makes Your Out-of-Order Stomach Feel Fine in Five Minutes.

As there is often some one in your family who suffers from an attack of Indigestion or some form of Stomach trouble, why don't you keep some Diapepsin in the house handy?

This harmless blessing will digest anything you can eat without the slightest discomfort and overcome a sour, gassy stomach, five minutes after.

Tell your pharmacist to let you read the formula plainly printed on these 50-cent cases of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily see why it makes Indigestion, Sour Stomach, Heartburn and other distress go in five minutes and relieves at once such miseries as Belching of Gas, Eructations of sour undigested food, Nausea, Headaches, Dizziness, Constipation and other stomach disorders.

Some folks have tried so long to find relief from Indigestion and Dyspepsia or an out-of-order stomach with the common every-day cures advertised that they have about made up their minds that they have something else wrong or believe theirs is a case of Nervousness, Gastritis, Catarrh of the Stomach or Cancer.

This, no doubt, is a serious mistake Your real trouble is, what you eat does not digest; instead it ferments and sours, turns to acid, Gas and Stomach poison, which putrefy in the digestive tract and intestines, and, besides, poison the breath with nauseous odours.

A hearty appetite, with thorough digestion, and without the slightest discomfort or misery of the stomach, is waiting for you as soon as you decide to try Pape's Diapepsin.

"EXCELSIOR" IN FAVOUR OF BOOSTING CITY'S RESOURCES

Peterborough, Nov. 4.

Dear Sir,—I have read the notice of next Tuesday night's meeting in the Collegiate Institute Hall at which the citizens are requested to be present and I sincerely hope that something will be done to arouse the ratepayers to a keen interest in the city's welfare and to secure their hearty and unanimous support to a movement, the object of which is to boost Peterborough. I only regret that this was not done a year ago, Early in 1909, I believe there was some talk of appointing an official to look after the city's interests in regard to the securing of new factories, etc., but the matter was dropped. Other Ontario cities and towns, too, showed themselves possessed of a more business spirit, adopted the modern idea of municipal advertising and have proved it to be successful. Peterborough, however, has lost the year 1909 and its opportunities, and has nothing to show in the line of new industries. There is a feeling among the more aggressive citizens that a crisis is at hand in the matter of municipal development and those cities which are to break away from the commonplace or the field are to do so within the next four years and Peterborough should make the spurt. There is one class of ratepayers who for the most part have a fatal influence upon the public spirit and that is the retired farmers and those of the same disposition, men who have worked for their money, have earned it, and have purchased comfortable homes to quietly spend the rest of their days. As far as I can learn they are opposed to any measure that will increase their taxes and their ideal alderman would be he who fought against high assessment and tax rates. These men would be at home in Norwood or Keene, but when they come to Peterborough they should be converted as it were to broad ideas which a progressive city must entertain and Tuesday evening's meeting will, I hope, be a missionary effort in that regard. Many of our citizens are in the same class as the contented retired farmer and it is their duty to bestir themselves and to lend their support to any feasible measures which the majority of the ratepayers favour. Western towns and cities have in some cases followed the American city method of forming a boosting club to assist the city officials and there has been nothing but satisfaction reported from those who have adopted the scheme. Thanking you, Mr. Editor,

EXCELSIOR.

It is the hope of the average citizen to see Peterborough progress as rapidly and as substantially as possible. It is likewise the opinion of the average ratepayer of this city that Peterborough should forge ahead as rapidly as any of its size in the Province. The natural facilities could scarcely be improved upon and the general feeling is one of surprise that the city has not made faster progress than it has. The record for the past year is good in some respects but even the gains that have been made should not be accepted with smug content. The individual ratepayer knows that if Peterborough is to broaden and grow, it must secure new industries and it is safe to say that the leading citizens are already considering the advisability of adopting a vigorous campaign during the next year for this purpose. The Board of Trade supported by certain prominent business men have arranged for a public meeting to be held next Tuesday evening in the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall, to discuss several questions of civic importance and it is hoped that the citizens will be present in large numbers. They are expected, and they should show their interest in the city's affairs by as many as possible turning out.

MISS GLADYS SEWARD DEPARTS FOR DRESDEN

Miss Gladys Seward, a talented and already brilliantly proficient pianiste, left yesterday for Germany, where she will continue her musical studies with Mr. Harry Field. Mr. Field is achieving a great success in Dresden as a teacher of the piano, and if Miss Seward's application is made consistent with her rare natural musical talent, and the great ability of her teaching, the brilliant success her many friends in Peterborough wsh her, is assured. Miss Seward goes under the chaperonage of Mrs. Harold James, who is going to Germany, where her son, Harold, is studying with distinction under Mr. Field.

MUSIC IN THE HOME

It takes much to make a perfect home. A home to be the best, must have rules founded upon principles, that belong to things eternal. These rules must be enforced with a love if not stern, yet firm and daily kept in practice. The notes should be sweet and not jarring discords. It is easy for such conditions to arise in any home at times, if a loving spirit almost infinite, does not exist. But music, either vocal or instrumental, has a mighty power in dispelling bad thoughts and inharmonious feelings. It is one of Heaven's attributes with God's love, bursting forth into the sweet singer of Israel, whose heart was full of human affection as given expression to in the Psalms. Music is said to charm the heart of the savage. Hence let us bring it into our home and give it a place at some hour of the day, to sweeten life's toils and ease its burdens. Music is a fair and glorious gift from God. It is the essence of order, and leads to all that is good, just and beautiful. Music is an art that God has given us, in which all the nations of the earth may unite their prayers in one harmonious rhythm.

There are but seven notes in the scale. What a slender outfit for so vast an enterprise. Science brings us so much out of so little. I would not for the world renounce my humble share in music. From the earliest ages song has been the sweet companion of labour. The shepherd sings upon the hill. The milkmaid in the dairy. The plowman at the plow. Every act and scene of life has long had its own especial music. There is, however, a true music of nature, the music of birds. There is music in speech as well as in song.

It is remarkable that more pains are not taken with the voice in conversations, as well as in singing. Music has truly been described as the mother of sympathy, the handmaid of religion, and will never exercise its full effect, unless it aims not merely to charm the ear but to touch the heart. The approach into the musical art is to many surrounded with difficulty and to some even impossibility. But by the child practising frequently, a few songs at least can be learned, in which all may join or even listen at eventide, and sleep the more sweetly because they did for a few minutes sat aside all else for the occasion.

We all need music. It is needed for the church, for society, for the battlefield. But, like all else that really is of most value, it must begin in the home.

Good music is a joy for all, and does not necessarily involve any considerable outlay, and we hope as time goes on, it will become more and more the comfort and solace of the home.

Sweet music power, one chord doth make us wild,
But change the strain, we weep as little child;
Touch yet another, men charge the battery gun
And by those martial strains — a victory won.
It matters not from whence, how far you roam
No heart so cold that does not love sweet home.

We expect there will be much music in our Heavenly Home, when all earth's choirs join, and harps of gold to praise our King for our redemption.

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE

Mrs. R. Morrow, Bracebridge, Ont., writes—"For years I was troubled almost constantly with constipation and never got anything to do me the lasting good that has been obtained from Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Not only have they cured constipation but have also entirely cured the headaches from which I used to suffer terribly and have improved my health in every way."

Predicament Of A Conductor

Amusing Incident With Two Girls Who Forgot Their Purses.

Supposing you were a street car conductor and in collecting the fares two girls or young ladies refused to pay what would you do? One of the men who produces the inevitable slot topped box on the Peterborough Radial Railway Company's lines, was confronted with a situation of this nature not so long ago, and he still smiles on recalling the affair. It was on one of the cars—no need of particularising—and most of the seats were occupied. Two young ladies were sitting together, about half way down the car, and when the box was presented to them they suddenly were interested in the people passing on the sidewalk. The conductor said "Fares, please" in his engaging manner and had to repeat the command, if such it be. He happened to know one of them from her almost daily trip on the car and was greatly surprised when she remarked. "We're not going to pay," with a broad giggle.

"Well, that's generous of you," Mr. Conductor replied with a smile, thinking it only a joke. "I will have to stop the car at the next crossing; got to stick to the rules, you know."

He collected the other fares and returned. People in the nearest seats were somewhat amused. "I'll have those tickets now if you please," he said politely and with a note of firmness.

"Not to-day," answered the girl that did the talking. "We forgot our purses and haven't got a cent. You'll excuse us this time, won't you?"

What could he do? It was a perplexing circumstance from the fact that several of the people nearby had followed the remarks. The Conductor said something about not running a children's open air outing or that it was money that made the motors go and hung up the box.

The Conductor is not sure yet, but that the girls played a joke on him, and it is safe to say that he did not tell it to any of the other men on the line.

HALLOWE'EN PARTY AT LAKEFIELD HOME

Enjoyable Social at Home of Miss Beatrice Gordon.

A very enjoyable Hallowe'en surprise party was given Miss Beatrice Gordon on Monday evening by a number of her friends. The party met at the town hall and marched up Queen street, each carrying apumpkin made into a jacko-lantern, which certainly presented a Hallowe'en appearance. "Maple Lodge" was reached about 8.3,0 where they were cordially welcomed by Mrs. Gordon and Miss Gordon. The evening was spent in playing all kinds of Hallowe'en games, etc., and a delightful time was experienced by all. During the evening a pres entation of a year's subscription to the Ladies' Home Journal was made to Miss Gordon, as a slight remembrance of her birthday, to which she made a very suitable reply. Among those present were Misses J. Cromarty, N. White, F. McNab, E. Harmer, A. Londerville, M. Webster, E. White, J. Murdock, E. Sanderson and B. Graham, and Messrs. A. Chambers, J. Watson, G. Kline, H. Sprague, D. Charlton, S. Fraser, . K. Leonard, W. G. Garbutt, T. Isbister, and W. Graham

FOR BABY'S SKIN TROUBLES

There are times in the life of nearly every child when Dr. Chase's Ointment proves itself a blessing. The tender skin chafes and is irritated by the clothing. Oftentimes baby eczema developes from this very cause. In a dozen ways Dr. Chase's Ointment can be used to sooth and heal the skin and prevent suffering of the little one. No treatment is so well suited for this purpose and none is so entirely satisfactory.

Government Surplus Of A Million Dollars Is Shown

Treasury Statement for the Past Fiscal Year Issued — Railway Subsidies Totalled Nearly Two Million and Bounties Two and a Half Millions.

THE PRINCIPAL ITEMS

Ottawa, Nov. 5.—The public accounts blue book for the past fiscal year was issued yesterday. The main figures of the receipts and expenditures were made public some two months ago, showing a total revenue of $85,096,404, and an expenditure on consolidated fund account of $84,064,232, leaving a surplus of $1,029,171. The total capital expenditure was $42,563,166. Expenditure for railway subsidies was $1,785,887, and the total bounties paid amounted to $2,467,306. The net debt at the close of the fiscal year was $333,930,279, or an increase of $45,969,419 during the twelve months.

Details of the above revenue and expenditure are shown in the blue book as follows: Of a total capital expenditure of $35,846,184 on railways, $24,892,351 were spent on construction of the National Transcontinental Railway, $3,874,480 on improvements to roadbed and rolling stock on the Intercolonial Railway; $561,206 on the Prince Edward Island Railway; $92,427 on a survey of the Hudson Bay Railway, and $6,424,781 in assuming the indebtedness of the Quebec Bridge Company.

On canals the total capital expenditure was $1,873,868, of which a little over one million was on the new Trent Canal.

Public works expenditure charged to capital account totalled $2,832,-295; the principal items being, Victoria Memorial Museum at Ottawa, $376,867; Port Arthur and Fort William harbours, $497,838; Quebec harbour, $287,326; River St. Lawrence ship canal, $964,949; improvements at St. Andrew's Rapids, near Winnipeg, $300,023.

The principal items in the total for railway subsidies were: Canadian Northern Ontario Railway, $556,864; International Railway Company of New Brunswick, $189,949; Grand Trunk Pacific, $367,249; Atlantic and Northwestern Railway Company, $186,800.

Iron and steel bounties totalled $1,864,614; lead bounties, $807,433, and bounties on crude petroleum, $260,698.

At the close of the fiscal year the deposits in postoffice and Government savings banks amounted to $5,938,-930, a decrease of $2,643,234, as compared with March 31, 1908. The average rate of interest paid on the gross debt for the year was 2.42, as compared with 2.68 in the previous year, and the net rate of interest fell from 2.21 to 1.95.

The total revenue of the Intercolonial Railway for the last fiscal year was $8,527,862, and the operating expenses totalled $9,328,021, leaving a deficit of $800,952. The revenue from the passenger traffic totalled $2,489,-034; from freight traffic, $5,429,924, and from mails and express, $350,-478. This year, under the new board of management, with improving traffic conditions and with savings effected by recent reforms, it is hoped a net betterment in the finances for the road will show that the period of annually recurring deficits has been ended.

Starvation Treatment a Failure

The Sensible Cure for Indigestion Is "Little Digesters"

Probably because the taking of food causes such intense discomfort, many dyspeptics think that by abstaining from this and that—practically starving themselves—they can cure the trouble.

Of course, where Indigestion is caused by sheer gluttony, cutting down the food would no doubt do good. But in most cases Indigestion is caused, not by overeating, but by lack of physical exercise, and consequent lack of vigor in the organs of digestion. Partial starvation still further impairs the bodily vigor, and makes the trouble worse.

The dyspeptic needs plenty of good, wholesome food. He can eat it, and DIGEST IT, TOO, if he takes a "Little Digester" after each meal. "Little Digesters" help the weakened stomach to do properly that which it cannot do alone—digest and assimilate the food needed to build up the system.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

Knox.

The subject that Rev. Mr. Mitchell will discuss in Knox church to-night is "A Tragedy of a Soul." The meetings have been growing in attendance and intensity, and Mr. Mitchell is greatly pleased with the spirit manifested. He referred last evening to the services held in so many churches at the same hour for the same purpose, and said it was a source of inspiration. The united prayer of so many for definite decision was also a source of power.

Mr. Mitchell's remarks were based upon the words of Jesus on the cross: "It is finished." Lord Tennyson has said this is the most pathetic utterance in history, yet the most triumphant. We are so far removed from the scene and the time that it is difficult to repeat the words and give the tone that Jesus used. How dangerous it is to repeat anything you hear and how much harm is done by misrepresentation. The soldiers, as they cast their dice for his garments, heard, but did not comprehend. John also heard, but it was long after that he caught their meaning.

It suggests to us for one thing a sigh of relief. He had been away from His Father. The world's sin had been a source of constant pain, and with his keen consciousness and trained eye, he perceived the more clearly its awfulness. He saw everything tainted and cursed with it and even his own disciples were not yet free from its power. In a sense it was finished, and he was going back to the Father. Then, also, it was a note of victory. The work given him to do was done. He had been victorious in all the severe temptations. In Gethsemane also he had conquered. He experienced the satisfaction of a work completed. There was nothing left undone and no unfinished service. The law was fulfilled—love was expressed—man was saved and Satan was defeated. It was a note of victory.

Moreover, it was a message sent back to the Father. He had come to reveal his Father's nature to men. Men were not willing to receive it, but he did not turn back and now he sends back the word: "the work you gave me to do, I have done." Again it was a proclamation to the world of a way to God. There is a fountain filled with blood. It is done, the great transaction's done, and all people everywhere may come and make use of the finished work of Christ.

The meeting was most impressive and created a desire for more.

St. Paul.

The meeting in St. Paul's last night was attended by much the largest congregation that has yet assembled on a week night. The meetings have steadily grown in interest and attendance from night to night, and this evening a specially large gathering is expected. Last night, the pastor, Mr. Fogue, took charge of the opening song service. Requests for prayer were noted, and Mr. Shook led the prayer impressively. Rev. Mr. Webb of Murray Street Baptist Church, was present, and took part in the service. A good many from other congregations attended. They are cordially welcome to all these services. Last evening Mr. MacBeth took for his subject, Daniel 12:13, the closing verse in this wonderful book. The character of Daniel was briefly sketched as that of one of the most gallantand noble figures in the Old Testament. To such a man God would specially speak. Daniel, differing from some modern teachers, did not profess to know everything. He never eliminated the supernatural, and he humbly asked God to teach him the meaning of the things he heard. God's answer intimated that there would always be some recesses of the Infinite, which men would not be able to fully fathom. But enough was revealed to enable them to do well their duty to God and men, and what they know not now, they will know hereafter. The speaker said that the existence of things in the Book of Revelation and the book of nature, which we could not fully understand, showed that behind all was the Master-mind of God, who directed the course of things and who knew the end and aim of the Universe. And so God said to Daniel in this text: "Go thy way till the end be, for thou shalt rest and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." Life was a journey and we must not mourn if the scenery and surroundings changed as we went swiftly on our way. But to the faithful and true, like Daniel, the end would be rest, and they would have their lot and place in the land to which we are all going. Let us see that we are on the right road.

The subject to-night will be "The things that are certain."

St. Andrew's.

Rom. 8:30—"We are the first fruits." Such was the subject dealt with by the Rev. Robert Atkinson, in St. Andrew's church last night.

A large congregation assembled and the song service was very bright and attractive, all present taking part with much spirit. Mr. Atkinson sang "Behold Me Standing at the Door."

The discourse was of the most loyal and forceful character. The speaker held the closest attention, as step by step he led his hearers into the experiences of the Apostle Paul. He was glad that it was the first fruits, not the final fruits, that the Apostle spoke of. With what joy the farmer takes off the first fruits. With what joy God accepts the first fruits of our lives.

The experience of liberty: The demands of the Jewish law were a bane and a blight to him because of its intense compulsion, and he could not live up to the requirements of this taskmaster. But Paul experienced another kind of liberty. He found in himself a propensity, almost a law of his nature that would overpower him to evil, but in Christ he experienced a power that broke that evil propensity, and gave him a propensity to love and serve God. When Christ enters into the heart and life He brings in his own spirit with his own character and life.

The next experience is that of spirituality. Not only is he a free man, but he now begins to have a new interest; a new world was opened up before him. A man walks out under the open sky, and yet rarely ever things to look at the stars. He, by chance, comes across a book on astronomy, and now a new world opens up to his vision, and with the assistance of a telescope a new world is unlocked.

But his next experience was his affinity. He found himself amongst a new lot of friends.

The bond between the soul and God is a social and natural one. That life that Christ brings into life is permanent. He is also in affinity with the other children of God.

His next experience is agony. It is agony—not of any shameful guise—but the agony of a man who, having done his best, strives to excel even what he has already done. Handel and Raphael were never satisfied. The things yet beyond Paul felt that there were greater triumphs to be attained.

Upon motion of Mr. A. P. Poussette and Mr. W. Stocker, the financial statement was adopted.

Will Attend Convention.

A communication was read from Mr. J. Lockie Wilson, Superintendent of the Ontario Horticultural Society, calling the attention of the directors of the local society to the fact that the most important meeting of the year, dealing with questions of vital interest to all the Horticultural Societies of this Province, will convene in the City Hall, Toronto, on Tuesday and Wednesday, November 9th and 10th. On the above dates, the Ontario Horticultural Association will hold its annual convention for which an excellent programme has been prepared, including a number of speakers from the American Civic Association. The question of an increased grant to the Society will also be brought up, and the directors are arranging for a strong delegation to wait on the government.

It was moved by Mr. Poussette, and seconded by Mr. Stocker, that the Society become affiliated with the Ontario Association.—Carried.

Upon motion of Dr. Burnham and Mr. Poussette, it was resolved that the President, Secretary and Messrs. Wise and Stocker represent the local society at the annual convention and that their expenses be paid.

Election of Officers.

President—Mr. P. Campbell.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mr. D. W. Dumble.
2nd Vice-Pres—Dr. Burnham.
Secretary-Treasurer — Mr. H. L. Beal.

Directors — Hon. J. R. Stratton and Messrs. Jas. English, Walter Stocker, T. A. S. Hay, Cowan, Wm. James, H. Nesbitt, B. Cooney, S. Jordan, Robt. Riddell, Tucker, Jas. Stevenson and Jas. Edgar.

Park Committee—Messrs. W. Stocker, T. Wise, Dr. Burnham, H. Nesbitt, S. Jordan and Wm. James.

Auditors—Messrs. T. A. S. Hay, and A. Stevenson.

Other Business.

Mr. P. Campbell stated that there was a demand now for a park commission to work in conjunction with the society in regards to parks boulevards, trees, and especially dead trees, of which there are a number about the city at the present time.

Secretary Beal said he had written to the mayor on the subject but his letter had never been placed before the council. The mayor said that the council did not want to take the matter up this year on account of the lack of funds.

Mr. Poussette said that it was not for the Council to say. If the Horticultural Society were prepared to give the matter over to the commission and presented a petition properly signed to the council, then that body had to act.

Mr. Dumble was very strongly in favour of a park commission. It was a very useful body and it would have authority to act while the Horticultural Society had no authority. There are a great many places in the city which could be beautified by a comission that the society cannot touch.

A motion was then made that the society take steps now to have a by-law for a park commission submitted to the people.—Carried.

It was moved that Messrs. A. P. Poussette, D. W. Dumble and Mr. Beal be appointed a commission to get up the petition to present to the council. Carried.

It was proposed by Mr. W. Stocker that the society have a show this year. There are a great many more interested in horticulture now than ever before and the exhibition should be a great success. Many members were in favour of that proposition, and a committee will take it up in the near future. It is several years since a show was held here, and if the scheme is gone on with the prises for the lawns will not be interfered with.

The whole Board of Directors were appointed a committee to wait upon the Council with the Board of Education to secure a sidewalk through Central Park.

WINTER TERM OPENS MONDAY, JAN. 3rd, 1910

GEO. SPOTTON, PRESIDENT — J. A. McKONE, PRINCIPAL

Prof. Irl Hicks' Weather Forecast For November

A reactionary storm period is in progress as we enter this month. On the 1st and 2nd falling barometer will pass eastwardly over thecountry, attended by cloudiness and resulting in rain in many localities. Stiff, northwesterly winds and sharp change to colder will come in promptly on the heels of these disturbances.

A regular storm period covers the 4th to the 9th, being central on the 6th. This period is near the centre of the Venus period and promises to bring very active storm conditions. If the barometer falls to low readings from about the 6th to the 9th, look for energetic storms of rain and wind, with dangerous gales over the lake regions. These disturbances will be attended by electrical storms to the southward, while in the northwest sleet and snow will be quite probable. All outdoor work that can reasonably be put in order, and all perishable goods that can be securely housed and sheltered, before these Venus storms in November, will be great gain, saying nothing of the inconvenience and comfort of the people. We believe that too much emphasis of possible danger on the lakes, and also on the North Atlantic can hardly be given for this and other November periods. There are those who will take chances, as is always the case, some of whom are sure to pay the penalty by loss of cargo and life. The Venus influence will cause a prolonged disturbance of weather conditions at this time, so that the storm periods are liable to overrun their normal limits and blend into each other.

A reactionary storm period is central on the 12th, 13th, and 14th. The conjunction of the moon with earth on the 12th naturally indicates that high temperature for the season, with low barometer and general storms are probable on and following that date. It is a rare exception when rising temperature does not attend new moon, and when new moon falls on or very close to the celestial equator, especially in a Venus period and in a storm period, thunder and lightning are almost certain to attend the storms. This fact is well worth contending for, a thing we have been doing for more than a quarter of a century. It is vitally important for the scientific suggestions which lie behind it. Change to very much cooler, with high barometer and high north-westerly gales will bring up the west and northwest flanks of storms, say about the 13th to 15th. Seismic reports will be timely within three days of noon on the 13th.

A regular storm period is central on the 18th, falling at the culmination of the Mercury period, which is central on the 17th. The Venus period will also be at its maximum strength about this time. From Tuesday the 16th to Sunday, the 21st, is a time of vast storm probabilities, especially on the oceans and the great lakes. This is a period in which Boreas will make a stubborn fight for domination in most parts of the northern hemisphere. Early blizzards of snow and sleet need not surprise any reader of these forecasts in north and northwest before the final windup of this storm period. These storms will be followed closely by a rushing high barometer out of the northwest, causing high gales and unseasonable cold to push rapidly far into the south and east. Many heavy ocean storms will be encountered both on the Atlantic and Pacific, during this and other November periods. Make it your business to watch the telegraphic reports from land and sea, through all this part of the month, and see if this forecast is not verified to a degree out of the ordinary. If your farm and orchard and garden products are not safely housed before these Mid-November, Venus storms, you will suffer great discomfort and heavy loss. The sailors who dare to brave the open lakes will do so at the peril of their ships and lives. Ask your maritime friends to make a note of this "gentle reminder."

A reactionary storm period is central on the 23rd, 24th, and 25th. This period embraces the moon's passage across the equator on the 23rd, and moon's perigee on the 25th. Full moon, or moon's position with earth and sun, is only a day or two later on the 27th. Little consideration has been given to the part the moon plays in our weather, as well as other terrestrial phenomena, patient and long observation will convince any unbiassed person that our satellite cannot be ignored, or that some of the most terrific perturbations of our earth and air are closely related to the periodic phases and conditions of the moon. Restless and threatening weather will mark this reactionary period. Fitful gusts of rain, cold winds and occasional sleet and snow squalls will be general results, sending in quite cold weather for Thanksgiving.

A regular storm period runs from the 28th into December, being central on the 29th. This period enters with the full moon on the 27th. Falling barometer and brisk autumnal storms of rain and wind, turning to sleet and snow, will be passing eastward across the country during the last three days of November. The 27th is the centre of a probable seismic period, extending from about the 25th to the 29th. While few, if any, of these seismic periods are expected to bring danger anywhere, they are expected to confirm vital cosmic facts.

TAKE A COLD SERIOUSLY

The possibilities of every cold are dreadful to contemplate. Bronchitis, pneumonia, consumption, usually begin with a simple cold. Why not fight the cold from the start and ensure success by using Dr Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. It allays inflamation, keeps the cough free and loose and protects the bronchial tubes from danger.

HYPOCRITE MUST BE A GENIUS

Really to be a hypocrite must require a horrible strength of character. An ordinary man such as you or I generally falls at last because he has not enough energy to be a man. But the hypocrite must have enough energy to be two men.

It is said that a liar should have a good memory. But a hypocrite must not only have a good memory of the past, but a consistent and creative vision of the future; his unreal self must be so far real to him. The perfect hypocrite should be a trinity of artistic talent. He must be a novelist like Dickens to create a false character. He must be an actor like Garrick to act it. And he must be a business man like Carnegie to profit by it.

Such a genius would not be easy to find in any country.

WARNING

Since its introduction into Canada the sales of Parisian Sage have been phenomenal. This success has led to many imitations similar in name. Look out for them; they are not the genuine. See that the girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. You can always get the genuine at Wm. Madill's.

Parisian Sage is the quickest acting and most efficient hair tonic in the world.

It is made to conform to Dr. Sangerbond's (of Paris) proven theory that dandruff, falling hair, baldness, and scalp itch are caused by germs.

Parisian Sage kills these dandruff germs and removes all trace of dandruff in two weeks, or money back; it stops falling hair and itching scalp and prevents baldness.

And remember that baldness is caused by dandruff germs, those little hard working, persistent devils that day and night do nothing but dig into the roots of the hair and destroy its vitality.

Parisian Sage is a daintily perfumed hair dressing, not stick or greasy, and any woman who desires luxuriant and bewitching hair can get it in two weeks by using it. 50 cents a large bottle.

SIR NIGEL

BY A. CONAN DOYLE.

"Grapple my ship with that," he cried, pointing to the crippled Spaniard, "for I would have possession of her!"

But already the breeze had carried them past it, and a dozen Spanish ships were bearing down full upon them.

"We cannot win back to her, lest we show our flank to these others," said the shipman.

"Let her go her way!" cried the knights. "You shall have better than her."

"By Saint George! you speak the truth," said the King, "for she is ours when we have time to take her. These also seem very worthy ships which are drawing up to us, and I pray you, master-shipman, that you will have a tilt with the nearest."

A great carack was within a bowshot of them and crossing their bows. Bunce looked up at his mast, and he saw that already it was shaken and drooping. Another blow and it would be over the side and his ship a helpless log upon the water. He jammed his helm round therefore, and ran his ship alongside the Spaniard, throwing out his hooks and iron chains as he did so.

They, no less eager, grappled the Philippa both fore and aft, and the two vessels, linked tightly together, surged slowly over the long blue rollers. Over their bulwarks hung a cloud of men locked together in a desperate struggle, sometimes surging forward on to the deck of the Spaniard, sometimes recoiling back on to the King's ship, reeling this way and that, with the swords flickering like silver flames above them, while the long-drawn cry of rage and agony swelled up like a wolf's howl to the calm blue heaven above them.

But now ship after ship of the English had come up, each throwing its iron over the nearest Spaniard and striving to board her high red sides. Twenty ships were drifting in furious single combat after the manner of the Philippa, until the whole surface of the sea was covered with a succession of these desperate duels. The dismasted carack, which the King's ship had left behind it, had been carried by the Earl of Suffolk's Christopher, and the water was dotted with the heads of her crew. An English ship had been sunk by a huge stone discharged from an engine, and her men also were struggling in the waves, none having leisure to lend them a hand. A second English ship was caught between two of the Spanish vessels and overwhelmed by a rush of boarders so that not a man of her was left alive. On the other hand, Mowbray and Audley had each taken the caracks which were opposed to them, and the battle in the centre, after swaying this way and that, was turning now in favor of the Islanders.

The Black Prince, with the Lion, the Grace Marie and four other ships had swept round to turn the Spanish flank; but the movement was seen, and the Spaniards had ten ships with which to meet it, one of them their great carack the St. Iago di Compostella. To this ship the Prince had attached his little cog and strove desperately to board her, but her side was so high and the defense so desperate that his men could never get beyond her bulwarks but were hurled down again and again with a clang and clash to the deck beneath. Her side bristled with crossbowmen, who shot straight down on to the packed waist of the Lion, so that the dead lay there in heaps. But the most dangerous of all was a swarthy black-bearded giant in the tops, who crouched so that none could see him, but rising every now and then with a huge lump of iron between his hands, hurled it down with a huge force that nothing would stop it. Again and again these ponderous bolts crashed through the deck and hurtled down into the bottom of the ship, starting the planks and shattering all that came in their way.

The Prince, clad in that dark armor which gave him his name, was directing the attack from the poop when the shipman rushed wildly up to him with fear on his face.

"Sire!" he cried. "The ship may not stand against these blows. A few more will sink her! Already the water floods inboard."

The Prince looked up, and as he did so the shaggy beard showed once more and two brawny arms swept downward. A great slug, whizzing down, beat a gaping hole in the deck, and fell rending and riving into the hold below. The master-mariner tore his grizzled hair.

"Another leak!" he cried. I pray to Saint Leonard to bear up this day! Twenty of my shipmen are bailing with buckets, but the water rises on them fast. The vessel may not float another hour."

The Prince had snatched a crossbow from one of his attendants and leveled it at the Spaniard's tops. At the very instant when the seaman stood erect with a fresh bar in his hands, the bolt took him full in the face, and his body fell forward over the parapet, hanging there head downward. A howl of exultation burst from the English at the sight, answered by a wild roar of anger from the Spaniards. A seaman had run from the Lion's hold and whispered in the ear of the shipman. He turned an ashen face upon the Prince.

"It is even as I say, sire. The ship is sinking beneath our feet!" he cried.

"The more need that we should gain another," said he. "Sir Henry Stokes, Sir Thomas Stourton, William, John of Clifton, here lies our road! Advance my banner, Thomas de Mohun! On, and the day is ours!"

By a desperate scramble a dozen men, the Prince at their head, gained a footing on the edge of the Spaniard's deck. Some slashed furiously to clear a space, others hung over, clutching the rail with one hand and pulling up their comrades from below. Every instant that they could hold their own their strength increased, till twenty had become thirty and thirty forty, when of a sudden the new-comers, still reaching forth to their comrades below, saw the deck beneath them reel and vanish in a swirling sheet of foam. The Prince's ship had foundered.

A yell went up from the Spaniards as they turned furiously upon the small band who had reached their deck. Already the Prince and his men had carried the poop, and from that high station they beat back their swarming enemies. But crossbow darts pelted and thudded among their ranks till a third of their number were stretched upon the planks. Linked across the deck they could hardly keep an unbroken front to the leaping, surging crowd who pressed upon them. Another rush, or another after that, must assuredly break them, for these dark men of Spain, hardened by an endless struggle with the Moors, were fierce and stubborn fighters. But hark to this sudden roar upon the farther side of them!

"Saint George! Saint George! A Knolles to the rescue!" A small craft had run alongside and sixty men had swarmed on the deck of the St. Iago. Caught between two fires, the Spaniards wavered and broke. The fight became a massacre. Down from the poop sprang the Prince's men. Up from the waist rushed the new-comers. There were five dreadful minutes of blows and screams and prayers with struggling figures clinging to the bulwarks and sullen splashes into the water below. Then it was over, and a crowd of weary, overstrained men leaned panting upon their weapons, or lay breathless and exhausted upon the deck of the captured carack.

The Prince had pulled up his visor and lowered his beaver. He smiled proudly as he gazed around him and wiped his streaming face. "Where is the shipman?" he asked. "Let him lead us against another ship."

"Nay, sire, the shipman and all his men have sunk in the Lion," said Thomas de Mohun, a young knight of the West Country, who carried the standard. I fear that we can fight no more."

"It matters the less since the day is already ours," said the Prince, looking over the sea. "My noble father's royal banner flies upon yonder Spaniard. Mowbray, Audley, Suffolk, Beauchamp, Namur, Tracey, Stafford, Arundel, each has his flag over a scarlet carack, even as mine floats over this. See, yonder squadron is already far beyond our reach. But surely we owe thanks to you who came at so perilous a moment to our aid. Your face I have seen, and your coat-armor also, young sir, though I cannot lay my tongue to your name. Let me know that I may thank you."

He had turned to Nigel, who stood flushed and joyous at the head of the boarders from the Basilisk.

"I am but a Squire, sire, and can claim no thanks, for there is nothing that I have done. Here is our leader."

The Prince's eyes fell upon the shield charged with the Black Raven and the stern young face of him who bore it. "Sir Robert Knolles," said he, "I had thought you were on your way to Brittany."

"I was so, sire, when I had the fortune to see this battle as I passed."

The Prince laughed. "It would indeed be to ask too much, Robert, that you should keep on your course when much honor was to be gathered so close to you. But now I pray you that you will come back with us to Winchelsea, for well I know that my father would fain thank you for what you have done this day."

But Robert Knolles shook his head. "I have your father's command, sire, and without his order I may not go against it. Our people are hard-pressed in Brittany, and it is not for me to linger on the way. I pray you, sire, if you must needs mention me to the King, to crave his pardon that I should have broken my journey thus."

"You are right, Robert. God-speed you on your way! And I would that I were sailing under your banner, for I see clearly that you will take your people where they may worshipfully win worship. Perchance I also may be in Brittany before the year is past."

The Prince turned to the task of gathering his weary people together, and the Basilisks passed over the side once more and dropped down on to their own little ship. They poled her off from the captured Spaniard and set their sail with their prow for the south. Far ahead of them were their two consorts, beating towards them in the hope of giving help, while down Channel were a score of Spanish ships with a few of the English vessels hanging upon their skirts. The sun lay low on the water, and its level beams glowed upon the scarlet and gold of fourteen great caracks, each flying the cross of Saint George, and towering high above the cluster of English ships which, with brave waving of flags and blaring of music, were moving slowly towards the Kentish coast.

CHAPTER XVIII.

For a day and a half the small fleet made good progress, but on the second morning, after sighting Cape de la Hague, there came a brisk land wind which blew them out to sea. It grew into a squall with rain and fog so that they were two more days beating back. Next morning they found themselves in a dangerous rock-studded sea with a small island upon their starboard quarter. It was girdled with high granite cliffs of a reddish hue, and slopes of bright-green grassland lay above them. A second smaller island lay beside it. Dennis the shipman shook his head as he looked.

"That is Brechou," said he, "and the larger one is the Island of Sark. If ever I be cast away, I pray the saints that I may not be upon yonder coast!"

Knolles gazed across at it. "You say well, master-shipman," said he. "It does appear to be a rocky and perilous spot."

"Nay, it is the rocky hearts of those who dwell upon it that I had in my mind," the old sailor answered. "We are well safe in three good vessels, but had we been here in a small craft I make no doubt that they would have already had their boats out against us."

"Who then are these people, and how do they live upon so small and windswept an island?" asked the soldier.

"They do not live from the island, fair sir, but from what they can gather upon the sea around it. They are broken folk from all countries, justice-fliers, prison-breakers, reavers, escaped bondsmen, murderers and staff-strikers who have made their way to this outland place and hold it against all comers. There is one here who could tell you of them and of their ways, for he was long time prisoner amongst them." The seaman pointed to Black Simon, the dark man from Norwich, who was leaning against the side lost in moody thought and staring with a brooding eye at the distant shore.

"How now, fellow?" asked Knolles. "What is this I hear? Is it indeed sooth that you have been a captive upon this island?"

"It is true, fair sir. For eight months I have been servant to the man whom they call their King. His name is La Muette, and he comes from Jersey, nor is there under God's sky a man whom I have more desire to see."

"Has he then mishandled you?"

Black Simon gave a wry smile and pulled off his jerkin. His lean sinewy back was waled and puckered with white scars. "He has left his sign of hand upon me," said he. "He swore that he would break me to his will, and thus he tried to do it But most I desire to see him because he hath lost a wager to me and I would fain be paid."

"This is a strange saying," said Knolles. "What is this wager, and why should he pay you?"

"It is but a small matter," Simon answered; "but I am a poor man and the payment would be welcome. Should it have chanced that we stopped at this island I should have craved your leave that I go ashore and ask for that which I have fairly won."

Sir Robert Knolles laughed. "This business tickleth my fancy," said he. "As to stopping at the island, this shipman tells me that we must needs wait a day and a night, for that we have strained our planks. But if you should go ashore, how will you be sure that you will be free to depart, or that you will see this King of whom you speak?"

Black Simon's dark face was shining with a fierce joy. "Fair sir, I will ever be your debtor if you will let me go. Concerning what you ask, I know this island even as I know the streets of Norwich, as you may well believe seeing that it is but a small place and I upon it for near a year. Should I land after dark, I could win my way to the King's house, and if he be not dead or distraught with drink I could have speech with him alone, for I know his ways and his hours and how he may be found. I would ask only that Aylward the archer may go with me, that I may have one friend at my side if things should chance to go awry."

Knolles thought awhile. "It is much that you ask," said he, "for by God's truth I reckon that you and this friend of yours are two of my men whom I would be least ready to lose. I have seen you both at grips with the Spaniards and I know you. But I trust you and if we must indeed stop at this accursed place, then you may do as you will. If you have deceived me, or if this is a trick by which you design to leave me, then God be your friend when next we meet, for man will be of small avail!"

It proved that not only the seams had to be caulked but that the cog Thomas was out of fresh water. The ships moored therefore near the Isle of Brechou, where springs were to be found. There were no people upon this little patch, but over on the farther island many figures could be seen watching them, and the twinkle of steel from among them showed that they were armed men. One boat had ventured forth and taken a good look at them, but had hurried back with the warning that they were too strong to be touched.

"My friend," said Simon, "will you come ashore to-night—for I have need of your help?"

Aylward crowed lustily. "Will I come, Simon? By my hilt, I shall be right glad to put my foot on the good brown earth once more. All my life I have trod it, and yet I would never have learned its worth had I not journeyed in these cursed ships. We will go on shore together, Simon, and we will seek out the women, if there be any there, for it seems a long year since I heard their gentle voices, and my eyes are weary of such faces as Bartholomew's or thine."

Simon's grim features relaxed into a smile. "The only face that you will see ashore, Samkin, will bring you small comfort," said he, "and I warn you that this is so easy errand, but one which may be neither sweet nor fair, for if these people take us our end will be a cruel one."

"By my hilt," said Aylward, "I am with you, gossip, wherever you may go! Say no more, therefore, for I am weary of living like a cony in a hole, and I shall be right glad to stand by you in your venture."

That night, two hours after dark, a small boat put forth from the Basilisk. It contained Simon, Aylward and two seamen. The soldiers carried their swords, and Black Simon bore a brown biscuit-bag over his shoulder. Under his direction the rowers skirted the dangerous surf which beat against the cliffs until they came to a spot where an outlying reef formed a breakwater. Within was a belt of calm water and a shallow cover with a sloping beach. Here the boat was dragged up and the seamen were ordered to wait, while Simon and Aylward started on their errand.

With the assured air of a man who knows exactly where he is and whither he is going, the man-at-arms began to clamber up a narrow fern-lined cleft among the rocks. It was no easy ascent in the darkness, but Simon climbed on like an old dog hot upon a scent, and the panting Aylward struggled after as best he might. At last they were at the summit and the archer threw himself down upon the grass.

"Nay, Simon, I have not enough breath to blow out a candle," said he. "Stint your haste for a minute, since we have a long night before us. Surely this man is a friend indeed, if you hasten so to see him."

"Such a friend," Simon answered, "that I have often dreamed of our next meeting. Now before that moon has set it will have come."

"Had it been a wench I could have understood it," said Aylward. "By these ten finger-bones, if Mary of the mill or little Kate of Compton had waited me on the brow of this cliff, I should have come up it and never known it was there. But surely I see houses and hear voices over yonder in the shadow?"

"It is their town," whispered Simon. "There are a hundred as bloody-minded cutthroats as are to be found in Christendom beneath those roofs. Hark to that!"

A fierce burst of laughter came out of the darkness, followed by a long cry of pain.

"All-hallows be with us!" cried Aylward. "What is that?"

"As like as not some poor devil has fallen into their clutches, even as I did. Come this way, Samkin, for there is a peat-cutting where we may hide. As there it is, but deeper and broader than of old. Now follow me close, for if we keep within it we shall find ourselves a stone cast off the King's house."

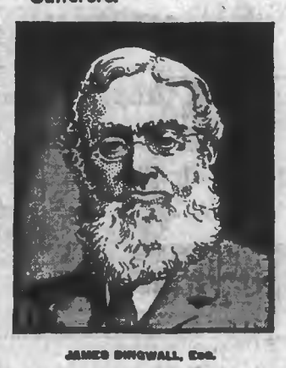
Kidney Disease For Years

This Well Known Gentleman Strongly Recommends "Fruit-a-tives" to all Sufferers.



JAMES DINGWALL, Esq.

"I have much pleasure in testifying to the almost marvellous benefit I have derived from taking "Fruit-a-tives." I was a lifelong sufferer from Chronic Constipation, and the only medicine I ever secured to do me any real good was "Fruit-a-tives." This medicine cured me when everything else failed. Also, last spring I had a severe ATTACK OF BLADDER TROUBLE WITH KIDNEY TROUBLE, and "Fruit-a-tives" cured these complaints for me, when the physician attending me had practically given me up.

I am now over eighty years of age and I can strongly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" for chronic constipation and bladder and kidney trouble. This medicine is very mild like fruit, is easy to take, but most effective in action."

Thousands of unsolicited and genuine testimonials such as the following prove the efficiency of this simple remedy.

Belleriver, Que.—"Without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I would not be alive. For five months I had painful and irregular periods and inflammation of the uterus. I suffered like a martyr and thought often of death. I consulted two doctors who could do nothing for me. I went to a hospital, and the best doctors said I must submit to an operation, because I had a tumor. I went back home much discouraged. One of my cousins advised me to take your Compound, as it had cured her. I did so and soon commenced to feel better, and my appetite came back with the first bottle. Now I feel no pain and am cured. Your remedy is deserving of praise."—Mrs. Emma Chatel, Valleyfield, Belleriver, Quebec.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

Death on the Guillotine.

Sardou, in order to be present at the execution of Tropman in January, 1875, spent the night before with La Regnetie, the prison director. In his description he says: "At daybreak the guests went out upon the cold, bleak execution place, where the guillotine had already been erected. The bedraggled crowd, which had spent the night in drinking places, sang ribald songs and from time to time shouted for Deibler, the executioner, who meanwhile was explaining the mechanism. The basket in which the head was to drop was brought, and while looking at it I was horrified to see the lid arise and a human form emerge. 'Don't worry,' said Deibler, with a smile; 'that is only my wife, who wanted to see the execution, and I chose the simplest way to secure a good place for her.'" Clemenceau saw Emile Henry decapitated on May 22, 1894, in his capacity as a journalist, and, describing how the culprit was dragged to the machine, strapped upon the plank and there tortured by awaiting the pleasure of Deibler till the knife finally ended it all, said that the "horror of it" made him sick.

Why Blinds Were Drawn.

The Edinburgh landlady of the seventies who astounded James Payn by her stern determination to have the blinds drawn closely down on the Sabbath was but carrying on the traditions of her great-grandparents. The Scot of the early eighteenth century had a reason for drawing his blinds on Sunday. Mr. Thompson in his "Weaver's Craft" gives it. "Sometimes the minister himself," he wrote, "when he got a colleague to preach for him would make the rounds, accompanied by an elder, to spy with his own eyes the sins of the absentees. Here one man is found romping with his bairns, another as the minister peeped through the window was detected kissing his wife, two men were found drinking ale, and one was found with his coat off, as if he were going to work, and still another was seen eating a hearty dinner. All were pulled up before the session of the kirk and repentance forced upon each."—London Standard.

Bread and Cheese.

A couple advanced in years got married lately.

The husband had a room in the house securely locked, the inside of which his wife had never seen, and, being curious of its contents, she begged again and again to see the room.

At last he consented, and, lo and behold, the room was full of whole cheeses!

He explained matters by telling her that for every sweetheart he had in his young days he bought a cheese.

His wife began to cry.

"Don't cry, dear," he said. "I've had no sweethearts since I met you."

"It's not that," she replied, still sobbing. "I only wish I had been as thoughtful as you and bought a loaf of bread for every man that kissed me. We could have had bread and cheese enough to last us all our days."—London Tit-Bits.

NASAL CATARRH

Responsible for Much Deafness, Hoarseness, Bronchitis and Stomach Trouble.

Medicated Air Will Cure.

These are common diseases, but not less dangerous and difficult to cure on that account. In our climate the weather changes quickly. We are careless. Disease attacks us before we know it. A large majority of our people have nose, lung, or throat troubles, and find it hard to get cured.

It's remarkable with what tenacity both the medical profession and the laity adhere to the old theory that these diseases can be reached and combated by dosing. And this despite the fact that failure to cure in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred attends this mode of treatment.

STOMACH MEDICINE CAN'T CURE.

At best it is a roundabout way of trying to reach the disease which is in the air passages of the throat, nose, bronchial tubes and lungs. Leave the stomach alone—use a remedy that air will carry into the minutest air cells, into the tiniest cavities of the affected organs.

LIQUID REMEDIES DANGEROUS.

Doctors say only "Catarrhosone" can cure—you inhale it along with the air you breath—it goes where the living disease germs are gnawing into your system—it kills these germs—it heals, soothes. It CURES.

CATARRHOSONE GUARANTEED.

Wouldn't it be wise to use Catarrhosone now—to-day—and be cured permanently?

You can send the soothing vapor of the pine woods, the richest balsams and healing essences, right to the cause of your trouble by inhaling Catarrhosone.

Little drops of wonderful curative power are distributed through the whole breathing apparatus in two seconds.

Like a miracle, that's how Catarrhosone works in bronchitis, catarrh, colds, and irritable throat. You simply breath its oily, fragrant vapor and every trace of congestion and disease flees as before fire.

So safe, infants can use it; so sure to cure, doctors prescribe it, so beneficial in preventing winter ills, no person can afford to do without Catarrhosone. Used in thousands of cases without failure. Try it yourself—25c, 50c, $1.00 sizes. Sold by all dealers, or by mail from the Catarrhosone Company, Kingston, Ont.

The Forests on the Niger.

The insects of Africa are expert disease carriers, and they come in such numbers on the Niger that one hardly dares to use one's lamp or go too near a light of any sort at night. These forests on the Niger are deadly places for all their haunting attraction and take a big toll both of European and native life. Yet the first three days on the Niger, with all its mud and its smell and its mangrove flies and its frogs and its crickets, are enough to give the newcomer an inkling of the drawing power, the fascination, of what is probably the most unhealthy country in the world.—W. B. Thomgson in Blackwood's.

Dodging a Slander.

During a suit for slander brought in an Ohio town one of the parties was asked by the presiding magistrate:

"Is it true, as alleged, that you declared that Thomas Mulkins had stolen your pocketbook?"

"Your honor," responded the man, "I did not go so far as that. I merely said that if Mulkins had not assisted me in looking for the pocketbook I might have found it."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Before and After.

She was a frivolous, fashionable young woman with beaux galore, but one man with only a small income seemed to be the favorite.

"You'll have to work hard before you win that girl," said his mother.

"And a good deal harder after you win her," answered his father, who knew what he was talking about.

His Poems.

"May I offer you this little gift, Fraulein Kate?"

"Excuse me—I never take presents from men."

"But it is only a copy of my book of poems."

"In that case I will accept. I thought it was something valuable."—Fliegende Blatter.

Trouble For Creditors.

Even the simplest law transactions seem to be beyond the comprehension of some people. An old farmer went into a grocer's shop a short time ago, ordered a sovereign's worth of goods and when they were ready for delivery laid down a five shilling piece in payment thereof.

The shopkeeper called out, "Here, this isn't right!" as the customer started to leave.

"Oh, yes, that's all right," replied the man. "I've got permission from the judge to pay 5 shillings in the pound."

A heated discussion revealed that the man had lately settled an insolvency upon this basis and expected to continue that method indefinitely. When he was shown his mistake he was very indignant and evidently considered himself a much abused man.—London Globe.

She Wasn't Superstitious.

"Mary, Mary," cried Mrs. Johnson to her maid, "what shall I do? I've just had a most dreadful accident and don't know what's going to happen. I've broken my new hand glass, and you know how unlucky it is to break a looking glass. It means seven years' unhappiness."

"Lor,' mum," replied Mary, "don't you set no heed on that. Look at me. I'm not fretting, and I've just broken the large pier glass in the drawing room."—London Fun.

Leftover Material.

Barbara, aged four, had always been allowed to make small cakes out of the scraps of dough left from the morning's baking, so one morning after being sent to gather the eggs she came running in with a very tiny one and exclaimed: "Oh, mamma, see this little egg! It must be that's all the dough the hen had left!"—Delineator.

Ups and Downs.

"The world is full of ups and downs," quoted the wise guy. "That's right," agreed the simple mug. "We are either trying to live up to a good reputation or trying to live a bad one down."—Philadelphia Record.

George III. and the Wigmakers.

When George III. ascended the throne of England his wealthy subjects were beginning to leave off wigs and to appear in their own hair, "if they had any." As the sovereign was himself one of the offenders, the peruke makers, who feared a serious loss of trade, prepared a petition in which they prayed his majesty to be graciously pleased to "shave his head" for the good of distressed workmen and wear a wig, as his father had done before him.

When the petitioners walked to the royal palace, however, it was noticed that they wore no wigs themselves. As this seemed unfair to the onlookers they seized several of the leading processionists and cut their hair with any implement that came most readily to hand.

From this incident arose a host of curious caricatures. The wooden leg makers were said to have especial claims on the king's consideration, inasmuch as the conclusion of peace had deprived them of a profitable source of employment; hence the suggestion that his majesty should not only wear a wooden leg himself, but enjoin the people to follow his laudable example.

As Others See Us.

"The man who can pick out the best picture of himself is a rare bird," said a photographer. "Even an author, who is reputedly a poor judge of his own work, exercises vast wisdom in selecting his best book compared with the person who tries to choose his best photograph. Every famous man or woman who has been photographed repeatedly has his or her favorite picture. Usually it is the worst in the collection. It shows him or her with an unnatural expression, sitting or standing in an unnatural attitude. The inability to judge of his best picture must be due to the average man's ignorance of how he really looks, or perhaps it can be partly attributed to a desire to look other than he does. A stout man will swear that the photograph most nearly like him is the one that makes him look thin, a thin man the one that makes him look stout, the solemn man selects the jolliest picture, the jovial man the most cadaverous.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Famous Quotation.

A story about Keats is quoted by the late Sir Benjamin Ward Richardson in his "Lives" of disciples of Aesculapius. Mr. Stephens, a friend of the doctor, once told him that one evening at twilight when he and Keats were sitting together in their student days, Stephens at his medical books, Keats engrossed in his dreaming, Keats called out to his friend that he had composed a new line—"A thing of beauty is a constant joy."

"What think you of that, Stephens?"

"It has the true ring, but is wanting in some way," replies the latter as he dips once more into his medical studies.

An interval of silence, and again the poet, "'A thing of beauty is a joy forever.' What think you of that, Stephens?"

"That it will live forever."

A happy prophecy indeed!

The DAY of the DUEL

A BURNT MATCH

(A TRUE STORY)

"I AM INNOCENT OF THE CRIME THAT LED TO THIS."

(Copyright, 1909, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.)

THERE was some talk and more laughter from a group about one of the tables in the Union Hotel. Those who passed through the bar glanced with smiling tolerance at the convives who emphasized their enjoyment so noisily. It was the early youth of San Francisco, a time of big hopes, wild tales and feverish energy, when men took their pleasures and their affairs with high spirits and flushed cheeks.

The leader of the little ring was Numa Hubert, member of an old French family of New Orleans and one of the most brilliant young lawyers of the new United State. He was relating some political adventure with point and ease, and as he had the reputation and the air of a wit few of his periods passed without its tribute of applause.

At an adjoining table sat two young men who conversed dully over their glasses. One of them was imparting something which was apparently of great interest to his companion, and both were leaning upon the board. In the midst of his confidence the speaker was interrupted by a deafening shout from the group about Hubert. He turned with an exasperated frown and waited with every sign of impatience until the uproar had subsided.

"There should be some limit to this sort of thing in a public place," he remarked, with a strong English accent.

The other warned him with a gesture. "They are in no mood to be told that they are annoying," he said. "And niceties of behavior are not topics to appeal to them particularly. What were you about to say?"

But the first had turned and was inspecting their neighbors curiously and rather scornfully.

"Who is the fellow sitting just back of me? He seems to be something of a favorite."

"That's Numa Hubert."

"Ah. So it is. He seems to get on remarkably well with that rough crowd."

His companion nodded noncommittally and finally succeeded in drawing his friend back to the subject of their discussion. The Englishman's cigar had gone out while his attention was drawn aside and he looked about for a match. There were no lighters on the table and he could find none in his pocket. His glance sought the floor. In the sawdust, close to his chair, he saw a match. Stooping he picked it up, only to find that it had been used. He searched his pocket again. The other, seeing his want, offered the glowing end of his own cigar and the two were soon puffing again. After another drink they rose and left the place without paying any attention to the boisterous group.

Hubert, meanwhile, was in his element. The men about him were pioneers of the West, lawyers, brokers, politicians, a responsive audience, young and red-blooded. He held them by ready speech and a lively flow of the humor they could appreciate, rude and direct, as befitted the lives they led. Among those who watched events it was understood that Hubert had a large personal following and would surely go to the next Legislature. He was proving again that he was equipped for a career that would depend upon the good will and admiration of men.

The Lost Pocketbook.

Just Hubert was not the one to overplay a situation. He had amused the circle, had impressed it with his coolness and eloquence, and he rose to withdraw. At that moment he smoothed his coat over his left hip pocket. Suddenly anxious, he searched that, then all his pockets in succession. A silence had fallen upon the group as they watched him.

"Lose anything?" inquired Williams, a real estate operator, who sat at his right.

"Why, yes," answered Hubert, with an embarrassed laugh. "I believe I must have dropped my pocketbook."

Several of the others got up and began to move the chairs about, kicking among the sawdust and searching the floor under the table. Nothing rewarded their efforts. Hubert had lost his pose of easy and cynical good nature. He moved hurriedly and a frown had gathered on his face. His friends awkwardly offered suggestions, oppressed by the sudden change in the atmosphere of the gathering.

"Are you sure you had it with you?" asked Marsh, his kinsman and confidant.

"No doubt about that," answered Hubert, with a tone of irritation. All of the group were on their feet and the place was thoroughly covered.

"Not here," said some one. "You must have been mistaken, Hubert."

It was evident that nothing more was to be gained from the search, and Hubert recognized this fact at last. "I am sorry to have given you this trouble, gentlemen," he said. "I have no doubt that I made a mistake and that I shall find the pocketbook at home." He took his leave with an assumption of his former cheerfulness. A significant gesture brought Marsh with him.

"Is it a serious thing, Hubert?" asked his companion as they reached the street.

"More serious than I cared to show," said the lawyer in a low voice. "The pocketbook held a large sum of money, several thousand dollars. But that is not what worries me. I was carrying some papers which are of the utmost importance to me, documents that should never have been outside a bank vault for a moment. I am properly punished."

Hubert's voice was almost despairing and Marsh studied his face as they walked on together. The two were good friends and the little assayer's clerk knew the lawyer as well as any one in the city knew him. He knew now from the tone that his friend had suffered a heavy blow. They continued in silence to Hubert's office, and the lawyer made certain that he had not left his pocketbook there. Marsh was doing some thinking of his own.

"Did you notice the men who sat at the table just behind you?" he asked, suddenly.

"No," was the indifferent answer.

"Well, I did," said Marsh, "and there was something queer in the way they acted. Now I come to think of it," he added, with more conviction, "there was something damned queer about it."

"What do you mean?" asked Hubert, interested now.

"Why, while you were talking they were whispering together over the table. There were two of them. One of them was just at your back. His chair almost touched yours. He turned around and gave us a nasty look. Just then I saw him glance under your chair and a second later he reached down quick and grabbed something up. I didn't see what it was."

Hubert was excited. "Are you sure of this? Why didn't you tell me before?"

"I am sure of it and I did not recall it at first. Your pocketbook must have fallen and this chap must have picked it up."

"Do you know him?"

"No, I don't know either of them, though I would recognize them, I think. No use going back, Hubert. They went out a few seconds after I noticed them."

The Accusation.

But Hubert hurriedly retraced his steps and took prompt measures to trace the two strangers who had sat near him in the Union bar. His efforts proved ineffectual. From the hotel he went with Marsh to the jail and lodged such information as they possessed with the Sheriff. Then the two men returned to Hubert's office.

"What were the papers, Hubert?" asked Marsh, after unsuccessful attempts to relieve the depression that had fallen upon his friend.

"Documents in the Freeman case," said Hubert. "There is no reason why you should not know."

Marsh whistled. Anything connected with the Freeman case could not fail to be of the greatest importance to Hubert. It was an involved land suit covering thousands of valuable acres back of the city and had been in the courts for two years. Hubert had regarded his entrance into the litigation as the best step he had yet taken in his profession.

"They were vital," Hubert went on. "For two months I've been on the trail of a series of affidavits testifying to fraudulent grants that would seriously affect the titles held by the defendants. In the pocketbook were three of the most valuable of the affidavits."

"They could be replaced."

"Possibly; but the danger lies in their falling into the hands of the other side. Burke would pay a good deal to get hold of them, or even to see them. The whole basis of my case is there." Hubert, whose Latin temperament was never far from the surface, wrung his hands at the thought.

"I should advise you to advertise for them," said Marsh. "What could you offer?"

"The finder or the thief should be content with money in the pocketbook, Marsh. That was almost every cent I had in the world."

His loss seemed to crush the young lawyer and for the next week he did little but pester the authorities and engage in fruitless efforts to trace the men who had sat at the adjoining able in the Union. He was able to replace the affidavits, as Marsh had suggested, but he could not banish the fear that his plan of attack would be revealed to his opponents in the 'awsuit. There was enough material contained in the missing documents to furnish a very grave handicap to his chances of success if they should reach Burke, the counsel for the defendants.

Worn and haggard through anxiety and sleeplessness, he made his way one night to the home of Peter Freeman. As he paced up the street he reflected with some bitterness that there had been a time when he had made that journey with a lighter step and a brighter face. For his client was the excuse, not the attraction, in his visits to the Freeman house. Elise, the handsome daughter of the litigant, had woven a bond about him that was stronger than those of legal tape and wax.

While no understanding could be said to exist, there was that between them which, to him, held all promise for the future. Hubert, in his ambition, had taken as his own position that when he had carried her father's claim to a successful conclusion he would advance a claim in his own behalf, and in the young woman's clear, gray eyes he had read his corroborative evidence.

George T. Hunt Appears.

But matters had changed. His small savings were gone, and he knew not whether he should be able to cover the weakness offered by the affidavits. As he approached the door, absorbed in gloomy thoughts, he was somewhat surprised to see emerge from the house a man with whom he had a slight acquaintance but whom he had never before associated with the Freemans—George T. Hunt, a lawyer and an Englishman. The two bowed slightly in recognition at passing.

Hubert seemed to find more than the usual response in Elise that evening as he waited for the appearance of her father. Ordinarily he would have answered it as his nature and his love dictated, but now the shadow of an unwelcome duty hung heavily upon him. For he had decided that she must know of his criminal carelessness and all that it threatened for him.

Throughout their acquaintance, based as it was on his business relations with Freeman, he had kept her informed as to each move, and had found in her an intelligent and valuable adviser. It would have seemed nothing short of a betrayal to him had he kept the facts from her. He approached the subject with difficulty, making conversation until an opening should offer.

"I passed George Hunt as I came in," he ventured at random. "I did not know he was an acquaintance."

"Oh, yes," she answered, and in his sensitive accord with her he was dimly conscious of a troubled note and a slight confusion of manner. "I have known him for some time. We met him last winter, father and I. He has been away recently. He could not wait for father."

"He's a good lawyer," was his vague comment. In his uneasiness of mind he did not seek to analyze the effect of his remark. For some time he continued in a rambling, uncertain way, and as he went on he became aware of a growing surprise in her face. She was watching him curiously when he brought himself at last to the revelation.

"Elise, there's nothing to be gained by keeping it from you," he began, desperately. "You may as well have it plump. A week ago I lost, among other things, some documents that are exceedingly important to your father's case. I can offer no excuse. It was my fault, my oversight, and I fear it may prove very serious for us."

"What documents?" she asked with awakened interest.

He told her. Then he went over the incident elaborately, explaining each detail of his own actions and of what he feared. He ended miserably, knowing how imperfect and inadequate it must seem to her.

"Is that all?" The question deepened in her eyes. He told it over again, seeking to make it clear, seeking and failing—for his account rang false in his own ears. When he reached the end once more there was the same hollow suspense.

"It all sounds very strange," she said.

He shook his head. It sounded still stranger to him. In his excited and nervous state it seemed as if it must have awakened black suspicions in the girl's mind. He recalled that Freeman had twice been betrayed by his advisers and that the interests he was fighting had proved themselves capable of anything. He remembered that the girl must have learned to look for treachery everywhere. He had not told her of his own monetary loss, but mingled with his distress was a touch of resentment that she had not given him the sympathy he craved. A wave of unreasoning self pity swept upon him.

His Rage Terrific.

"It may be strange, but it is the truth," he said, doggedly. After a few minutes of uncomfortable silence, as if she still waited further explanation, Elise left him with a brief word. He left the house completely discouraged, nursing a sense of wrong and with a blind, animal rage against the man who, by a common theft, had robbed him of all that made life worth the living.

He threw himself with fury into his work, for if he was subject to emotional crises he was none the less a plucky fighter and he did but display the more energy when defeat threatened. His plan for defence was far reaching and much more carefully worked out than those attempted by previous lawyers for Freeman. It grew from day to day, even while he was continually in expectation of receiving his dismissal from Elise Freeman. It did not come, but during his short visits, confined only to business, he was conscious of a cold watchfulness on her part. It exasperated him and confirmed his hopelessness.

And now a new trouble came to him, for he began to notice that the lawyer, Hunt, was more frequently a visitor at the Freeman home than ordinary courtesy or friendship would seem to justify. Twice he encountered Hunt just as the other was taking his leave, and old Freeman was away at these times. Already suffering under misfortune and disposed to exaggerate any untoward event into a personal injury he fell an easy prey to jealousy. Hunt seemed to have gained all he had lost.

Such was the state of affairs on a pleasant May afternoon when he walked up Montgomery street in company with Marsh. Near Clay street they passed Hunt. Hubert exchanged the slightest of salutations with him. At the same instant he was conscious of a sharp pressure on his arm.

"Do you know that man?" whispered Marsh.

"Surely," said Hubert, shortly. "It's George Hunt. I thought he seemed to know you."

"Not that I am aware of, personally," said Marsh, shortly. "But if you are still interested, that is the fellow who sat back of you in the Union that day."

"What? The one who stole my pocketbook?"

"As to that I can't say. But he is the man I have been looking for ever since."

Hubert's face was convulsed with passion, and he would have rushed after the other if Marsh had not held him. "So it is Hunt!" cried the young lawyer. "Hunt always, Hunt at every turn. The scoundrel, the thief, the blackguard!" Marsh rushed him aside into a saloon and would not let him go.

Hubert's paroxysm passed, but left him purposeful. Early that evening he hurried to Hunt's house, hoping to find him there. He was informed that the Englishman had gone to the Metropolitan Theatre. Following hotfoot he obtained a seat just before the opening of the performance and pushed his way into the house. He used no concealment in pursuing his object and, after rushing down the central aisle he turned and surveyed the house rapidly. He saw Hunt not five rows from him, well off the aisle.

The Attack.

There was no means of reaching his enemy and he controlled himself to the point of signalling politely until Hunt caught his eye. The Englishman understood that he was wanted, and, moving past his neighbors, walked after Hubert into the lobby. There Hubert, white faced and strung to high nervous pitch, whirled upon him suddenly and struck him across the face with his open palm. Hunt staggered back.

"That is for a pickpocket, a dastardly, low lived thief and a coward!" gasped Hubert.

Hunt, completely surprised by the attack, recovered quickly enough under the sting of the blow and hurled himself toward his assailant. They had clinched before attendants and belated theatregoers could reach them. Panting and struggling for a renewal of the combat, they were restrained with difficulty. Hunt finally recovered sufficiently to enable him to speak.

"I shall expect immediate satisfaction to the fullest degree for this outrage, sir," he cried.

"You shall have it, make no mistake," answered Hubert in the same tone of defiance, and he left the theatre.

Charles Fairfax, one of Hubert's many political friends, consented to act for him and they received Hunt's second early the following morning. No objection was made by Hubert to any of the conditions, his only suggestion being that the terms could not be too severe in the circumstances. It was quickly settled that the lawyers should meet at sunrise the next day, at ten paces, with dueling pistols.

While this conference was in progress Hunt paid a visit to the Freeman home. Hubert had not been altogether wrong in suspecting the Englishman's advance in the favor of Elise. What he could not have known was that Hunt had undertaken a confidential investigation of the land suit at the girl's request. Hunt said nothing of the approaching duel. He had puzzled long over Hubert's ferocious, unprovoked attack upon him and it had occurred to him that an explanation possibly lay in something Elise had told him about Hubert's loss of the documents. She greeted him warmly.

"Well, have you discovered anything of interest?" she asked.

"Nothing beyond what I have told you," he answered. "So far as I can find Hubert has been absolutely straight in handling your affairs. I can find no confirmation of your fears that he had sold out to Burke. By the way, where did he say he had lost the papers?"

"In the Union Hotel."

"Will you kindly repeat the incident as he told it?"

She gave Hubert's story and told how the lawyer believed that a drinker at an adjoining table had robbed him. When she finished he understood Hubert's violent speech and the deliberate insult. He took leave of Elise and spent the rest of the day working on a new angle of the affair that the information suggested to him.

The morning of May 21, 1854, found the opponents and their seconds on a level strip of turf near the Pioneer race course. Never did duellists face each other with more deadly resolve or with bitterer hatred. A cold rage of killing held them tense. Hunt remembered nothing but the wanton blow and the vile accusation levelled at him. Hubert saw in his adversary the one who had wronged him and wrecked his hopes.

There was nothing to choose between them as they stood ready for the encounter. Both were well built, lithe limbed men, and as they advanced to their marks, eye flashing to eye, with firm, deliberate steps and heads erect, they were like two figures of ancient legend mat upon the field for primitive struggle. It was well understood that the affair should not end until one or both could no longer keep to the contest. Fairfax stood a few feet to one side of the line of fire to give the word. After verifying each man's position he spoke in a low, clear voice:—

"Ready, gentlemen?"

"Ready," they answered.

"One—two"—— began Fairfax.

At the second count the pistols spoke simultaneously. The clearing smoke showed each that he had missed and without comment the seconds took the weapons and reloaded. Once more the principals stood to their

Once more the question was asked and the word given.

"One"——

Hubert jerked up his arm and fired. Hunt's pistol rang out the fraction of a second later. He had scarcely pulled the trigger when he was seen to stagger. He turned on his enemy a face from which all ill will had fled and sank to the ground. Even as he fell he called out twice, "Hubert, Hubert," as one might summon a friend in dire need.

Hubert, who was unhurt, threw away his weapon and advanced at the call. "I forgive you, Hubert," said Hunt, faintly.

Stricken by the piteous words and already overwhelmed with remorse at the result of the quarrel, Hubert sank to his knees and took one of Hunt's hands between his own. The bullet had passed through the Englishman's side, but he was able to speak clearly.

"I should tell you now, Hubert, as my last word, that I am innocent of the crime that led to this. I am no thief, nor have I ever seen your pocketbook. But I found out yesterday that Burke has those affidavits in his possession. The man who got them was Williams, who sat next to you that day in the Union. He is a hireling of Burke and the interests that are fighting Freeman. He took them from your pocket. That's all. I think, except that you'll never catch Williams. He has left the country. And, Hubert"—— The other, oppressed by a burden of grief and regret that was never to leave him through life, bent closer to hear the whisper. Hunt was smiling wanly. "What I picked up from the floor when your informant saw the action was a burnt match."

"Hearts Have Changed Little Since Pygmalion's Time."

By CRITTENDEN MARRIOTT.

[Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.]

As Wykoff entered the parlor a young man who was warming his hands at the fire looked up.

"Hello, Wykoff!" he said languidly. "It's you, of course."

Wykoff did not seem any better pleased at the meeting than did the speaker. "Humph!" he remarked disgustedly. "I might have known I'd find you here, Meredith."

"It's mutual," returned the other, with a gesture of resignation. "I can't for the life of me see how you can afford to neglect business this way, old man. Maybe, though, you have seen Forbes this morning."

Wykoff shook his head. He did not seem in the least interested.

"He was looking for you," went on Meredith. "I don't know what he wanted, but I imagine from his manner that it was something important. He said he would be at his office till 5 o'clock. It's nearly that now, and you had better hurry if you want to see him."

"Forbes can wait. Look here, Meredith! I'm tired of seeing you hanging around here all the time. I wish"—

Before Wykoff could explain what he wished a girl swept into the room, holding out her hands in grave welcome. "How do you do, Mr. Wykoff?" she said quietly. "How do you do, Mr. Meredith? I seem to be honored this afternoon. Will you ring for the tea, Mr. Meredith? Sit down, Mr. Wykoff. You look troubled. I hope nothing is wrong." Her tones were calm. Any one could see that she took little interest in the affairs of others.

"Wykoff isn't troubled, Miss Curtis. That's his way of expressing extravagant joy. He was just saying how pleased he was to see me here."

The girl glanced at Wykoff, who was plainly seeking for some retort—and finding none. Airy persiflage was not in his line.

"You must not tease Mr. Wykoff," she said gently. "When is that sister of yours coming to see me, Mr. Wykoff? I want"—

The sentence was never finished, for with a rush a small girl bounded into the room and flung herself on Wykoff. "Oh, Mr. Wykoff!" she cried. "Come right out and sculp my snow man. You promised you would." She caught his hand and tried to drag him to the door.

"Bessie! Let Mr. Wykoff alone," interposed Miss Curtis. "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

A gleam came into Meredith's eyes. "Out of the mouths of babes and sucklings," he quoted gayly. "Positively you are getting quite a reputation, Wykoff! Keep on and maybe you'll get a real client some day—somebody who wants to be 'sculped' in marble, to adopt Miss Bessie's charmingly expressive word."

Wykoff winced. No one knew better than he that so far he had not made a moneyed success in his art; sculptors have little honor in western America. He had known Meredith all his life and, being tongue tied himself, had greatly admired the other's glibness until he himself had become a target for it. He hesitated now, angry all through, but fearing if he spoke at all he might say more than he intended.

Little Bessie, however, had no such scruples. Deliberately she fixed her eyes on Meredith. "I don't like you," she deposed positively.

"Bessie!" Miss Curtis was scandalized.

"I can't help it, Sister Mary. I don't like him. So there!" She turned to Wykoff. "You promised," she reiterated wistfully, "and I've got a snow pile all built and"—

Reluctantly Wykoff rose. "I really did promise, Miss Curtis," he declared, "and I suppose I must keep my word."

He spoke sorrowfully, for he hated to leave the field to his rival, even though all he could do was to stand and take punishment and pretend he liked it.

But if Meredith expected to profit by the other's disappearance he reckoned without his host—or his hostess. Miss Curtis talked on in the grave, quiet way that had stirred the heart of more than one man, but she gave him no chance to bring up the question which lay nearest to his somewhat sophisticated heart—the question he had come resolved to ask before he left. Finally, when the conversation began to languish, she rose, declaring that the house was abominably hot. She insisted on going out to see what Mr. Wykoff had done with the snow man.

Meredith made no demur. Wise in the ways of women, he knew better than to try to force the conversation. In the girl's existent mood he did not fear Wykoff and welcomed rather than otherwise the chance to break some shafts of wit on what he deemed that gentleman's sluggish intellect. Wykoff, he thought, afforded an excellent foil for his own brilliancy.

When he and Miss Curtis reached the front door neither Wykoff nor little Bessie was in sight. A line of footsteps, however, led across the snow to where a clump of evergreens stood in the corner of the lawn, and toward these the girl led the way.

Her feet sank soundlessly in the deep carpet of snow, and they rounded a bush and came upon Wykoff before he heard them.

Bessie had disappeared, and Wykoff was alone for the moment—and yet not alone. Before him rose a splendid figure—the figure of a goddess or of a woman of heroic size, on whose exquisite features, smoother and fairer than ever sculptor cut from living marble, rested a look that made Mary Curtis catch her breath—the look of one who, capable of all things, was yet imprisoned in an icy shell from which no lover's kiss had called her. One arm hung by her side; the other, bare to the elbow, was raised in warning—or was it invitation? From her slim neck the Grecian drapery ran down in pure flowing lines to the trampled snow which had given her birth.

As she gazed, open eyed, Wykoff dropped his knife and stretched out his arms to the statue.

"Galatea!" he cried. "Galatea! Come to life! Come to life!" His words trailed away indistinguishably.

Meredith shook off the spell that had for an instant bound him in spite of himself and burst into a laugh that jarred.

"Bravo, Wykoff!" he cried. "That figure's great! Really, I didn't know you had it in you! It's a good likeness too! Of course it doesn't do Miss Curtis justice, but"—

"Hush!" Gently but firmly Mary Curtis pushed him aside and stepped forward. A strange new look burned in her eyes, a look of wonder, perhaps of rapture. "What were you saying of Galatea, Mr. Wykoff?" she asked gently. "I could not hear you distinctly."

"He was making love to her!" chuckled Meredith. "Fancy old Wykoff making love to a snow woman. Playing Pygmalion to an icy Galatea. You can't deny it, old man!"

Mary Curtis did not even turn her head. Her eyes were fixed on Wykoff. With a shade of wonder in them she waited for him to answer.

At last he spoke. "I don't want to deny it!" he choked. "I want to tell it! I want to cry it out so that Galatea cannot help but hear and heed. If I could say it as I think it, I know she would wake to life and answer me. But I never shall say it. I shall never dare to say it. I—"

Mary Curtis raised her hand. "Perhaps you have said it," she answered softly. "Hearts have changed little since Pygmalion's time. Perhaps Galatea may not be so frozen as you think! Perhaps"—

"Well, I'll be hanged!" Meredith was staring open mouthed at the two. "Don't mind me," he continued. "I was just going away."

Mary Curtis disengaged herself, laughing. "Don't go, Mr. Meredith," she protested. "We want you to"—

"To be our best man," interrupted Wykoff.

RHEUMATISM IN THE SYSTEM

SIX YEARS CURED IN SIX DAYS

TO MFRS. "NERVILINE."

"The suffering I endured for six years with Rheumatism is beyond description. Every time I was exposed to cold or dampness meant that I had to go to bed. My muscles stiffened, my joints swelled, and any attempt at exertion brought on excruciating twinges. The pain shifted from one part to another and I was scarcely ever free from misery and sleeplessness. I took all kinds of liquid medicines, but they nearly all depressed my heart and I had to stop them. Then I was told of the wonderful power of Nerviline.

Nerviline

"If Nerviline had been made specially for my case it couldn't have been more successful. It sank right into the core of the painful part, gave me ease, allowed me to sleep, gave me the use of my arms and limbs—in fact, made a new man of me. I urge all Rheumatics to use 'Nerviline.'

A. E. TRAYONER.
"Justice of the Peace, Lancaster."

The most wonderful pain-subduing substances in the world are in Nerviline—that's why it penetrates so quickly, why it instantly cures pain that other remedies can't even relieve. You'll be surprised how quickly sciatica, lumbago or rheumatism are cured by Nerviline—seems almost magical the way it will cure a cold or sore throat. When the chest is sore and it hurts to draw a long breath, one rubbing with Nerviline is sufficient. So highly valued is Nerviline by those who use it, that many families consider it quite as good as a doctor for aches, pains, and minor ailments of every kind. Large 25c bottles are sold by all dealers.

Curious Lore About Mandrake.

Perhaps the most extraordinary of the properties attributed to mandrake are those which it shared, in common with the rastvitrava of Russia, of enabling housebreakers to pick locks, which is certainly one of the most amusing developments of the solar theory. "Lore," it is said, "laughs at locksmiths," but the connection between the mandrake and "burgling" seems a little forced. There is a tradition that the moonwort will unshoe horses if they step upon the plant, and similar powers have been attributed to the vervain and the mandrake. It is, on the other hand, still part of the rural lore of Oxfordshire, Buckinghamshire and Hampshire that the root will improve a horse's condition, but this seems to be founded upon the identification of the mandrake with the bryony, which played such a great part in old English herbalism. It is, however, more than doubtful whether the plants belong to the same class. But both are alike in the curious wealth of legend which surrounds them. East and west meet in their folk and flower lore.—Chambers' Journal.

Harmless.

A district visitor was paying calls on the folk in a row of cottages and was shocked by the conduct of a shabbily dressed old gentleman who passed from door to door in a great rage and threatened the occupants with all manner of dire penalties.

"Dear me, what a peculiar old man!" she exclaimed to one of the tenants. "Why do you permit him to abuse you in that fashion?"

"Oh, we don't mind in the least, ma'am," answered the tenant, with a twinkle in his eyes. "We're quite used to his little ways by now. He's been a harmless lunatic for ten or eleven years."

"You don't say so! Poor old fellow! What particular form does his madness take?"

"Optimism, ma'am. He comes for the rent every Monday and actually allows himself to fancy that he'll get it!"—London Answers.

The Faust Legend.

For 1,400 years the Faust legend—the sale of a human soul to a devil—has existed. The first recorded hint of its vitality is given in the sixth century story of "Theophilus." That story suited the early Christians in their efforts to stamp out the necromancing devices of evilly disposed persons prone to seek power by unholy means. The association of the name of Faust, however, with the legend is not more than 400 years old. The likeliest prototype of the modern Faust is the man of the same name who in Cracow boldly proclaimed himself a professor of magic. In the sixteenth century stories Helen of Troy was bestowed by Mephistopheles upon Faust, and not until the middle of the eighteenth century does there appear a shadowy Margaret, in the form of a "beautiful but poor girl," who afterward develops into the Margaret of Goethe.

The Herring Catch.

Three billion herring are caught every year out of the North sea and Atlantic alone, to say nothing of the rest of the world.

A Lump of Coal.

A brooch made out of a lump of coal isn't so valuable as a diamond brooch, but it has the merit of rarity. An Englishwoman possesses one, which was carved for her by a miner with the aid of a knife and a file. The design is a star showing up against a rough cast background.

And ma is spreading feather beds to catch them when they fall.

A Remote Danger.

"These pugilists worry me," said the peace loving person.

"They talk a great deal."

"Yes. I'm in constant fear that one of them will say something that will start a fight."—Washington Star.

Pottery is probably the oldest of the world's arts. Every people almost has practiced the making of earthenware, however rudely, but the oldest known pottery is that of the Egyptians. A SHILLING PER WEEK

PRINCE EDWARD GOT THIS FOR POCKET MONEY.

Young Heir to the Throne of Britain While at Osborne Has Had No Privileges Over the Ordinary Lad—In Engine Shops He Has to Learn How to Make Things With His Hands—Is Immensely Popular.

It is said that when King Haakon VII. of Norway presented himself for the first time on the Dromning Louise as a naval cadet—"a small boy with a big canvas bag full of sea clothes on his shoulder"—he was accosted by the sentry with, "Who goes there?" The young prince dropped his bag in sheer fright, and it would have fallen overboard if the sentry had not caught it. After, in fear and trembling, the boy had been induced to give his name and number, the sentry turned to the officer on duty with these words: "Officer on guard, I report a skinny little enemy outside who's only got a name in front—and a poor one, too—and none behind. He doesn't know anything, and he looks it fore and aft."

Such was the introduction to the Danish navy of the future King of Norway; and although Prince Edward of Wales, the coming King of England, had no such humiliating initiation as a sailor-boy, since his royal father himself took him to Osborne to introduce him to his new career, he quickly found that a King in embryo was of no more account there than the son of a merchant or of a half-pay officer.

When his father and uncle, Prince Albert Victor, went through a similar training on the Britannia thirty years earlier they had to stow away their clothes like their fellow-middies; they attended the same classes, messed, played, and drilled with them. Indeed, the only privilege they enjoyed was that their hammocks were slung behind a separate bulkhead. And so it was with Prince Edward at Osborne through two years of learning the mysteries of sail-drill, knotting and splicing, and all the other occupations of a junior naval cadet.

From this 'prentice stage Prince Edward has emerged with considerable credit into the second stage of his training as a sailor at the Dartmouth Royal Naval College, the magnificent and imposing building which dominates some of the most glorious scenery in Devonshire.

At Dartmouth budding admirals and captains complete their training for the sea—in the engineering shops, the class-rooms, and on a training-cruiser. Some little distance from the main block of the college are the mechanical instructional workshops, equipped with a remarkably fine engineering and fitting plant, with the practical use of which the cadet is taught to familiarize himself. In these shops, in which he revels, our future Sovereign plays the somewhat grimy role of mechanic, learning to fashion with his royal hands a bar of rough steel into a polished spindle, or to make a joint that will resist a steam-pressure of, say, 300 pounds, on the square inch. The whirr of the complex machinery is music to him, and his mechanical skill is said to surprise his instructors.

The gymnasium is a spacious hall standing at a distance of a few hundred yards from the main block of buildings. Here it is that a staff of skilled instructors supervise the physical development of the cadets throughout their sojourn at the college, in conformity with all the most approved principles of hygienic exercise.

But the pride of the Royal Naval College is the beagle pack, which is famous everywhere in the surrounding countryside.

The kennels are on the brow of the hill, near the playing fields, and the average strength of their inmates for some years has been about twenty couples. Throughout the season meets are held every half-holiday at various places up to a distance of five miles from the college. The commander of the college is master of the hunt, and his helpers usually consist of twelve cadets, selected principally on account of being very fleet on foot. In the gymnasium and in following the hounds of both of which he is passionately fond, Prince Edward more than holds his own with his fellows of the same age as himself.

At Osborne the prince fared exactly as the other cadets, had the same hours of study, the same food and accommodation, and, like the other boys, a shilling a week as pocket-money, and no "tuck shop" account allowed. At Dartmouth he is lodged in a block which opens from a main corridor one-eighth of a mile long, and shares the common gun-room known as the St. Vincent. He occupies a dormitory with twenty-nine other cadets, the beds in which are placed head to head lengthwise down the room at three-yard intervals.

Discipline is strict, and from "turn out" at 6.50 in the morning until "turn in" at 9.10 in the evening the cadets are under constant supervision, and are for the most part kept fully occupied, either in study or exercise. Wednesday and Saturday afternoons are given over entirely to recreation—except in the case of defaulters, who have to do punishment drill.

To say that the prince is immensely popular with his fellow-cadets is to say what is literally true. As one of them said to the writer, "He never puts on the least side, and is as simple, jolly, and good-hearted a chap as we've got in the college."

Made From a Leaf.

The tailor bird of India, a tiny yellow creature, makes a most curious nest. To escape snakes and monkeys, this bird takes a dead leaf, flies up into a tree, and with a fibre for a thread and its bill for a needle sews the leaf to a green one hanging from the tree; the sides are sewn up, an opening to the nest thus formed being left at the top. The leaf, apparently hanging from a twig, would never be taken for a nest.

British Parcel Post.

Apples as Omens.

In parts of England many quaint superstitions still center round the apple. Apples hung on strings and twirled before the fire are said to fall off in the order that the marriages of the various owners will proceed. An apple eaten before a looking glass is supposed to give a view of the inquirer's future husband, who will be seen peeping over milady's shoulder. Peel safely taken from an apple, tossed three times round the head and thrown to the ground unbroken forms the first letter of a future lover's name. A more recent, though hardly more serious, custom necessitates a bowl of water in which are floating a number of apples. Mothers must drop forks into the bowl from a distance of about four feet. If the fork pierces an apple the feat is believed to protect the performer's children from catching cold.—London Scraps.

Early English Scare.

In 1370 a report was circulated that "certain galleys, with a multitude of armed men therein, were lying off the foreland of Thanet," and an order was at once issued that "every night watch shall be kept between the Tower of London and Billingsgate, with forty men at arms and sixty archers." The watch was kept in the following order: "Tuesday, the drapers and the tailors; Wednesday, the mercers and the apothecaries; Thursday, the fishmongers and the butchers; Friday, the pewterers and the vintners; Saturday, the goldsmiths and the saddlers; Sunday, the ironmongers, the armorers and the cutlers; Monday, the fawers, the spurriers, the bowyers and the girdlers." Even in 1616 pirate vessels were captured off the Kentish coast, between Broadstairs and Margate.—London Chronicle.

The Label Language.

"There's a language in hotel labels, the same as in stamps or flowers," said a courier. "All over Europe the hotel porters paste the hotel labels on your trunks in such a way that the porters in future towns will know what sort of a tipper you are.

"Up at the top of the trunk the label means you are generous. In the middle it means you're a middling sort. Down very low it means you are no good."

Willing to Help.

"Ma, what are the folks in our church gettin' up a subscription for?"

"To send our minister on a vacation to Europe."

"Won't there be no church services while he's gone?"

"No, dear."

"Ma, I got $1.23 in my bank. Can I give that?"—Cleveland Leader.

Franklin and the Balloon.

When the balloon was first discovered some one said to Franklin, "What will ever come of it?" Franklin pointed to a baby in its cradle and said, "And what will ever come of that?"

Animals and Instinct.

It is a mistake to imagine that animals are prevented by instinct from eating injurious food. A chicken will drink paint; a cow partakes of water in which noxious chemicals have been washed; ducks cheerfully swallow metals and choke themselves in the process. No; animals, like children, need watching.

Recently numerous cases of poisoning in ducks, which followed the consumption of cabbage leaves, have attracted much attention. A few hours after feeding poisoning has manifested itself by loss of appetite, great weakness, faltering steps and sometimes death. From time immemorial ducks have thrived on cabbage leaves. The poultry farmers were greatly puzzled.

Then it was discovered that various caterpillars were concealed in the cabbage leaves; hence these tears. But the point is that, far from instinctively detecting any danger and behaving accordingly, the ducks consumed great quantities of the leaves with much apparent relish.—London Answers.

Pleasure and Sacrifice.

An alert little five-year-old was visiting a city park with her mother for the first time. She had noticed the beautiful red and white swan boats as they passed through in the morning, and her mother had promised they should come back after the shopping was done and have a ride.

Shortly after dinner they stood on the bridge over the lagoon watching the boats below and listening to the cry of the barker as he tried to induce the passing crowds to patronize his swan boats.

But when her mother started toward the boat landing little Elsie declared very vigorously that she did not want to go at all and, as her mother urged her, broke forth in tears.

This sudden fear was so different from her former eagerness that her mother could not understand it until she noticed the boatman's call.

He was crying: "Come along! Come along! Ride clear round the pond. Only 5 cents for ladies and gents! Children thrown in!"

Why He Was Deaf.

Landlord—Weel, ye see, the beasts 'll be tired, an'—

Farmer—Gang awa' wi' ye an' yer beasts!

Blacksmith—Man, John, ye're gettin' as deaf as a doorpost. It wasna' a horse, but a bottle o' whisky, the man was askin' for.

Landlord—Ou, aye, I heard him fine, but he didna' pay for the last bottle he got.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Order of the Bath.

The last Knights of the Bath made according to the ancient forms were at the coronation of Charles II., when various rites and ceremonies, one of which was bathing, were enforced.

According to Froissart, the court barber prepared a bath, and the candidate for membership in the order, having been undressed by his esquires, was thereupon placed in the bath, his clothes and collars being the perquisites of the barber. He was then removed from the water to the words "May this be an honorable bath to you" and was placed in a plain bed quite wet and naked to dry. As soon as he was quite dry he was removed from the bed, dressed in new and rich apparel and conducted by his sponsors to the chapel, where he offered a taper to the honor of God and a penny piece to the honor of the king. Then he went to the monarch and, kneeling before him, received from the royal sword a tap on the shoulder, the king exclaiming, "Arise, Sir ——," and then embraced him, saying, "Be thou a good knight, and true."—London Strand Magazine.

ANAEMIA

Pale Cheeks, Bad Color

Chlorosis or anaemia is simply thinness of blood.

If confined too much indoors, anaemia develops, because the lungs are insufficiently supplied with oxygen, and the blood is consequently ill-nourished and half-starved.

EVERY ATHLETE NEEDS OXO

The eminent scientist, Kobert, one of the greatest authorities on food values, proved that one of the constituents of OXO has the remarkable power of removing the effects of muscular fatigue, thus enabling a tired muscle to become active again.

In other words, a cup of OXO during or after strenuous exertion whips up the tired muscles into their normal condition again. It replaces the vitality and vigor which a man has lost, and makes him feel just as fit as he did at the start.

This is the scientific reason why OXO is invaluable to all sportsmen and athletes.

Nothing can take the place of OXO because nothing else is so good.

In Great Britain, where OXO is so well known, oarsmen, runners, walkers, swimmers and whole football teams train on OXO and use it whenever possible during their contests.

OXO has just been introduced into this country and Canadian athletes can now profit from the strength and stamina which it gives.

Never, perhaps, were the feelings of Mr. Joseph Chamberlain's Birmingham partisans aroused so much as in the spring of 1882. Just before the Phoenix Park murders, and at a time when there was much hostility towards Mr. Chamberlain himself on the part of many Liberals, who believed he was acting contrary to the interests of the party, two of his brothers were nominated as candidates for the Reform Club.

It was an unfortunate moment, for they were blackballed, and, to quote from Sir Wemyss Reid's "Memoirs," "great was the ferment that arose in consequence. In Birmingham the action of the Reform Club was regarded as an outrageous insult not only to Mr. Chamberlain himself, but to that section of the Liberal party to which he then belonged. 'The good people of Birmingham are simply furious,' wrote Mr. Chamberlain to a friend, 'and they even talk of marching upon London.'

"It was an astounding assertion, but Mr. Chamberlain's organs in the Birmingham press dealt with the blackballing of his brothers in such a fashion as almost to warrant the expectation that Pall Mall would be invaded and the Reform Club sacked if it did not repent in dust and ashes the affront it had offered to the leader of Birmingham Radicalism. Nothing less would suit Mr. Chamberlain and his friends, as an atonement for the misdeeds of the club, than such an alteration in the rules as would deprive the members of the power of blackballing candidates by transferring the elections from the club at large to a special election committee.

A resolution to this effect was proposed by Lord Hartington and carried by a small majority. Then a ballot of the whole club was demanded to settle the question finally.

When the ballot took place it was seen that the feeling of the club as a whole was distinctly adverse to the proposed change of rules, and Lord Hartington's resolution was rejected by a large majority. Shortly afterwards Mr. Chamberlain resigned his membership of the Reform Club.

An Oyster For Two.

We laugh at the innocent young woman who ordered "half a dozen halibut" for dinner. Had she lived in the South Pacific Islands, she might have been equally laughed at for ordering half a dozen oysters—not to say a pint. The author of "Oysters, and All About Them" gives some examples that nearly match the giant clams and abalones of the California coast.

Pliny mentions that, according to the historians of Alexander's expedition, oysters a foot in diameter were found in the Indian Seas, and Sir James E. Tennent was unexpectedly enabled to corroborate the correctness of this statement, for at Kottier, near Trincomalee, enormous specimens of edible oysters were brought to the rest house. One measured more than eleven inches in length by half as many in width.

But this extraordinary measurement is beaten by the oysters of Port Lincoln in South Australia, which are the largest edible ones in the world. They are as large as a dinner-plate, and of much the same shape. They are sometimes more than a foot across the shell, and the oyster fits his habitation so well that he does not leave much margin.

It is a new sensation, when a friend asks you to lunch at Adelaide, to have one oyster fried in butter, or in eggs and bread crumbs, set before you, but it is a very pleasant experience; for the flavor and delicacy of the Port Lincoln mammoth are proverbial, even in that land of luxuries.

Dangers of Posties.

Giving evidence recently before the postal commission in Sydney, Australia, Patrick Phillips, vice-president of the Letter Sorters' Association, stated that during the last twenty years 80 per cent. of the deaths among letter-sorters had been due to tuberculosis. The men contracted the disease after they entered the service. Mail matter came from every part of the world, and necessarily included a vast amount of infected material. Consumptives licked stamps and envelopes, and a letter might come into the sorting room with enough germs to poison the whole staff.

DUMMIES.

Optical Delusions Used Honestly and Otherwise.

Sham packages in London shops are the most familiar form of "dummy." Tobacconists' windows teem with them. Some are filled practically with nothing else, save a few pipes, pouches, and walking-sticks.

These pretended goods are made to fold flat, to take up little space till opened out for display, and certain firms send their professional window-dressers every few weeks to arrange customers' shop windows with dummies free of charge.

The packet tea trade has its dummies, as the Thames Police Court has testified. The defendant—a grocer—had opened a dummy packet supplied to him, put inferior tea inside, and sold it at the full price when asked for the advertised article. He was convicted.

Large East-End licensed premises caught fire after closing time one Saturday night. The fire brigade arrived, but there was delay in turning on the water at the main. Aroused from sleep, the manager, in his excitement, took down bottles to shurl upon the blaze.

"Stop! Spirits will only add fuel to the flames!" shouted the firemen. But the dozens of show bottles contained only colored water, and with these hand-grenades the outbreak was subdued.

A maker of nicely-painted lead plums did a fair trade with costermongers in summer-time. The lead plum was used to weigh down real plums, and then taken out again as being "one too many."

These ingenious artificial fruits sold for a shilling apiece, and when the authorities called the artist to account he had the audacity to describe himself as plumber!

Dummy cocoanuts figure frequently at fairs and similar gatherings. They save cocoanut-shy proprietors outlay, for being very heavy they do not get knocked down. At Nuneaton, the other day a "shy" lady and her son were fined $17 for obtaining money by false pretences. Four of the "nuts" on the front row were solid balls of iron, weighing several pounds each.

Wearing a caped coat, pickpockets sometimes work with a dummy arm. In train, tramcar, or omnibus, the gloved wooden hand is placed on its user's knee, while his real hand is busy looting his neighbor's pockets under cover of the cape. Many police museums contain specimens of these.

In dealing with dummies, notice must be made of, perhaps, the most famous and dangerous of them all—Bank of Engraving notes. The "official" description of these is both interesting and cautionary.

Bank of Engraving notes are exact fac-similes of Bank of England notes, with the exception that the word "Engraving" appears in the place of "England." The nature of the paper, color of the ink, and style of printing are identical with those of the genuine bank note. The possession of Bank of Engraving notes is not a criminal offence; but persons found with these notes upon them are regarded with suspicion by the police.

The notes are usually carried by card-sharpers, racecourse thieves, and swell mobsman, and are easily disposed of to unsuspecting persons, who seldom receive money in the form of banknotes.

At a recent London exhibition—not indicated—an exhibitor — nameless — decked out his stall with dummies, representing the goods of his firm. An inexperienced lady assistant one evening made the dual mistake of supplying double-sized, sawdust-filled dummies to the public for the real article. They sold to so many customers that, for his safety's sake, the proprietor deemed it wiser not to open again.

Intrepid Arrow.

Inspector Arrow, late of Scotland Yard, whose return from Barcelona before the expiration of his contract has caused some surprise, has met with strenuous opposition from some sections of the Spanish public since he went out, a couple of years ago, to organise a new police service, of which he was to be the chief, with a salary of $5,000 a year.

Shortly after he arrived in Barcelona a huge meeting was held in one of the big theatres to protest against the new police organization, and it wasn't long before the meeting became a riot, chairs being thrown about, and heavy blows dealt with sticks.

The cry had been raised that Arrow's spies were in the building. They weren't; but a young man was shot dead before the meeting broke up.

Inspector Arrow has effected many dramatic arrests in his time. On one occasion he entered a gambling club off Tottenham Court Road alone, his companion officers having the door slammed in their faces; but he didn't hesitate to push through, seize the cards, the bank, and other evidences of gambling, and then coolly informed the men—most of them aliens—that they were his prisoners.

MURDEROUS MISTS.

Storms Throughout the Empire That Bring Death In Their Wake.

The "London particular" is not only unpleasant to endure, but also extremely dangerous to human health. Continuous fog makes much work for both doctor and undertaker in the metropolis and other large centres of population.

Fog is dreaded, moreover, by ship captains even more than a gale.

Supposed by many to be chiefly confined to northern latitudes; but this is a mistaken idea.

Steamers from the Cape occasionally encounter fog of the most impenetrable character, caused not by moisture in the air, but by dust blown out to sea from the continent of Africa.

Not many months ago, the steamer Dunolly Castle ran into a fog of this kind when only 20 miles north of the equator, and steamed through it for three days and nights. It was so dark that for many hours it was impossible to see from one end of the vessel to the other.

Another steamer, the Springfield, lost her way in this strange dust fog, the material of which came from the Sahara, more than 200 miles away, and was wrecked.

Less known than either these types of storms is the so-called "white death" of the Klondyke. This is a fog in which the whole air becomes full of minute particles of ice. It is thick beyond belief, and exposure to it for any length of time in the open means certain death to human beings.

In the Rocky Mountains hailstorms of appalling severity are not uncommon—so heavy that they are actually dangerous to human life. But it is a place called Timaru, in New Zealand, which boasts the record hailstorm. That was in November two years ago.

A gentleman caught in it described how, to save his horse, he was forced to cover the animal with his rugs, the carriage mat, and cushions. He himself would have been killed but for covering his own head with a cushion.

During the quarter of an hour the storm lasted the vehicle was filled to overflowing with hailstones the size of hens' eggs.

Bogus Coin for Africa.

According to a Johannesburg journal, a number of continental crooks are engaged in running a mint, which has its headquarters in Germany, for the purpose of making and conveying counterfeit gold coins to Africa. It is stated that discs of gunmetal are cut almost the size of half sovereigns and sovereigns, and covered with gold. The pieces are turned out perfectly "milled," and of the exact weight of the ordinary current coin. These coins are taken by a traveler, who is going out on "commission" to Africa. He arrives with a packet of a hundred or two of sovereigns. For safe keeping he places these in the hands of the purser, and is often a well-behaved, thrifty passenger on the liner. On arrival at Cape Town or Durban the traveler obtains his "money" from the purser, and the rest is an easy matter. In various bars, and by making purchases, the "money" is soon in circulation. Banks are deceived, for the coins are the exact weight of the genuine currency. Money is so easily handled in Africa that it has for a long time been made a dumping ground by these foreigners, who are said to make a profit of about five shillings out of every "half-sovereign."

England's Premier Duke.

While many noble families proudly boast their descent from knights that came over with the conqueror, the Duke of Norfolk can trace his back to at least a century before this.

But the family has sustained numerous catastrophes almost unparalleled in the history of any other noble house. The first Duke of Norfolk led the van of Richard III.'s army at Bosworth, and fell there; his son was the victor of Flodden Field, but his grandson was beheaded by Henry VIII.; the fourth duke held communication with Mary Queen of Scots, and was also beheaded, and his son died a prisoner in the Tower. The present duke's first wife died ten years after marriage, and their only son, delicate from birth, died in 1909.

The Duke of Norfolk is the premier duke after the princes of the Blood-Royal, and he owns about 49,900 acres. His Grace recently sold the Holbein "Duchess" to a firm of art dealers for $330,000, and it was ultimately bought for the nation for $360,000.

A Snake Astray.

Lately a lady living at Wood Green, North London, Eng., discovered in her children's bedroom a live snake. Looking into the dormitory at midnight to ascertain if her little ones were all right, she saw what was apparently a stocking on the floor; but, as she was about to pick it up, she saw it was a snake, nearly a yard long. She screamed out for her husband, and the intruder was secured with a pair of tongs and killed.

PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, ECZEMA, SALT RHEUM

These disfiguring skin diseases are caused by impure blood, which becomes disordered through Imperfect Digestion, Torpid Liver, or Inactive Kidneys. The pores of the skin close up, poisonous accumulations which should be eliminated are retained, and weaken and putrify the blood. Ferrozone has a specific action on blood impurities and drives them quickly from the system. It stimulates the Kidneys and Liver to healthy action, neutralizes Uric acid, keeps the pores of the skin open, and destroys germs. Ferrozone is a specific for every form of skin disease, and is used with astonishing success the world over. It acts directly on the blood, freeing it of the foul matter that breaks out in such painful and distressing blemishes. There are no unpleasant after-effects from Ferrozone, which does not depress the heart, and is free from Mercury, Potash, and harmful drugs. By using Ferrozone you have the BEST treatment for Skin Diseases and Blood Disorders. No doctor can prescribe anything better, probably nothing so good. Price 50 cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50. Sold everywhere by druggists.

"For five years my face was disfigured by raw, bleeding eruptions, that resisted all treatment. Three Kingston doctors did their best for me, but failed. I used Ferrozone and was perfectly cured."

The King's Cigar.

Amongst the reminiscences of Rev. Arthur Mursell, of Stockwell Baptist Church, who is retiring after more than fifty years in the ministry, is a story of how he smoked, but failed to enjoy, one of the King's cigars. "I was traveling to the North," says Mr. Mursell, "and the King, or Prince of Wales as he then was, was traveling to Sandringham. Our train had stopped just outside one of the North London stations to let the royal train pass, and for a few moments His Majesty's carriage was pulled up exactly opposite the one I was occupying. Seeing the Prince of Wales sitting opposite me I pulled off my hat. Although he kept motioning me to put it on again, I naturally refused to do so until he had gone on. A few moments later the guard of my train came along with a great long cigar, and asked me if I was the gentleman who had been sitting opposite the Prince of Wales' carriage. When I answered in the affirmative he handed me the cigar, 'with His Royal Highness' compliments.' I smoked it, of course, but it did make me bad. Oh, yes, it was a beauty—too good for a humble person like myself. That was the trouble."

The Kew Gardens Storks.

In their curious nest between the elm trees on the mound near No. 1 Museum at Kew Gardens the storks have this year successfully hatched out four fledglings, but they killed the two weakest, seemingly sharing the opinion of Plato that all delicate children should be put to death. The young storklets retained in the Gardens from former broods have this year been seized by a desire to try the domestic life, and attempted to turn the mound into a congested district by rearing a family in the parental nest. They have been ruthlessly ejected by the old birds, and the kind rulers of Kew are furnishing them with a fresh home.

Keeping Up His Reputation.

A friend who lived in another city had repeatedly promised our children one of his fine dogs, which, as he never lost an opportunity to remark, had an unusually long pedigree.

One day as I was returning home the children ran to meet me, and one of them cried, "Oh, sister, Mr. R—— has sent the dog. Do come back to the stable to see it. It has the longest pedigree, and it just wags it, too cute."—Delineator.

Life Rings on Mountains.

A remarkable example of the way in which a mountain may afford on a small scale an image of the earth's climates arranged in successively higher circles has been found by Dr. P. Lowell in the San Francisco peaks. These, which are ancient volcanoes, rise out of a plateau having a mean elevation of 7,000 feet above sea level. The peaks are encircled with zones of vegetation, which run almost like contour lines round them. Between 6,500 and 8,500 feet the yellow pine is the dominant tree. From 8,500 to 10,300 feet the Douglas fir, the silver fir, the cork fir and the aspen share the available ground. Between 10,300 and 11,500 feet the Engelmann spruce and the fox tail pine take possession and ascend to the tree limit.—Youth's Companion.

Long Lived Birds.

The Duchess of Bedford in "British Birds" gives some remarkable instances of longevity among birds in her own collection. A Barbary dove which has been in the duchess' possession for fifteen years was left her by an old woman who also owned it for fifteen years and who always said it was an old bird when it was given to her. A Chinese goose has been in the possession of the family for fifty-seven years. A pintail drake which the duchess bought twenty years ago, when it was an adult bird, still survives. The bird was taken from the nest in 1852 and died in 1900. "It was chained by the leg to a small hutch," says the duchess, "and lived forty-eight years under these miserable conditions."

The Era of Preventive Medicine.

The era of preventive medicine has barely dawned. Statesmen are beginning to open their eyes to the vast importance of conserving the health of the nation in order to insure its civic integrity and permanence. The industrial world is not only no longer unwillingly yielding to wise laws designed to safeguard the health of the laboring classes, but is actually initiating of its own volition measures for improving the physical welfare, and therefore indirectly the educational authorities are beginning to focus their attention upon the bodily health of the child, for without this all efforts at mental training are worse than useless.—Philadelphia Record.

HALLEY'S COMET.

It May Come Blazing In Splendor or Comparatively Insignificant.

The biggest free show that this generation will have seen will soon be given. Its arena will be high up in the sky, where everybody may see it, and there will be no need of crowding. It will be a one star show, the return of Halley's comet. The last time it was seen by the people on earth was in 1835, and it is now in the last stages of a journey of 6,800,000,000 miles, which had to be made to play this return date.

Again, notwithstanding the advance of science, fear will mingle with wonder at its apparition. A thrill of apprehension will be felt by millions who see its fiery head plowing through the stars and its sword shaped tail brandished over the earth, as if monitory of unknown and unavoidable evil.

Astronomers have calculated that Halley's comet must have crossed inside the orbital distance of Jupiter from the sun about the 1st of last January. In the middle of January its distance from the earth was estimated at 440,000,000 miles. During the late fall it is expected to become visible to the naked eye after having for months before been photographed and studied with telescopes. It will slowly brighten during next winter, being visible from nearly all parts of the earth.

Gradually approaching the sun, it will make its perihelion passage at a distance of about 66,000,000 miles from the solar globe on the 13th of next April. Its greatest brightness is expected to occur after the perihelion passage, when it will draw nearer the earth and be visible in both the evening and the morning sky. But at that time it will be south of the celestial equator and consequently better seen from the southern hemisphere. About May 18 the comet will be only 12,000,000 or 13,000,000 miles from the earth, although for more than a month it will have been retreating from the sun.

Just what its appearance will be no one can predict. It is the Proteus of space. It may blaze with amazing splendor, as it did when trembling Europe saw in it an avatar of the conquering sword of the prophet of Mecca, or it may be relatively insignificant. But in any event it will fix the attention of mankind and for astronomers will be the most interesting phenomenon seen in the sky for many decades.

The returns of Halley's comet have recently been traced back to the year 240 B. C., but it has probably been revolving in its elliptical orbit very much longer than that.

Halley's discovery after its appearance in 1682 that it was a regular visitor to the neighborhood of the sun has always ranked as one of the capital triumphs of astronomy. His suspicion that the comet of 1682 was not paying its first visit to the sun was based upon the similarity between its orbit in space and the orbits of two other comets which had appeared in 1007 and 1531 respectively. (He did not guess its identity with the comets of 1456 and 1066.) If the three were identical, then the same comet ought to return again after another interval of about twenty-six years. Accordingly Halley ventured the prediction that the comet would be back again in 1758. He died in 1742, seventeen years before the fulfillment of his prophecy.—Garrett P. Serviss in Hampton's Magazine.

Was Weak and Nervous.

Heart Would Stop Beating.

Mr. Paul Poull, Cascapedia, Que., writes:—"About five years ago I gave up all hope of getting better of heart trouble. I would nearly choke, and then my heart would stop beating. I could not lie on my left side, and became so nervous and weak I could not work. A friend told me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and before the first box was taken I was almost well, and the second box completed the cure. I have advised many others to try them, and they have all been cured of the same trouble. I have offered to pay for a box for anybody they do not cure."

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are a specific for all diseases or disorders arising from the heart or nerve system. They make the weak heart strong and the shaky nerves firm by imparting a strengthening and restorative influence to every organ, and tissue of the body and curing palpitation of the heart, dizziness, sleeplessness, anaemia, twitching of the muscles, sensation of "pins and needles," general debility, lack of vitality, etc.

Paul a Prisoner — The Shipwreck. Acts xxvii: 27 to xxviii: 10.

Golden Text—The Lord redeemeth the soul of his servants; and none of them that trust in him shall be desolate. Ps. xxxiv: 22.

Verses 27-27.—Why does God permit storm and stress to come into most lives, and sometimes permits them to continue until all human hope is abandoned? (This question must be answered in writing by members of the club.)

What is the Christian's anchor which never fails him, no matter what danger his ship may be in? (See Heb. vi: 19.)

Verses 30-32.—Are all God's promises of help or deliverance conditional, or are some of them absolute and unconditioned?

If these men had forsaken the ship, as they planned, how would that affect the saving of the rest of them?

Here is a case of casting away a boat to save a ship, what principle does that suggest in human life?

Verses 33-38.—There are two things at least, possible no matter how great the distress; one is to wring your hands and bemoan your fate, and give up hope; the other is to be cheerful, and see how best to save the ship; which is the better, and how can it be accomplished?

Why is it that the courage and good cheer of one man can save an entire crew from despondency and defeat?

May praying and fasting, when you ought to be eating and working, be as great a practical crime as scuttling the ship?

Why does God personally need our help when he would save us from any impending calamity? (v. 38.

Verses 39-44.—To a true man is it always so, that after the night comes the day, after sorrow comes joy, and after so-called defeat comes victory?

Does God, in these days, ever save a family, a business, a community, or a nation, for the sake of one man as he saved the passengers and crew of the ship for the sake of Paul?

Julius prevented the killing of the prisoners for the sake of Paul; is there any analogy between that and the saving of sinners for the sake of Jesus?

God told Paul that all hands should be saved, and the ship lost, and this is what happened; speaking from your own experience are all God's promises equally dependable, whether of a general character as in the Bible, or given to the individual soul?

Verse 2.—Are uncivilized people before they have had experience with white men, generally kind to strangers?

Verses 3-4.—When an accident or sickness, or other natural calamity comes to a man, is it any sure sign that he is a sinner?

Verses 5-6.—If a poisonous viper should fasten on a good man's hand today, God would probably not prevent the poison from taking effect; is that a fact to be regretted or otherwise?

Verses 7-10. — Is there always "a silver lining to every dark cloud?"

Are there any circumstances in which a good man cannot help his fellows?

Lesson from Sunday, Nov. 14th, 1909. Paul a prisoner in Rome. Acts xxviii: 11-31.

The Magistrate in Port Hope sent a person to jail for taking his hat off to a lady whom he did not know. If the Port Hope people are so solicitous concerning the behaviour of outsiders to their womankind they might at the same time turn their attention to the reforming of the manners of some of those who live within their borders towards such as are strangers within the gates.

A few days ago some ladies and gentlemen from Peterborough and the vicinity journeyed to Port Hope for the day. They went to one of the best known of the hotels for dinner. In the course of the meal, one of the ladies noticing a waitress deftly poising a tray on her fingers, remarked to her companion that it was wonderful how one could balance so heavy a thing so well. The remark was made in the most inoffensive manner, and not intended for the damsel's ear at all; but she turned round sharply and snapped out so that almost everyone could hear: "Say, if you don't shut your mouth, I'll smash your face for you."

If an hotel proprietor wishes to gain the approval of the travelling public he should certainly take some care in the selection and supervision of female help in his establishment.

In the early part of the week there was a letter from gentleman published in the Examiner, in which he condemned the moving picture shows on account of the bad effect they are liable to produce on the minds of the youth of both sexes by reason of the sensationalism they depict. There are many who do not care for the blood and thunder species of drama, whether illustrated on the stage, in a picture show or in a book, but as to whether it hurts the morals of those who witness it in a biograph entertainment is certainly open to question. Whilst some people may agree with the sentiments of the writer of the letter alluded to, there are very many who do not, for these pictures almost invariably depict vice dethroned and virtue triumphant, and they argue that so telling a way of showing the absolute folly of vice is as good as a sermon to such as may never see the inside of a church.

Again, moving pictures have a great educational value. Granting that many of them are in vulgar parlance "fakes," there are yet very many that are most interesting and instructive. This one point alone makes the moving picture show of inestimable value to those who have never had the advantage of a good education. But a still greater point in their favour is that they have been the means of acting as a counter attraction to the bar, and have kept many men away from the temptation of drink. United States statistics show this plainly, and it is beyond cavil or question.

It goes without saying that a biograph show in improper hands may be made the vehicle of much that is undesirable, but under proper management, where vaudeville and pictures are presented in orderliness and decency, they deserve to be encouraged and patronized, rather than frowned upon.

The reverend gentleman who gave his opinion on the athletic question a few days ago has raised a hornet's nest about his ears. We gave a faint buzz on the subject ourselves last week. But since writing that paragraph we have been thinking on the subject and wondering if the gentleman in question had amateur or professional athletics in his mind, when he spoke. There is a vast difference between the two branches. For one thing, amateur sport precludes the money question, and thus shuts out, or ought to, those evil demons that are always raised up where filthy lucre, is concerned. There have been cases, of course, where, even in amateur athletics the element of gambling has crept in, with the result that certain men have thrown down those who were backing them to win. It must be borne in mind, however, that this sort of thing is the exception and not the rule, and that amateur sport stands as it is meant to, for all that is straightforward and manly in athletics. Sports and pastimes have to be judged by the same rules that apply to all sorts and conditions in the affairs of life. A merchant who is not honest loses his custom. A clergyman who does not practise what he preaches loses the confidence of his parishioners, and the sportsman who does not play a straightforward game quickly becomes a byeword and his name stinks in the nostrils of all who favour clean athletics. A man is either a pessimist or a simpleton of the first water who judges a whole class by the actions of a few, or by the bad effect one or two branches of sport seem to have on those who engage in them. There are very many straight sportsmen in professionalism, and certainly very many in the amateur field.

In saying this much for sport, however, there is one thing to be noted. There is not the least doubt but that in certain branches of athletics in Canada a larger conception of the sense of fair play is needed. There is too much of the win at any price spirit evident in two or three of our sports. In football, for example, we have seen masters in schools coaching their young scholars in all sorts of sharp tricks and encouraging them in offside play. When those who should know better do this sort of thing there is not much hope for the youngsters gaining a desire for higher ideals. But this again is to be credited to a defective conception of the true meaning of the game and not to any inherent fault in the game itself. With the ideal of fair play before one and a constant straining towards that ideal it would not be long before we possessed a set of athletes in Canada who would in every way be the peers of any in the universe.

KIDNEY TROUBLES
Are Overcome By
Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills

The kidneys have a very important work to perform in preserving health. All the blood passes through them over and over again and they filter it, removing all the impurities and worn-out muscle and tissue which the blood gathers up, in microscopic particles, in its flow through the body. These impurities are then expelled through the urinary system.

When the kidneys for any reason fail to perform this function, and the impurities are left in the blood, about the most distressing series of ailments which afflict mankind follow. First there is the aching back and a feeling of weariness, and then, as conditions grow worse, comes Rheumatism, Gravel, Diabetes, Gall Stones, Inflammation of the Bladder or the dreaded Bright's Disease.

The man or woman who allows kidney trouble to develop into any of these diseases is doing himself or herself a grave injustice, particularly when a cure can be had so readily. One of the constituents of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills is a Diuretic, which strengthens and stimulates the kidneys, enabling them to do their work thoroughly and with ease. These Pills also increase the action of the bowels and the pores of the skin, which remove some of the impurities, thus lightening the work of the kidneys.

Mr. Geo. Whitney, of Buffalo, N.Y., says they worked wonders for him. He writes:

"Your Doctor Morse's Indian Root Pills have worked wonders in my case. I suffered for six years from liver trouble and kidney ailment. If I tried one medicine I tried a dozen, but without good results. Your pills were recommended and they cured me after using four boxes."

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills should be taken at the first sign of back-ache, of rheumatism, or of any difficulty in urinating.

PUBLIC ATTITUDE TOWARDS GOOD MUSIC

Love, especially in its beginning, is a sentiment so subtle and delicate that its expression has always been a difficulty to human nature so sensitive and tongue tied in its foolish delicious youth. Perhaps a book, or with care, given with significance, may first carry the tender message; perhaps a flower, though now, alas! while botany, with its ugly Latin names, is taught in the schools, the pretty language once associated with the blossoms of garden and field has ceased to be understood. When the young man wears peach blossoms in his buttonhole, the young woman does not know he means to tell her, "I am your captive." Nor does the modest moss rose any longer blush a modest confession of love, writes Rosaline, in Black and White.

Some one asserted that every lover should be a musician, for in no way can love express itself more adequately than by the divinest of the arts. All the raptures and tremors one dare not utter otherwise can be conveyed so easily by song. But unfortunately I have noticed while the effect of music on the emotions is great, while it makes one long to be in love and softens one's heart toward somebody, that somebody is not necessarily the musician, and to warble melodious passion may often increase the chances of a rival. A man stated he first fell in love with the girl who is now his wife while her sister was playing Chopin. Hard times on the sister, one of the many to provide the tune for others' canoeing, and one wonders, also, if a passion inspired by sweet sounds be of the stuff that endures.

MADE A TRIP OF 300 MILES IN A SKIFF IN BRITISH COLUMBIA

Mr. Archie Shook Returns to the City After Nine Months Spent in That Province—Made a Long Stage Journey Over Old Cariboo Road.

VISITED EXPOSITION

To row from Fort St. James, on Stuart Lake, in British Columbia, to Soda Creek, a distance of three hundred miles, was the experience of a Peterborough man in the month of May last. Mr. Archie Shook, son of Mr. J. C. Shook, who just returned from nine months spent in that Province and in company with a gentleman from Spokane made the above trip in a skiff.

Mr. Shook left here early last February, going to Ashcroft. From there he drove by stage to Fort James. This journey was made over the old Caribou road, built at the time of the confederation, this being one of the conditions on which British Columbia joined the rest of the Provinces. Mr. Shook spent three months in this district inspecting some timber limits for his father. In this part of British Columbia there are not a great number of white people, the Indians forming the greater populace. Here Mr. Shook collected many curios which he brought home with him. It was returning from Fort James that he made the trip in the skiff. He came down the Stuart river to Fort George and then down the Fraser river to Soda Creek. The portages are not numerous and the trip at that season of the year was very enjoyable.

After leaving the Caribou district, Mr. Shook came on to Vancouver. He visited the Seattle exposition and Portland, Oregon. Vancouver, he stated, was a rapidly growing city, and a most desirable place to live. He also spent some time on Vancouver Island in connection with his father's timber limits. It was during his stay on the Island that he shot the duck which Mr. Escombe, the taxidermist, has on exhibition at his place. It is a very rare specimen, about the same size as an ordinary duck but having a very beautiful plumage.

BOOKS BURNED

Big Stone Gap, Va., October 30.—Under peculiarly spectacular circumstances a Methodist revival came to a close at Pennington Gap, when a number of volumes of Robert G. Ingersoll's works were publicly burned.

In the ranks of the converts were sixteen who had long stayed out of the fold and who were impregnated with the agnostic doctrines taught by Ingersoll. After their conversion it was suggested that their volumes as existed in the community should be utterly destroyed by fire, and the idea was instantly adopted. A day and hour for the novel ceremony was fixed and at the appointed time a large assemblage gathered.

Amid song and prayer the offending books were torn apart and cast into the blaze one by one.

A large number of people in town who have not received their dividend cheques from the York County Loan & Savings Company have thought it strange that all cheques did not reach Peterborough at the same time. From inquiries made by us we learn that a large number of cheques have yet to be sent out. Certain lists of depositors were not complete when the first lot of cheques were mailed. We are informed by the manager of the Bank of Ottawa that the people who left books with that Bank are likely to receive their cheques before the end of next week.

NECK BROKEN

But Man Still Lives and Physicians Hope to Save His Life.

Macon, Ga., October 30.—Lying in Macon Hospital with his neck broken by a fall from his window room, Earl Hodges, a prominent young man of this city, is fully conscious, and physicians entertain hopes of saving his life. In attempting to fasten a window shutter the young man lost his balance and fell twenty feet to a brick pavement. He was picked up and sent to the hospital.

The surgeons found complete paralysis of the entire body except the muscles of the head. The youth regained consciousness and talked coherently.

$200 INCREASE

At a largely attended meeting of the official board of the Methodist church, Campbellford, assembled on Monday evening, Nov. 1st, the salary of the minister in charge was increased $200.

Since coming here the pastor, Rev. A. J. H. Strike has endeared himself to his very large congregation. He is deservedly popular in the pulpit, in the home and among his host of friends in the town. Mrs. Strike, we believe, has no superior, and few equals as a minister's wife, and the church in all its departments of work is flourishing and this year promises to be another banner year. The church of Campbellford ranks among the best in the Bay Conference.

Rev. Mr. Strike is well known here, having at one time been principal of the East City School.

PRESENTED WITH GOLD WATCH FOB

Mr. John Roe of Ackerman's Factory Remembered by Fellow Workmen.

After the noon hour yesterday at one o'clock a number of the employees of Ackerman's Harness factory gathered to bid farewell to Mr. John Roe, who is leaving shortly for Calgary. He has been engaged as a cutter, and by his kindliness and good fellowship has won the good opinions of the other workmen. Mr. Roe was completely taken by surprise when the men gathered around him, and Mr. W. J. Devlin read the following address:

Mr. John Roe.

Dear Sir,—We learn with regret of your intended removal from amongst us to the Canadian Northwest, where you formerly made your home, and we wish to apprise you of the fact that your presence will be missed by your fellow workmen.

We appreciate your many good qualities, and have always found you a really good fellow.

As a little remembrance, kindly accept this locket, and you take with you the best wishes of all your old friends.

Mr. John LeBar made the presentation. Mr. Roe expressed his taken by surprise, but expressed his appreciation of the kindness of the men and said he would always remember the men he had worked with in the Ackerman factory.

BIG BEAR IN EAST HARVEY

Bruin of Black Persuasion Weighing 340 Lbs. Killed by Several Young Farmers in Harvey Township.

TOOK SEVERAL SHOTS

East Harvey, Nov. 5.—For some time past it has been known that bears were around. Their tracks have been seen, and occasionally a bear has been seen. A few days ago Allan Irwin's eldest son William, and his second youngest, Alfred, with a companion, Charlie Freeburn, decided to have a roam around and find what there was in the woods anyway. Alfred and Charlie are young fellows about sixteen, and William is older, and they got their rifles and cartridges and went off east of Buckborn road towards Mississauga Creek. After a while William said he would take a tour around as he was acquainted with the woods and make his way home, while the other two, with a little spaniel dog, could follow an old lumber road and so work out to the Buckhorn road. Will had not left them long when the two boys were attracted by a peculiar frightened yelp from a dog, and in a moment the pup came tearing down a knoll followed closely by a black cyclone roaring through the fallen leaves. It gave the boys a start at first, but they instantly braced themselves to receive cavalry and opened fire. Each of them let fly and the pup yelped a little more scared, and the cyclone came on. Bang, bang, again, and still the roaring fury came down through the mass of dry leaves. The scared pup leaped behind the boys for protection, and the huge black bear was within twelve feet, when the boys with good calm nerve levelled again and sent in another volley. That settled it. The bear dropped dead almost at their feet. He was a dandy, black as night, weighed 340 lbs., and as fat as butter. They were four miles from home and they had a great time getting him out. On Monday Allan went to Bobcaygeon, taking a hundred pounds of the meat and the pelt, disposing of the meat to C. Edgar, the butcher, and the pelt to Robt. Kennedy, the storekeeper.

PREFERS ATHLETES IN SCHOOLS TO FLIRTS

Judge Drummond Declares It's Football and Track Against the Dance and the Saloon.

Albany, Nov. 6.—All legitimate forms of school athletics were advocated to-day by Judge R. C. S. Drummond, of Auburn in an address at the State University Convocation saying in part:

"It is not out of a mere advocate's zeal that I speak when I assert that an experience in regulated interscholarship athletic sports of the honourable, competitive sort makes for a broad-minded, big-hearted, vigorous "fighting spirit,' which is just the thing needed in the professions, in public and in social life, and in business generally.

"The necessity of working together with others in an athletic team to gain a victory for school or college accomplishes wonders for every boy who does it. Lounging with cigarettes and cards and unclean stories in the rooms of a 'prep. school frat,' flirting and canoeing with the girls, 'swelling around' in a dress suit and shooting pool, don't beget much sturdy manliness, as does the putting forth of energy on the gridiron, track or diamond, and I believe that the majority of school teachers are beginning to realize this fact.

"It is the football field, the diamond, the track against the party, the dance, the pool parlor and the saloon. It is the open air and sturdiness of every sort against steam heat and cigarette smoke and general disintregration."

BRIDESMAIDS PROVE COSTLY

Gaily Attired Maidens Too Big a Luxury for Grooms—Girls Too Exacting in Regard To Gifts.

MEN ARE OBJECTING

London, November 6.—Prospective bridegrooms in England are determined to dispense with the services of bridesmaids at their weddings. This is because the bevy of gaily attired maidens so long a feature of smart weddings, has become too expensive a luxury.

American brides married here have insisted that their twelve attendants shall each be presented by the bridegroom with a diamond brooch costing anywhere from $250 upward, or a jewelled bangle of the same value. In several instances American brides have set up a precedent themselves by bestowing gifts on their maids. The weddings of Miss Reid, daughter of the American ambassador, and of Mrs. John Ford and her sister, Mrs. Walter Burns, are cases where this was done.

The result is that smart society bridesmaids have become most exacting and fastidious in regard to the gifts tendered for their services. On all sides it is regretted that in the future many smart society weddings will be shorn of their picturesqueness.

But the modern girl has to thank only herself for this state of affairs. The bridegroom of to-day, even when he is a rich man, resents signing checks to the tune of $2500 or $4000 for gifts to a troop of young women of whom he frequently knows little. He is putting his foot down in good solid English fashion and says he will stand no nonsense, and won't be wheedled into shovering away his money.

After the wedding of a well known baronet a few months ago the bridegroom's presents were returned by the bridesmaids. The gifts tendered were silver gilt bags of very beautiful workmanship. When sending them back the principal bridesmaid replied for the lot "that it was impossible they could think of wearing silver gilt articles."

The girls were under the impression that the man would have these bags exchanged for eighteen carat gold ones. But they made a mistake. He took the twelve bags to the shop where they had been purchased and exchanged them for a set of silver entree dishes for his wife, chuckling to himself all the time.

THE PENNY BANK IS PROSPERING

Many Schools in Ontario Towns and Cities Have Opened Accounts.

The fourth annual statement of the Penny Bank of Toronto, which has just been issued, shows the increasing interest which is taken in this institution. The school trustees in a number of places have been opposed to the opening of branches in this city, but some of the directors of the bank have visited a number of places with the result that the students have been given an opportunity to save their coppers. Not only have new towns taken up the work, but the pupils in those places where the banks have already been established, have shown greater interest in their deposits than ever before. Thus the deposits from the Public School pupils of Toronto have increased $6,706.05 since 1905.

The way the business is progressing in outside places may be seen from the following table of the deposits. Some of these branches have been in existence but a few months.

Oakville	$ 262.32
Port Hope	1,191.70
Orangeville	187.39
Galt	3,164.48
Guelph	2,337.98
Bowmanville	356.32
Ottawa	1,568.01
Brampton	321.05
West Toronto	3,366.02
Toronto	75,043.80
	$87,773.00
Accrued interest	267.39
	$112,543.17

A number of places are now considering the advisability of opening branches.

LIFT LOCK IS CLOSED TO-DAY

Season for Trent Canal is Therefore Terminated—Have Had an Increased Business and no Trouble Was Experienced

NUMBER OF LOCKAGES

The clamps have ben put on the Lift Lock; operations are terminated for 1909, by the way, the fifth season since its opening. Over 18,000 passengers were carried over the lock during the past eight or nine months and the average number of lockages daily was ten. With all this usage the mechanism has given no trouble, and the parts have worked together almost perfectly. The full report of the year's business will be published shortly. This week's Buffalo Courier has a fine cut of the Lift Lock and the Superintendent of the canal, Mr. J. H. McClellan, with a review of the season.

SHAKE, MR. JUSTICE

A Well Known Stony Lake Summer Visitor Elected Comptroller of Buffalo.

Among the successful officials for the city of Buffalo at the recent elections in the V. S. this week appears the name of Mr. William G. Justice. He was elected Comptroller for the city of Buffalo on the Republican city and county ticket, after an exciting campaign. Mr. Justice is well known to a number of Peterborough citizens, as being a regular summer visitor to Stony Lake, and was particularly popular among the guests at Brooks' summer resort, Clear Lake. Mr. Justice should make an ideal Comptroller and his Peterborough friends will congratulate him on his election. A good half-tone picture of Mr. Justice appeared in the Buffalo Evening News of November 3rd.

OBITUARY

EDWARD TOBIN.

The citizens of Madoc and vicinity were shocked at the sad death of Mr. Ed. Tobin, fifth son of Joseph Tobin and Ann Walsh. The death occurred on the morning of the second day of November at six o'clock, after an illness of one week of typhoid fever and pneumonia.

The late Mr. Tobin was one of Madoc's leading citizens and a valued member of the Knights of Columbus and travelling salesman for the International Harvester Co.

He leaves to mourn his loss a father and mother, a wife, Miss Sarah Kelvie and two sons, Francis and Clarence, five brothers, four sisters among whom are Mrs. James Murry and Mrs. Frank Christopher, of Peterborough.

The requiem mass was celebrated by Rev. Father Riordan and the sermon was preached by Rev. Father McPhail. Attending priests Father Murtagh and Father McKiernan.

THE IDEAL HOSTESS

She must make you feel individually that you are the favoured guest.
She must make you feel perfectly at home.
She must see everything, and yet possess the art of seeming to see nothing.
She must never look bored.
She must know how to get congenial people together.
She must know how to keep conversation going.
She must never let anyone be slighted or overlooked.
She must know when to ask the amateur musician to display his or her talents.
She must be perfectly unselfish about her own pleasures.
She must remember that nothing is so tiresome, so surely death to all enjoyment as the feeling that one is being entertained.

Dr. G. Norman Meachen, in a lecture at the Institute of Hygiene, made some interesting remarks on this subject. "Deep breathing," said the lecturer, "if persistently practiced, in season and out of season, in the street and at the office, for a few minutes at a time, would soon bring the roses back to the faded cheeks and dissipate the sallow complexion. Lung diseases, especially the dreaded scourge of consumption, would become less prevalent if people would carry out this simple exercise, which is merely an imitation of nature's method, with primitive man, who is running and leaping, unconfined by clothing, developes excellent lung capacity, and uses it to the full."

ST. LOUIS TO CORDOVA MINES FEATURES OF EXCITING TRIP

Young Canadian, Now in England, Writes to The Examiner Giving Details of the Journey.

QUEER EXPERIENCES

"I was stranded, utterly stranded in the city of St. Louis. I had not a cent in my pocket, or a friend to turn to and I had not tasted food for nearly twenty-four hours.

"It's a hard thing to be without money or friends, to be in a strange city stranded, and no one to hold out a helping hand or give you a word of encouragement. If you have never felt afraid before, this will put fear into your heart. This will make you feel the realness and the hardness of life. It will teach you the potent value of gold, of money. It will show you in a few sharp ways the hardness and the kindness of your fellowman. A few days on this outer edge of life will make a man of you whatever you may have been before. A few days strungling for bread, for very existence itself will teach you what all the books and college training in the world may have failed to accomplish —to be a man in the true sense of the word; a man who has grappled with the icy grasp of Fate.

"I wended my way down Market street, with my hands in my pocket, and coat buttoned high to the throat. It was the end of November and a cold, sharp wind was blowing, for St. Louis is a windy city. I had tried to beg, but could not master up sufficient courage. The terrible, steady gnawing feeling inside me, however, was beginning to make me feel desperate. I felt that something would have to be done, or else I should become weak; I should lose my strength and perhaps life itself, and I was far too young to give up without a good fight.

The bright lights of the railway depot attracted my attention, and as it seemed warm and comfortable, I went in. It was about 11 o'clock at night and there were many people going by the midnight trains to the east and west. While standing warming myself at one of the radiators I saw Carrie Nation, that noted little woman who, with her chopper, had broken down many a drinking saloon throughout the country. She was a bright-eyed, wiry little woman, and there were quite a number of people listening to her harangue about drink. I did not take much interest in what she was saying because I was hungry, and when you need food and substance you have very little care for theory and philosophy.

"It was while standing in the depot that I made up my mind to beat my way back to Canada. It would be a hard and long journey, as the weather was bitterly cold, and riding on the couplings of a fast moving train, scantily clothed in such weather, might mean death; but I was born in Ontario, and come what may I was determined to get back to the land of the Maple Leaf, to the north, where all I held dear, lived. I decided to travel on the midnight express, of Chicago, and it was while finding out which siding in the great depot the express started from that I met the young Chicago boy. He was a fine, sturdy lad about my own age, and I was then well under manhood. He spoke to me first. I suppose he saw that I was down, and as he was also beating his way to Chicago, we decided to catch the midnight mail together. We were total strangers to one another, and both down, yet he grasped my hand and gave me a kind word and shared his few cents for two big meals of pork and beans at a little restaurant on Market street, kept by an old German. I have often thought of my friend from Chicago and longed to see him again, because the world has now smiled upon me, and I am in much better circumstances than when we met in the depot of St. Louis.

We were on the train, crouched at the back of the engine moving steadily out of St. Louis. We were in high spirits and glad to leave behind the city, for it had treated both of us unfairly. We pulled our caps well over our ears for the train was now getting up speed. I shall never forget that ride; the train was often running at sixty miles an hour; a strong head wind was blowing, and, to crown it all, it commenced to rain. We got about one hundred miles out, when, unexpectedly the train pulled up at a little station, and before I knew where I was a policeman's stick was pushed sharply against my legs, "Off of here," he shouted, and we were both arrested. It was the first time I had been in jail, but after all it was better than being in the wet and cold. I learnt afterwards that the police were after a negro murderer and were stopping all the trains out of St. Louis. The next day I fell in with some typical hobos and in the evening they made a fire beside the track and we all lay asleep. That night I caught a freight train and arrived in Chicago. In that big city I earned a meal washing up dishes, but it was no good staying there, so I went to Polk Street station and caught the Grand Trunk express for Detroit.

"It was a fine ride, the weather being much warmer, and as the bright clear moon rose above the clouds my spirits rose also as I realized that I was now getting nearer and nearer to the Canadian border. Another young fellow was on the train with me and the conductor discovered we were aboard. Then the fun commenced, because at every stopping place he tried to prevent us from getting on again. We were both determined to do the whole journey, but if it had not been for the tricks

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE MERRY WIDOW AND THE DEVIL.

Joe Weber's big Travesty Company in a sumptuous burlesque, "The Merry Widow and The Devil," was the offering that delighted a fairly large audience at the Grand last night. With superb scenery, lavish costume and clever principals the offering was thoroughly entertaining, and there were no dull moments in the action. Most of the comedy was clever, and the methods of the comedians were original and funny. Sam Collins, who has taken Joe Weber's part as Heinrich Disch, and who was seen here last year in "San Toy," was decidedly amusing in his Dutch dialect role, and Charles Stine, as the "Devil," otherwise De Jolidog, a wing agent, created a lot of the fun of the production. Oscar Ragland, who will be remembered as playing the Rajah in the "Royal Chef" here two years ago, sang well. Nina Collins as Fonia, had an engaging presence, and was always entertaining. The production is a little shy on good music, the best of the vocal numbers being "Put Me Among the Girls," borrowed from Joe Howard's "The Time, The Place, and the Girl," and the popular song, "Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay."

AT THE GRAND OPERA HOUSE TO-MORROW.

William J. Conron, for many years City Clerk of West Toronto, will be the speaker at the mass meeting for men tomorrow afternoon, in the Grand Opera House. Mr. Conron has been "on the spot" where Local Option has had long chance to prove itself in every possible way, and no one can know the conditions of a city better than its clerk.

The musical service will be supplied by the George Street Choir, while the campaign songs will be used.

Miss Carrie Revsor will sing.

Every man in the city is invited.

My wife is having the best of health. Miller's Compound Iron Pills did it.—Wm. Madill, Druggist.

CHOIR CONCERT

The Murray St. Baptist Church Choir are holding a Concert in their aid in the Church on Friday evening, Nov. 12th. Mrs. O. C. Bissel, a favourite Reader and Entertainer will appear in the programme with other numbers by the Choir and Soloists. Admission: 25 cents. 6-8-10-11

WILD DUCKS PLENTIFUL

Hiawatha, Nov. 6.—The wild ducks were never more plentiful than at present, at least it is many years since the Indians found them in such large numbers. The last week has seen their arrival in flocks. They apparently wait until night to strike the lake, and the hunters have found that on each succeeding morning the flocks seemed more numerous. The most common species now feeding are the red heads, blue bills, whistle wings, gold eye, black duck and teal. The number of hunters is also greater than in former years and the luck is exceptionally good.

NOT YET.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier is a lion in the Conservative path to office. All means having failed to side-track the Premier and Providence not seeing fit to call him to his reward, as a last resort Chief Whip Taylor, who has recently returned from England, conceives the idea of having Sir Wilfrid push Lord Strathcona from his seat. Mr. Taylor tells "Canada," published in London, that he has a very kindly feeling for Sir Wilfrid Laurier. In nominating Sir Wilfrid as successor to the High Commissionship, he said:

"An ideal appointment would be that of Sir Wilfrid Laurier himself as High Commissioner. No man is better fitted to maintain the dignity of that office and accentuate its importance; as the years advance the burthens laid upon the leader of a great party, especially of one occupying the unique position of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, tend to increase. At Westminster we should look forward to his being able for many years to render great services to Canada as a nation apart from all political differences."

This is extremely kind of Mr. Taylor; but we can't spare Sir Wilfrid yet awhile. There is too much usefulness to Canada left in him. So long as the people want him he will stay where he is.

ASSESSMENT AMENDMENT.

A few days ago the Examiner pointed out what is claimed to be the justice, advantage, and, therefore, desirability of a change in the assessment law that would permit of assessing, for taxation purposes, improvements at a lower valuation than land values. To the average ratepayer it would make no difference; the aggregate of assessement and taxation would be the same, but relations would be changed—the land would pay more, and improvements less. This would end the penalizing of citizens for making improvements. A concrete example of the necessity or advisability of such an amendment to permit of lowering rates upon business and improvement assessments, and raising them upon land values is taken from the Toronto World:

"Squeals are heard from the Dukes of Yonge street. Assessment Commissioner Forman has driven them into a corner. There is nothing radical in the taxation of Yonge street property. The assessment department made a careful study of the situation, and is no doubt prepared to produce the evidence if required in cases of appeal. It is notorious that leases recently fallen in have been renewed at heavy advances. One case is mentioned where $6,500 was raised to $17,000. Is the city to derive no advantage from such an enhancement, or are the people who do not own Yonge street property (the tenants and lease holders) to pay the greater part of the taxes of those who do?"

There is nothing gained by calling names. The property owners, described as "dukes," were not troubled. They simply raise the rent—nearly 250 per cent., as in the case cited above—and the tenants have to bear the burden of raised rents and assessments. Obviously the only remedy, the advocates of the amendment say, is to lower the rate on business assessments and improvements and raise the rate on the land.

MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT.

Municipal Government, its mistakes and its short comings, is engaging a predominant share of attention not only in the press, but among those in the thick of the fray, who know from experience, the lack of adaptability and elasticity of the system as applied to meet the conditions that lead to the best results. Our municipal system is the expression of the extreme application of the democratic principle. May we cite as a proof that democratic government and administration of this form have outlived their usefulness by citing the fact that a demand for resort to the other extreme—quasi irresponsible government and administration—government by commission—has its advocates and practitioners? This system has not been sufficiently applied to demonstrate that it is superior to the prevailing system of municipal government, by popularly elected representatives, aldermen and councillors. Galveston, Texas, claims to have made a success of government by commission. Des Moines, Iowa, makes a similar claim. On Tuesday, Buffalo adopted, by a majority of 10,000, the principle of government by commission, and Guelph is considering the advisability of substituting elected commissioners for elected aldermen. The Examiner in referring to the Guelph proposal counselled our sister city to hasten gently. We pointed out the desirability of tentative and gradual departure from the existing system, rather than a revolutionary change. We have frequently asserted that there are certain civic services that lend themselves peculiarly well to administration by commission. These are the services whose administration particularly demand as a condition of success the application of business principles by persons of special business training and helped by reasonable continuity of service. Guelph has made a financial success—so far—with management by commission of her water works, street railway and lighting systems, and Peterborough has had satisfactory experience with the management of its waterworks by commission. These constitute precedents that justify extending the experiment. We might very well go as far as to turn over the administration of our streets and cognate civic services to a commission. That by so doing we could not do worse than under the prevailing way, is felt by the aldermen themselves, who have considered rather favourably the adoption of such a course. We certainly cannot contemplate the unsatisfactory results that, year after year, follow the expenditure of large sums of money on our streets, without being impressed with the necessity of trying some other way than that, which, for so many dreadly consecutive years, has so signally failed, to give anything like adequate return in the way of satisfactory results for the amount of taxes sunk. The some other way might well take the form of a commission.

Mayor Dingman, of Stratford, has called attention to another defect in civic management of streets, which gives additional force to the demand for a change in the administration of our streets. In a letter to his council, reprinted in part in another colmn of this issue, he calls attention to the "ingrained habit of councils evading towards the year end the undertaking of all responsibility that can be thrown upon the council of the next year. "In this way he says is "regularly lost the fore part of each year for the construction of, especially, pavements and sidewalks." The best construction months of spring and early summer pass by with little accomplished. Mr. Dingman points out that the council of the later half of every year is best qualified to lay out plans for the coming year. He gives his reasons, which together with other things in his letter, are well worth reading.

The idea of adopting a modified and partial form of civic government by commission, is well worth considering, and it is not to be denied that placing the streets under the management of a commission would constitute an excellent test.

CANADA'S NAVAL POLICY.

At the last session of Parliament the people's representatives unanimously—without regard to party division—practically adopted the policy of a Canadian navy, built and owned in Canada and managed and manned by Canadians, and subject to co-operation with the Imperial navy, in case of Imperial necessity. Now, a section of the Conservative party, small and insignificant, perhaps, but with considerable capacity for disruptive mischief, declare themselves as opposed to the policy unanimously adopted by Parliament, speaking for the people of Canada. They favour the contribution by Canada of money to be spent by the Imperial parliament upon the Imperial navy. No language too strong can be employed to characterize the unpatriotic nature of such a humiliating proposal. It implies an abject surrender of our autonomy, and the national aspirations to national development; it is buying our discharge from the service of the Empire, and paying tribute as a conquered state. We should be paying out millions, and, like a man living in a rented house, have nothing to show at the end of our term of vassalage. In addition to the moral loss, the loss of prestige, the loss of self respect, we should suffer immense material loss. We are committed to the expenditure of twenty million dollars. The question is shall we ourselves get the benefit of that and own the fruits of it; or shall we pay it over to strengthen the shipbuilding industry of the old country—spend taxes paid by Canadian working men to give employment to workmen of the old land, already worked off their feet in the rush of providing imperial naval armaments?

It is a far cry from a pulp log to a Super-Dreadnought, but in our case the same principle is involved. Selling our pulpwood in the log and manufacturing it into paper in the matter of profit bear the relation of one to seven. If we export a cord of pulpwood that represents about six dollars, including labour—about a dollar's worth of labour—leaving $5.00 for the wood itself. If we manufacture that cord of wood into paper its export value becomes about $40—that is we use thirty-five dollars worth of labour in building factories and machinery, and in operating it to convert a rew asset of $5.00 into one of $40.00. We send twenty millions dollars across the Atlantic to build warships for Great Britain, and that's the last we see of it—all we get is a receipt and a vote of thanks. Meantime we have, according to the calculations of Charles M. Schwab, in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland alone, enough iron and coal to last a hundred years, not counting the Lake Superior iron deposits, practically inexhaustible. Canada is just getting on her feet in the matter of steel production. Why should not Canada build her own units of the imperial navy? Twenty millions spent in developing our iron and coal mines through building our own warships, would represent a tremendous development and widely ramifying avenues for the employment of labour. We should create wealth and employment of labour and reap all the benefits ourselves, provide for our own defence, and for the defence of the empire, if need should be. We should be in a way to develop a great ship building industry for commercial purposes. Why should not the Canadian Pacific Railway and the other great Canadian shipping lines have their ships built in Canada? Who will build the steamers for the lines the Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific transcontinental railways will put into commission on two oceans? We can and must build our own unit of the Imperial navy. In so doing we shall at the same time build up an industry in Canada that will round out our status as a self-governing and self-contained nation, as can be done by no other form of development of our national resources; and at the same time justify the attitude and responsibility Canada and the other self-governing Dominions assumed at the Imperial Defence Conference. The clamour of the Conservative Little Canadians will have to be loud to drown the prophetic clang of Canada's steel shipbuilding yards.

MR. BORDEN AND THE NAVAL QUESTION.

(Montreal Herald)

Mr. Borden is well-advised in making the most he can of the "patriotic" attitude of the Opposition in joining with the Government in its naval resolution last session. That action—were it wise or otherwise—binds the Opposition as a party to-day, and prevents it from making effective political capital out of what may be called the underlying principles of the naval policy of the Ministry.

We do not know the details of that policy as yet; and when these details are laid before us, it will become the duty of every public man and every public print to consider them fairly and carefully and criticise them fearlessly, if criticism promises to be helpful. But the underlying principles of that policy we do not know—and The Star, it will be remembered, thought that other principles might better have been followed—but the Ottawa Opposition are so tied up in the meshes of their unanimous resolution with the Government programme that it would be folly for them to try to make capital now by singing another tune.

There is such a thing as sincerity in politics; and that party which plays with it, pays for its frivolity in due time. If the Opposition were willing to strike hands with the Government at the height of the German scare in a resolution which declared specifically that "the payment of regular and periodical contributions to the Imperial Treasury for naval and military resources would not be, so far as Canada is concerned, the most satisfactory solution of the question of defence," and which vehemently urged the "speedy organization of a Canadian naval service," what possible excuse can they find to-day for leaping aboard the movement in the country in favour of a contribution to the Imperial Treasury and against letting the Marine Department loose on the construction of a Canadian navy? The German scare is by no means as virulent as it was when the unanimous resolution was patched up; and the German scare is the mother of all immediate action.

Whether the Opposition were right in taking their position to begin with—whether, indeed, the Government were right in proposing it—we are not now discussing. Our views as to Canada's duty have been made clear enough. But that resolution stands on the pages of Hansard, and the Government was presumably guided by it all through the critical and history-making negotiations of last summer. To divide Parliament then might or might not have been truly patriotic; but to break faith now—in a political sense—would hardly be the best way to secure political confidence. Thus we are of the opinion that Mr. Borden is taking the only road open to him in standing by his compact of last session; and he ought not to be subjected to criticism for pursuing an honourable course. If criticism is his due, it must be for entering upon that course.

Objections to Local Option and Answers to Them---Replies to Arguments Used Against Local Option---Not One Objection is Well Taken.

Most of the arguments that are advanced against the adoption of local option in Peterborough next January are old ones that have been used time and again in other places, and that have been proven to be unsound.

The following are a few of these arguments, as we hear them occasionally, with brief replies thereto. Much more complete replies would be furnished did space permit. Temperance workers may find it convenient to cut these out and use them.

It Has to be Shown

The world is getting better gradually, not because of preachers, temperance lectures, temperance legislation, lodges or literature, but because the world sees its folly in drinking to excess. Leave it alone is the cure.

The reason the world sees the folly of drinking to excess is that it is being shown it, and the reason municipalities are availing themselves of the great benefits of abolishing the bar-room is that these benefits are being practically demonstrated in the places where bar-rooms have been abolished.

Preachers, temperance lectures, temperance legislation, all these things are simply means towards an end, the enlightening of the people. Anything that will tend to enlighten the people to the benefits of personal temperance or to the advance of temperance legislation is good.

Individuals should leave liquor alone. Communities should leave bar-rooms alone.

Individuals should enact Local Option laws for themselves, and say, "I will not drink." Communities should enact Local Option laws and say, "We will not have bar-rooms."

Thus by individuals and communities practising what they know to be right the world will move onward to higher and better things.

No Retail Sale of Liquor

The liquor store will remain, and there will be all kinds of selling out of it.

The liquor store cannot remain, for Local Option by-laws affect the retail sale of liquor in shops as well as the sale of liquor in bars.

Local Option is not permission of any kind. Local Option stops all retail sale of liquor, whether in shops or bar-rooms.

An Excuse

Give me complete prohibition, and I will be with you.

I do not believe it. The man that says this now is generally a man who if prohibition was the issue, would want something less. He would then say, "Hold on, you are wanting too much!"

Some people are so curiously constituted mentally that they always want to suggest "something else."

Local Option is to-day the best, and indeed, the only way by which the people in each comunity can deal directly with the drinking problem at their own doors. What nonsense, therefore, for people to defer cleaning out their own back yards until some magnificent, far-reaching, widespread system of flushing and housecleaning has been devised and inaugurated.

What folly to perpetuate local drinking places which are the feeders of the great liquor tyranny.

A man's greatest duty is the duty next him. Neglect of that cannot be atoned for by the loudest protestations of a desire for something better.

Radically Different From Scott Act

We have seen enough of the Scott Act and want nothing to do with anything more of the kind.

The fault was not with the "kind" of the Scott Act, but that the Scott Act was not a good measure of its kind.

A law restricting the sale of liquor is a good law. Our license law is a restrictive law. Local Option is the perfection of the license law in its restrictive functions, and the Local Option provisions of the License Act are radically different in many particulars from the old Scott Act. Local Option License is of the same "kind" as the Liquor License Act. The License Act prohibits the sale of liquor without license.

Local Option by-laws prevent the issue of licenses. The license law does the rest.

License is a Bonus

It is not fair to a man after he has bought the house and we give him license to destroy its value.

It certainly would be unfair if the granting of a license were in any sense the bestowing of a permanent privilege, but all licenses are annual, and convey to the possessor absolutely no right or privilege beyond the twelve months for which they are granted. If a man, on the chance of getting a renewal of his license, makes certain investments, he does so at entirely his own risk. No one asked him to. He did it of his own volition. He was the man who applied for the license. The people were not the persons who applied for a license. Indeed, the obligation was conferred by the people upon the license holder, not by the license holder upon the people.

Let us be fair. A license is a valuable privilege, which the community grants to a certain person for one year upon certain considerations.

The license holder becomes practically the benficiary of the community. The amount he pays for the license is small compared to the value of the franchise he receives. He is practically bonused by the municipality. The community had a perfect right to bonus him. The community has a perfect right to withhold the bonuses.

The community is not wronging a license holder in withdrawing the bonus but it was favouring him in granting it. The withholding of a favour is not a wrong. And he is a mean man who will whine and cry simply because people stop being generous to him and who insists upon his right to enjoy the benevolence of others.

Remove the Sanction of Law

The selling of liquor is just as legitimate as any other business as it is sanctioned by law.

Exactly, and Local Option takes away that legitimacy from the selling of liquor; takes away from it legal sanction.

Local Option removes this objection.

Local Option is the only way by which the people in any community can remove the objection that the selling of liquor is legitimate to-day. It should not be.

Hotel Assessments

It causes depreciation in the assessable value of hotel property, when it is deprived of a license.

Since its profitableness is the only reason for the existence of the liquor traffic, it is to be expected that some loss will be entailed by its removal. The bar, though a very small part, is the most profitable attachment of a hotel. Do away with it and the actual value of the property will not be lessened, but the owner will strive hard for a lower assessment, on the ground that it is much less profitable.

The universal experience of Local Option villages and towns has been that the total assessment has rapidly increased. In West Toronto the assessement in the year 1904 was $3,697,000; that was the year in which Local Option was carried. Two years later the assessment was $4,-$883,000; in 1904, the total assessment was $37,200; in 1906, it was $34,800. The decrease is of little account, in view of an increase of $1,186,000 in the total assessment.

In Owen Sound the hotel assessment was reduced, following the adoption of Local Option, so as to reduce taxes by $1,011, but the total assessment of the town increased to make an increase in revenue from taxation of $67,746.

Doing away with the bar-rooms makes a village or town a more desirable place of residence. It improves business very materially. It enables many poor families to live in better homes—some to purchase homes. Whatever small reduction may be made in the assessment of hotel property by the withdrawal of license is quite certain to be more than made up by the increase in the total assessment.

The Poor Man is Better Off.

The rich man can buy it by the gallon. The poor man cannot, and would not be able to even buy it by the glass.

If this were true, then all the worse for the rich man, for the more he buys, the poorer he will become, and the lower he will sink. And all the better for the poor man, for the more he will save and the higher he will rise.

Why should a poor man or a rich man, or any other man, for the sake of a little personal appetite he might gratify, wish to maintain in a community such an institution as a bar-room wth the terrible havoc that these places cause.

However, this objection does not take into account the great primary benefit of Local Option, which is the closing of the public carousing place and the destroying of the treating system, which is the curse of the poor and rich alike.

Make It Easy To Do Right

You cannot make men better by act or law.

Perhaps not. You can at least give men a fair chance to make themselves better by making it harder for them to do wrong, and that is the prime function of law.

You can do this by closing up the bar rooms, which are temptation places, which thrive financially in proportion to the evil they cause.

It Causes Dives

Local Option does not prohibit, but creates "dives" and "blind pigs" and a great deal more.

You will only create secret selling and dives that will be far worse than what we have now.

No better answer can be given to these objections than the answer given by Rev. John Somerville, who said in an interview regarding the situation in Owen Sound:

"During the Local Option campaign in Owen Sound it was said the closing of bar rooms would mean the opening of dives in livery stables and other places. I said then that such a lie should be gibbeted at once, and would like to say the same now to our workers in other places.

"At a public meeting I asked the question: What is a dive? The answer was, 'A place where liquor is sold illegally.' Then I asked, 'How many license-holders in Owen Sound sell liquor after 11 p.m.?' They said, 'They all do.' How many keep the law on Sunday? 'Not one.' Then I said, 'Every place in which liquor is sold after hours or on Sunday is a dive.'"

"Under the new law almost every place formerly licensed has been fined for selling liquor illegally, thus further proving my contention that these places were 'dives,' but it does show up some.

"In my opinion there was just as much illicit sale of liquor before Local Option came into force as there is now. The difference is that the searchlight has been thrown upon it and public attention called to it."

For years she suffered from that terrible weakness and those agonizing pains so many women know. She has found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills and she wants all suffering women to know it.

"For twenty-eight years," says Mrs. Richards, "I suffered from Rheumatism, Kidney Trouble and Neuralgia. I got so weak I could not do my housework. Sleep was out of the question except for a few minutes at a time. My back ached so I could not sleep. I tried all kinds of medicine and had come to the conclusion that there was no cure for me, when reading advertisements led me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills. I now sleep well and rise refreshed every morning. Dodd's Kidney Pills are all the medicine I want."

The woman who has healthy Kidneys will never know the pains and weakness that make life hardly worth living. Dodd's Kidney Pills always make healthy Kidneys.

VIOLENT DEATHS.

Startling Statement of Lives Lost Annually in This Country.

As many persons are killed every twelve months in these days of peace in the United States as were killed or died of wounds on both sides during the four years of the civil war, according to Josiah Strong, the sociologist, who writes on the "Perils of Peace" in the Homiletic Review.

There were 107,630 accidental and violent deaths in the United States in 1907, an increase of 50,000 in seven years. The population during that time increased 12 per cent and the violent deaths 87 per cent. Gettysburg was one of the bloodiest battles of the civil war, but the death roll by violence and accident every year now equals the death roll of nineteen such battles as Gettysburg.

In the Spanish-American war and the Philippine rebellion there have been 6,000 casualties. Only a few of these were deaths. These are the only wars the United States has had in twelve years, and in half of that time 555,414 persons have been killed in pursuits of peace.

These deaths are the price of our attempts to harness and use the powers of nature without thoroughly understanding them and guarding against their dangers.

Most of the deaths are avoidable. Proper care in using the mighty powers of nature would save thousands of lives. Failure to use such care is due to sleeping public sentiment. If the 100,000 deaths spread over a whole year could be crowded into a single day in a single city the world would be aroused. Millions of money and the best minds in the country would be devoted to preventing the carnage.

But such concentration cannot be, and pending the awakening of public sentiment by a milder means the thousands go on to death. Their lives are absolutely wasted. The victims of war leave heroic records. They die for a cause and give their lives as a sacrifice for country. Their example survives to inspire coming generations.

Not so with those who die violently in peace. Rarely do they go as heroes. They do not suffer for a cause. They are merely crushed by a juggernaut, sacrificed to the onrush of modern civilization.

Empress of China's Tea Secret Out.

It is not unlikely that commerce soon will bring to market the mixture of tea and flowers which was one of China's state secrets when the dowager empress held the reins of power. The empress was almost as famous for her tea as for her iron grip on the government. All guests at court were permitted to drink of the old woman's favorite brew, and tea experts tried to match the blend after they had failed to worm the secret from servants in attendance on the empress. Every attempt, however, to produce as delicious a cup of tea failed, and it was not until after the empress' death that the secret leaked out. Now it is known the empress gave the remarkable delicacy to her tea by mixing with it dried honeysuckle and jasmine blooms. The tea itself was from the first pickings of the imperial plantations and was the finest grown—New York Press.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

Remedies That Digest the Food Will Not Cure the Trouble—The Stomach Must be Fitted to Do Nature's Work.

The tonic treatment for indigestion, dyspepsia, catarrh of the stomach and gastritis is having remarkable success in curing obstinate cases and deserves attention from every sufferer.

Its principal is that remedies for indigestion that digest the food for the stomach give relief for only a short time. Ultimately they unfit the stomach to do do its own proper work, because they make its already weak powers still weaker by disuse, while the remedy that strengthens the stomach makes it capable of digesting the food for itself, and this benefit is lasting. A remedy that is not only a tonic for the stomach, but for the blood and nerves as well, invigorates the entire system and makes recovery from the painful, weakening effects of indigestion rapid and thorough. Every sufferer from indigestion will find in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills just the tonic needed as they enrich the blood, tone the stomach and thus enable it to do the work nature intended it should do. This has been proved in thousands of cases, and it is worth the while of every sufferer from stomach trouble to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. Mr. Edward Chatterton, Campbellton, N. B., says:—"I have been a great sufferer from indigestion and stomach trouble and although I had treatment from several doctors, I did not find a cure until I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I can hardly describe how much I suffered at times. Every meal brought with it more or less agony, and I seemed to have a complete distaste for food. I had almost begun to think my case incurable when I came across a pamphlet advertising Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I decided to give them a trial. I am very thankful that I did so, for I had not been taking the Pills long before I found them helping me, and in six weeks every symptom of the trouble had vanished. I can now eat heartily almost any kind of food, and no longer experience pain and discomfort after eating."

It is because Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make new, rich blood that they cure such troubles as indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, headaches, and backaches, St. Vitus' dance, and other forms of nerve troubles. They cure the irregularities of girlhood and womanhood, and bring ease, comfort and health to sufferers. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

World's Fastest Typist And How She Developed Speed

Rose L. Fritz, Six Times Winner of the World's Championship, Talks of Her Work and Gives Advice—Interest Even to Uninitiated.

A PART OF THE MACHINE

Great speed in the operation of the typewriter is partly a gift, I think, and partly the result of intelliegnt practice. There are some people, no matter how much they stive, who will never become rapid operators. But you observe this phenomenon in all lines of work, that two people of the same size, strength and education, differ greatly in the ease and expedition with which they perform the same task.

In the recent contest at Madison Square Garden, I wrote 6,135 words in an hour or an average of about 102 words a minute. I can write indefinitely at a speed very nearly approximating that without feeling any fatigue or sense of strain. If all typists would recognize the fact that it is just as easy to write rapidly as it is to write slowly I believe that more of them would strive after greater speed.

I attended a business school for about three months, during which I put in two or three hours daily on the typewriter. At the end of that time I secured a position which kept me so busy that I had no time to practise outside business ohurs. With the speed acquired in this way I went to Chicago and won the first prize in the contest at the Business Show. I now have a greater speed than at any time, and I hope by next year I shall be able to crowd in a few more words a minute.

In the first place I learned the touch system perfectly—so perfectly in fact that my fingers are spelling it out for me after my mind has forgotten it and is reading the next word.

I never think of looking at my keyboard or at what I am writing. If I make a mistake I know it as I am writing it, sometimes before. That is, I know I am going to make a mistake, but I havent' time to stop myself.

I think the first thing a young typist should learn is absolute accuracy. Speed will come of itself. Too often a beginner is so anxious to become a fast operator that he forces himself at the expense of accuracy. This is a fatal mistake, because once that bad habit is acquired it is almost impossible to break it.

I think it is best to practise from all kinds of copy. For my part. I make use of newspaper stories more than anything else. Working over set exercises like "Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of their party" has very little value.

I do not use any mark to keep my place on the copy. Some operators make use of liners or other devices. I never lose my place. I never take my eyes off the copy. I just simply read along almost as raipdly as I should if I were not transcribing.

I have been asked if piano playing is any aid in typewriting. For myself I find that it is really a hindrance. Of course, in that it gives strength to the hands it is a help, but the theories of piano playing and typewriting are different.

I place my typewriter so that the lower bank of letters is on a level with my elbows. I always sit erect and move as I find it comfortable. This, I think, is merely a matter of comfort, for two of my nearest competitors sit in entirely different attitudes; one absolutely erect, not moving by a hair's breadth in an hour; the other is all humped up over his machine. Personally, I think a woman should always sit as nearly health and figure.
erect as possible to preserve her

Strength in the hands and arms is the most valuable requisite one can possess. Exercises or housework which employ the muscles of the arms and hands are very valuable, and every typist should give some attention to this matter.

The stroke should be a sharp staccato blow to the key. The finger must not linger on a letter. I take the letters off my machine and substitute the celluloid caps, as being more comfortable for the finger tips.

In closing, I want to lay stress upon the necessity of having the typewriter absolutely clean. I am astonished when I go into business offices to see the condition in which the average operator keeps his machine. It is impossible to work fast on a dirty sticky typewriter, and a blurred letter is a disgrace to the operator and to the firm for which it is written.

London's Teachers And The Special Grant From Government

London, Ont., Nov. 6.—The local Board of Education and the Deputy Minister of Education are engaged in a controversy over the disposal of the teachers' bonus grant from the department. In this city the Board raises every teacher's salary $50 a year, until the maximum amount is reached. The bonus is used as a part of the raise. The department objects to this, and quotes the rules to show that it must be paid to the teachers direct. The Board contend that they are carrying out the spirit of this rule and thus the matter stands. No money has been paid to the local Board by the department yet. All other cities have secured their grants, while the department and the Board settle the matter.

MESSAGE OF STRATFORD'S MAYOR.

Mayor Dingman, of Stratford, has sent the following message to his Council and thinks the matter of such importance that he has also sent a copy of it to the press of the province. The essential parts—outside of purely local references, are as follows:

To the Aldermen of the City of Stratford: Gentlemen,—As the statute suggests that the Mayor should from time to time bring to the attention of the City Council matters that in his opinion ought to be dealt with by them, I desire to urge upon the Council improvement as to part of our Board of Works policy. Owing to the habit ingrained into previous Councils of evading toward the end of the calendar year the undertaking of all responsibility that can be thrown forward to the Council of the next year, we regularly lose the forepart of each year for the construction of public works, especially sidewalks and pavements. As the fore part is also the best part of the year for performance of such work, the result is to the city's disadvantage.

This year we have the fault illustrater as usual. The best construction months of spring and early summer passed over with little accamplished; we were still engaged in planning and considering what work should be done. The result is that the work at last decided upon cannot all be completed this year.

These conditions will not be the fault of this year's Council, unless we weakly perpetuate them. I suggest that we establish a new precedent in this regard, by planning work now for next spring and possibly letting contracts therefor, with a view to the Engineer's department being beforehand with the work of next season.

The Council of the latter half of every year are the best qualified to lay out such plans. They have had the work actually in hand and are posted as a new Council and new Board of Works cannot be in the early part of the year. • • • • •

I am convinced that the citizens will appreciate a forehand policy of this kind. Contracts let in the fall for next spring's execution would tend to economy in cost, since contractors can utilize the winter in getting material hauled, and their working season being prolonged by an early start would also tend to better prices to the city. Then there is the standpoint of the individual citizen. He has joined in petition for new pavement or macadam on his street. If the street is built in the spring so that he can have several months enjoyment of the new pavement before the next winter arrives, he is much better pleased than is the case of John street, where the westrumite pavement just completed, can only be used but a few weeks before snow will cover it over, and frost will make citizens forget that the pavement is there. Work of this kind especially should be done so that citizens can immediately enter on the use of it and enjoy it for as long a period as possible before the advent of winter.

I urge this change in policy because I am convinced it will make the people's money go farther, as well as give ratepayers better satisfaction than can be derived from weak-kneed deference to next year's Council. The people elect a Council to do business for twelve months, not to begin to hedge at the 9th or 10th month. • • • • • • • •

The question I put to my esteemed fellow-members of the Council is, shall we act? Faithfully yours,

W. S. DINGMAN, Mayor.

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH

"Build up Peterborough" is the slogan that has been adopted by the local Board of Trade and the citizens are asked to unite with that body in an earnest effort to make the battle cry mean something. The first step in the campaign will be taken on Tuesday night next when there will be a joint meeting of the Board of Trade and the citizens. This important conference will be held in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute at 8 o'clock and every citizen of Peterborough is invited to be present and take part in the discussion. Among the matters that will be discussed are the power problem, and the appointment of an industrial commissioner for Peterborough, topics that are of the greatest importance to Peterborough and that will have to be dealt with intelligently if we are to have a greater Peterborough. It is sincerely hoped that the attendance will be as large as the supreme importance of the meeting warrants.

BROILED BONES OFF THE GRID

By John O'Keefe.

I have a little brother dear who will not play again this year,
The reason that he isn't here upon this day of glee
Is not because his nose is peeled. The doctors keep him off the field
Until in course of time they've healed his busted vertebrae.

The husky and ambitious lads of Mr. Millionaire de Scadds
Have written to assuage their dad's alarm for their condition.
Says Percy in his billet-doux, "I've only cracked my arm in two,
And Harold needs some store teeth new, I hear from our physician.'

Young Toddy Brown, with merry laugh, said "Bet you I will be a half."
And now the college surgeons' staff say Tod has won his bet
A half indeed! One look at him will show he still retains a limb.
Yes, t hough the surgeons had to trim, there's half of Toddy yet.

"Dear mother," writes a shattered son, "our team a corking triumph won.
And will you telegraph some mon so that your boy may buy
A rubber ear that will replace the one that's missing from my face?
Also, I'd like to fill the space where once I had an eye."

The son of Mrs. Wood B. Art, in training for a Rubens part,
This message sends to touch her heart: "My painting's really fine."
And in one sense his tale is true, because that youth could place on view
A Whistler nocturne, "Black and Blue," all done with iodine.

We see despatches just like these: "The squad's reduced by injuries;
Jim Swat has water on the knees; Asks gayly of the bandaged flock,
And so forth, till the jocund doc, who treats the warriors for shock,
Bull Black is going lame; "A clinic or a game?"

No odour of the new-mown hay is wafted from the field to-day,
But odoriferous arnicay gives out a stronger scent,
And the girl rooter, she whose nose one time demanded fragrant rose,
Now thinks the truly manly beaux must smell of liniment.
Fond mother, when you ask your son to show diplomas he has won,
Don't be surprised to see a ton of fingernails and teeth.
And hank of hair; but do not stare. Go, string them in a chaplet fair,
So that your heir may proudly wear his handsome laurel wreath.

LADIES' SETS

ST. LOUIS TO CORDOVA MINES

of my partner I should never have got through. On one occasion I nearly got left behind, the conductor had waited by the engine till the train started, so that when we came out of the darkness there was hardly time to jump on. My partner being more experienced got aboard, I missed the engine, but somehow managed to clamber on to the side of the mail coach. I never want a similar experience again for I had to stand on a thin rod of iron, and hold on the rail of the window. The wind and speed of the train more than once nearly threw me off, but what I dreaded most was being hit by a telegraph pole, or something near the line. At last, however, we changed engines. I don't know what became of my partner, but I was rather lucky for the engineer allowed me to sit inside with him in the warm. I helped to pull down some of the coal and in return got a good meal and a quarter, so that I arrived in Detroit in good style.

There is little more to tell, except that I walked along the track from Detroit to Port Huron, because I could not manage to get over to Windsor, but I was able to get a freight to take me through the smoky tunnel. When I did at last put my foot on Canadian soil again I could hardly believe that what I had gone through was true. I had passed through so many strange experiences and met so many strange people that it all seemed as a dream, it all seemed like a strange vision—beating my way for about fifteen hundred miles up from St. Louis without a cent in my pocket. Through forests, prairies wastes and cities, on the couplings of the freights and then behind the blind baggages of the passenger trains in wind and rain, till at last I had reached the dear old land of the Maple Leaf, till at last I had seen the roofs of the houses of Cordova Mines.

When I got through the tunnel I saw a brakesman. "Am I in good old Canada" I shouted; he smiled and answered in the affirmative. He then questioned me where I was going and where I had come from. He was a good sort that brakesman; he put me in a clean box car that was going right into Toronto, and the next day I was home, amongst smiling faces and friends—amongst Canucks—in my home at last, in dear, dear Canada.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

KNOX CHURCH.

A large congregation and address never to be forgotten were the two most striking events heard at the close of a very impressive service in Knox church. Mr. Mitchell took as his theme, "The tragedy of a soul," and as his text, "he went away sorrowful." It is one of the saddest stories in the New Testament. It refers to a young man. Young men are always the hope of one's country. The young men in this land and in this day have far greater opportunities than our fathers had.

This young man was in earnest, but not intense enough. He was moral with a character stainless, compared with many others, but impure compared with Christ.. He was an enquirer after the best.

Jesus offered him a career, an occupation worth while, Come and follow me. He suggested the immense field of service that would open up.

Then he offered him a character. The man wanted eternal life, but Jesus pointed out that he was to be saved to serve. The only thing worth while in character—what you are, not what you have.

Jesus offered these two on the condition of self-renunciation. Jesus said to him, "I want all of you. Many Christians are without happiness or peace because they have not gone far enough. Many, like this young man, so near the kingdom, are yet lingering outside. The right thing to do is to step over the line.

The address was a wonderful appeal and left a remarkable impression on every one present. Mr. Keith emphasized its message to the young men and said the clearest mark of gratitude to Mr. Mitchell for his message would be a deeper consecration on the part of Christians and a definite decision on the part of unsaved to follow Christ.

The services will be continued tomorrow. Rev. Dr. Farquharson will have charge.

ST. PAUL'S.

At St. Paul's there were three services yesterday, all largely attended, and there was a spirit of much earnestness prevalent. At three o'clock Rev. A. E. Mitchell, of Hamilton, addressed the first meeting on the Evangelistic campaign in the Kootenay Valley B. C. Mr. Mitchell's account was graphic, and showed how, amidst discouraging surroundings of materialism and atheism, great good had been done. At 4.15, after a short song service, conducted by the Rev. M. Atkinson, Mr. MacBeth addressed a meeting of boys and girls, who had assembled from the near-by schools. They were evidently deeply interested and profited. Then at 8 o'clock Mr. MacBeth spoke on "Things that are certain," dwelling on facts that come within our knowledge clearly. The fact of our own existence, the existence of others, and of the world around were dwelt upon. The fact that our personality demanded the other fact of a personal God, a living God, the fact of a revelation in the Bible with the marks that show the book superhuman, the fact of sin, salvation and personal experience—all were dwelt upon in such a way as to impress them upon all present. Mr. MacBeth will conduct both services on Sunday in St. Paul's and will address the Men's Bible Class at three o'clock. Judging from the interest manifested during the last few nights a day of great blessing may be expected to-morrow.

POST CARD COLUMN

Sir,—The Supt. of Education in Ontario. Dr. Seath, considers the system of education in Germany perfect. That is no reason why we should adopt it in Ontario. Unless a nation has much invested capital abroad agriculture is the chief industry, and very little schooling is required for that. Is it not a fact that a school boy suicides every week in Germany? If the school authorities had their way they would crush the lives out of the children.

W. A. BAILEY.

Editor Peterboropgh Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Will you kindly allow space for a few words in regard to the small attendance at our best concerts.

Music is and always has been to civilized humanity the most graceful means of expressing joy or sorrow. The effect of good music on those who hear it, is wholly good. Taste or a discriminating ear for what is good in music can hardly be expected in those who seldom or never hear it. To develop taste for the purest and best in music is to encourage skill in the performance of it; it is, therefore the duty of good citizens in any place to encourage by their presence, at least, the best musical entertainments.

Among the distinguished musicians who favoured this city in the past couple of years may be mentioned the Sheffield Choir, Toronto Symphony Orchestra, Edith Miller and Company, Harold Jarvis and Company, Madame Marchesi, and The Royal Welsh Ladies' Choir. All except the Sheffield Choir and Harold Jarvis were greeted by small audiences.

Distinguished artists can hardly be expected to come again or recommend others of their class to a place where they did not make expenses.

The musicians of Peterborough are doing good work, as may be seen in the progress of our church choirs, and the number and advancement of their pupils.

One important means for the advancement of musical culture, open to all citizens is patronage of good concerts.

The recent performance of the Welsh Choir will be a pleasure to live in the memory of those fortunate to hear so rare an example of pure, sweet, unaffected singing. Such a concert must be an inspiration to the students and teachers present.

In concerts held at the Opera House when the price of seats is perhaps more than any but a few students of music can pay would it not be well if possible to arrange a special rate of admission for them. It would seem that seats might better be occupied by students of music at half price than empty.

Last year we enjoyed a very pleasing performance in Oratorio by one of the city church choirs. We hope this work will be continued.

Considering the artistic success of the Welsh Choir the Conservatory of Music has begun the season well, in the selection of musical entertainment.

Yours truly,
A. GOWAN,

PASTOR ELECTED MAYOR

New York, Nov. 6.—The Rev. John R. Pratt, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Verona, N.J., has been elected Mayor of that borough. He had a walkover, because no one ran against him. No one would run against him. The Democrats nominated Carl Mau for the office, but a few days later the Republicans named Pratt. Mau immediately withdrew from the race, leaving a clear field for the parson.

Pratt will now be the busiest man in Verona. He comes near being the busiest man now, for he not only attends to the affairs of his church, but conducts a flourishing butter and egg business at No. 20 Harrison St., Manhattan.

The parson will preside at the meetings of the Council, perform the other duties of chief executive of the borough, preach twice every Sunday, lead the weekly prayer service, run his butter and egg business, visit the sick and sorrowing, conduct the Sunday school, officiate at marriages, christenings and funerals, audit the borough accounts and devote his spare moments to his wife and two children, writing sermons and paying parochial visits. He's not quite forty years old.

Actress Who Likes Early Rising And Long Walks

Lucy Blake, that clever actress and charming woman, who is scoring a big hit at Angela di Savalli in "The Lily and the Prince," is fond of outdoor life. Her principal diversion is walking. She does a prodigious amount of walking all the year round. Her love of nature is almost primitive. She once said her greatest ambition in life was to lead such a life that she could get up every morning and see the sun rise. Often she walks from her hotel to the theatre in the face of a blinding storm. She enjoys every step and reaches the theatre in high spirits.

Miss Blake has a magnificent apartment in New York city, but her favourite spot is "Restnest"—a charming spot at Sag Harbour. From the window of her study there is a glorious view. The house is of Colonial architecture and set in that part of the estate that she has allowed to remain wholly unimproved. Here her happiest moments are spent, and thither she flies after her season of strenuous work as the role of Angela is no light task, requiring Miss Blake to be on the stage every moment of the four acts. This will be Miss Blake's last season with this exquisite romance. The spring will find her in a new play well suited to her powers and in a play that promises to be a literary sensation.

Guy Fawkes Night Celebrated By Fowl Supper And Concert

A record crowd attended the fowl supper and entertainment in Foresters' Hall last night which was held under the auspices of the City District L.O.L. The event was in commemoration of Guy Fawkes' Day, and it was the greatest success ever attained by the Orangemen of Peterborough. Several long tables were laid in the banquet hall and supper was served from 6 to 8 o'clock, and the tables were filled all the time. Over four hundred sat down and enjoyed the good things while the attention given the guests was of the best.

Certainly the committee which was in charge of the affair deserve great credit. They worked hard but their efforts were well repaid. After supper the big gathering adjourned to the lodge room.

The chairman heartily welcomed the audience and hoped they would all feel that they were well repaid for their attendance.

The following is the programme rendered:—

Mortgage Has Been Lifted Entertainment A Success

The annual "Guy Fawkes'" day entertainment under auspices of Col. Sanderson Lodge, L.O.L. at Downer's Corners last night was a most successful affair. The attendance was large and the financial outlook is so satisfactory that the mortgage over the hall has been cleared off and the ceremony of burning the mortgage will take place in a short time. The programme was as follows:

Comic Song—Mr. Ernest Thompson.
Recitation—Miss Violet Farmington.
Song—Mr. Herron.
Address by Rev. A. H. Brace, of the Cobourg Baptist church.
Phonograph selections.

A RECORD BEQUEST

John Stewart Kennedy of New York, Who Died on Sunday of Whooping Cough at Age of 80, Makes Largest Charitable Gift on Record—His Total Fortune Was Over Sixty Million Dollars.

New York, Nov. 6.—John Stewart Kennedy, one of America's little known rich men, who died of whooping cough in his New York residence on Sunday last at the age of 80, left bequests of more than $25,000,000 to religious, charitable and educational institutions in his will, filed for probate here yesterday. The gift is the largest single contribution of its kind ever made, and the beneficiaries include educational and church institutions, north, south, east and west, in the country, and abroad; sixty in all.

Nearly half of the $25,000,000 goes to institutions connected with the Presbyterian Church, of which Mr. Kennedy had been an active member for many years. Other large beneficiaries include the American Bible Society, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the New York Public Library, the New York United Charities, Columbia University, Robert College, Constantinople.

Aside from these gifts Mr. Kennedy left approxmately $35,000,000 to his wife, his relatives and a great number of friends and employes. The widow's share will be about $16,000,000. All of the testators' employes receive gifts from $500 to $2,000.

The long list of gifts is prefaced in the will by this brief paragraph: "Having been greatly prospered in the business which I carried on for more than thirty years, in this, my adopted country, and being desirous of leaving some expression of my sympathy with its religious, charitable, benevolent and educational institutions, I make these gifts."

The charitable, religious and educational institutions which receive the largest bequests are to share the residue of the estate left after definite gifts of approximately $12,000,000 have been paid, their shares estimated by counsel for the executors as follows: Presbyterian board of foreign missions, $2,250,000; Presbyterian board of home missions, $2,250,000; Presbyterian church extension fund, $2,250,000; Presbyterian hospital, New York, $2,250,000; Robert College, Constantinople, $1,500,000; Presbyterian board of aid for colleges, $750,000; Museum of Art, New York, $2,250,000; New York Public Library, $2,250,000; Columbia University, $2,250,000; United Charities, New York, $1,500,000; American Bible Society, $750,000; Charity Organization Society, New York, $750,000.

John Stewart Kennedy was born in Blantyre, Lanarkshire, Scotland, Jan. 4, 1830, and died in New York Sunday last from whooping cough. For years he was in the banking business. On Wall street he was known as "the man with ready cash," of which he could command from 50 to 75 millions. He had as much to do with relieving the recent financial depression as had J. P. Morgan. Many years ago he was closely associated with J. J. Hill in Northwestern Railway development, and was a member of the syndicate that contracted to build the C.P.R.

Neilson Remanded.

Toronto, Nov. 6.—George Neilson, the youth who fired three shots at Esther Hazel Thursday night, was remanded a week in the Police Court yesterday morning. Mrs. Tucker, mother of his sweetheart, was seeking to bail him out before the court, but after the hearing, T. C. Robinette, K.C., who acted for him, did not press the matter. He is charged with attempting to murder.

The revolver has been found in the lane where he threw it away. It contained four good and three discharged shells.

The girl's condition is steadily improving at the hospital. All three bullets have been located, but not moved.

BOUGHT POISON

At Inquest In Uxbridge, Husband of Dead Woman Says He Was Afraid of Being Poisoned at Home—Told Friends He Expected to Be Free by December—Large Number of Witnesses Are Examined.

Uxbridge, Nov. 6.—Morning, afternoon and night sessions were held of the inquest into the death last Friday night of Mrs. Archie McLaughlin and her two children, and the end is not yet. Adjournment was made by Coroner Bascom till Monday, Nov. 23, when the report of the analyst who is to examine the stomachs of deceased will be received.

Late last night McLaughlin himself was recalled to the stand to explain the evidence of a number of witnesses, who had testified to his wife having complained that he neglected her, that he had been very much enamored of a woman in the town, that he had said he was afraid of being poisoned at home, that his wife was "queer", that she might suicide, that he expected he might be free by December, and that the two boys burned were not his children.

To McLaughlin, Crown Attorney Farewell said:

"I am told by the little girl that you went upstairs to your wife's room and lit the lamp, and also carried the child down; also that you carried things out of the clothes' closet and put them over her as she lay in the baby carriage."

This McLaughlin denied. He said his wife was sitting by the stove when he reached home and he had not gone upstairs that night.

Crown Attorney Farewell wished to know whether there was anything in the house that the wife could have taken to make her sleep while the house was burning, an opiate or anything.

"Well, yes, there was rat poison if that is what you call it," replied McLaughlin. He believed the poison was on the sideboard. He had purchased it at Nicholls' drug store and they had used about half of it.

On Thursday morning last his wife had told him to buy some butter and some strychnine to put in the rat poison, which was not sufficiently effective. He remarked to her, "For God's sake, put that poison away where the children won't get it." McLaughlin said there was some morphine in the house at the time, which he had bought himself, but had not used.

McLaughlin's explanation of his remarks to companions about having had improper relations with a young lady, was that he was only joking. His wife, he said, was down hearted often and threatened on at least three occasions to end her life. During the last three months she had hardly spoken to him. He had never known the time he might be poisoned himself by her.

"Why did you purchase that poison and give it to her, when you were in dread of using it on one of you?" asked a juryman.

"Well, it is just this way, I never thought of it," McLaughlin replied.

T. C. Nicholls, chemist, testified that on Oct. 28, he had sold McLaughlin 10 grains of strychnine, said to be for rats, and about a month previous a quantity of morphine.

Several witnesses were heard during the three sessions. Mrs. A. Bant and Mrs. Jennie Morden said deceased woman had complained to them of her husband's neglect, and his attention to other women. Reuben Harman had been shown a letter by McLaughlin that he boasted was from a girl he was intimate with, and said he would leave Uxbridge with her if she would go. He had said he was "afraid to eat at home for fear of dope." Bert Nolan had also seen a letter and was pressed by a juryman to tell its contents, as he had been saying they reflected on the girl. This Nolan denied.

Bert Harsell testified that in conversation with him last Sunday night, McLaughlin said he didn't know where he would be on the next Sunday, behind the bars or in his grave.

Historic House Burned.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., Nov. 6.—The old and historic Livingstone manor, located near Tivoli, on the banks of the Hudson River, was destroyed by fire last night. It was in this house, erected in 1783, that Chancellor Livingstone swore George Washington into office in 1789. Its novel architecture has been copied by famous architects from all parts of the country. The fire was caused by burning leaves.

"Nick Carter" on Paris Stage.

Paris, France, Nov. 6.—"Nick Carter," a five-act play, by Mm. Alexandre Brisson and Guillaume Livet, was produced at the Ambigu last night. The piece deals with a fight between a detective and Meloil, a notorious criminal. The latter, though duping Carter a long while, eventually sacrifices himself to save the life of a woman he loves. The critics speak well of it.

Halifax Also Protests.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 6.—The City Council has decided to concur with the Union of Canadian Municipalities in protest against the cement combine.

MAY GROW FRIENDLY

Britain Has Tried Several Times to Bring About a Rapprochement Between the Two Countries, But Without Success — Germany Now Seems Likely to Do Something Towards an Entente.

Berlin, Nov. 6.—The possibility of an Anglo-German understanding appears to be under consideration in high German Government circles.

The failure to reach such an understanding heretofore, is attributed to the method adopted by Great Britain. After Sir Charles Hardinge, permanent Under Secretary of the British Foreign Office, failed to obtain a satisfactory reply to his suggestion, made at the meeting between King Edward and Emperor William at Kronberg, King Edward is understood to have tried to persuade the Emperor of Austria, whom he met at Ischl, to make friendly representations to Germany.

The author of an anonymous communication, which appeared in the Kreuz Zeitung yesterday, discusses this subject and asks what can be done to restore among the British a feeling of security against German invasion, and so silence the mischievous agitation concerning the naval preparations being made in the two countries.

Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg's "rather obscure hints to Vienna," says the correspondent, "would seem to indicate that he was dwelling upon this question, and that it is now Germany's turn to make a counter proposal, having considered the British suggestion unacceptable." The writer adds that mutual assurances might be made in writing.

Don't Want a Cemetery.

LeBeau, S.D., Nov. 6.—In an indignation meeting Thursday leading citizens protested against the burial in or near this city of the body of L. T. Perkins, 50 years of age, who was killed about two miles out of town Wednesday, in an automobile accident. This town has no graveyard and does not want any.

Public-spirited citizens, immediately Perkins' body was taken from beneath the machine, began contributing towards a fund to send it post haste to Mellette, S.D., 140 miles east on the Minneapolis and St. Louis road, to the nearest undertaker.

This is the first death in or near LeBeau during its existence as a town. Inasmuch as the accident occurred two miles from town the municipal record is yet clear and the rights of Perkins' relatives to bury him within the corporation limits is questioned.

Is Roosevelt Killed?

Washington, D.C., Nov. 6.—A rumor that ex-President Roosevelt has been killed on his hunting trip in Africa was afloat in Washington yesterday morning, but diligent search failed to discover the slightest foundation for it. Enquiries from many parts of the country make it evident that the rumor is widespread. At the Smithsonian Institution not the slightest word of such a fatality or even of an accident, had been received. The State Department, which would be most likely to be notified by its Consular representative in Africa, had received no such news.

Violated Fruit Marks Act.

Ottawa, Nov. 6.—Further prosecutions by Dominion fruit inspectors for illegal marking and packing of apples have resulted in the following convictions: J. P. Dunn, Streetsville; J. A. and E. Brown, Port Hope; W. J. Henders, Port Perry; Albert Brent, Port Perry; C. F. Chase, Frankford; Phillips and White, Frankford; R. J. Graham, Belleville; Thomas Brain, Oakville; E. P. Ainsworth, Brighton; Royal Fruit Co., Edmonton, Alta. The fines ranged from $10 to $50.

Cotton Growing a Negro's Job.

London, Nov. 6.—Bernhard Dernburg, the German Secretary of State for the Colonies, who is returning from a trip to the Southern States, where he made a study of cotton growing, said in an interview that his experience in the United States convinced him that cotton growing was essentially a black man's job.

Mrs. Stetson Stays Suspended.

Boston, Nov. 6.—Archibald McClellan, editor of the official organ of the mother church in Boston, concerning the exoneration of Mrs. Stetson, said such action is not binding on the mother church in Boston and that the decision of the mother church in revoking the license of Mrs. Stetson to teach Christian Science for three years or more, is in no way affected.

Coming to Toronto.

San Juan, Nov. 6.—Santiago Iglesias, president of the American Federation of Labor at Porto Rico, is a passenger aboard the North Steamship Como, which sailed Thursday for New York.

He will address the annual convention of the federation at Toronto.

Poisoned by Cheese.

St. Catharines, Nov. 6.—Stuart Nelson, proprietor of the Union Hotel, Walter and Mrs. Webb, and a number of other residents of Merritton are very ill from eating cheese purchased in a local grocery, and thought to be poisoned.

Guelph, Nov. 6.—The explosion of giant firecrackers was the alarm which yesterday morning at 2 o'clock awakened W. H. Robinson of the Guelph Paper Co., to find the warehouse of the company in flames. Loss $8,000 to stock and $1,000 to building; partly insured.

Look Out For the Comet.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 6.—The famous Kalley's comet will pass over the sun's face May 18th next, if the calculation made by Rev. Father G. M. Searle, C.S.P., and sent to the Harvard College Observatory here is correct.

Latest feature—burnished surface

The Pandora might truly be named "the range with a piano finish," for the smoothness, lustre and brilliancy of the new burnished surface rivals the finish of a high-class piano.
This new burnished surface polishes quickly and requires about one-third the black lead necessary for the rather rough surface of ordinary ranges.
Ordinary ranges need polishing once a day to look bright, while the marvellously smooth burnished surface only needs polishing once a week.
The burnished surface is a McClary invention—found on no other make of stoves—so if you desire to save time, polishing-labor and black lead, be sure you choose Pandora. 16

It is claimed that 50,000 Englishmen would be glad to come to Canada to do this work, and that therefore there is no need of Orientals.

HAVE AN ORANGE?

How British M.P.'s Refresh Themselves at Work.

"I carried it on a glass of water!" In long years to come, when Mr. Lloyd-George is recounting to his grandchildren his doughty Parliamentary exploits in the opening decade of the twentieth century, he will be able proudly to boast, as a strict teetotaler, that his only refreshment in steering the remarkable and complicated Budget of 1909 through the House of Commons was a glass of water. What a change from the days when William Pitt used to carry two or three bottles of port whenever he opened his Budget!

It is curious how imperceptibly manners change in the House of Commons. One never sees an honmember nowadays seeking inspiration during a speech in a glass of wine or a whisky-and-soda. Such a spectacle would probably cause a thrill of mild surprise in the present House of Commons. Yet, as recently as ten years ago, it was quite a matter of course.

Sir William Harcourt's "refresher" was a tumbler of claret-and-water. Mr. John—now Lord—Morley found the necessary stimulus in a glass of dry sherry. Mr. Goschen carried his Budgets on rum-and-water; and Lord Randolph Churchill's aid to oratory was a brandy-and-soda.

Even in the old port-drinking days, it was a common practice for members of the House to suck oranges in the course of a long speech. Henry Brougham delivered a famous speech on land reform that lasted six hours. It will be found filling sixty pages of "Hansard" for February 7th, 1838. Brougham was not exactly temperate, but on the bench beside the orator was his hat full of oranges, to which he resorted for refreshment in the ordeal of the speech.

Indeed, during the first half of the nineteenth century orange-sucking was quite a Parliamentary art. It was a familiar spectacle to see members lying full length on the benches of the House, absorbed in squeezing oranges or cracking nuts. In the sessions of the first Reformed Parliament, Daniel O'Connell and William Cobbett might be seen, side by side, sucking oranges in amiable rivalry, while they told each other stories, discussed the political situation, or united in interrupting a speech by Peel with rude comments. Their companion-in-arms, Joseph Hume, liked pears.

Richard Cobden, relating how he was once virulently attacked in the House by the member for Knaresborough, says: "Colonel Sibthorpe plied the fellow with oranges to suck in an affectionate way that resembled a monkey fondling a bear." That was exactly sixty-two years ago, and is, perhaps, the last record of this singular form of oratorical stimulus.

Curious Corps.

It is abroad that we find the most romantic and picturesque of military bodies; but there are quasi-military organizations in Great Britain which are not included in the army list.

The Bodyguard of Gentlemen-at-Arms, the "Yeoman Warders of the Tower," and the King's Indian Bodyguard are fairly well known to Londoners; but how many have heard of the corps of local Highlanders which springs into existence to guard the ruling sovereign whenever he visits Balmoral? It is a corps entirely apart from all military conventions, yet the members are strictly disciplined, dressed and equipped.

Many British firms have formed special Territorial companies or semi-military bodies; but one London manufacturing firm has a complete corps, with band, drums and fifes, ambulances, etc., and every member of it is an army officer or ex-soldier and wears a distinctive uniform with brass helmet.

This recalls an even more curious corps which came to light the other day. It is called the Runcorn and District Grappling Corps, and it possesses a special appliance for recovering the bodies of drowned persons. A William Byfield is captain; he is ready to turn his corps out by day or night for duty, and claims a certain allowance for successful work.

On the far Indian frontiers Britain employs truculent tribesmen—"Chowkidars" they are called—to protect the British troops at night against the daring and merciless Pathan rifle thieves who infest those parts.

The Wrong Subject.

Dr. Joseph Pope was a clear, convincing lecturer, who never failed to put his audience at ease. At one time a wealthy manufacturer engaged him to speak before the people of his town. The subject of the lecture was the economics of life. The audience was large, and made up of a class which had to practice prudence in expenditure.

After mentioning many cheap substitutes for various luxuries, Dr. Pope dwelt long and emphatically on the value of paper as a conserver of heat. Layers of paper, he said, made the warmest of bed covering. The audience listened appreciately.

After the lecture the manufacturer's manner was so cool and his temper so unmistakably sour that Dr. Pope frankly asked him what was the matter.

"Oh, nothing," replied the patron. "I'm extremely obliged to you, Dr. Pope, but I think I shall not trouble you again. My trade is making blankets."—From "Roundabout Papers."

Fine Muslin.

"None of this is fine enough," he said. "In the turban I have on there are 40 yards. But 40 yards of this would give me a head like a saratoga trunk."

"Indian muslin is very, very fine. It must be fine enough to disappear if it is to pass our Art test. Yes, fine enough to disappear." He smiled.

"It's true," he said. "The test is this: The muslin is spread on grass over night. In the morning, when everything is dew drenched, if the muslin isn't practically identical with the dewy gossamer covering the lawns —in other words, if it isn't invisible —it is discarded, and must be sold as 'seconds.'"

Nursery Rhyme.

Gracious, goodness, mercy me,
See the boys climb up the tree!
Isn't it the greatest fun?
Up they go, and down they comes!

A Vicious Weapon.

Basing his statement on a series of experiments with the latest pattern of military firearm, Dr. Fessler of Dresden says in a recent number of Der Militaer Artst that in the next great war the mortality from gunshot wounds will be "frightfully large." He describes one kind of military rifle the missile from which will "not go straight, but will be deflected by the slightest resistance after it strikes the body and will continue on, making a wound at an angle with the one through which it entered the body." The "wounding capacity of the new weapon is many times greater than that of the rifles now in use," and this, he says, "makes it a tangible argument in favor of peace."

The First Balloonist.

Mention of the experiment of placing dogs in battleships subjected to bombardment recalls the fact that animals were used as passengers in the early experiments in flying. In fact, the first modern aerial travelers were a sheep, a cock and a duck, which were suspended in a cage beneath the balloon sent up from Versailles by Joseph Montgolfier in 1783. A voyage of two miles left them quite uninjured, except the sheep had kicked the cock in the wing. In America, too, early experiments were made with animals which were let up to a certain height by a rope.—London Chronicle.

Poor Czar.

"Poor czar!" With these words a writer in the Oestreichischen Nachrichten begins an article on the "Unmasking of the Russian Emperor." "Once upon a time," he says, "he was in Japan with the crown prince of Greece, while making a tour of eastern Asia. A young Japanese fanatic struck him on the head with a cudgel, and since that time his mental powers have been impaired. He can follow no written or oral discourse which lasts longer than a few minutes, and for that reason it is an easy matter for those who surround him to deceive the ruler of all the Russias."

Effect of Irrigation.

Forty years ago the stretch between El Monte, in Los Angeles county, and San Bernardino was known as the Forty Mile desert and was somewhat dreaded by teamsters. Today, thanks to irrigation, there are to be found in that section some of the finest vineyards and orange groves of California. —San Francisco Argonaut.

Curiosity.

There was a right man, and he died.
Nobody cared, so no one cried,
And, though they didn't feel bereft,
All frankly wondered what he'd left.
—Philadelphia Ledger.

These Useless Questions.

"My brother broke his leg yesterday."

"Accidentally?"

"We presume so. He had nobody to spite."—Kansas City Journal.

That Double Chin

Every woman who is fat, and especially every woman (or man) who has a hog-like double chin, will welcome this news-paragraph. Your night masks and sticking plaster strips and strokings are at an end. A method of reducing double chins (also fat abdomens and hips, shoulders, ankles, and neck), that really does reduce them, has been found.

And would you believe it, it is nothing more than a simple, harmless home receipt that any druggist will fill for you, viz: ½ oz. Marmola, ¾ oz. Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, and 4¾ oz. Peppermint Water, a teaspoonful of which after each meal and at bedtime will take off up to a pound of fat a day. Try it—it is good for the stomach—strengthens that organ —so it turns the food into energy, bones, muscle, as it should, instead of into fat, as yours is doing now after each meal. Eat what you wish; mixture will still trim up your figmixture will still trim up your figure. And it will do it evenly, too, without causing wrinkles; removing the soggy fat, such as double chins and stout abdomens are made of, first.

CHICAGO'S FIREBOATS.

Water Guns That Discharge Nine Thousand Gallons a Minute.

The two new Chicago fireboats are 120 feet long and of thirty-six foot beam, and their fire fighting battery as well as the means resorted to by which they can anchor solidly anywhere in the river instead of having to fight a fire alongside a dock is as revolutionary and interesting as the power plant. The main water battery consists of two great "water guns" that can be swung in any direction or at any angle upon their standards. These standards are mounted on a platform just over the positions of the pumps, each great nozzle taking the entire force of 4,500 gallons of water per minute from the pump under it when desired, or should the necessity require it one nozzle, by inserting a slightly larger head, can take the combined 9,000 gallons per minute of both pumps and throw it in one huge, shattering stream.

Each nozzle, with a two inch opening and each receiving the full force of the pump under it, can throw a powerful stream fully 500 feet, while one of them, with a three and one-half inch opening and receiving the water from both pumps, can throw a stream nearly twice the size about the same distance, perhaps a little farther. In addition to these justly named water guns, the fire fighting battery consists of sixteen connections for hose; but, of course, the larger the number of lines of hose used the less is the force of the streams from the water guns. It would, however, be impossible to use the water guns on many fires, as their force would soon batter down the walls of an ordinary brick building if the fighting were at close range; also should the necessity require lines of hose could be run from these connections to supply fire engines at a fire several blocks away from the river. In fact, the boats could be used from several points in the river or from the lake front to fight any fire in Chicago's business district.—Popular Mechanics.

Telephone and Phonograph.

Some time ago a magnetic phonograph was invented which its designer hoped to use in connection with the telephone to receive and record messages in the absence of the owner of the phone. The objection to this system was that a person calling up a number and receiving no response was not inclined to deliver his message to something so intangible as an unresponsive and apparently inanimate machine at the other end of the wire. A new improvement is reported along this line, in which a phonograph is provided to answer calls of telephones when the person called is out. The person before leaving will deliver a message to the phonograph stating when he will return, where he is going or where he may be called, and this the phonograph will automatically repeat twice to each call. This it will do, no matter how many calls there may be.—London Standard.

Street Noises.

When the first international congress for the suppression of street noises is called to order in Berlin in June, 1910, there will be representatives, according to a statement made by Mr. Bordengreen of the Society For the Betterment of London, from the United States, England, Germany, Austria, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland and Denmark. "By that time," says one of the New York society, "the objects of the organization will have become better known and we will have outlived the ridicule with which the noise fighters are now looked upon." At the London conference, where the question as to where to hold the first congress was determined, it was also agreed that the second meeting of the kind be held in New York in 1912 under the direction of Mrs. Isaac L. Rice.—New York Tribune.

Her Telephone Nurse.

"I wasn't sick enough to need a nurse," said the woman who lives alone, "yet I was in something of a predicament. The doctor had prescribed a medicine which he wanted me to take four times in the night. I said I was afraid I should not wake up at the proper time.

"'Oh, I'll fix that for you all right,' said he. 'I will instruct the telephone company to call you at 10, 12, 2 and 4 o'clock and to keep on ringing till you answer. It is very simple.'

"Apparently it was. He gave his instructions. The girl called me at the specified hours. I took my medicine, and so a new use for the telephone was born."—New York Sun.

Makas' Idea of Hospitality.

The commander of a punitive force in the Kameruns sent to chastise some recalcitrant natives has just made his report to the German government. The tribe giving trouble is known as the Makas, and they delight in cannibalism. The chiefs, according to the report, fatten slaves to eat them. Captain Dominik says that it is the custom of the country, should visitors arrive unexpectedly, to bring in one of the slaves and kill him as we should a fowl for the entertainment and welcome of the guest.—London Globe.

G. A. R. in Foreign Lands.

The first Grand Army post in Europe has lately been organized at Oldham, in Lancashire, England, where twenty former Union soldiers reside. Although it is the first European post, it is not the first outside the limits of the United States, as there are already four in Canada, one in Peru and one in Honolulu. There are, according to the United States pension commissioner, about 5,000 pensioners residing in foreign countries.—St. John (N. B.) Globe.

An Airship Disadvantage.

If things go wrong you're at a loss
As through the clouds you roam.
You can't hitch up a farmer's hoss
And tow the old thing home.

21 Givens St., Toronto,
June 20, 1909.

D. D. D. Company,
Dear Sirs,—

Man Who "Sat on the Fence."

Of the many stories told of Lord Rosebery, one of the best had its scene in a certain London hat shop.

While his lordship stood bareheaded waiting to be fitted, a bishop entered, and, being rather short-sighted, mistook him for one of the shop assistants.

"Have you a hat like this?" asked the bishop, showing him his own episcopal headgear.

"No, I haven't; and if I had, I'm blessed if I should wear it!"

Lord Rosebery owns 7,000 acres in Linlithgowshire, 18,500 in Midlothian, 5,500 in Bucks, 2,000 in Norfolk, 500 in Herts, 170 in Kent, and three in Suffolk.

His lordship replaced Gladstone as Premier in 1894, but the party was divided against itself, and the Ministry fell in 1895.

For many years Lord Rosebery was constantly referred to in political cartoons as "sitting on the fence."

Apples at $10 Apiece.

Never in the history of fruit growing has ten dollars been paid for a single specimen apple of a standard variety. Four or five dollars a barrel is considered a good price for a barrel of Spys. Yet when you figure up the cost of a barrel of Spys at ten dollars each the price will be over $2,000. This price, which will be paid right here in Ontario is quite unusual. In Oregon they sometimes receive as high as ten dollars a box for Winter Bananna apples, but even that price only figures out at thirty dollars a barrel. Even the choicest Canadian apples that are exported to Great Britain, and sometimes sold wholesale at three to four dollars a barrel, sell retail sometimes at five cents each in the fruit shops in London this would make an average of just over ten dollars a barrel. The fact that ten dollars is being offered for the best single specimen apple of Baldwin, Greening, Spy, King or McIntosh, and that five dollars is offered for the second best of the same varieties, or seventy-five dollars in all for the lot of ten apples is making the fruit growers in Ontario very keen over the Exhibition.

This amount of money is being offered by the Ontario Horticultural Exhibition, Toronto, where the apples will be on exhibition from Nov. 9th to 13th, 1909. Fruit growers who have some extra good specimens of any of these varieties should send their apples for competition. There are rules and conditions to govern the competition, which will be furnished by the Secretary, P. W. Hodgetts, Toronto. Last year this Exhibition was visited by persons from distant parts of Canada and the United States, and even England sent her expert apple men to see the largest Horticultural Exhibition ever held in Canada.

In addition to apples there will be one of the finest displays of prize fruits, vegetables and flowers ever shown, making a splendid advertisement of Canada's products.

From present indications this year's Exhibition will in many ways eclipse last year's splendid success. The railway companies, recognizing the importance of the Exhibition, have decided to give special rates. Local railway agents can supply the information.

Westminster Abbey.

The finances of Westminster abbey are in a very precarious condition. On the advent of Dean Bradley in 1882 the outer fabric was discovered to be in a fearfully dilapidated state, while the revenues of the abbey, mainly derived from landed property, were sinking lower and lower. It was a crisis, but fortunately it was met by so competent a master as the late dean. While the revenues were placed on a secure foundation, they remained wholly inadequate, and an immense grant was made by the ecclesiastical commissioners to save the building. Today the abbey is staggering under a tremendous debt, while one of its canonries is suspended for an indefinite period.—Exchange.

A Myth Chaser.

"What makes your youngest son so eager for athletics?"

"Filial admiration," answered the worried looking mother. "He believes all the stories his father tells about the wonderful things he did when he was a boy and is trying to equal the record."—Washington Star.

Perseverance.

Perseverance is more prevailing than violence, and many things which cannot be overcome when they are together yield themselves up when taken little by little.—Plutarch.

JUST DIGDIGS.

Too Much For the Big Man in the Purple Shirt.

"Beg pardon, neighbor," said the big man as he opened his paper, "here is something I don't understand."

"What is that, sir?" asked the little man curiously.

"Why, it states here that Colonel Roosevelt shot a digdig. What is a digdig?"

The little man smiled.

"My friend, a digdig is an animal that digs. When one digdig starts to dig, the other digdigs dig deeper than this digdig. Then this digdig digs and digs and digs until"—

"Hold on! Which digdig?"

"The first digdig. The other digdigs dig and dig to catch up with the other digdig's digging. Then the first digdig digs and digs till the other digdigs"—

But the man in the purple shirt covered his ears with his hands and fled. And all day long the "digdig" rang through his brain until he vowed Teddy was an enemy to mankind to discover such an animal.—Chicago News.

The Wrong Switch.

"Little boy," said the big electrician as he unpacked his tool kit, "your mother sent for me to fix her switch. Where will I find it?"

The little boy's eyes grew round.

"Sh!" he whispered cautiously. "Mamma doesn't want everybody to know she wears a switch, but I guess you'll find it either on the bureau or on her head."

And ten minutes later the sounds that emanated from the woodshed told that there are other kinds of switches besides electrical and hair.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

England's Patron Saint.

The story of England's patron saint is surrounded by a mixture of truth and fable which defies definite sifting. He is generally believed to have been born at Lydia, but brought up in Cappadocia, and suffered martyrdom in the reign of Diocletian, A. D. 303. The legend of his conflict with the dragon may have arisen from a symbolical or allegorical representation of his contest with the pagan persecutors. When our crusaders went to the east in 1098 they found St. George elevated to the rank of warrior saint, with the title of the "victorious," and as they believed that they were indebted to him for aid in the siege of Antioch they adopted him as the patron of soldiers. Edward III. was thus led to make him patron of the Order of the Garter, and so gradually St. George became the tutelary saint of England.—London Mail.

Eve and the Apple.

Princess Duleep Singh at a dinner in New York said that she found the American woman a marvel of beauty and the American man a model of good looks and kindness.

"The American man," said the charming princess, "is rightly held up to the world as the pattern husband. In Europe they have a saying about Eve and the apple which shows how wretched a failure the European husband is. This saying is unknown in America, I am sure. It would have no point, no application, here in the land of pattern husbands. The saying is this: "The evil one didn't give the apple to the man, but to the woman, because the evil one knew well that the man would eat it all himself, but the woman would go halves.'"

Curious Chinese Custom.

A curious Chinese custom consists in throwing thousands of small pieces of paper, each inscribed with a prayer into the ocean when a friend is about to sail.

Cheese.

Cheese is one of the most concentrated of foods. A twenty pound cheese contains more nitrogenous substance than a sheep weighing sixty or seventy pounds.

Irish Linens.

It is asserted that the superiority of Irish linens is due in a large measure to the use of a size obtained from boiling and straining Carragees moss and applying to linen warps. The moss penetrates the thread and toughens it.

So if your hair is red
Or any hue not good enough

Mr. Brignall, of the Canadian Pacific Railway is engaged on Literature for the Ontario summer resorts touched by his Railway Co'y. He is making a most thorough investigation of each locality and he contemplates getting out a class of literature, with a view not specially to flowery description, as to information for the intending tourist that can be relied on. Regarding the Kawartha Lakes a good boat service is necessary and Mr. Brignall is in hope that improvement will be made next season. It is understood that the Otonalee Navigation Co'y, intends making connection with the C.P.R. trains and the lower lakes. It has been argued that the traffic will not warrant this connection. The same argument would have held just as good against the building of the railway. It was known that the old stage between Bobcaygeon and Fenelon Falls carried all the traffic, eight persons, and therefore it would be madness to build a railway for traffic of eight persons. As a matter of fact, where the traffic was limited to eight, the train now pulls in on a holiday with three loaded cars. Where service is given, traffic will follow. Eight used to be the limit and there was no demand for a second, so uncomfortable, slow and expensive was the means of travel. A cattle car and exorbitant rates on the railway would have left the traffic as it was, but a good, comfortable quick service at low rates, brings satisfactory revenue, and meets popular demands. There are thousands of people in our own Ontario Manufacturing towns, without looking to the States, who are anxious for a holiday on the lakes and in the woods. The lakes and woods are here; the Railway can bring them here; a thoroughly good boat service is all that is necessary to draw the traffic. A one horse out of date service is of no use whatever, it is not attractive. There is not a boat on the water fit for the service and there is the difficulty, for it seems a large and risky proposition to put on boats of suitable size and appointments, There will be no development however, until some means are found for the risk. There is room on the Kawartha Lakes for many thousands during the summer, and it is to be hoped that the efforts of Mr. Brignall will lead to such action as will bring about the much desired development, a development that means financial returns for transportation and for everyone in the district concerned is the summer traffic.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

BRIEFS FROM THE WIRES.

Women voted in Norway for the first time in the general election yesterday.

Manager Jeffrey of the Sterling Bank, Fort Erie, was found dead in his room yesterday.

Robert H. Price has been arrested at Singhampton in connection with incendiary fires in Simcoe county.

An order-in-council has been passed appointing George J. Desbarats Deputy Minister of Marine and Fisheries.

Miss Frances Beaverstock of Tyendinaga has been arrested on the charge of murdering three of her children.

P. W. Coleman, a native of Ontario, is dead at Washington, D.C., where he held an important position in the Pension Office.

Elmore Walker Scott, telegraph operator, Toronto, will apply to Parliament for a divorce from his wife, Mary Tanner Scott.

The great leather works of F. T. Holden & Son at Walsall near Birmingham, were burned out yesterday. The loss is over half a million dollars.

The Japanese military mission, which has been visiting other capitals, arrived at St. Petersburg yesterday. The party will remain until Nov. 15.

The Daily Telegraph says it has been definitely decided that the House of Lords will refuse to accept the finance bill until an appeal has been made to the people.

An official of the Big Four Railroad at Cincinnati is said to have confessed that the shortage of from $50,000 to $100,000 in his accounts was due to his paying blackmail.

Augustus Wilkinson and Wm. Birmingham, appeared before Judge Price at Kingston yesterday, charged with burglary, were found guilty, but were allowed to go on suspended sentence.

A big sensation is likely if Mrs. Boyle is tried again for the Whitla kidnapping. Influential friends are now raising funds for her defence, while, it is reported, that the Whitla family will spend a million, if necessary, in prosecuting.

Justice Clement decided yesterday, after argument lasting several hours, that Premier McBride must forsake his political tour up country and attend as a witness in the old libel case of R. F. Green v. The Vancouver World newspaper.

Johnson Proud of Fines.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Jack Johnson, returned Thursday from Detroit in a big new blue and cream colored automobile, which he bought in that city, and says he is much pleased with his purchase. He asserts he can go 70 miles an hour.

"I've been fined in nearly every town I've been in for speeding," he remarked with mingled pathos and pride in his tone, "and I don't think it's right. I've never hurt anybody yet."

Johnson's expansive smile was his chief response when the statement credited to Jeffries that he could stop Johnson in six rounds was repeated to him.

"Maybe the bout will end in six rounds," he said, "but Jeffries has picked the wrong man as winner."

Kitchener to See Manoeuvres.

Utsunomiya, Japan, Nov. 6—The manoeuvres of the Japanese army began yesterday. The arrival of the Emperor in the morning was the occasion of a great popular demonstration. Other notable personages on the scene are Gen. Count Nogi, Gen. Count Kuroki, Admiral Count Togo and Field Marshal Prince Oyama. The military attaches of the foreign embassies were also present.

Field Marshal Lord Kitchener, who is making a private visit to Nikko, is expected here to witness the opening of the campaign by the Southern army. Simultaneously the Northern army will commence its campaign from Kori Yama, 150 miles from here.

Paymaster Held Up.

Halifax, N.S., Nov. 6.—As George Foote, paymaster, was driving in a team from Dartmouth to the rope works, north of the town yesterday, with $6,000 to pay the rope works' employes, three masked and armed men attempted to hold up the team and get the money. The driver whipped up the team and one of the trio shot at Foote, the bullet going through his cheek. A bag of money fell from his hand but remained in the wagon, and was delivered safely at the rope works.

Irish Land Bill Rejected.

London, Nov. 6.—By a vote of 219 to 54 the House of Commons yesterday refused to agree to the House of Lords amendments to the Irish Land Bill.

On moving the motion, Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in a conciliatory speech, declared he was most anxious to come to terms, if possible, as the failure of the bill would create a deplorable situation in Ireland.

Efforts will be made to arrange a compromise between the two Houses of Parliament.

GAVE DISTRESS SIGN.

Secret Society Man Sentenced For Contempt of Court.

Philadelphia, Nov. 6.—Because he gave "the distress signal" of a secret society in court here yesterday, Adolph Moskovits, plaintiff in litigation involving a small amount of money, was sent to prison for contempt of court.

He was detected giving signs to the jurors, and was asked for an explanation by Judge Kinsey. He informed the judge that the sign was used by a secret order, of which he was a member when assistance was needed. The case was a simple one, and after the jury had returned a verdict in Moskovits's favor, he was taken into custody by order of the judge.

In committing him for contempt, Judge Kinsey gave Moskovits a lecture, and said the secret order should make an example of him.

Liberals Default In B.C.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 6.—After holding formal conventions, or canvassing their supporters in these districts, the Liberals have decided not to contest the constituencies of Cowichan, Dewdney, Kaslo, Nanaimo, Newcastle, Revelstoke, Slocan or Ymir in the approaching general election.

Skeena, Similkameen, Lillooet and the Islands may also be Conservative wins by acclamation, the Liberals having as yet failed to secure candidates.

Assurance is given Hayward (Cowichan) and McKay (Kaslo) that their re-election by acclamation will be unopposed. In Nanaimo, Newcastle, Revelstoke and Ymir the Socialists will offer candidates, and in Dewdney there is a local oppositionist.

Twenty-eight seats in the House of 42 are now counted Conservative certainties.

Bishop's Dream Treasonable.

Vienna, Nov. 6.—Despatches received here yesterday from Belgrade, Servia, say that Bishop Nikador of Nish, Servia, is to be tried for high treason for an unfortunate dream in which he saw a revolution in Belgrade, the disposition of King Peter and the proclamation of former Crown Prince George as king.

The bishop told of his vision to some friends and finally it reached the ears of the Government.

At a session of the Cabinet, where King Peter presided, the dream was considered and construed as a part of a propaganda in favor of the ex-prince. It was decided to prosecute the dreamer.

Big Mailbag Robbery.

Chicago, Nov. 6.—Theft of a mail pouch believed to have contained between $25,000 and $50,000 in express and postoffice money orders was revealed yesterday through the cashing of several of the stolen orders in Chicago.

The rifled bag was discovered by a farmer boy in a cornfield near Tolona, Ill.

The mail bag is thought to have been taken off a truck which was standing on the depot platform during the transfer of mail from a Wabash train to the Illinois Central.

Two thousand opened letters were found in the cornfield near the pouch.

China and Opium Trade.

Pekin, Nov. 6.—British Minister Jordan, on behalf of this Government, has raised objections to the manner in which China is suppressing the opium traffic.

The objections is the result of the success of the anti-opium movement in China, which is causing a more rapid decline in the importations of opium from India than was provided in the British-Chinese agreement of 1907, which contemplated a gradual reduction of the importation. Consequently China is now confronted with the prospect of paying for Indian opium that she does not use.

The Fate of Three Hundred.

Cape Town, Nov. 6.—A quantity of charred wreckage has been washed ashore near Port Alfred on the south-east coast of Cape Colony, probably from the British steamer Warratah, which had 300 passengers and a cargo of metal and wool, and has never been heard from since she sailed from Port Natal on July 26 for London.

Stole Wedding Gifts.

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 6.—An English orphan boy named Bell, aged 19 got back at W. J. Webb, his employer, for being discharged as a farm hand. He returned and stole a quantity of silverware, chiefly wedding gifts belonging to Mrs. Webb. Bell pleaded guilty to burglary yesterday and was remanded for sentence.

To Make Official World Map.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Topographers Bailey Willis and Stephen J. Kubel of the U. S. Geographical Survey sailed from New York to-day for London to represent the United States in an international conference of topographers, called to further the designing of a world map, to be universally recognized as official. The project for a common world map among the greater powers originated almost twenty years ago.

A Fatal Stumble.

Cincinnati, Nov. 6.—Charles Dexter, 25 years old, first baseman for the New Orleans Southern League team, accidentally shot himself while hunting near his parents' home at Mount Holly, Ohio, Thursday, and died shortly afterward. Dexter was running down a hill when he stumbled and his gun exploded. He was drafted last year by Detroit and the year before by Cleveland, but was not called on by either team. His family name was Oscar Shoenenberger.

$10,000 In Goods Seized.

Kingston, Nov. 6.—Ten thousand dollars' worth of furs and dry goods, purchased in Kingston by New Yorkers who summer here and among the Thousand Islands, and smuggled across the border, has been captured down near New York this week. Spotters were at work here all season watching for smuggling, and the goods above mentioned were gradually traced.

Two Years For Robbery.

Peterboro, Nov. 6.—For having been found guilty of having knocked William F. Whitney unconscious and then robbing him of his gold watch and chain and $38 on the night of Thanksgiving Day, Angus McDonald was yesterday sentenced to two years less one day in the Central Prison.

Colored Attorney Killed Client.

Lima, Ohio, Nov. 6.—John W. Beam, a negro attorney, yesterday was sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Mrs. Maude Dilts, white, a client. Beam was convicted of murder in the first degree, but the jury recommended mercy.

Forest Fires In Virginia.

Winchester, Va., Nov. 6.—The forest fires in this section continue to rage fiercely, and unless rain falls within the next few hours the property loss will be enormous. Thousands of acres of valuable timber land in the great north mountains have already been laid waste, and the flames are spreading in all directions.

The western slope of Maryland Heights at Harper's Ferry is also aflame.

A Revolutionist Crowd.

Kingston, Jamaica, Nov. 6.—A revolutionary Santo Domingan Junta has established headquarters here and yesterday morning a sloop belonging to it took out clearance papers for Haiti. Her destination, however, is believed to be some point on the Dominican coast. On board the sloop are some of the principal Santo Domingo revolutionary leaders.

Cholera In Germany.

Washington, Nov. 6.—Cholera has invaded the German side of the Russian border, and, according to the U. S. consular agent at Koenigsburg, twenty-two cases including seven deaths have occurred so far.

Peary Gets $1.20 Per Word.

New York, Nov. 6.—Commander Peary is to get twenty per cent. more a word for his magazine story of his achievements than ex-President Roosevelt is getting for his hunting story, or $1.20 a word for his story of 50,000 words that is to run serially for eight months.

Dr. Holmes as a Bostonian.

Dr. Holmes was peculiarly a Bostonian. He felt toward Boston as Scott felt toward Edinburgh, the city of his heart and, despite cosmopolitan influences, the city of his mind. He loved the old city and its environs. The pavements of the crooked streets were dear to him, and, an antiquarian, yet up to date, Dr. Holmes' figure seemed never more at home than when it had a background suggestive of at least the transition from the colonial to the federal era. He loved the past, an old house, an old church, especially if they carried with them associations of history. Such tastes were hereditary. Indeed, had they not been they would have been dutiful in the son of Abiel Holmes, whose "annals" are still a gold mine to the delver of our early history. Dr. Holmes' identification with King's chapel might have been expected, for it always speaks both of modern Unitarianism and the picturesque ancient regime which had for him so much fascination.—Boston Transcript.

War Easier to Start Than Stop.

How quickly war may break out between nations was shown by the fact that on a day in 1870 France delivered to Prussia a declaration of war about a question which had only occupied them for five previous days, and the curious thing about it was that this was the only official document which had passed between the two governments on the subject. The day, remarks a writer in a London journal, happened to be the anniversary of the death of Queen Louise, mother of the old emperor, who, with her husband, had suffered such terrible humiliation from Napoleon at Tilsit in 1807. When the war of 1870 was over it was pointed out as a curious coincidence that the figures 07 had just been reversed in token that the shame of Jena had been wiped out by the victory of Sedan.

Not a Hard Case.

"Ever been in any trouble before?" asked the judge.

"Well, sah, I was run over by a railroad once, but I never hurt the engine."—Atlanta Constitution.

Sir Alexander Lawrence, whose grandfather was one of five brothers in India during the Mutiny, recently presented to the Bristol Museum some original documents written by his grandfather at the time of the siege, including a facsimile of the despatch from Outram to Campbell, carried by Kavanagh disguised as a native. Not expecting any outbreak, the authorities had not adopted any cypher, so those of Lucknow made one themselves. The short words of the despatch were written in French the longer ones in English, then the whole was turned into Greek characters. It said a good deal for the advantages of the old-fashioned classical education that Sir Colin Campbell's staff had no difficulty in reading the message.—From "A Little Tour in India."

Preparing For the Census.

Over 65,000 enumerators will be engaged in the census work next April, and supervisors will be provided in every congressional district. These officials will be selected by the director of the census, but the appointment of all other employees must be through competitive civil service examinations. This arrangement will secure a force tested for efficiency and will prevent pressure upon congressmen by persons looking for census appointments. The census will embrace each state and territory and District of Columbia, Hawaii, Alaska and Porto Rico. June 30, 1909, marks the beginning of what is known as the decennial census period. The scope of the census will be substantially the same as that of the last one. Statistics of the number of employees out of employment at the date of enumeration will be gathered. A new inquiry is provided to show the nativity of foreign born persons on farms, and the acreage of farm woodland and the character of the timber will be obtained.—National Magazine.

Congress in 1929.

Extract from the Congressional Record of March, 1929: "Rising to a question of personal privilege, Mrs. Congressman Hood stated that the pages were totally incompetent to take care of the children of the members and cited as an example the fact that beer had been given her six-months-old child instead of milk. Upon motion of Mrs. Cary of New York consideration was given a bill providing for the employment of a staff of trained nurses in the capitol annex."—Charleston News and Courier.

WOMEN AS SMUGGLERS

While One Hundred and Fifty Women Are Returning From Buying Goods In the U.S. a Windsor Official and Lady Searcher Surprise Them and Force Them to Pay One Hundred Dollars Duty.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 8.—Returning from a free trip to Sandusky, Ohio, on the new steamer Alfred Clarke 150 women, residents of Leamington, Kingsville and Pelee Island, were thrown into consternation in the middle of Lake Erie by the appearance of a Canadian customs official.

The trip was arranged to introduce the Alfred Clarke, which is to ply between Pelee Island and the mainland. The announcement did not please Leamington and Kingsville merchants, who have been complaining for some time that residents of the South Essex towns are allowed to make their purchases across the lake without paying duty. Some one sent the Windsor customs officers a tip, with the result that Peter A. McEwan and a woman officer also took in the trip.

McEwen remained in mufti until the boat was in the middle of the lake on the return trip. Then, donning his cap and badge, he made the women a neat little speech, assuring them that it would be useless to attempt concealment, as there was a woman searcher on board.

Cut glass, fancy leather goods, cotton and household novelties were in the collection on which the customs officer collected duty. One woman had three pairs of shoes and a suit of clothes stowed away. The duty collected amount to about $100.

Train Wreck; Five Die.

New York, Nov. 8.—Five persons, four of them known to be railroad employes, were killed and six passengers seriously, and a score slightly injured Saturday in a collision between Pennsylvania Railroad train No. 104, from Philadelphia, and an engine running light on the elevated tracks of the railroad in Jersey City.

In some manner as yet unexplained, possibly because of a misplaced switch, the light engine and the passenger train crashed together, the engine sweeping the inbound train.

Practically all the injured passengers were in the smoking car, which was overturned.

The mail car of the wrecked train carried a consignment of gold said to amount to $1,000,000 from the Philadelphia mint to the New York subtreasury. The consignment remained intact.

Two Local Option Fights.

Welland, Nov. 8.—The County of Welland will have but one local option vote in January, while a short time ago it was thought there would be three. In Welland town, action has been postponed for a year. The temperate and moral reform association in Bertie Township filed its petition on Oct. 30. On Friday the council struck off twelve names, as being ineligible, leaving 280, or three less than the required 25 per cent., so the bylaw will not be submitted.

The one vote will take place in Wainfleet Township.

Drawn Under Train.

Iroquois, Nov. 8.—King Steacy, 10 years of age, son of William Steacy, was killed Saturday by the fast eastbound express. The boy, with his sister and another child, had been picking nuts in a grove north of the railroad. On their way home they stopped to see the train, which comes along very fast on the down grade. The little girls stood far enough away to be safe, but King was drawn in under the train by the suction and killed.

THREE MEN STEP IN FRONT OF ONE TRAIN TO AVOID ANOTHER

Triple Fatality Near St. Catharines---Men Unknown and all Three Cannot be Identified---Not a Cent of Money Found on any of Them---Sunday Evening Tragedy.

St. Catharines, Nov. 8.—Grand Trunk Express No. 19, westbound, struck and killed three men, about a mile and a half from the Great Western Station, just outside of the city boundaries, in the Township of Grantham, last night. All efforts to reveal the identity of the men have so far proved unavailing.

The train was due at the station at 8.07 p.m. Express No. 2 had left for the east at 8.03. The victims must have been walking along the eastbound track, for Engineer Fish of Toronto, who had charge of the westbound train, saw them just as they stepped in front of his train from the other track. About a second later train No. 2, out of the way of which the men were getting, whizzed past him. The men did not have time to jump.

Knowing that he had struck them, the brakes were promptly applied, and the train came to a sudden stop. Immediate search for the victims was instituted by the train crew and some passengers. Two bodies were picked up, both lifeless, and were placed in a baggage car. The engineer declared he was positive the three men had been struck, and just then the body was noticed on the cowcatcher of the engine. The man was found to be still alive, and the ambulance was called for, but death ensued before it arrived. This man had no shoes, but wore a heavy pair of woolen socks. Later search nearby revealed a pair of house slippers and three hats.

Both legs of the three men were broken, and all suffered a fracture of the jaw. Not a cent of money was found on any of them, and the pockets contained very little except jackknives and pipes. The men were all between 30 and 35 years of age. None had the real appearance of tramps. The younger-looking of the three had a small box of salve and a cheap-looking ruby ring in his trousers' pocket. In the pockets of this man was also found a portion of a pay envelope endorsed "T. Wright, Sept. 30, 1909, $25.80." and a real estate circular bearing no name, advocating the purchase of a house rather than paying rent.

In the pocket of one was found a clay pipe, the stem of which appeared to have been broken from the bowl in the mishap, though the bowl was found in another pocket.

The bodies will be prepared for burial, but will be held for a day or so to await identification.

In some quarters the victims are believed to be workmen of some of the local factories.

THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOUR CONVENTION IN TORONTO

Delegates do Not Think There is any Chance of Gompers Failing to be Re-elected---Jail Sentence Against Leaders Will be Discussed---Public Welcome.

Toronto, Nov. 8.—This city for the next two weeks will be the centre of labor union activity. At Massey Hall the big convention of the American Federation of Labor opened at 10 a.m. to-day. It is the first time such a massive labor conference has been held in Canada, and for many reasons it may be the most noted convention of the A.F. of L.

In view of the fact that a prison sentence hangs over the heads of three of the most prominent officials of the federation there is every likelihood of much freer discussinn taking place in a Canadian city than in an American city. The criticism that will be handed out against Judge Wright and Judge Shepard will no doubt be pretty severe.

There has been considerable comment in various newspapers and among different labor men as to whether Samuel Gompers, who has practically been the big boss of the A. L. of L. since 1882, will have any opposition this year. T. L. Lewis, president of the miners; James Lynch, president of the printers, and Frank Hayes of the Illinois miners, have been mentioned as possible candidates against

SECRETARY FRANK MORRISON.

Gompers, but a most significant statement was made yesterday by President George L. Berry of the International Pressmen's Union as to the strength of Gompers.

"If Samuel Gompers," he said, "should be jailed in the farthest point in Asia he will be re-elected president of the A. F. of L. next year just the same."

That the American Federation of Labor will endorse the stand taken by President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison in the Buck Stove & Range Co. case is quite evident, and a resolution will be passed declaring that the sentence of imprisonment on these officers was unjust and that they had not violated their constitutional rights. Action on their point has already been taken by the Central Federated Union of New York City, and a request has been received by the secretary of the A. F. of L. that the convention instruct all locals, national and state bodies affiliated with the A. F. of L. to assist in the fight to have the sentence set aside. The New York body is also asking the convention to order an assessment on the 2,000,000 members of the A. F. of L. toward a fund for carrying the appeal against the decision to the U. S. Supreme Court.

Samuel Gompers arrived in the city Saturday morning with Vice-President James Duncan and John Mitchell, and Secretary Frank Morrison, and when seen last night Mr. Gompers was up to his eyes in work selecting the fifteen committees, each of which will be composed of fifteen of the best men chosen from the various organizations.

Some issues that will likely be discussed at length will be the internal struggle among the electrical workers, the question of independent political action, Gompers' report on European conditions, jurisdiction controversies between various international unions and probable contests for office.

The old jurisdictional controversies between the brewers on the one hand and the teamsters and firemen on the other, between the carpenters and woodworkers, between the plumbers and steamfitters, between the seamen and longshoremen, and other contests will be heard again.

There was a procession this morning, the large assemblage gathering at the Prince George at 9.30 and marching to Massey Hall. In carriages were the District Trades and Labor Council of Toronto, the Toronto Municipal Council, with the executive of the A.F. of L., and following them the fraternal delegates. A massed band of 100 pieces led the march. At Massey Hall they were welcomed by Sir James Whitney, Mayor Oliver, Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, and others.

The general sessions for business opened in the afternoon.

PRESUMPTUOUS SINS

PASTOR RUSSELL PREACHES ON SECRET FAULTS.

Text, "Cleanse Me From Secret Faults; Keep Back They Servant Also From Presumptuous Sins: Then Shall I Be Upright, and I Shall Be Innocent From the Great Transgression" (Psalm xix, 12, 13).

Our text prophetically represents the attitude of mind of God's true people. Those who are aliens and strangers from God would not thus pray. Even if they were repentant their first prayer should be in the nature of a confession of sins and an acknowledgment of their acceptance of God's mercy in the forgiveness of their sins and of his accepting them to be his children through the merit of the Redeemer. But even those who have become children of God, by renouncing sin and exercising faith in Divine forgiveness in the merit of Christ, have still to acknowledge that by nature they were "children of wrath even as others." Although they are saved by grace, only their minds, their hearts, their wills, have yet been saved or fully reconciled to God and harmonized to the Divine will. Their flesh is still imperfect, fallen.

Hence, in the language of the Psalmist, it is appropriate that the Lord's people take knowledge of their own blemishes, imperfections, and that they seek the Lord's assistance in fighting the good fight against those blemishes of their flesh. Thank God, this battle of the New Creature, the new mind, the new will, against the fallen flesh and its appetites will not last forever; to the faithful, death will be the close of the conflict. The glorified Redeemer is watching over the interests of his people. He guarantees us in advance that all of our trials, our difficulties, shall work together for our spiritual welfare. He guarantees us that when he shall have sufficiently tested our new minds, our new wills, by the opposition of the cravings of the flesh, he will forthwith declare our trial ended—declare us victors and heirs of glory, honor and immortality with himself, according to the exceeding great and precious promises of his Word.

The question arises, Why should not the Lord grant to us and to all mankind an easier trial than is ours? Why should there be a fallen disposition to fight against? Why should it not be as easy, or more easy, to do right than to do wrong? Why should we not have flesh which should have a good craving merely, and not an evil craving? And if we must have an evil craving, why are we not at least relieved of the outward temptations which excite these evil cravings?—temptations from the world about us, inciting to evil rather than to good; and, according to the Scriptures and our experiences, temptations also from Satan himself, and from the fallen angels, who continually endeavor to intrude upon us, to incite us to anger, malice, hatred, strife and the various works of the flesh and the devil?

These questions are not unreasonable, and God acknowledges this when he shows us that just such favorable conditions as these questions suggest will be provided for the world of mankind during the Millennium. Satan and the evil angels under his captaincy will be restrained according to the Bible and not be permitted to molest mankind in evil promptings and suggestions. We read that Satan shall be bound for a thousand years that he may deceive the people no more until the thousand years be finished (Revelations xx, 2). Relief is also promised from the injurious conduct of others, in that we are assured that during the Millennium nothing shall hurt or destroy throughout God's holy Kingdom. In that blessed time every evil deed will be restrained that it may not accomplish injury to another, while even the effort to commit sin will be promptly punished with "stripes"; not an immoderate, not an unjust torturing for centuries for finite sins, but, as the Scriptures declare, a just recompense of reward will be given both to the just and to the unjust.

The Scriptures assure us that promptness in the punishment for sin, and its reasonableness, its righteousness, will be promptly recognised and quickly bear fruitage throughout the world in peace and order—righteousness. Thus we read, "When Thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn righteousness" (Isaiah xxvi, 9). The preaching of this reasonable, righteous judgment or the future surely bears much better fruitage than the preaching of the "dark ages," now fortunately disappearing — that the wage of a trifling sin might be either a century of roasting or an eternity of torment. The exaggeration of the error is so great that the human mind instinctively resists and rejects it.

The next query we shall answer is, Are God's ways unequal? And if not, Why should he provide at the present time for the trial and testing of the Church under conditions so much more severe than those which shall prevail by and by, during the Millennium? Why must we battle against the Adversary and his minions as well as against our fallen flesh? Why must we contend with sinful oppositions in our neighborhoods and our homes? Why should not evil in every sense of the word be restrained for us as well as for the world during the Millennium and our way be made smooth also?

The Scriptures answer that the Church class, which God is now selecting or electing from the world, is a very special class, for which he has very glorious designs of joint-heirship with the Redeemer in his kingly and priestly offices for the blessing of the world during the Millennium. The greatness of the dignity to which the faithful will be exalted makes it reasonable that the terms and conditions should be exceedingly difficult in this way. Hence we read that the gate is difficult and the way a narrow one, so that few may find it. These few are the "elect," whose character-superiority will be fully evidenced to God, to angels and to men to be such as fully justifies the Lord in granting to them the high reward promised. Were their honors no greater than those the world shall experience, how could God's ways be just and equal in granting them the heavenly nature and Divine glory, while awarding the world of mankind restitution blessing and a worldwide Eden home corresponding to what was lost by Adam and redeemed for the willing and obedient by the sacrifice of the man Christ Jesus?

If now we have clearly before our minds that it is the Church class who are addressed in our text, let us examine the various steps it suggests. During the Millennium the errors and secret faults and presumptuous sins of the world will all be made manifest and all be openly rebuked and punished. But not so now. Those who are now called to be of the elect Church are expected to be so zealous for God, so desirous to know and to do his will, so opposed to sin, that they will voluntarily search for their own errors, their own secret faults, and strive against presumptuous sins.

When we remember that God, for Christ's sake, has forgiven the sins of the Church, the question may arise, What then are these faults or errors? If all of our sins are forgiven freely for Christ's sake, what sins then remain to be forgiven? The answer is that through faith in Christ's blood we were fully forgiven "the sins that are past, through the forbearance of God" (Romans iii, 25). We shall never more be held responsible for sins great or small which were ours before we came to the Lord and accepted his grace, his forgiveness, and became his followers through our consecration of our little all to him. What remains of sin with us is the imperfection of the flesh and its inherited weaknesses, and these blemishes may be with us to our dying day in considerable measure. It is against these that we must fight—fight the good fight and endure hardness as valiant soldiers of righteousness.

But some one may inquire, Is not the merit of Christ sufficient, not only for the sins that are past, but for all of our unwilling blemishes of the past and of the future? In other words, Does not our Lord's satisfaction of Justice include our imperfections present and future, which are the result of Adam's sin and our inheritance of the fallen condition, as well as atone for our sins of the past prior to our acceptance of the Divine mercy? We answer, Yes, this is quite true; nevertheless the Lord requires of us that, after coming into the family of God, we shall take note of our imperfections and apply to him for specific forgiveness of all transgressions. Doubtless this is intended to assist us in keeping humble—to assist us in keeping in remembrance "the horrible pit" of sin from which we were lifted by the gracious merit of the Redeemer by which we were justified. All of these experiences will doubtless be helpful to us by drawing us the more frequently to the "throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace (merit) to help in time of need" (Hebrews iv, 16).

The expression, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth us from all sin," refers not merely to the sins that are past and the cleansing which was ours at the moment we first accepted the Lord's favor, but rather, especially, it refers to the cleansing which is continually necessary to the maintenance of our relationship with the Lord. The forgiveness, the cleansing, is freely, promptly given, but conditionally. It must be applied for. This is the Lord's method of instructing us in the way of righteousness and of assisting us to overcome the oppositions and temptations of the world and to become at heart "overcomers." He knows our weaknesses better than we do; and he wishes us to learn of them, not with a view to discouraging us, but that we may fight a good fight against them, conquer them and, in so doing, develop the characteristics which he approves and has promised to reward with joint-heirship with the Redeemer in his Kingdom.

Hence, instead of openly rebuking his people, the Lord leaves as ours the work of searching for secret faults and putting them away. In proportion as we love him, we will be desirous of doing those things which please him, thus living in his smile, under his approval. It is quite sufficient that the light of the Lord's countenance, his smile, should be withdrawn from those who do not walk the narrow way with zeal—who do not seek for their own faults and endeavor to correct them and to thus make character. As those now being called grow in love for the Lord, every hindrance to his favor will be quickly noted. It is this class that in our text is represented as seeking Divine assistance in the searching out of their secret faults.

Some of these faults may be known to ourselves and to the Lord, but unknown to fellowmen. The heart that is truly converted to the Lord and to harmony with all the principles of righteousness which he represents must more and more desire full perfection—full victory over the weaknesses of the flesh, and must strive for this condition. Other secret faults may be secret from us but well-known to the Lord and possibly quite plainly manifest to our brethren and neighbors. How earnestly all who are truly the Lord's people should seek to see themselves as others see them, and to correct those faults which hitherto have been secret to themselves.

Assuredly the Lord's assistance is necessary in this work; but, in praying to him, in the language of our text, we should remember that his method of answering our petitions is to show us the facts of our case, and then to encourage us by his promises to fight a good fight against the weaknesses thus brought to our attention. The Bible is the Lord's lamp. The Spirit of its wonderful teachings, like a two-edged sword, is sharp and penetrating. It can discern or discriminate between the very thoughts and intents of the heart which deceive so many into thinking a wrong course justifiable. The Christian who makes continual and good use of this "sword" will soon find that with its assistance he is able to analyze his own motives lying behind his words and his acts; will sometimes find himself secreting them, and sometimes masquerading them as graces and virtues.

The difficulty with the majority of Christian people seems to be that they have never undertaken a close scrutiny of the motives lying behind their words or their deeds—yea, the motive or intention lying hidden in their own minds. The reason for this laxity, the reason for their failure to follow up with the searchlight and to "bring every thought into captivity to the will of God in Christ" is that they have not yet attained to a sufficiency of love for righteousness and a sufficiency of a hatred for iniquity. The reason for this condition of things may be that they are "babes in Christ" who have in the past fed merely upon the milk of the Word and not upon the strong meat and are, therefore, weak in the faith and weak every way along the lines of Christian character development. What they need is more love for the Lord and a greater appreciation of his Word, which will lead to more earnest study of the same.

"The entrance of thy words giveth light" (Psalm cxix, 130). As the Word of the Lord dwells richly and abounds, it educates us respecting God's will and its standards and, if we are obedient to his will and his gracious purposes, we will endure his tests and ultimately stand approved as our Lord's joint-heirs in his Kingdom.

One of the great character tests imposed upon the Church is humility. It is not sufficient that we love right and hate wrong and search for even our secret faults. Even after attaining perfection we might be presumptuous and, if so, be unfit for the proposed exaltation. Satan, when a holy angel called Lucifer, the Morning Star, was perfect; but the sin of presumption crept into his heart and blighted everything. So Satan strove to tempt our Lord, who was perfect, to commit a presumptuous sin, through which he would have made shipwreck of his career. He wished him to presume upon God's goodness and abundant care, not by starting a rival empire, as Satan himself had attempted to do, but to presume, nevertheless, upon Divine goodness to the extent of jeopardizing his life by leaping from the pinnacle of the Temple and trusting that God would suspend the laws of nature and work a miracle for his protection, when no such miracle was necessary, because no such hasard had been demanded.

Applying this matter of presumptuous sin to the Church of our day; we find some who appear to be the Lord's people presuming upon his goodness and mercy and love by jumping from financial and other pinnacles and trusting for miraculous protection from disaster. This, to our understanding, is presumptuous sin. Sometimes we see presumptuous conduct amongst elders and others in the Body of Christ, much after the manner of Moses' transgression, when presumptuously he smote the rock, while God had merely bidden him to speak to the rock. For pastors and elders of the Church to assume and to exercise an unscriptural lordship over the Church would appear to us to be a presumptuous sin — a presuming to take place and authority not bestowed by the Lord. On the contrary, sometimes a congregation of the Lord's people may be presumptuous in neglecting the Scriptural direction to take heed to those who have the rule over them and watch for their souls, as those who must give an account. In how many ways might we be presumptuous and ignore the Lord, his supervision over the Church, and his message to us in his Word!

Our text declares, "Then shall I be innocent of the great "transagression" — innocent of anything which would prove me unworthy of eternal life and worthy of everlasting death—"the Second Death."

A Vast Viaduct.

There has recently been opened, between the two New Zealand cities of Auckland and Wellington—some 300 miles apart—a remarkable piece of engineering work, the Makatote Railway viaduct.

It is situated about midway between the cities named, close to the base of Mount Ruapehu, and at a level of 2,600 feet above the sea. It spans the Makatote Gorge at a point where it is about 1,000 feet wide and 300 feet deep, and is approached by cuttings through the banks on both sides. Dense bush covered the whole of the site and district before the construction of the viaduct, and as this has been cut down only where necessary, it remains to enhance the grandeur of the scenery of the neighborhood.

The snow-capped Mount Ruapehu, 9,175 feet high, some seven miles away, forms a fine prospect from the site, while in clear weather Mount Egmont, 80 miles to westward, can be seen. The viaduct consists of five braced steel piers, ranging in height from concrete base to top of handrail from 240 feet, the structure being about 260 feet from bed of creek to top of rail. The piers carry five spans, each of 100 feet long. The viaduct, with the approach spans, is 860 feet long over the girders, and, with the abutments, has a total length of 895 feet. There are 5,758 cubic yards of concrete in the foundations and end piers, and 1,000 tons of steel-work in the braced piers and superstructure.

Perfect and Imperfect Beast.

The Marquis of Normanby has been a schoolmaster, and of this time his lordship once told an excellent story. One day, while expounding the mysteries of the Creation, he asked one of his pupils if he could tell him the difference between himself and a tiger, meaning, of course, the difference in the scale of nature. After some hard thinking, the boy, who is now a prominent politician, replied: "A tiger, my lord, is an imperfect beast, but you are a perfect beast."

Climbed Mountain With Babe.

A Lancashire visitor, who climbed to the summit of Snowdon the other day, carried a baby all the way from Llanberis to the top of the mountain, and, so far as is known, this has never before been accomplished. A collection was made at the top for the purchase of a memento—for the baby—of his first ascent.

Watching the Brain.

After ten years he returned, footsore and weary. His wife met him at the door.

"I thought you were dead," she told him.

"You should have known better than that," he said. "Do you remember that last piece of net I tried to match for you? You scolded because there was a difference of an eighth of an inch in the width of the folds, and I vowed that I would never again return from matching anything for you until I had found the exact thing you wanted."

He handed her a package.

"Here is that old rose binding braid that you told me to buy. I found it last Monday in Billings, Mont. I have looked for it in thirty-seven states."

She tore off the wrappings.

"It is a little too dark," she said.

"But the sample has faded some in ten years," he reminded her.

"It is a little too heavy besides."

"But handling by thousands of clerks has worn the sample away some. It was heavier when I started out."

"I suppose I can make it do," she said.—Newark News.

No Soap-Shrunken Flannels

The woolen season is with us again. Every housekeeper knows what's in store for her, if she uses yellow rosin soap for washing. The woolens and flannels shrink and pucker up alarmingly small.

Don't let your household suffer this winter from uncomfortable underwear. Try the Taylor way of washing and keep woolens their original size.

Taylor's Borax Soap

washes woolens without shrinking, and brings them out fresh, clean and free from any "soapy smell." It is not necessary to boil the clothes—you don't even have to rub them, except very soiled spots. The borax softens the water, so less soap is required. It purifies and sweetens, and leaves the hands soft and white.

LITTLE LAD.

The Part He Played In Bringing Two Hearts Together.

By M. LOUISE CUMMINS.

Jean Lindsay passed down the long hospital ward with firm, quiet step. The blue gingham and ample white apron of her nurse's dress hung in loose folds around the tall, gracious figure. The spotless bands at wrists and neck only served to show up the fine whiteness of her skin. Her snowy cap rested on thick waves of bronze hair.

Dexter Garst drew back into the corridor and, watching her, wondered if the time would ever come when he could see her move thus toward him and not find his whole being stirred to its very center.

The day, nearly a year before, when he had laid his heart at her feet was like a badly healed scar in the doctor's life. It had apparently passed out of her recollection.

She gave him her hand, with a smile of good comradeship, and together they made their usual morning round of the ward. Near an empty cot at the end she paused.

"Little Lad is sitting up," she said, smiling with the triumph of one who had won a hard battle and led the way outside.

By a sunny window he sat in his wheel chair, a little figure even for eight years, in the loose hospital suit of gray flannel. The doctor himself had brought him there nearly three months before, a shapeless bundle. He had been plucked from under a horse's hoofs in the street. No one seemed to care to lay any special claim to him, and yet he was undoubtedly the child of refined parents.

For weeks Garst and Jean Lindsay had fought with death for this one small and apparently superfluous life. There were times when the doctor gave up hope, and nothing but the strength of inherent motherhood in the woman seemed to keep the child alive.

"How is the little lad?" the doctor would ask as he entered the ward morning after morning, and "Little Lad" he became to every one in the hospital.

As he took a feeble hold on life again his whole starved little heart went out and laid hold on these two people, his doctor and nurse, with a mightiness of love which almost hurt him at times. He would lie in his cot and, watching the doctor while he made his rounds, think that he must be very like the man, about whom Nurse Lindsay had told him, who once lived upon the earth and healed all the sick people and loved little children. It never occurred to him to associate the beautiful story with the name he had so often heard in blasphemy in the street. But he looked at his own doctor and felt that it must be true.

A light might suddenly have been turned on inside the small body, so swift was the radiance which flooded his face as Jean and her companion came in sight. Garst sat down near the wheel chair and, taking one small hand, beat it softly against his broad open palm.

"Next week," he said, "I am going to rub away into the country with Little Lad for a few days before—before I go abroad."

Jean Lindsay could not quite conceal the start his words gave her, but she held her voice steady.

"Then the long contemplated course at Bonn is to be an accomplished fact, after all," she said.

"Yes." The doctor did not raise his eyes.

Little Lad had looked from one to the other in vague bewilderment.

"But, first of all," Garst went on, "Little Lad and I will have perhaps a whole week at a splendid place I know of, where there are tall pine trees and a big lake."

He was watching the boy's face and saw how the delight which his words called up became slowly clouded.

"Will she come too?" He motioned with his hand toward the nurse.

Garst remained silent. The child turned to Jean.

"Wont you come, too?" he pleaded.

He read the negation in her face even before she slowly shook her head and flung himself toward the doctor.

"Make her come! Make her come, too!" he begged passionately.

Jean stooped hurriedly and, putting back the damp hair from his forehead, kissed it.

"I'm afraid that would be quite impossible, Little Lad," she said quietly and moved away down the corridor.

But even as she did so an intense physical weakness seemed to have descended upon her. She felt stifling in the bright glare of the morning sunshine and, putting up her hand, pushed the heavy hair back from her forehead. When she had passed out of sight of the doctor and Little Lad she turned and leaned against an open window. In place of the bare, red brick walls of the nurses' home opposite she seemed to see a vista of tall trees, with the doctor and Little Lad lying on the soft pine needles beneath and the water lapping idly at their feet.

A swift, intense desire to be one of the little party rose within her. For the first time in her life she was weary of her work. More than she had ever wanted anything she wanted to get away and be taken care of, even as Little Lad would be, by this strong, self reliant man.

As she stood there an ambulance turned in at the gate, and Jean Lindsay sighed protestingly. She knew that if there was to be an operation she would be sent for, and her whole being rose in a quick revolt of weakness and inadequacy. She felt that the smell of ether just then would strangle her and put out her hands as though she would push away the burden of responsibility—those firm white hands to which strong men had clung in agony and within whose warm clasp more than one little form had grown cold.

She tried to realise as she stood there what her life would be when Dexter Garst went out of it.

"A month from now," she said, and her strong lip quivered—"a month from now he will be in Germany, and I"—

The thought was like a pall descending from the brightness of the sun. She turned away, and even as she did so Garst's silence in answer to Little Lad's passionate "Make her come, too!" came to her with a stab.

"Miss Lindsay needs a rest," the house surgeon thought, looking after her with a critical eye a moment later and noting the pallor of her face.

That night as she made her round of the ward she became aware of a pair of bright eyes fixed upon her above very flushed cheeks. She saw at a glance that Little Lad had been crying and, going swiftly to his side, knelt and gathered him into her arms.

"What is it, son?"

The weak hands went around her neck.

"I want you to come, too," he whispered with quivering lips.

The sob which had lain heavy around Jean's heart all day rose in her throat.

"He does not want me to—not now—Little Lad," she said wearily.

"He does!" The boy pushed her from him and looked up into her face. "He said he did! After you went away I asked him, and he said 'Yes.' But he said 'twasn't any use asking you; that he'd asked you once to go away with him to a beautiful place and to live with him always afterward, but that you wouldn't. Oh, how could you not want to?" His eyes searched hers with incredulous reproach.

Jean bent suddenly and kissed him. Little Lad thought she had never looked so beautiful, but he was not satisfied. He put his hands against her breast and pushed her back until he could see her face.

"Would you if he was to ask you again?" he pleaded wistfully.

Then he was held close against her bosom, and her tears wetted his cheek.

"Yes, dear Little Lad," she whispered, "I would."

He could hardly sleep that night with his longing for the morning. When it came he was in his wheel chair watching the door by which the doctor would enter, and as he saw him he raised himself by the arms of his chair until he was almost standing. He did not know that Jean had entered the corridor from the other end and was moving toward him.

"She said"—he had to stop and swallow, for his excitement choked him—"she said—she would! She said—if you was to ask her again—she would!" he cried tremblingly.

Garst's eyes went beyond the wheel chair to the woman who stood behind it. A dull red leaped to his face. There was a sweet tremulousness upon the gracious figure that sent the blood bounding through his veins. He took a step forward, and the strong hand which he held out shook.

"Will you?" he asked simply.

Jean laid her own within it with a look that blessed.

"I want to go even more than Little Lad does!" she said.

GLASS BRICKS.

Building Uses to Which They Are Put in Germany.

Germany uses glass bricks for building purposes with measurable success. In Berlin is constructed a small villa the walls of which are built of glass bricks of several shades of dark green and blue. The glass bricks are especially adapted to construction where light, cleanliness and neatness are particularly in demand. In Hamburg they are utilised in place of windows. They admit light in walls which police regulations require to be fireproof and windowless.

In addition to admitting light to dark hallways, rooms, etc., they are said to possess the same strength as ordinary clay bricks. They are also utilized in walls in yards and partitions in the interior houses, salesrooms, offices, workshops, etc.; as well as for the construction of verandas, bathouses, kiosks, bathrooms, hospitals, ice factories, butcher shops, railway stations, breweries, stables and in other places where cleanliness, light and uniform temperatures are especially desired.

The bricks are also made with a wire coating for fireproof walls. In some of the recently erected buildings in Milan, Italy, bricks made of glass have been adopted for ground and upper floors on account of the light obtained. They are also coming into use for partition work in some of the hospitals on account of hygienic principles.

In one of the leading banking institutions of the city of Turin the lobby office floor, which is about 36 by 58 feet, is entirely paved with glass bricks laid in iron frames for the purpose of admitting light into the basement, where are located numerous private boxes or vaults. In the Netherlands hollow green transparent glass bricks are used principally for light giving purposes in machine shops and conservatories.—Chicago Tribune.

Her Dime.

Somebody had given the east side woman a bad dime. It was composed largely of lead. She tried to pass it at several places, but they are wary for some reason or other on the east side. They invariably ring a dime on the counter once or twice and bite it besides. When she got home with the dime it had several holes in it from the pressure of east side teeth. "It is more impossible than ever," she said.

The impecunious man called that evening. He had a dollar with him which was wholly intact—that is to say, it had not been broken.

"I am afraid they'll give me bad money for it," he said upon taking his departure, "over here in these east side cars. Will you change it for me?"

"I shall be delighted," said she.

He called a week later with a grouch.

"You can't seem to get away from the bad money over here on your old east side," he complained. "Somebody or other stung me with an old lead dime that was full of holes."—New York Press.

Convincing the Waiter.

"I have learned how to make the foreign waiters in the restaurants where I eat think I have lived in Europe half a lifetime," said a woman who never dines at home. "I dawdle over my dinner twice as long as anybody else in the place. It requires no effort for me to do that. By nature I eat in the same leisurely manner that I do everything else. Most of my compatriots bolt their food. As a consequence the foreign waiters who are used to leisurely dining regard them with amazed horror.

"'Ah, those Americans!' they exclaim. 'Some day they choke. But as for madame'—meaning me—'well, madame is different. Madame nibbles, she sips, she lingers; therefore she is not as those of common American clay. It takes madame never less than two hours to eat her dinner. That marks her as one of the European elect.'"—New York Globe.

Savages and Dancing.

One peculiarity of the principal dances of savage nations is that in nearly every instance they imitate the movements of animals. This is evidenced in the buffalo and bear dances of the North American Indians, the bear dance of the Kamchatkans and the kangaroo dance of the aboriginal Australians.

Radium.

A small fraction of radium properly employed would provide a good light sufficient for several rooms and would not require renewal during the present century.

The Waters of the Ocean.

It has been computed by geographers that if the sea were emptied of its waters and all the rivers of the earth were to pour their present floods into the vacant space, allowing nothing for evaporation, 40,000 years would be required to bring the water of the ocean up to its present level.

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

RECOMMENDING A MILLION DOLLAR CHARITY

Difficulty of Such a Task Discussed by Men Skilled in Organized Uplift Work, Who All Lay Stress on Fighting the White Plague

JOHN M. GLENN,
Director of the Sage Foundation.

ROBERT WILLIAM HEBBERD,
Commissioner of Charities.

On the Tuberculosis Ferryboat in Operation in New York.

Little Patient's Little Pet.

NEW YORK, Saturday.

HERE comes one with one million dollars which he is willing to give to some charity which is officially recommended by the State Board of Charities. Many guesses have been made as to the identity of the mysterious benefactor, and hundreds of suggestions from all classes of the community have poured in upon officials and into the newspaper offices as to the best disposition which could be made of so large a sum in aiding the worthy poor and in promoting the welfare of mankind.

"What would you do?" a prominent worker in the realm of scientific charity was asked, "if you had at your disposal so large a sum to do with as you pleased. Is there any vital need of humanity? Does anything occur to you on the instant as something which must be done? Is there any new charity?

"If I had that much money to spend," he made reply, "well, I would first sit down and think for a week before I would make any plans at all."

"You can't call to mind anything new?" he was asked.

"Nothing," was the response, "except what is already covered in a measure by existing agencies." Most discussions of this kind go wide of the mark, just as did the first calculation in Poe's story of "The Gold Bug." The slight misunderstanding of terms at the start increases the angle of error as the investigation proceeds. What is charity? The dictionary says it is 'beneficence to the poor; benevolence, almsgiving, relief for the needy.'

The dictionary does not seem to know the modern acceptation of the word. That is not modern charity—Charity Organization charity or State Board of Charities charity. Charity of the day is a misnomer. At the very beginning of the search for a new charity we meet a confusion of terms. The professional dispenser of charity is cautious and statistical; he subordinates relief to investigation and service; he is the almoner of the uplift.

Poverty to him is a disease due principally to physical or mental defects in the applicant for aid or to deficiencies in character, and, incidentally, he believes—although he is generally very conservative on this point on account of the views of wealthy and valued contributors—that there may be something in the constitution of society which is out of gear. So it is that "charity" so called has become largely applied sociology. The cost of its administration, which devolves upon many trained and professional assistants, is great and includes an "intolerable deal" of card indices and special bookkeeping and often is in excess of the money given out for food and groceries and coal.

On the face of things there seems to be no lack of beneficent agencies. Organization is everywhere. The directory of the Charity Organization Society teems with well sounding names of coteries which constructively minister to the unfortunate. On the classified list are agencies for the care and relief of needy families in their homes, day nurseries, kindergartens, fresh air societies, legal aid societies, leagues for relief in national and international calamities, relief for foreigners. The destitute and neglected children are the objects of solicitude in many ways, and for them are provided asylums, homes, cheap lodging houses, children's societies, children's courts and reformatories. Here are permanent and temporary homes for the "grown-ups," municipal, State and national. The sick are aided by numerous hospitals, public and semi-public, and by homes for the incurable. The defectives are cared for in asylums, schools and homes. The delinquent adults are taken in charge by reformatories, probation work, prison associations and societies for the prevention of crime.

DR. ORLANDO F. LEWIS,
Financial Secretary of the Charity Organization Society.

Main Office of Charity Organization Society, Twenty-Second Street and Fourth Avenue.

Employed in the Charity Laundry.

Favorite Forms of Charity.

Preventive social work, now a favorite form of modern charity, includes savings and loan associations, beneficial societies, leagues for the improvement of social conditions, model tenements, settlements, neighborhood houses, clubs, libraries and reading rooms. Another manifestation of charity is in the formation of associations for the purpose of giving the benefits of their advice and experience to the charitable organizations of the city and State, which in turn advise the poor not to get needy or they may be in want. Churches and religious congregations of all kinds have relief organizations more or less loosely articulated and employ a host of visitors.

Practically all the charitable endeavors of the city carry on their campaign under the aegis of the Charity Organization Society, which has been developed consistently along the line that poverty is a disease for which the patient is largely responsible, and that the main thing is to teach him how to live.

"It should be said first of all that the word charity," to quote from the official guide of the Charity Organization Society, "as part of the title of the society and of this directory is used in a technical sense. It covers all forms of uplift to those who are in any way dependent and it is not restricted, as commonly supposed, to almsgiving." And again it is written:—

"The society is an investigation agency. It is based upon the axiom that intelligent and effectual help, achieving permanent results, can be given only when there is a full understanding of the facts. To ascertain these in every case of distress brought to its notice it maintains a corps of trained visitors at the central bureau, in addition to the agents and assistants at the district offices, and carries on a wide correspondence."

So extensive are the ramifications of this central bureau of scientific uplift that some years ago a bill was passed that the city should give no more outdoor relief to the poor, with the exception of a few hundred dollars given out annually as a dole for the blind. All this was abolished, to quote from the directory, "in the belief that private charity would prove adequate to meet the need."

This city of New York is an amiable Mrs. Jellyby, ready and willing at all times to aid the natives of far climes and with not a cent to relieve the misery of the outdoor poor, except by carting them on to hospitals and almshouses. There is no means by which the city may officially take cognizance of a destitute home or give aid to a family in desperate need without sending the members of it to various institutions. There is no way in which a destitute prisoner may be fed in a station house except through a collection made by the police themselves. Only recently have the charitable societies, which have been notified through tortuous channels of extreme destitution, been giving immediate aid, and there still remains a wide field for an instant relief society which would give food and drink and clothing at once for temporary needs and investigate later.

Suggestions for Relief.

As the city is prohibited by law from aiding the poor in their homes, there might be an association which would aid the destitute and the hungry on sight and leave to others ministration to the industrial and sociological ailments which beset them.

Why not have a Charitable Charity League? It would have novelty and its usefulness would be varied, although it might not come up to the standards of scientific relief. Many of the tenets of such an organization could be gained from the Society of St. Vincent de Paul, which is conducted largely by volunteers. It withdraws its aid if it finds on investigation that the object of charity is unworthy, but it aids first without question so far as its means will permit, for fear that it might err in not giving the assistance which is often so sorely required. Under the present régime, however, there is a dearth of means for prompt and rapid aid in cases of extreme destitution. This problem is a difficult one from every point of view.

Those who have made a study of charity in its modern aspect take the position that without investigation money given for relief is likely to be largely wasted.

"As far as organized charity is concerned," said Mr. Robert W. Hebberd, Commissioner of Charities, "it must be borne in mind that unless there is investigation made money for charity is likely to be entirely wasted. In order to spend their time in investigation social workers must live, and in order to live they must earn money. The machinery must be maintained. The actual giving of alms is the smallest part of the work of charity, for when a man gets to the condition where he needs such aid something is the matter with his method of life usually, which must be remedied. He must be helped to rehabilitate himself, and in order to do that he should have advice and should be aided in obtaining employment."

Of the needs which seemed to him the most imperative, Mr. Hebberd thought that the giving of funds to fight against the spread of tuberculosis would be a good way to expend $1,000,000.

"For instance," he said, "the city is building a hospital for the treatment of tuberculosis patients on Blackwell's Island. The completion of that institution would be a worthy object and of incalculable benefit to humanity. Again, there recently has been a complete change in the matter of alcoholism. From time immemorial the drunkard has been practically regarded as a criminal and has been locked up and treated as such. There now an effort being made to pass a law under which he will be considered the victim of disease. When a man is found to have got into the habit of intoxication he could be taken into custody and placed in a hospital or some such institution, or transferred to a farm colony, where he could be kept until his unfortunate habits had been overcome. Much could be done in aiding the victims of drink in regaining their place in society.

There exists a need for homes for the convalescent. The city institutions are obliged to discharge many persons as cured who still require weeks of building up and good care to fit them to live effectively with life. What homes there are of this kind are now taxed far beyond their capacity.

The Sage Idea.

Mr. John M. Glenn is director of the Sage Foundation, the principal object of which is to find the causes of poverty and to seek the antidote. When he was asked what new charity could be suggested, he said that he could think of none offhand and remarked that the giving of advice on such a subject was the investing of a million dollars in the aid of any special charity would require much thought.

"I should say," he remarked, "that one of the great needs of the day is in connection with the fight against tuberculosis. Recently there has come to our attention a proposal to found an institution for the teaching of preventive medicine. That would mean the training of experts who would practically have the standing of physicians whose duty it would be to aid the people to so care for themselves that they would be able to ward off disease. Ventilation, sanitation, cleanliness and many such things would be taken up. The Bureau of Child Hygiene is also one of the new agencies which is destined to be practical and useful."

Dr. Orlando F. Lewis, financial secretary of the Charity Organization Society, who has had wide experience in all phases of the work of modern relief, declared that the extension of homes for the aged was of the greatest importance.

"There are comparatively few of such institutions now," said he, "and those which now exist have long waiting lists. In order to gain admission to such institutions it is necessary that the applicant have or some one for him shall deposit several hundred of dollars. Perhaps the time will come when we shall have old age pensions in this country which government and the wage earner will co-operate in creating, but until then it will be necessary to have such homes as those of which I speak.

"One of the great needs of the present age is for that in which the aged workman or clerk, who has done his life work well and has been unable to save enough against his old age, shall be cared for in such a way that there may be no loss of self-respect. In the war against the white plague, the establishment of homes for the convalescent and the more humane treatment of the indigent are other objects worthy of the attention of a man who has a million dollars to stand in aiding his fellow men."

Views such as have been given indicate the trend of charity in its modern conception and what may be expected in a general way from an official asked to indicate an enterprise to which a man with ample fortune might devote large sums.

According to "Advertising Arithmetic"

There are Stores in this City that would be Greater Stores---Hustling, Bustling Successes

If They Were Only Advertised Just Twice as Much As They Are Now.

If any one of these Stores were to begin at once to Double its Advertising, or to use the Newspapers as a Medium for Advertising their goods, it would more rapidly increase their business than they ever dream of

Two Columns

of Space in a live Newspaper is worth more than TWICE as much as ONE COLUMN in Store Advertising.

A Full Page is worth FOUR TIMES as much as a Half Page, but of course is not charged for on that basis.

Moral :

It is important for you to find out whether YOUR Store may not be one of those that ought to be advertising just twice as much as at present.

IF SO, TEST THESE STATEMENTS IN

THE EXAMINER

We would like an opportunity of discussing the Publicity Problem with every Advertiser and Non-Advertiser in this city and district.

The Non-Advertiser has a business that has not reached its limit. His name is not a household word, and his trade is more liable to be stampeded than the user of Printers' Ink.

Intelligent use of Newspaper Publicity, backed up by quality is the only safe way of creating a name and a sale for your goods.

INDIANS DEFEATED.

Skeena River Settlers Have Ended Trouble With Siwashes.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 8.—The prediction that the smouldering discontent among the 4,000 odd Indians of the related Skeena River nations would break into open war upon the whites as soon as winter had sealed the waterway, is already proven not ill-founded, and but for a daring strategic move by Chief Constable Maitland Dougall Saturday the campaign against the whites would ere now have been begun.

Forewarning was received Thursday when the Indians attacked and captured the Government road camp in Kispiox Valley, north of Hazelton, devoting especial attention to the securing of the stores of dynamite. In this preliminary skirmish two Indians were wounded and another thrown into the Skeena, where he presumably drowned. Foreman James McCully and two others of the camp outfit were injured, McCully being slashed about the legs with an axe. All were ordered to leave the valley instantly under penalty of death, similar warning being given Hugh Taylor, the Government telegraph operator and resident teacher.

Yesterday fifty police, after a five hours' fight, captured Kispiox Village, and took seven prisoners. It is believed this will settle the trouble.

Fifty special constables, virtually the entire white population of the district, were sworn in, armed and marched from Hazelton in small squads in the dead of night, upon Kispiox, the capital. At 5 a.m. the village was rushed and the seven head chiefs and ringleaders seized.

MONEY FOR M. AND M.

Canadian Railroad Builders Get $5,920,008 in England.

Montreal, Nov. 8.—A cablegram has just been received from London stating that bonds to the amount of five million dollars have been placed in London by William Mackenzie, president of the Canadian Northern Railway, who is now in England, will enable the Mackenzie and Mann interests to build at least 500 miles of road yearly from this out.

In fact, it is stated officially that the coming year will be the busiest ever experienced by the builders of the C.N.R., and that by the end of 1910, every mile will be under contract from Montreal to the Pacific coast. This, of course, includes the section around the North of Lake Superior, as well as the British Columbia section, which will be started both at Edmonton and on the Pacific the week following the ratification at the polls of the bargain which was signed a short time since by Premier McBride and Dan Mann.

With this off their minds, it is understood that the next question will be the extension of the Atlantic section to Halifax.

Operation on Board Liner.

New York, Nov. 8.—With the ship rolling in a heavy sea and plowing along at the rate of 21 knots, a successful operation for appendicitis was performed upon a passenger on the steamer Campania, which arrived yesterday from Liverpool. Charles Baxter, a steward, was the patient, and the operation was performed by Surgeon Robert Bruce of the Campania, assisted by Sir Alfred Keough, surgeon-general of the British army, and Dr. Owen Williams, a Liverpool physician.

It was thought that slowing down would make the ship roll more, and consequently the engines forced the big ship along at a 21-knot speed all the time the operation was in progress, a period of forty minutes. Baxter is convalescing satisfactory.

$10,000,000 For Mrs. Astor.

New York, Nov. 8.—Counsel in the suit which Mrs. John Jacob Astor is reported to have brought against her husband, Col. Astor, for divorce, indicated yesterday that other than the decree of the court details of the testimony in the suit never will be made known.

Friends of Mrs. Astor say that no application for alimony was made and that Col. Astor made a settlement of $10,000,000 on his wife. The "woman in the case" is said to be Roberta Menges, the former "belle of Sheepshead Bay," a daughter of Morris Menges, the turfman. She has been twice married and divorced. She had a cottage at Newport through several seasons, and there frequently was seen riding with Col. Astor in his automobile.

Carbolic For Indigestion.

Brantford, Nov. 8.—William Collins, a married man, aged 60 years, residing at the corner of Darling and Alfred streets, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid. He suffered from indigestion.

To Be DYSPEPTIC Is To Be MISERABLE.

Dyspepsia is the prevailing malady of civilized life. It is largely due to gross errors in diet, over-eating, too free indulgence in stimulants and over-taxing the stomach with indigestible food, eating too rapidly without chewing the food sufficiently, indulging in hot biscuits, pastry, pickles, confectionery, etc.

Burdock Blood Bitters has an established reputation, extending over thirty-four years, as a positive cure for dyspepsia in all its forms, and from all diseases arising from it.

Can Eat Anything Now.

Mrs. Herman Dickenson, Benton, N.B., writes: "I have used Burdock Blood Bitters and find that few medicines can give such relief in dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was troubled for a number of years with dyspepsia and could get no relief until I tried Burdock Blood Bitters. I took three bottles and became cured and I can now eat anything without it hurting me. I will highly recommend it to all who are troubled with stomach trouble."

Captain Is Suspended.

London, Nov. 3.—(C.A.P. Cable.)—The Board of Trade enquiry into the loss of the Allan liner Laurentian, off Cape Race last September; has ended in the suspension of Capt. Henry Imrie's certificate for three months. The judgment stated the wreck was due to the master altering her course towards land, in which direction it was carried by an unanticipated current, and continuing her at full speed through fog which became very dense.

TEN YEARS FOR WOMAN.

Mrs. Robinson's Sentence of Death Is Commuted.

Ottawa, Nov. 8—At Saturday's meeting of the Cabinet it was decided to recommend to His Excellency the Governor-General that the death sentence passed on Mrs. Annie Robinson of Sudbury for the murder of her daughters' illegitime children be commuted to ten years' imprisonment. In view of the appalling circumstances that confronted the unfortunate woman and impelled her to commit the crime, the Cabinet promptly decided that the death penalty should not be exacted. It was felt, however, that it would not be in the interests of justice to recommend a full pardon, as the crime was undoubtedly one of murder, and that to set a new precedent of a full pardon after a conviction for murder, even though palliating circumstances all cried for the exercise of mercy, would be unwise. After all the facts of the case were carefully considered and notice taken of the general sentiment of the country, as expressed in the immense number of petitions received, it was decided that the claims of justice and of mercy would be best met by a limited term in the penitentiary.

Murder on High Seas.

New Orleans, La., Nov. 8.—Passengers arriving on the steamer Parsimina, from British Honduras, tell of the scuttling of the Honduran gunboat Tatumbla and the murder of 18 of her crew, after she had overhauled a British steamer engaged in smuggling between Jamaica and Honduras.

Six days ago the Tatumbla overhauled the smuggler 50 miles out of Puerto Cortes and 20 of the gunboat's crew boarded the smuggler. The smuggler crew surrendered and the smuggler captain told Capt. Jelella that there was plenty of good rum in her hold.

Jelella ordered a celebration. The prisoners feigned intoxication and when the gunboat crew succumbed to the rum, they were flung overboard. The smuggler crew scuttled the gunboat and then escaped.

Two of the sailors who were flung overboard reached one of the floating life boats of the sunken Honduran vessel and reached Puerto Cortes with the story of the wholesale murder.

The scuttling of the Tatumbla deprives Honduras of her navy.

YOUNG MAN PUTS AN END TO HIS LIFE BY TAKING A LARGE DOSE OF PARIS GREEN

Wm. Ellis, Two Years Out From England, Suicides at the Home of John Clysdale Near Warsaw.

DIED THIS MORNING

Special to The Examiner.

Warsaw, Nov. 8.—William Ellis, a young English farm labourer, who has been two years in this country, committed suicide last night at the home of Mr. John Clysdale, where he had been employed, by taking Paris green, his death occurring at three o'clock this morning. No reason is assigned for his rash act, as he had apparently been in good health and his employer never suspected such an action on his part.

Mr. Clysdale's family went to church last evening, leaving Ellis alone at home. While they were away the young man went up to his room and shaved himself, and then, mixing a quantity of Paris green in his shaving cup, swallowed a large quantity of the poison, and then went out to the barn, where he laid down in the hay mow. On the return of the family he was missed and search of the premises resulted in his being discovered in the barn. He was very ill, but Mr. Clysdale did not know at that time what was wrong. Ellis was taken into the house, but it was sometime before it was discovered what had happened. Dr. Munro, of Warsaw was sent for, but the unfortunate young man had passed away before he arrived.

Ellis was twenty-four years of age and had lived with the Clysdales at their farm, five miles from Warsaw, ever since coming to Canada, two years ago. As far as is known, he had no relatives in this country.

Coroner Dr. Gray, of Peterborough, was notified of his death, but on hearing of the circumstances, came to the conclusion that it was a case of suicide and that no inquest would be necessary.

DIED IN LANSING

Word Received in the City of Death of James Moore.

Word was received in the city today by Mr. James K. Moore, 196 Park St., of the death of his son, James Moore, who passed away this morning in Lansing, Mich. The news came as a great shock to the family. They were not aware that he had been ill. He left here four years ago and was 24 years of age.

Arrangements are being made to bring the remains here for interment.

WEIGHED 463 POUNDS

Jonathan Miller, Who Died at Goderich Known as "Biggest Man in the World."

Examiner Special:

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 8.—Jonathan Miller, known as "The Biggest Man in the World," died at Carlow, near Goderich this morning. He was 62 years old and weighed 463 pounds. He was formerly proprietor of the Hotel Bedford, Goderich, and Grieg House, Seaforth.

THREE BODIES HAVE BEEN IDENTIFIED

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 8.—The three men who were killed on the Grand Trunk Railway near St. Catharines last night, were identified this morning as Edward Huson, 29 years; Thomas Wright, 36 years, and John Bundes, 40 years, all of Merritton. They were unmarried men, but all had parents more or less dependent upon them for support. They are said to have come to St. Catharines to bid good-bye to friends leaving for Cobalt.

IDENTITY UNKNOWN

Stranger Who Committed Suicide in Toronto Believed to be From Peterborough.

Mr. Harry Ranks, the undertaker who has charge of the body of the unknown man who committed suicide near the market several days ago, received a telephone message yesterday that may result in the identification of the remains. The informant, who refused to say who he was, gave Mr. Ranks the name of a former Yonge street restaurant keeper, for whom the dead man had formerly worked. The man at one time, he said, had formerly worked in hotels in Peterborough. The statement receives significance from the fact that the hat found on the dead man bore the mark of a Peterborough firm. The body will be kept until Monday.—The Toronto Globe.

PREVENTION IS WORTH WHILE.
When you consider the risk to life, the expense, the anxiety which is involved in an attack of appendicitis and a surgical operation, it is certainly worth while to avoid it by keeping the liver and bowels regular by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. Doctors are now unanimously of the opinion that appendicitis comes from a neglect to keep the liver and bowels in a healthful condition.

THE VALUE OF ADVERTISING

Is there anything in newspaper advertising?

The Warne Drug Company tried an experiment to get an answer to that question and they are satisfied that there is a very great deal in the publicity department of the newspaper. The firm has a special bargain sale every Saturday, and the special for last week was a 2 lb. bar of Castile soap. Instead of displaying the article in their window as they have been accustomed to do, the firm last week made no display of their Saturday special and depended upon their advertisement to bring results.

They were not disappointed. Customers came early and often during the day for soap, in such numbers as to leave no doubt in the minds of the firm as to the benefit of newspaper advertising. To get the results from such advertising it is necessary to use a medium that goes into the homes of the people and the Daily Examiner, with its circulation of 3,000, supplies the medium capitally as far as the people of Peterborough are concerned.

KETCHECUM PARTY HAVEAN EXCITING MOOSE HUNT

Big Animal Entered a Settler's Yard and Was Chased by the Dogs---Party Have Been Successful in Securing Nine Deer so Far---Great Welcome for Mr. Winch.

Mr. W. C. Ackerman returned yesterday from the headquarters of the Ketchecum Lake hunting party and stated to the Examiner to-day that the party had been successful in bagging eight deer up to Saturday night and that they were negotiating for another which had been shot in front of their dogs and which they would probably get.

Mr. Ackerman states that the weather was splendid during the week and that the party hunted every day but Tuesday when it was too wet to get out. The luck has ben pretty fairly distributed among the members so far and nobody has shot two deer yet.

On Wednesday the party had the excitement of a moose hunt, something unusual this far osuth. It is not often that a moose finds its way so close to the front but thisparticular bull wandered into a settler's yard and was chased for miles by the dogs before he made good his escape.

Mr. H. C. Winch, the father of the party, who had ben prevented from getting out sooner on account of the fire at the National Hotel, arrived in camp at 7 o'clock on Saturday night and was given a royal reception by the clan. Even the dogs wer glad to see the benial leader and his "whoop-whoop' made the denizens of the woods realize that the greatest hunter of them all had arrived.

Members and friends of both societies are cordially invited to be present.

CHANCE FOR FARMER TO SECURE A MAN

Mr. George Parbury of Sheffield is Coming to Peterborough.

George Parbury, of Sheffield, Eng., is immigrating to Canada early in December and is highly recommended by Mr. J. W. Dawson, railroad and steamship agent, who is Parbury's personal friend. He is thirty-three years of age and unmarried. He has been engaged in the cutting business, but owing to bad times, and ruinous competition with German houses, he went to the wall and had to dispose of his business. His desire is to get to a new country to begin over again, and Canada is his choice. Mr. Parbury writes: I am now looking for a berth. I do not care how humble it is as long as I am assured of food and shelter and a small wage." He wants to hire with a good farmer, where he could be well grounded in the ways and methods of Canadian agriculture, that in the course of time he may strike out for himself. Parbury was through the Matabile and Mashona wars in Africa and is rugged and well built. He is a good shot, having made 96.9 for last ten sheots in one stage for the King's Prize. The fact that Mr. Dawson highly recommends him is sufficient guarantee of his character, as he has only sent out good men. If any farmer in this district wants to engage Parbury he should notify Mr. Howson as he will arrive here within the next four weeks.

ABSENCE OF 52 YEARS

Mr. Archibald Rankin, Born in Peterborough, Has Lived in Paisley, Ont.—Hardly Recognized His Native Town After 52 Years Away.

WAS GREATLY SURPRISED

Mr. Archibald Rankin of Paisley, Ont., who was born here, visited Peterborough on Saturday after an absence of fifty-two years to renew old acquaintances and spy out the old landmarks; but, alas, remorseless time and relentless death had done their work and few there were to bid him a welcome. He looked around on all sides for some familiar spot but everything was changed. He was much impressed with the business blocks and the usual Saturday crowds that thronged the streets amid the glitter of the electric lights. What a contrast, he remarked, with the wooden shanty structures and tallow candles of by-gone days. In fine, he was amazed beyond expression at the complete metamorphosis.

He is a brother of the late Col. Rankin of Chatham who had frequently visited here in recent years, and who had formed many acquaintances amongst us.

NEW FACTORY

Ormonde Patrons Will Build for Themselves if Necessary.

The annual meeting of the Ormonde Cheese Factory patrons was held on Saturday afternoon, 30th inst. The secretary's report was presented for the season, showing the actual cash loss from the fire to have been been about $280.

The building of a new factory was discussed, and it was decided to advertise for a cheesemaker to build and operate a factory as Mr. Valleau has been doing, and a meeting will be held at a later date to decide on what the patrons will do towards a joint stock factory.—Hastings Star.

BOAT DELIVERED

Was Built by Hickey of Peterborough for Northern Waters.

On Tuesday last the hull of Bargoyne's new boat, which is to run on Cameron and Balsam Lakes next summer, arrived, and the boiler and a forty horse power compound Doty engine are being put in. The hull is of 2 inch blue plank all through, is 67 ft. long, 14 ft. beam and was built by J. W. Hickey and Sons, of Peterborough. The boat will be finished during the winter and early spring and will, when completed, be one of the best built boats on the lakes. She is also expected to be speedy as her lines are good and the tug-nash say she slips through the water easily.—Minden Echo.

FELL FROM ELEVATOR

Ernest Parker, son of Mr. Thomas Parker, East City, Met With an Accident at the Quaker Oats Co. Mill—Had Leg Broken in Two Places.

WAS A PACKER

By falling from a moving elevator at the Quaker Oats Company mill a few days ago, Ernie Parker, the eldest son of Mr. Thomas Parker, 150 Oxford street, East City, had the misfortune to have his leg broken in two places. It was a shaft elevator extending over three flights, and the young man, thinking he had another flight to go stayed on. Finding that he had passed the last floor, he had to jump, resulting in being somewhat seriously injured. He was removed to his home and a doctor called in who set the fractures. He is progressing as favourably as could be expected.

COMING TO PETERBORO'

On this occasion of her visit next Monday, the 15th, she will be assisted by the Heather Male Quartette, composed of: Mr. Robert Hogg, first tenor; Mr. Fred Davidson, second tenor; Mr. Will Gillespie, baritone; Mr. Carl McEachern, bass.

One of the strongest male quartettes to visit our city. For this concert specially low admission has been agreed on, 25c. to 75c., and the plan of the Grand Opera House will be open on Thursday morning.

NARROW ESCAPE

Young Men Nearly Shot While Celebrating Hallowe'en.

A resident of Springville called in to-day, complaining of the fact that several men in the vicinity of that place, on Hallowe'en, were ordered to the use of firearms to drive away some young men who were celebrating Hallowe'en. He stated that if it were drawn to the attention of these parties, the great risk they were taking in sacrificing human lives, they would not on future occasions be so anxious to use a firearm. One of the young men of the party was shot at while standing behind a tree and the tree was riddled with shot. If he had happened to have been at one side he no doubt would have received quite a bit of the charge.

NOT SETTLED

Mr. J. Bogue's Claim Against Campbellford Yet to be Heard.

Owing to several other meetings on Tuesday night there was not a large attendance at the Board of Trade meeting. Those present, however, showed a great deal of interest in the subjects discussed.

The report of the Municipal Committee showed that there will be a balance of about $800 after paying all expenses in connection with the development of the water power at Middle Falls. Claims amounting to $26,000 by Bogue and $4,100 by Mr. Fielding are still in dispute and will doubtless be settled in court.—Herald.

WINS BACK HIS WIFE AFTER ESTRANGEMENT OF TWO YEARS

Charles Shaw and Wife, Formerly of London, Ont., Separated Because of Husband's Profanity---Change Began at a Rescue Mission a Year Ago.

Examiner Special.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 8.—Travellers in the waiting room in the Chicago & Northwestern depot yesterday morning witnessed the denouement of a heart drama as strong and as full of passion as any that was ever staged, has. Shaw and his wife, characters of the drama, were glad. They wanted no other eyes to see their meeting, for it marked their re-union after two years of estrangement. It was the fruit of a struggle for conquest over vice by the husband, who won his fight and his wife. Mrs. Shaw left her husband two years ago when they lived in London, Ont., because of reckless living. The main cause of their disagreement was the constant use of profanity by Shaw. Shaw, too, left London after the departure of the wife, disconsolate and drifting with impulses. A year ago he wandered into a rescue mission on Wells street, and there a song and a message of the speaker touched him. A few weeks ago his wife consented to return to him. Shaw furnished a cosy little home at 308 Tenth St., and there he took his happy wife.

TWO MONTREAL FIREMEN KILLED IN BLAZE TO-DAY

From our Own Correspondent.

Montreal, Que., Nov. 8—At a fire on Cathedral street this morning Thomas Miller and William Holbrook were killed, and three others, firemen, among them Capt. Bennet, were seriously hurt. The five men were buried through the fourth floor of the building, the mattress and bedding factory of Rolland Freres giving way, and going through to the basement, carrying the other floors with it. The building was practically wrecked.

AWFUL FIRE IN NEW YORK NINE LIVES ARE LOST

Special to The Examiner.

New York, Nov. 8.—Nine lives were lost to-day, and twelve persons injured at a fire that destroyed the celluloid manufacturing plant of Robert Morrison & Sons, No. 182 Columbia street, Brooklyn. Thirty employees of the company jumped from second and third story windows. Tons of celluloid were in the destroyed brick building, and they sent up a flame that baffled water. The loss is estimated at $200,000. One of those who lost their lives is William Morrison, Junior member of the firm of Morrison and Son. Two other members of the firm, Robert Morrison, Sr., and Robert Morrison, Jr., were badly burned and taken to the hospital.

Found $70 In Pocket Of An Old Discarded Suit Of Clothes

If you chanced to don a suit of clothes you had discarded four months ago, and, while fumbling through the pockets of your trousers you discovered a wad of bills, you would undoubtedly consider yourself very fortunate, wealthy or careless. The average man would not experience the delightful sensation resulting from a strike of this kind for the reason that he quickly misses seventy-five cents, and when he gathers together a roll of seventy "Williams" his wife needs a new hat or the parlour carpet has to be replaced. However, an Otonabee farmer discovered $70 in a suit he had not worn for four months, when he put it on again a few days ago. The fact that he is a farmer and lives in Otonabee probably explains the fact that he had so much money, that $70 felt like a Yankee cent or a shingle nail. The story is, nevertheless, a fact, and the name is withheld because of the young man's fears that city damsels might be looking for lone mates with an over supply of money and cause him some annoyance.

Awarded Two Prizes In Window-Trimming Contest

Mr. Fred C. Petrie, window dresser, for A. M. Laidlaw, Hunter St., has won two prizes offered by Cluett, Peabody and Co., of Troy, N.Y., for the best window display of either Arrow Collars or Cluett Shirts or Arrow Collars and Cluett Shirts together. Mr. Petrie submitted photographs of two windows, one for Arrow Collars alone and of Arrow Collars and Cluett Shirts together. For the latter he was awarded second prize of fifty dollars and for the other Honourable Mention, which went with a substantial cash prize.

Mr. Petrie's taste and artistic fancies have been recognized in this contest, which was entered by window trimmers of some of the best houses in the United States and Canada.

Deer Fairly Plentiful This Year Local Hunters Have Good Luck

Messrs. A. G. Carruthers and Charles Nixon returned to the city on Saturday night after spending the week with the Eagle Lake hunting party. Their shanty is situated on Eagle Lake, in one of the prettiest spots that could be desired. The deer this year, Mr. Carruthers said, were fairly plentiful, considering the number of parties hunting. The first few days there were none caught Thursday being practically the first day that any were captured. Towards the end of the week all parties were enjoying splendid luck. Mr. Carruthers was successful in shooting a fine buck and Mr. Nixon, too, got a good one.

Messrs. M. Tooley and Wm. Snowden also returned to the city Saturday night, bringing three deer with them.

Brother And Sister Hunted For Each Other All Morning

A young man by the name of Windsor, who left here some years ago, and until last week resided in the United States, returned to Peterborough a few days ago. His parents live in Burleigh Township. The young man has been waiting here until some one came to take him home. His sister arrived in town this morning and both brother and sister were hunting for each other. P. C. McGinty brought them together, shortly after dinner to-day. Neither one knew the other, having been apart for such a long time.

PREACHERS AND HEARERS.

In a sermon in a city pulpit yesterday the preacher quoted a remark of a member of a congregation to the effect that his parson was a good pastor and a good preacher—"when he was at his best." The natural inquiry was made, was the congregation always "at its best" individually and collectively? Did they, by their cooperation and sympathy, supply the inspiration necessary to keep their minister "at his best?" Was all the responsibility left to him? Was he compelled to carry his congregation as a dead load, or was he carried along by them in the impulse of a common activity, which represents the true relation of pastor and flock, both "at their best." There are sermons and sermons, and there are hearers and hearers. A sermon to be good needs two prime complementary elements — a good preacher and a good hearer. If we, who sit in the pews are "at our best," if we have sympathy with the preacher; if we have, by loyal support of him in his work, by doing our share of the work, supplied the inspiration, we shall think well of his appeal from the pulpit; for it will fall on sympathetic ears and on hearts open to the truth. If we go to church merely for entertainment, if we place the service and worship of the church in a subordinate place, and look for the worth of our money, our small coin contribution, in the form of a fancy sermon, as we do at a concert or theatre, we shall be disappointed. We must put ourselves in our right place, in our right relation, which is that of co-workers, not spectators, and auditors with itching ears—we must be doers as well as hearers of the word. Our ministers, as ministers go, are only human, liable to many shortcomings, and often legitimate objects of criticism. As the leader of a corps of workers a minister cannot win the greatest success unless they are co-workers, the only class that is entitled to be critical. The drones of the hive, the idlers in the vineyard, have not right of criticism. With the big beam in their own eye they can't consistently cast out the mote in the preacher's eye. The sleeping partners in a church firm—many members of the congregation—are a paradox; their eyes, close shut to their own shortcomings, are wide open to the faults in their minister.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The Toronto Telegram says that Conservatism as interpreted by Borden Leadership is but another name for suicide. Next!

A proclamation appears in the Canada Gazette, fixing May 24th, 1910, the day for celebrating the birthday of His Majesty King Edward, which falls on Tuesday, Oct. 9th.

The Ontario Government is engaged in a laudable attempt to stimulate the sheep growing industry. With the brokers and stock market supplying the lambs the work should be easy.

From the standpoint of cow profit the Canadian farmers have a million dollars fewer in their pockets this year than in 1908. That is Canada's cheese trade in 1909 is one million dollars less in volume than it was in 1908.

The House of Lords is butting its venerable head against a stone wall. The House of Commons, by a vote of 319 to 54, refuses to accept the Lords' amendments to the Irish Land bill. Unless their lordships climb down their attitude on that measure will not help them in the struggle over the budget; and they further encourage the Irish Nationalist party to stand by the Liberals.

tion in West Middlesex result in the return of Mr. McLaughlin, a possibility which we do not admit for a minute in view of Mr. Duncan Ross' popularity, there will be added to the ranks of the Conservative party, the Ottawa Free Press says, a man who is well qualified to follow his leader. Mr. McLaughlin, like Mr. R. L. Borden, began life as a Liberal.

The public accounts for the fiscal year have just been issued. It shows a surplus of $1,029,171 on consolidated fund account. The total capital expenditure for the year was $42,593,160. Of this, nearly $36,000,000 was on railways, nearly $25,000,000 of the amount being invested in the National Transcontinental. The iron and steel bounties of the year amounted to $1,864,614. The year's deficit on the Intercolonial Railway was $800,952. Under the new system of management of the Government Railway, it is believed that the regular annual deficits have been ended.

The modified form of public ownership and operation reprisented by the Dominion Railway Commission is amply justified by experience. The latest illustration of the usefulness of the Commission in protecting the rights of the people is afforded by a recent Ottawa case dealt with. The city's legal representative was ready to consent to a railway entering by a level crossing. The Commission, however, held that such a crossing was undesirable, and refused to ratify the scheme. The Commission is more protection to the ratepayers than are the municipal authorities; less amenable to manipulation by local interests.

THE QUESTION OF ATHLETICS.

(Hamilton Times.)

We have recently heard so much discussion about athletic contests that the recent football statement of football calualties of the year in the United States becomes of special interest at this time. A record of nine fatalities and 118 injuries among notable contesting teams makes it quite plain that football as an athletic sport is not a game for weaklings, even after the "reformation" to which it has been recently subjected. Hardly have the facts been given to the public when reports of three fatalities, at West Point, N. Y., at Philadelphia, Pa., and at Kansas City, are announced. The West Point accident is followed by an intimation that for the rest of the season football will be abandoned at the Military Academy. This, however, is as a mark of respect to the memory of the cadet killed, rather than for any other reason.

Much is said for and against athletics, a good deal of it beside the real question at issue. We take our sports far too seriously. There is a laudable and healthy love of athletics; there is also an intemperate devotion to such exercises that is to be condemned. Gentlemanly contests lead to little harm; but the athletic "rough" is to be discouraged. Rarely would any serious accident mar a contest, if the proper spirit prevailed, and the players used ordinary discretion. When, however, every fine feeling and manly consideration of one's fellows and their rights and persons are subordinated to the desire to win at all costs, then athletic contests are degraded into characterless struggles, and their moral as well as physical effects become evil.

This is not to condemn athletic sports, but their abuse. The man—we use the term by courtesy—who deliberately "slugs" or sets about disabling a member of an opposing team in a severely contested game of football or other sport, does not bring dicredit upon the game, but upon himself. Such fellows sometimes play football, as we know. They should get a taste of the punishment meted out by Judge Winchester, of Toronto, to a brutal lacrosse player. That sort of remedy would have a good influence on athletic sports. The man who coolly plans such assaults should be sent to penitentiary; the player who cannot keep his temper in control in the heat of a game should never play.

As to the effect of strenuous athletic contests on the health of the young, it is to be feared that it is sometimes injurious, as excesses always are. Long distance racing probably ruins for life many youths. The strain imposed on the vital organs is unnatural. Some, of course, endure it better than others; but the excess indulged in demands its toll of life. The athletic sports which may be indulged in with safety, perhaps with benefit, by one man, may cause the death or serious injury of another. Clement Dukes, physician to one of the largest schools in England, and an advocate of athletics, is a strong opponent of indiscriminate athleticism and unregulated indulgence therein. He says the exercise should be suited to the individual. There should be, he says: (1) Thorough physical examination; (2) individual appointment of exercise based on that examination; (3) medical control over all severe exercise, so that even the physically fit shall submit to examination and proper training. Sir Clifford Albutt and Sir James Barr favour duly regulated athletic games in the schools, but insist on the importance of medical supervision and moderation.

The evils of athleticism may or may not have been exaggerated, but on one point all are agreed; excesses are to be condemned. Excesses are evil from the physical point of view; they are doubly so from the moral point of view. Play the game, young man, but be clean, manly and moderate.

THE CRISIS IN BRITAIN.

(Ottawa Free Press.)

The House of Commons at Westminster having finally passed the Finance bill by a record majority, after a record fight, the question arises as to what will happen in the House of Lords?

Will the Peers dare to reject the bill which goes up to them with so emphatic an endorsement by the representatives of the people?

This question must be, and will be, solved before the close of the present month, and upon its decision may depend many things, but chiefly the future of the House of Lords in the constitutional system of the Empire. It is beyond the question to assert as do some of the opponents of the Lloyd-George budget, that the issue before the United Kingdom is Constitutionalism vs. Socialism.

The question is really the power of the people or the power of the Peers.

There is no comparison between the present situation and that when the Irish Home Rule bill was sent to the Lords by Mr. Gladstone. Then the Lords may have had a constitutional excuse. No such excuse is available to-day.

The issue is plain: Shall the people control their rights of taxation or shall those rights be subject to vote by the House of Lords? No middle course is open. The Lords must either take the Finance bill or leave it. No opportunity is open for a conference, as has been the case in other disputes, because it is a question of taxation, and no one denies that the Peers have no right to interfere with a taxation or a revenue bill.

There was a time when the House of Lords chose its ground for battle with the Commons wisely. Such a case was when Mr. Gladstone in 1884 sent his Reform bill up to the Lords to have it rejected. Then the Upper House was within its constitutional rights.

But to-day, if they destroy a budget endorsed by a majority of 230 in the House of Commons they will not only flout a constitutional principal observed during three centuries, but, as their chief grievance is that their personal interests are affected, they will have the misfortune of fighting under the inspiration of personal motives and will have to answer therefore to the verdict of the masses of the British electorate.

The House of Lords may desire to perform the operation of hari-kari, but we doubt it. We have too much confidence in the good common sense of Lord Lansdowne, the "real power" in the chamber of privilege.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Peterborough People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night.

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Mrs. Geo. Hawes, of 857 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble, and, although I had tried many remedies and doctors, I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull bearing-down pain had settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders, and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid and Jury's Pharmacy, and soon found them to benefit me. I continued their use and in a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever, and without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

PETERBOROUGH OUT OF RUNNING LOST TO T.A.A.C. BY TEN TO FIVE

Locals Made a Garrison Finish, But Did Not Get Started Soon Enough and Were Out-Scored During the First Three-Quarters--Was a Hard Fought, Interesting Game

After having been beaten 10 to 0 in the first three quarters Peterborough rallied in the last fifteen minutes of their senior O. R. F. U. game with T. A. A. C. at Riverside Park on Saturday, and only the gong saved the invaders. During the last quarter Peterborough scored a try and spurred on by the cheers of the two hundred enthusiasts present, had the visitors fighting with their backs to the wall. Time was called with the ball on T. A. A. C's. five-yard line, and Peterborough struggling desperately for the try that would have sewed up the score—T. A. A. C. thus winning by ten points to five.

It was a hard, close game all the way, and a splendid contest from the spectators' standpoint, as there was an abundance of kicking, and open work, both teams using almost the same tactics and the football was nearly all of the "straight" variety, with few trick-plays attempted. T. A. A. C. had a little the better of the argument through the first three-quarters, but Peterborough fought stubbornly, and, although on the defensive most of the time, they kept T. A. A. C.'s score down remarkably well. In the last quarter, however, there was a complete reversal of things. Peterborough took the aggressive and the visitors were thrown back on the defensive. Peterborough woke up all along the line, and waded into the visitors with a vengeance. They fought them back until Campbell was enabled to get over for a try and then were going over the same process again, but there was not enough time left.

The Athletic Club were shy some of their stars. McCrimmon, their crack punter being among the absentees. However, in Reid, formerly of the Varsity seconds, Cory, Veals of the McMaster University team, and Bill Forbes, formerly of the Victorias, they had worthy substitutes for the men who were missing. In fact, their wing line was said to have been stronger than at any time this season, while certainly there could be little fault found with the work of the back division, De Gruchy at centre half, punting in fine fashion while the others had oceans of speed. The team had it on Peterborough in the matter of weight, but at that the Peterborough wing line more than held their own with the visitors except in the matter of tackling. The Peterborough team played better Rugby than they have shown on any other occasion this season, and Dr. MacPherson's presence on the back division may be held accountable for the improvement. In addition to playing a grand game himself, he steadied the other players, and put ginger into the team. The result was that T. A. A. C. instead of gathering in the easy victory they had expected had to fight for every point they got, and they were a very happy bunch when the timer's whistle saved them. The finish was exciting and the game pleased the spectators. De Gruchy's all-round good playing, the running of Reid and McGiffin, and the good tackling of Burkhart and Harcourt, were the features of the playing of the visitors. De Gruchy played a splendid game at centre half, catching well, while his punting was of a superior order. While he did not kick as far as McCrimmon mght have done he placed his punts nicely, and was always conspicuous. Reid and McGiffin had all kinds of speed and both made considerable ground on end runs. On the line Holden, Burkhart and Harcourt were always in the limelight.

Dr. MacPherson was the star of the locals, showing up in all his old-time brilliancy. He caught and ran beautifully, and hit the line like a miniature cyclone, never letting up for a moment, although the visitors devoted most of their time to watching him. W. O'Brien played his first game in senior company and made good at centre half in emphatic fashion. He booted the ball splendidly, caught well, and handled himself splendidly all through. Corkery, at left half, although the lightest man on the field, played a hard, effective game, gaining ground frequently on end runs, and doing some fine tackling when on the defensive. Allan Campbell, at quarter, played a grand game, his line plunging, passing, and tackling, being of a high-class nature. Every one of the advance guard did good work with Staunton and Giroux particularly in the calcium rays, by reason of their most effective tackle. Both stopped the T. A. A. C. backs for big losses at times, and always went at their men low and hard, a principle that some of the rest of the players might adopt with beneficial effects.

The weather was ideal for playre and spectators, and there was a fairly large crowd present.

The team were as follows:

T.A.A.C.—Back, Grant; half back, Reid, DeGruchy, McGiffin; quarter, Cory; scrimmage, Haverson, Drummond, Robertson; inside wing, Veals, Forbes; middle wing, Sheriff, Holden; outside wing, Harcourt, Burkhart.

Peterborough — Back, Craig; halfback, MacPherson, O'Brien, Corkery; quarter, Campbell; scrimmage, Ecclestone, Giroux, Thornton; inside wing, Hickey, Turner; middle wing, O'Connor, Dickson; outside wing, Lundy, (captain), Staunton.

Referee—Dr. Allan Browne, Toronto; umpire, Dr. Billy Wood, Toronto.

Peterborough won the toss and elected to defend the south goal. T. A.A.C. kicked off and the ball rolled over Peterborough's line to the dead line and had to be kicked over again. Play was around mid-field for a while and then T.A.A.C. began to force Peterborough back. Dickson was penalized for mixing it up and with the advantage of the odd man, the visitors took the aggresive from a scrimmage at Peterborough's twenty-five yard line.. DeGruchy boosted one to the dead line for a point. Staunton secured MacPherson's kick-off and made a nice run, but the locals lost ground and DeGruchy was given another opportunity, kicking again to the dead line for another single.

Play continued in Peterborough's territory. From a scrimmage at Peterborough's twenty-five yard line DeGruchy punted to Craig, who instead of running the ball back as he should have done,, tried to return the punt and his kick went straight into the arms of Harcourt, T.A.A.C's outside wing, who had nothing to do but romp over the line for a try which was not converted. Towards the end of the quarter Peterborough forced T.A.A.C. back, and for the first time play was in T.A.A.C. territory. DeGruchy was laid out in returning a punt and Dickson was ruled off again for charging the Toronto half. Soon after Staunton and Burkhart got into a mixup and got five minutes each. Time was called for the quarter with the ball in midfield. Quarter time score, T.A.A.C. 7, Peterborough 0.

Neither team scored in the second quarter, and the play was mostly around the centre of the field. Both sides kicked frequently, but the backs on both teams made few fumbles and as a result the play was close and hard. Neither team was ever within scoring distance of the other's line during the quarter. Half time score, T.A.A.C. 7, Peterborough 0.

Kicking with the wind in the third quarter T.A.A.C. again had a little better of the argument. They managed to keep the play outside their territory for nearly all the quarter and scored three points themselves on two kicks to the dead line and one into touch in goal by De Gruchy. The Peterborough backs handled every punt in this quarter without a fumble and though the play was in their territory they kept the visitors from scoring anything more.

T.A.A.C. 10, Peterborough 0.

The fourth quarter was all Peterborough. With the shift around of the two teams Peterborough suddenly took the agressive and from then on it was a question of whether T.A.A. C. would be able to hold their own to the end. Line plunges and short end runs Corkery, McPherson and Campbell, with good kicking by O'Brien, carried the play steadily towards T.A.A.C. line, and finally from a scrimmage ten yards out Campbell fooled the visitors completely by going around the short end for a try. The attempt to convert had to be made from a difficult angle and O'Brien's kick fell short.

T.A.A.C. kicked off and Peterborough keeping up the same tactics, fought the visitors back again. A fumbled punt by Reid gave Peterborough the ball within striking distance, O'Connor bucked through for a good gain and the ball was in T.A.A. C.'s five yard line. Campbell bucked through and was nearly over the line when Referee Brown called him back for offside interference, and before another scrimmage could be held the timer's whistle sounded, saving the T.A.A.C. Final score, T. A.A.C. 10, Peterborough 5.

Do You Realize What an Important Work the Kidneys Do?

Do you know that every drop of your blood goes to the kidneys hundreds of times every day? Do you know why?

To be filtered and purified from its impurities. That is the great work the kidneys have to do. They filter the blood. Then these impurities go to the bladder and are passed out of the body along with the urine.

Do you think it possible for you to be well, unless the kidneys do this work thoroughly?

It is these impurities—this unfiltered blood—that causes backaches, headaches, rheumatism, diabetes, Bright's disease, etc. They poison and interfere with the whole system.

If you have any kidney trouble let Doan's Kidney Pills do for you what they have done for thousands of others. They cure all forms of kidney trouble, and they cure them to stay cured.

Mrs. Maurice Doiron, Charlottetown, P.E.I., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for five years. They were so bad at times that I could not cross the floor for the pain. I went to a doctor, but he did me no good at all. I sent to the druggist and get five boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills, and I am glad to say that after taking them I was cured. I have had no trouble for nearly three years now."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SELLEN WON 10 MILE RACE

THEY MADE FAST TIME

Percy Sellen, the great little English runner, who has several Canadian records to his credit, showed his heels to Fred Simpson in the ten mile matched race between the two at Brock Street Rink on Saturday night, and had little difficulty in winning the contest by about three quarters of a lap. Sellen led all the way except for two brief intervals, once in the middle of the fifth mile, and again at the end of the sixth, when Simpson went out in front for a short distance, but was speedily overhauled. The two stuck together all through the piece until at the beginning of the tenth mile when Sellen commenced to draw away and quickly increased his lead until he was three-quarters of a lap ahead at the finish. Simpson tried to respond gamely to the spurt, but failed to hold the speedy little Englishman. The ten-miles were negotiated in 54 minutes, 55 seconds, on a thirteen-lap-to-the-mile track. A big crowd saw the race and it proved an interesting contest, although not as exciting as might have been expected when the records of the two men were taken into consideration. Sellen always seemed master of the situation, and ran a well-judged, heady race, keeping lots in reserve and finishing as fresh as an office boy.

The race started shortly after 9.30, and when starter Al Spencely gave the word to the two runners, Sellen sprang at once into the lead, and with Simpson on his heels, they started on the long grind. The contrast between the two in style was as marked as was their difference in size and appearance. The Englishman ran with a steady, light stride, seeming to barely touch the floor, while behind him the tall Indian pounded along heavily. The corners bothered Simpson and he would have done better out of doors.

For nearly five miles the two ran like a tandem, only a few feet separating them, with Sellen setting the pace, and Simpson gluing on behind. In the eighth lap of the fifth mile, however, the Indian suddenly spurted and took the lead amid the cheers of the crowd. Sellen fell in, turning a corner and Simpson was ten yards to the good when he picked himself up, but the Englishman let loose with an Alfie Shrubb spurt that brought him back to Simpson, and at the tenth lap he went ahead again. In the sixth mile Simpson tried again but Sellen refused to let him get away and after a lap flashed ahead again, and stayed there until the end of the race. They were together when the ninth mile was completed, and then Sellen put on steam and quickly drew away, despite Simpson's efforts to hold him. He set up a half-lap lead in about five laps, and at the end was three-quarters of a circuit to the good. The time for each mile was as follows:

1 mile	4.48
2 miles	10.41
3 miles	15.58
4 miles	21.00
5 miles	26.00
6 miles	31.05
7 miles	36.05
8 miles	42.05
9 miles	48.59
10 miles	54.55

The officials were: Al. Spencely, starter and referee; Harvey Staunton and Harry Burridge, timers; F. D. Craig, scorer.

THE TIGERS WON EASILY

Jungleites Out-Scored Tom Clancy's Ottawas in Saturday's Game—Smothering Them in the Last Quarter.

DEAD SET ON SIMPSON

Hamilton, Ont., Nov. 6.—The biggest crowd that ever gathered at the cricket grounds saw the Tigers defeat Ottawa here to-day by 38 points to 5. The grounds in fact were too small to accommodate the crowd. The grand stands were stretched out as far as possible and even then hundreds had to be turned away.

Every foot of space on both sides and along both ends of the field was occupied and nearly every one wore a yellow chrysanthemum.

For the first three-quarters it was anybody's game, but in the last quarter the Tigers made a runaway of it. It was no parlour game. Ottawa laid for Ben Simpson, the mainstay of the Tigers' back division, and the old war horse was laid out once by Stronach, and later by Doc. Sheriff.

Near the end of the game he was laid out by Ferguson. He finished the game, however, and covered himself with glory. It was principally through his panting ability that saved the Tigers in the early part of the game and helped them to pile up their big score at the end. He stuck to the field, although he was spitting blood towards the end.

The wings were pretty evenly matched, but the Tiger back division outplayed the visitors. That was principally because Williams had practically no assistance. McCann, Gerard and Johnson fumbled nearly everything that came their way.

Williams played a wonderful game, but it was an up-hill battle and the Tiger backs were too much for any one man. Towards the end of the game it became a farce, the Tigers scoring at will.

Moore, Smith and Burton played star games. After the Tigers got in the lead it was a rough house game, several players on each team decorating the fence for misconduct. The Rough Riders tried to put Ben Simpson out of business, and the Tigers went back at them. If the Rough Riders' crack wing men, Christy and Stronach, had remained in the game from start to finish, the score would have been close. They were much better than Marriott and Turner, who filled those positions for the Tigers. Unfortunately for Ottawa, Christy's leg gave out early in the game, and he had to retire, while Stronach did five minutes on the touch line for trying to lay Ben Simpson out. In the meantime the Tigers were making hay.

H. C. Griffith and Dr. Hendry handled the game.

Odds to the Favourites.

The Tiger's supporters had such supreme confidence in their team that they offered 3 to 1, which was a false price, as it did not look like anything but an even money proposition.

The rooters' club headed by the Reub band, marched around the ground and took seats in the centre of the north stand. The Rough Riders made their appearance first and were given a hearty reception. Williams and Stronach were among the first on the grounds. Both looked fine.

The Tigers made no changes in their team, which was exactly the same as played in Montreal last Saturday. In spite of the rumours originating in the capital that Ottawas were badly crippled, there was but one change in the line-up, McGee replacing Disney.

COULD NOT KEEP THIS SECRET

"Six months ago I was cured of piles by the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment," writes Mrs. G. A. Swayze, Copenhagen, Elgin Co., Ont. "I had been afflicted for over thirty years and tried all sorts of treatments in vain, so I was surprised and delighted to be cured. I don't care for publicity but would like to tell every one suffering from piles about Dr. Chase's Ointment."

STYLE OF THE BIG FELLOWS

How Johnson and Jeffries Will Appear in the Ring—The Weak Spots of the Two Men Compared.

THEY BOTH WAIT

When Jack Johnson knocked Stanley Ketchell out at Colma recently he used his favorite blow, a right-hand upper cut or hook delivered squarely on the point of the jaw when the Michigan puglist came rushing at him. Johnson was "set" firmly on both feet, and employed the same method that won for him the heavyweight championship of the world.

JEFFRIES' STYLE

Jeffries is essentially a left-handed fighter. It is said that he can hit harder with that hand than with the right. His most effective punch is a right left-hand hook, with which he stopped Fitzsimmons. Ruhlin, Corbett and Munroe. In each instance he reached the body with his wallop, following it quickly with a smash on the jaw.

Can Jeffries lend the left hook on Jack Johnson's jaw. The negro is noted for his invulnerable blocking and clinching. He is not as fast on his feet as Corbett was nine years ago, and may find it a hard matter to keep out of harm's way. But it must be remembered that Johnson is three years younger than Jeffries and that the latter has been idle for four years.

FIGHTING WEAK SPOTS

Jeffries, if he can recover his old form, is able to stand punishment, can hit like the kick of a mule and is a clever ring general. If he goes after the jaw or body and lands it is believed he will win. But if Johnson stays for any great lengt hof time without sustaining serious punishment, Jeffries, because of a lack of his ol datamina, may tire.

It is conceded that it would take a terrible punch to put Jeffries out even if he were half fit. In his last battle with Fitzsimmons, Jeffries received many heavy blows on the head, only to keep on trying for the blow that finally stowed the freckled man away. Jeffries is not a rusher, however.

WAIT FOR ATTACK

He and Johnson employ similar methods in that they await the attack of an opponent and hit when firmly planted on both feet. Johnson cannot land a knock-out blow while under headway, but Jeffries can and in this respect he may have an advantage.

It would not be surprising to see the fight terminate inside of 20 rounds. It surely will if both men try, and if it goes beyond that it will be because Johnson keeps away. Jeffries must abandon his crouch to chase Johnson and when not crouched he is not hard to hit. However, he is dangerous at all times. Johnson is a better fighter than his record woul dindicate, and it is also undeniably true that Jeffries can never be the man he use dto be. This equalizing process is what makes the fight seem interesting.

HOCKEY PROSPECTS

Lindsay Fans Have Commenced to Talk About the Great Winter Game.

A ripple has been started in the great hockey pool and it is spreading: Town after town ,city after city is taking up the talk. Now, where will the O.H.A. intermediate champions come in?

Johnny Dyment has his colts corralled in the north county. In Berlin the hockey spirit is being revived and the call has gone forth for the Dutch Companee to make ready. Then Toronto is starting to talk hockey and making plans to put several O.H.A. teams on the ice—now for Lindsay.

Lindsay, Peterborough, Port Hope and Cobourg for a solid central district and furnish as fast team usually, as can be found in the entire association. Witness the number of championships won by these teams and the number of times they have been runners-up or near the top.

Peterborough, Port Hope and Cobourg expect to have good teams. Now Lindsay also is to be heard from this year. Just get talkin ghockey around the corners and soon the team will be re-organized.

RUGBY

The Rugby season, as far as Peterborough is concerned, is practically at an end, and while nothing that ever looked like a championship has loomed up on the local horizon, the season has been encouraging and the outlook for the years to come is decidedly bright. The campaign this fall has been remarkable in Peterborough for the number of young players who have sprung suddenly into the limelight, and it is in these young fellows that the hopes for future championships must be rested. Through the energetic efforts of Dr. MacPherson, coupled with his enthusiasm and his great knowledge of the game, there has been a large number of junior players who have blossomed forth as coming stars. The senior team was composed for the most part of players of the calibre of the junior O. R. F. U. teams, in fact they were lighter than many of the so called junior teams, while the juniors, picked up from the Collegiate Institute for the most part, were up against a team heavier than their own seniors. Both teams showed eagerness in their own games, and the youngsters are to be particularly commended upon their plucky showing against the far heavier and older Lindsay team. The public have shown their interest in the club by turning out in large numbers; there are ten times as many "kids" playing the game as there were a few years ago, and the seeds of a big boom in Rugby have been sown this year. With so many young players in the game, Peterborough need not worry about her good name in Rugby circles in other years.

DEEP-SEATED COUGH

CURED IN 5 HOURS.

New Home-Made Syrup.

(Cut this out.)

From Boston Press.

Progress in medical compounds never ceases, and now it is stated by a prominent medical man that any deep-seated cough or cold on the lungs can be actually cured in five hours of the clock. Opium and morphine have been resorted to in the past, as relief measures. But now it is learned that the system must be treated to rid it of inflammation and congestion. A tonic laxative cough syrup does the work so quickly and thoroughly as to be almost magical. What therefore has taken weeks to cure can be accomplished in hours. Get this formula filled or mix it at home and always keep it on hand: One-half ounce fluid wild cherry bark, one ounce compound essence cardiol and three ounces syrup white pine compound. Shake the bottle and take twenty drops every half hour for four hours. Then take one-half to one teaspoonful three or four times a day until the system is purified and toned up. Give children less according to age. One filling will usually cure a whole family, as the dose is small.

THE NOVEMBER ROD AND GUN.

While notable for the variety and range of its contents, the November number of Rod and Gun in Canada, published by W. J. Taylor, at Woodstock, Ont., in accordance with the season, has no less than seven hunting stories. In addition, the opening one, descriptive of an official visit to the Indian reserves for the purpose of paying the treaty money, will attract much attention. An account of a trip to Nipigon, after an absence of twenty-eight years, contrasting conditions then and now, bring forcibly home to readers the advance made in Canada in the last quarter of a century. A winter's trip through the Algonquin Park, the great national playground of Ontario, by the Superintendent, shows how well the public interests are guarded by those in charge. From shelter house to shelter house these men travelled all winter and do their best to prevent poaching on the national reserve. A Fishing Trip to Newfoundland, the climbs of the Alpinists, a sarcastic paper on the Perils of the Chase and numerous others, all having their own interests, make up a number every sportsman will be glad to possess and one which each should make sure he does not miss.

BISHOP SCOLLARD WILL PREACH HERE

At Vespers on Sunday, Nov. 21, at Opening of New Church in South Ward.

The announcement in regard to the opening of the new church of the Sacred Heart was made yesterday at St. Peter's Cathedral. In addition to Archbishop Gauthier, of Kingston, and Bishop McEvay, of Toronto, Bishop Scollard, of North Bay, will preach at Vespers. He was for many years connected with this parish and will doubtless be cordially welcomed by his former parishioners. Bishop McEvay will preach at the opening mass Sunday, Nov. 21, which will be sung by Archbishop Gauthier.

A FIRELESS COOKER

A workman's ingenious application of the laws of chemistry to his own purposes is reported by a writer in Tit Bits. A few minutes before noon the other day a big laborer one one of the buildings now being constructed in Chelsea said: "Well, I think I'll heat my coffee for dinner." He proceeded to do so without the aid of a fire or even the use of a match.

He took his bottle from his handbag and with it went over to the wooden contrivance in which mortar was mixed. He put about half a shovelful of sand in a corner of the mortar-bed, having previously scraped that part of the bed dry and clean.

Then he took a piece of lime about as large as his two fists. He pushed the lump of lime down into the yielding sand, put his bottle upright on the lime ,banked up the bottle with sand to hold it in position and was ready for the important part of the work.

Dipping about a pint of water from a cask near by, he poured it on the moulded sand easily, allowing it to percolate through the coarse grains. Putting on a little more sand to keep the bottle in position ,he went back to his work.

In ten minutes the noon whistle blew, and the laborer went to his fireless heater, took from it his coffee, boiling hot, in a bottle that had at no time been in danger of breaking in the heat, and proceeded to enjoy his homely but hearty meal.

NINETEEN FATALITIES FROM BASEBALL—NONE FROM LACROSSE

Nineteen deaths from baseball have been reported from various parts of the country during the season just closed. The list of injuries runs into the hundreds. Each season furnishes its quota of killed and injured who have been on the triangle at the time of the accident. Once in a while one reads of some player being struck with a ball and quitting, while it is an everyday occurrence to read of the many injured in various ways.

Every game of sport has its attendant disasters in some manner or another. Cricket, considered to be one of the least injurious of sports, is not without its casuality, likewise mostevery other kind of field sport and aquatic amusements. Over-exertion is found in these games to be quite as serious in its consequences as that of the college rush, though its list of injured is not nearly as long as that of the latter.

The Only One.

Lacrosse, Canada's national game, is the only game played in the Dominion that has not a casualy black mark recorded against it. True, lacrosse is not without its rough play and attendant bruises and fractures, caused ninety-nine times out of a hundred through a spirit of retaliation, during the rush of a moment of anger, but to have a man used up entirely for the balance of his life is a very rare occurrence in the game. Those opposed to lacrosse have frequently used the theory that the stick is used to take the place of the knuckles as a mode of getting even. There are many passages in a game that are never seen by the ordinary observer, but these are devoid of any serious results beyond those inconveniences for the time being. From the grandstand the play seems to be a mimic warfare, looking at times as though several players would be completely annihilated.

Rugby Worse.

Here is where old players of the game have the laugh on the novice. The danger is not so serious as in a game of rugby, where the whole team has been more or less seriously injured. Players have been known to play the game longer and with better results than any other kind of sport, which goes to show that things are not always what they seem.

Interest in lacrosse has been somewhat lax during the last three years, more especially throughout the Western Provinces, owing, principally to the lack of young players. This is being gradually overcome now that the West has begun producing its own stocks, and one may soon expect to see the old-time interest manifested in the game. As this is the game of games, designed for and played almost exclusively by Canadians, it will not do to see its extinction just for the lack of a little support.

If you are in a generally "Run Down" Condition; consequent upon the effect of la grippe, take "The D. & L." Emulsion. It will soon restore you to health again.

Four Years Next Wednesday Since the "Annex" Was First Opened

FOUR YEARS OF PHENOMENAL SUCCESS

To those who know, no explanation is necessary; to those who are not acquainted with the "Bargain Annex" we will give a few facts and data that have made the Annex the most popular exclusive Bargain Department in Canada. The "Bargain Annex" was inaugurated four years ago as an exclusive department of bargains. Its growth of business was rapid until now special buying trips are taken to keep in touch with the best buying sources and the biggest values. This is the 208th event and there has not been a single failure. The average number of customers waited on every Wednesday is over 500. Goods sold in the Annex must be lower in price than anywhere else in this store or in the city. This Wednesday we celebrate the Fourth Anniversary, which we have planned on for months with extra buying. Bargains will be offered by the hundred that are away ahead of any previous occasion. Bargains out of the ordinary even for the "Annex".

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

ST PAUL'S.

At St. Paul's church yesterday the services were of deep impressiveness. The large auditorium was crowded both morning and evening, and in the afternoon the Sunday school and Bible classes had a splendid attendance and interest. Meetings were announced to be held every night this week, concluding on Friday. Mr. MacBeth will speak each evening on subjects of special importance and the excellent choir under direction of Mr. Crane, with Miss Davies as soloist, will lead the service of song. The congregation has taken firm hold of the work and results are highly gratifying to Mr. Pogue., and all who so zealously and earnestly prepared the way for this mission. Yesterday morning and evening at the request of the missioner, Mr. MacBeth, the elders and others passed the cards of confession and promise through the congregation and about eighty professed desire to become connected with the church in Christian life and work for the first time.

Yesterday Mr. MacBeth spoke in the morning from the text in Matthew 10, when Jesus says: "Whosoever shall confess me before men, him shall I also confess before my Father which is in heaven, but whosoever shall deny me before men, I shall also deny him before my Father which is in Heaven." This sounded like a hard saying, but it comes from the loving heart of Jesus and hence was kindly meant. To those whom we love, we speak plainly when we feel it to be for their good. Jesus warns us here against the delusion of thinking that we can be neutral in relation to Him. We are either for or against Him and we must make the choice. The speaker took up the reasons given by people for refusing to come into fellowship with Jesus and analysing them closely, showed their weakness. He appealed to all to make the great decision for Christ.

In the evening Mr. MacBeth took the text Jeremiah, 8: 22, "Is there no physician there? Why not then is the health of my people recovered?" The speaker followed closely the analogy between the ills of the body and the sin-sickness of the soul. The prophet saw an epidemic of sin and asked why it was not stayed. Mr MacBeth said that sin was swift in its progress, contagious and fatal and that Christ was the Great Physician If men were not cured, it was because they were not (through delusions), co-operating with the Physician and alone they were no match for the miasma of their sinful hearts and surroundings.

KNOX CHURCH.

Large congregations greeted Dr. Farquharson, of Durham, at the evangelistic services at Knox church on Sunday and in the evening especially, the ushers had their hands full in supplying seating accommodation. The theme of discourse in the evening was "The Sinner in His Struggle With Infinite Love," and the scripture on which it was based was the nature of Jesus and Judas from the text, "He then having received the sop went immediately out, and it was night."

We never know sin till we see it in the light of God's love," was the opening sentence of a striking and heart searching message. Only when the heart is awakened with the radiance of God's love is there presented the power that lifts to a new life. The story of Judas is the vision of a soul dragged down by self, yet all the way followed by the gleam of a love that never tires. This gives the pathos and the power to the narration. So the speaker followed out the lines of the life battle, answering the questions of how such a man ever joined himself to the company of Jesus, how he fell from his high estate, and how love still struggled and never tired. He took the view that Judas was not from the first a conscious hypocrite, though in the good soil there still remained the thorns that choked the word. The story of his fall he held to be the human taint of distrust in God. He was not content with the gifts a Father in his love had bestowed, and so he yielded to the cravings of avarice. His ambition craved higher place than that assigned him, and so he chafed at the restraints and when reproved went away to make overtures to the chief priests. His avarice gets a self justification in the feeling that his ambition had been thwarted. Everything now turns to rousing his wish. The double life can no longer be hid. He must either confess and repent or go down. It is the universal rule that when there is the double life the baser one is the real life's expression, and Judas went out into the darkness. But through the darkness love followed him. The parting appeal was one to his conscience that he might yet turn. He goes out from the company to work his base designs, but love follows him. Heavier and heavier falls the blow on his heart if perchance he might awake. His sin makes him do the basest work. He must betray his master with a kiss—did ever the lips seem so hot? At last the money is paid, but money awakens the fire within. He does not keep it. His tempters become his tormenters. The money is thrown into the inner temple and he seeks to flee from himself and from his sin, but his pursuers are swifter than his steps and away he goes into the darkness, the shadow of love still hovering over him. There has been some questioning as to which finally won, but we are left in the dark. It is not a question as to whether there be a hell. There may be heaven, there must be hell." The question is, did Judas repent? He is said to have repented, to have confessed. "I have sinned in that I betrayed innocent blood," but whether it was the repentance of life unto life or the repentance of death unto death we are not finally assured. The words, "Unto his own place" and "Better had it ben for that man had he never been born," seem to be at war with the hope that he really turned from his sin. Yet to us the scene closes as that in the parable of the prodigal, with the father pleading with a hard-hearted son to come in. We turn away with a new sense of the power of love and with a new revelation of the awful power of sin and in the darkness we cling to Him who alone can save, and whose blood cleanses from all sin.

A large congregation is expected this evening, when Dr. Farquharson will take up the theme, "The Old Gospel."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE LILY AND THE PRINCE.

The romantic drama, "The Lily and the Prince," delighted two fairly large audiences at the Grand Opera House on Saturday at matinee and evening performances. The play is a dainty little production, beautifully staged and costumed and along the same lines as "When Knighthood Was in Flower," in which Roselle Knott pleased the local theatre goers some years ago. The company of ten showed they had an intelligent conception of their parts and displayed considerable ability, and the whole play was pleasing and well worth seeing.

The old favourite stock company, Marks Brothers, with the poular comedian, Tom Marks, and a capable company, will be at the Grand all this wek with a lot of new plays and plenty of specialties. Their opening offering to-night is "Sergeant O'Rafferty."

The appearance here on November 18 of Eugene Walter's grand drama of the Canadian Northwest, "The Wolf," is announced by Messrs. J. J. Turner and Sons.

NO INDIGESTION OR STOMACH ORDER

No Gas, Heartburn, Headache or Dyspepsia Five Minutes Later.

Why not get some now—this moment, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion? A dieted stomach gets the blues and grumbles. Give it a good eat, then take Pape's Diapepsin to start the digestive juice working. There will be no dyspepsia or belching of gas, or eructations of undigested food; no feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach or heartburn, sick headache and dizziness and your food will not ferment and poison your breath with nauseous odours.

Pape's Diapepsin costs only 50 cents for a large case at any drug store here, and will relieve the most obstinate case of indigestion and upset stomach in five minutes.

There is nothing else better to take Gas from stomach and cleanse the stomach and intestines and besides one single dose will digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all your food the same as the sound, healthy stomach would do it.

When diapepsin works your stomach rests—gets itself in order, cleans up—and then you feel like eating when you come to the table and what you eat will do you good.

Absolute relief from all stomach misery is waiting for you as soon as you decide to take a little Diapepsin. Tell your druggist that you want Pape's Diapepsin because you want to become thoroughly cured this time.

Remember if your stomach feels out of order and uncomfortable now you can get relief in five minutes.

MURAL TABLET UNVEILED IN ST. JOHN'S YESTERDAY

Yesterday afternoon a beautiful tablet was unveiled in St. John's church, in memory of the late Mrs. K. Eardley-Wilmot. The tablet is of hammered bronze, with dignified and subdued chasteness of design, and is placed on the East wall of the nave above the font. The ceremony of unveiling was performed in the presence of Mr. Eardley-Wilmot, a former church warden, who came from Perth for the occasion, and a few friends, by Rev. Canon Davidson, who referred to the active part taken in church work by Mrs. Eardley-Wilmot, in connection with the choir and Women's Auxiliary, and to a more distinguishing characteristic, her loving kindness in word and deed shown wherever there was distress or suffering to be relieved. This reference was repeated during the evening service.

GIVE DUE CREDIT.

A few days ago the Examiner called attention to the circumstance that the City Council and Board of Trade were not doing much to stimulate the industrial growth of Peterborough. This criticism was made in no hostile or unjust spirit. So far as the public know, so far as results were concerned, it was justified. But it is a pleasure to say that it was the apparent fact not the real fact. The Examiner is informed that the Council, especially, has been quietly active in seeking to induce manufacturers to locate in Peterborough. A steady and voluminous correspondence has been conducted during the year, and the City Clerk is said to have been particularly energetic and alert in placing and keeping the city in touch with industries seeking a new home. It a great satisfaction to know this, though the City Council has been working, in one sense, in the dark, and also a great pleasure to see that the Board of Trade is becoming aroused to its responsibility. But the greatest pleasure is derived from the fact that there is a probability of the business element of our citizens joining in the work. The specified object of the meeting of the Board of Trade and citizens at the Collegiate Institute to-morrow night is to provide for a better advertising of the city's facilities and advantages for industrial establishments. That this object may be better reached, the appointment of a publicity commissioner, such as other cities and towns employ with decided advantage, is suggested. Such a commissioner, equipped with the necessary business qualifications and the like important qualities of energy, enterprise, and sound judgment, would be invaluable. His duties could be made broad. If the proper advertising of the city, and keeping a keen eye upon industrial prospects, and the conversion of such prospects into realities, did not engage his full attention, he could put in spare time in promoting excursions to the city, which would be one form of advertising, and at the same time a source of subsidiary profit. If we had some scheme devised to better the conditions that would attract summer visitors the preference Peterborough enjoys as a mecca for excursionists might be greatly enhanced. The whole time of a publicity commissioner might be very profitably occupied. There should be a large representation of our live citizens at the Collegiate Institute to-morrow night Don's forget the meeting at 8 o'clock

Remember the Board of Trade and Citizens' Meeting In the Collegiate Institute Tuesday Night

IMMIGRANTS GO WEST AND FARM HANDS ARE STILL IN GREAT DEMAND

Farmers Cannot Get Men to Help With Work—Harvesters' Excursions Took Many of Those Who Were Being Broken in and Conditions Here are Same as Formerly

In spite of the fact that immigrants have been continually received at the local immigration office, in small numbers of late, it is true, there is still a scarcity of farm help, and Mr. George Howson stated this morning that next spring the supply would be as small as ever. The situation is similar to trying to fill a pail with water when there are several holes in the bottom. Although the men are sent out to farms as quickly as they report here, still the demand is never entirely met.

Several causes explain this condition of affairs. In the first place, some of the men secure work in the city, much to their satisfaction, but the Harvesters' excursions attract the greatest numbers. Mr. Howson is in a position to know the conditions,, and he states that since the autumn excursions to the West the farmers in this district have been clamouring for men. On Saturday he could have sent out twenty farm hands to good positions, but he had none to draw from. The emigrants are broken into Canadian ideas in this locality and can demand the general wages in the West. It is also noticed that none of them are returning east and in a few years they will perhaps have farms of their own.

C. P. R. DISTRIBUTES HALF MILLION BULBS TO AGENTS ACROSS CANADA

Montreal, Nov. 8.—Following a custom of thirteen years' standing, Mr. N. S. Dunlop, the chief of the C.P.R., floral department, has sent out packages and bulbs to station agents and section foremen from one end of the company's system to the other, with a view to making the surroundings of the station buildings as pleasing to the eye as possible in the spring. Starting on his own initiative in quite a small way, Mr. Dunlop has succeeded so well in securing the interest of both the company and of the employes that there are now about 1,500 gardens between St. John, N.B., and Vancouver, B.C., which every summer link up the towns of the Dominion in a flower chain that stretches across the continent. In the spring packages of seed are sent out. Last spring there over fifteen hundred of such packages each containing a selection of tulips narcissus, hyacinths, iris and lilies. This represents half a million bulbs, and with the millions already in the ground from those sent in previous years, will mean that an incalculable number of blossoms next spring will add to the gaiety and beauty of the Dominion in places that would otherwise be the dreariest of the drear.

"I never have advocated growing flowers for prizes," said Mr. Dunlop, "because I think the growing of them is its own reward, and ought not to be a mere mercenary matter. In sending out the seeds and bulbs which are entirely free to all the station agents and section foremen and others who ask for them, we make no stipulations whatever as to their use, but leave the individual perfectly free as to the manner in which he will use them. This system has succeeded admirably, and has done more than anything else, I think, to foster the love of flowers in the Dominion for when the station agent has a good garden you will soon see the other citizens following shit. Still, with a view to still further increasing the interest in flower growing, is is probable that we shall next year follow the example of the western end of the system, and offer prizes in the east for the best gardens."

DUST

Is a General Nuisance Causes Sickness

Dusty Friday No More

is a green coloured powder, packed in tin cans ready for use. In sweeping a carpet, take one or two handfuls, according to the dust. Sprinkle where you are to begin (not all over the carpet), then sweep as you always do The powder is swept ahead of the broom and falling on the carpet absorbs the dust, leaving the carpet clean and bright. The dust is not thrown into the air to settle back on the carpet and furniture.

Dustbane should be used in sweeping carpets, rugs, straw mattings and bare floors.

Why You Should Use DUSTBANE

It Saves labour in sweeping.
It saves one-half your dusting.
It saves your carpets and rugs.
It saves damage by moths.
It saves taking up carpets.
It saves your health.
It saves your money.

SANITARY POINTS

Sickness and Disease are often contracted by breathing into the lungs germ-laden dust. Dustbane contains an antiseptic fluid which kills germs. The evaporation of this fluid while sweeping thoroughly disinfects the room. "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure."

It Costs Nothing To Try

Peterborough grocers are authorized by the manufacturers of Dustbane to send you a 35c can of their Sweeping Compound. They want you to use this on trial for one week. At the end of this period if not found satisfactory we will take it back and there will be no charge for quantity used.

If it does away with dust on sweeping day you want it.

Sold in barrels, half barrels and quarter barrels for store, school and factories, by Peterborough Hardware Company.

WHAT ONE SHOULD KNOW BEFORE MARRYING

If it were possible to "know" the woman before marriage many a heartbreak would be saved. Like the proverbial bull in a china shop is a man when he first enters a woman's life.

If it were not for the love which acts as an infallible stickfast the new menage would be in pieces at the end of the first fortnight. Of course women know that it is out of the question for man to know them in the limited time that is usually given to engagements, but the amusing part is that he does not try. He would not think of taking charge of a motor-car before he had learned to drive, but any and every day he lightly undertakes the management of a machine infinitely more complicated.

There are some things he can know, and some he can't; but in his sublime complacency he ignores them all. He thinks he knows! The first few weeks of married life are spent in recovering from this delusion.

The only drawback to knowledge before marriage is the possibility of no marriage. Man is good at taking risks, but he is particularly shy of certainties. And if he had the choice of knowing and not knowing he would probably choose the latter—the uncertainty is the spice of the thing to him.

With woman it is different. It is agony to her not to know; and if she thinks somebody else knows more than she does—one may be sorry for somebody. If the man is wise he will paint for her as vividly as he can each episode in his life. On his wife's knowledge of details his future happiness depends. Even the shady scenes are best related. A woman will forgive more before marriage than she will after. Before his love is a novelty his confidence a trust which she is proud to have even though it pains her; afterward she feels she has been trapped, her confidence is shaken, suspicion is aroused, and she is never sure when the next revelation will come.

A man wants to treat a woman exactly as he would treat a man. Let him not do to her as he would have her do to him is a very safe guide for him.

Woman should clothe herself in a certain amount of mystery. Only so can she hope to keep her husband's interest. Once let him know that he has got all there is to get and he will be off on another quest; he wants "more worlds to conquer."

Now that is one of the things to know before marriage, for a woman is very apt to empty herself out to the man in the first days of courtship. Let her prolong her process, let him do the finding out, he will be long enough without it; and meanwhile she has him on a little bit of string. This follows all through. A secret may almost remain a secret until after marriage. By that time he has gained a pride of property—she is his wife—her strongest plea to clemency. Had he known before marriage—. As it is the knot is tied, and it takes a very great deal to make him break it. For all that woman thinks so much of the sacred relationship it is generally she who dissolves it.

Now, if a man takes a good deal of risk with his marriage, woman takes an equal amount on trust. She thinks because she loves him he must be all she imagines him to be. She builds an imaginary being, and then blames him that he bears no likeness to it. For her future peace of mind it is necessary for her to know with whom she has to deal. There is hope for her and for him if she takes him with open arms.

But a woman in love scouts the very idea of dissecting the man she is to marry—and if you suggested that she should bring his ancestors into the light of day—!

And yet if she was buying a horse or a dog the pedigree would be of more importance. It is only the human animal which is accepted without one question.

Of course, fathers and mothers are to blame. If they would put the veto on disease and drunkenness, the children of the one would die out and the others might reform.

There are certainly things to know before marriage, but unfortunately it is only after marriage that the fact is discovered. A good many of us would "do differently" if we had the chance, even to bargaining for housekeeping money weekly, instead of monthly, so that we have not to provide for "long" months with short money.

REASONS WHY GIRLS SHOULD NOT WRITE LOVE LETTERS

It is an evil spirit who prompts the writing of love letters. The thousands of girls who pace restlessly up and down by the post box wishing for Aladdin and his magic lamp so that the cruel official receptacle could give back to them the missive just dropped in—a thick packet of scented, sentimental emotions and indiscreet admissions after the style of "I love you," and which make the writer blush with confusion as she remembers them in the "silly silence of the night!" If only love letters could be read by their author six months before being dispatched there would be less sighing and planning of the opening sentences, as the girl pictures a villain with a vanload of blue mauve note paper saying, "Girl, these are all yours!"

The composing of love letters is a great pleasure, but one that should be denied. Talk as much as you like, but don't write the tender nothings down to be perused in cold blood. Not only is it dangerous amusement, but one that sounds a little foolish for when a man's flame of ardour is cooling (as they all do) the letter is likely to be thrown aside in favour of an invitation to a smoking concert. An amused smile will play around the callous mouth as he utters, "By Jove! Rather hard hit. I am fond of the little girl, but am not such a fool about the matter." and he absentmindedly lights his pipe with it.

The great art in writing love letters—if you must commit your raptures to blue-black ink—is to try and time their arrival at an opportune moment. Don't send them to the office. They are likely to prove disconcerting and rather stupid beside a request for a further consignment of patent toothpicks. And, above all, don't let them reach their destination in the morning when the shaving water is cold, and the devoted man is catching a mental glimpse of his train steaming out of the station as he falls down the last step.

If a man really loves a girl he can read between the lines of a sensible ordinary letter, and does not want a row of badly spelt adjectives to understand he is the "luckiest man on earth."

SKEENA RIVER INDIANS ARE IN UGLY MOOD AND SERIOUS TROUBLE IS ANTICIPATED

Seven Men Captured by Constables are Heavily Guarded to Prevent Rescue—Meetings are Being Held in Native Villages and Whites are Preparing for Defence—How Trouble Originated

BRAVES ASSEMBLING

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 9.—A special despatch from Hazelton, B.C., says that the trial there of the seven Indian ringleaders in the Skeena River district revolt was opened yesterday, and adjourned pending the arrival of witnesses from the Kispiox Valley.

The natives are sending out runners to the mountains to gather in the fighting men, and meetings are being held in all villages.

The Indians are able to muster fully 500 able-bodied and fully armed men.

Serious trouble is anticipated. Settlers are sending in their families to Hazelton for protection. An armed guard has been placed on the jail to prevent the escape or rescue of the prisoners.

Several trenches were dug yesterday in which guards are posted.

The people of Hazelton are fearful for the safety of ranchers scattered through the country, who may be pounced upon and killed in revenge for Saturday's attack by police. Recently an Anglican missionary was so hounded by Indians that he was forced to make preparations to move out, but before this was accomplished, his house was set afire, and what was not burned was stolen by natives.

The present trouble really originated some two years ago, when, owing partly to the enforcement of the game and fishery laws, the natives were so reduced in their winter supplies of game and dried salmon that they came near to starvation. Afterwards, their discontent was fanned by agitators headed by Chief Joe Capjilano, and they served notice that they claimed the entire Skeena Valley as their domain, and held that all whites were trespassers. Commissioner Stewart went to hear their grievances in September, when they declined to recede from the position that the Canadian or British Government has no jurisdiction over their country, maintaining that title could only rest upon conquest, purchase or passage by treaty, each of which is denied.

The Government decline to seriously consider their preposterous claims, and it was then declared by old residents that the Indians would nurse their grievance until the river froze, when they would have the scattered white inhabitants at their mercy. The Dominion Government was asked to send in a sufficient force of mounted police to prevent trouble, but ridiculed the suggestion. Numerous residents then sent out their women and children for safety's sake.

Subsequently, trouble arose over the railway traversing an ancient Indian burial ground, the natives demanding consolation on a graduated scale of from $100 for a baby interred up to $750 for every chief. The Government ordered the railway company to provide a new cemetery, transfer the bodies with respect and give the tribe $1,000 in a lump for compensation.

Another Version.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 9.—C.P.R. press despatches state: The stories telegraphed from here of an expected Indian rising in the Skeena River district are given denial by officials of provincial police, and Indian departments here. In a telegram to Superintendent Hussey of the provincial police, Constable Maitland McDougall, says that following the arrest of six Indians in a raid on Kispiox Village on Saturday morning for stealing railroad stores nothing has happened which could be construed as indicating an outbreak. In a subsequent message he telegraphs: "The situation is satisfactory."

WOMAN AND FIVE LITTLE ONES MEET HORRIBLE FATE

Special to The Examiner (2.45 p.m.)

Winnipeg, Nov. 9—A special from Warroad, on the Canadian Northern, Winnipeg-Port Arthur line, says that Mrs. Nels. Jensen and five children lost their lives, and Mr. Jensen, the husband, is not expected to live as a result of a fire which destroyed their home yesterday morning. Jensen was starting the fire with gasoline which exploded. L. Gerrie, who was passing, heard the explosion and rushed in and smothered the flames which enveloped Jensen with his overcoat. By this time the fire had gained such headway that it was impossible to get into the house to save the children upstairs. Two older girls saved their lives by jumping from an upstairs window. Mrs. Jensen was sick in bed with her youngest child, only a week old.

"NAVY IS NOT NEEDED—EXPENSE IS TOO GREAT," SAYS F. D. MONK, M.P.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—F. D. Monk, M.P. for Jacques Cartier, and the French Conservative leader, was the guest of honor at a banquet given last night by the electors of Jacques Cartier, at Lachine, and in a very important speech, expressed his views in no uncertain manner in regard to the Government's policy for the construction of a Canadian navy.

Mr. Monk declared at the outset that the Government's policy for the construction of a navy and participation in defence of the Empire was an entirely new departure in Canadian policy, and to decide such a question, without first submitting it to the electors, would be a flagrant violation of our free institutions.

Mr. Monk referred to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's attitude on the question at the Colonial Conferences, and the sudden change that had taken place in his views, and also scored the Government for not submitting to the Canadian public the report of the delegates to the recent conference in London.

As to the actual merits of the question, Mr. Monk maintained that, from a financial point of view alone, Canada cannot, at the present moment undertake to build a navy, that the expense of such an undertaking is quite beyond our resources and our means.

Mr. Monk estimated that the maintainance of a navy would cost $20,000,000 a year. He also maintained that Canada herself needed no navy at the present time, that the program, as it is as being of any use to the Mother Country, in order to maintain her naval supremacy, would be useless, and that such an obligation did not exist for Canada, its national obligation as an autonomous and self-guarding country being a duty of defence for our own commonwealth.

Objects To Use Of Ice From Little Lake For Drinking

Board of Health Asks Dr. McPherson to Report in This Regard—Meeting Held This Morning—To Enquire Into Refuse From Gas Company's Works.

ACCOUNTS PASSED

A meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning with Dr. Burnham presiding and Mayor Rush, Mr. Murty and Mr. Edgar present.

A claim was received from Lewis Le Bar for rent, and from Mrs. Le Bar for furniture destroyed afte she had smallpox in the house.

Moved by Mr. Murty and the Mayor that the accounts of Mr. Le Bar and Mrs. Le Bar be referred to the Medical Health Officer with power to act.

Moved by Messrs. Murty and Edgar that the account of E. F. Mason & Co., for $269.92 be paid, when certified to by Sanitary Inspector.

Messrs. McKee and Weir were heard in regard to a sewer on Donegal St., from Brock street, north, to the creek.

Moved by Messrs. Edgar and Murty that the sewer be built.

Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., stated that it would be well to have doctor report on all cases of typhoid fever.

Moved by Messrs. Edgar and Murty that the secretary notify the physicians of the city that all cases of typhoid fever must be reported in accordance with the Public Health Act.

Dr. McPherson reported that the smallpox epidemic had spent itself, but there were still a few cases of scarlet fever.

Supply of Ice.

The question of cutting ice from the Little Lake was introduced. It was felt that steps should be taken to prevent that ice being used for drinking purposes, as the water was contaminated. It could be used for cooling purposes, but otherwise should be restricted.

On motion of Messrs. Edgar and Murty the question was left with Dr. McPherson to bring in a report. The Board had not a clear idea of how the matter could be dealt with. It may be that two grades of ice will be required, one of which may be used for drinking purposes and the other for cooling only.

Gas Company Refuse.

The Board is also in arms against the refuse oil from the Gas Company's establishment, and the M. H. O. has been asked to investigate this condition as well as that of ice in Little Lake.

Canoeists, it was said, have complained of the oily scum emanating from the Gas works, and the Board is of the opinion that it might be disposed of in some other manner.

Barred Windows Prevent Escape

Eight Employees of Comb Factory Burned to Death Trying to Tear Out Bars.

New York, Nov. 9.—Iron barred windows prevented the escape of eight workers from death by fire in Robert Morrison & Son's comb factory on Columbus street, in Brooklyn yesterday.

The eight, while they tugged and tore at the barred windows, were burned to death, and five others were probably fatally injured in the panic.

William Morrison, son of the owner of the plant, also lost his life in the flames while trying to reach the safe and close its doors. His father was among the injured.

There were only forty employes in the factory when the fire broke out, but the spread of the flames in the inflammable comb material was almost instantaneous. Many jumped from the third floor windows and were injured. Those who rushed to the rear found the windows barred and there they met their doom. Nearly all were Italians.

MAKE THE BLOOD RICH AND RED
Miss Cynthia Hutchinson, Hanesville, B. C., writes: "My system was so completely run down that my friends as well as myself thought I could never get better. All medicines failed to help me. A trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food benefitted me and at the end of a month people scarcely knew me I had improved so much. The blood was enriched, colour improved, new flesh was added, and I got strong and well."

GOD SAVE THE KING.

To-day is the sixty-eighth anniversary of the birth of His Majesty, Edward VII., of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and of the Dominions beyond the seas, King, Defender of the Faith, Emperor of India. This is his official title, but the title which his reign has earned and by which he will be known in history is "Edward the Peacemaker," a synonym for the noble qualities that have endeared him to his millions of subjects, and won the veneration of the world. Half a century ago, less one year, the Prince of Wales, a stripling of nineteen, was the guest of Peterborough. He has grown some since that visit, grown to be in many respects one of the greatest of the long line of sovereigns that have occupied the throne of Great Britain. Long may he reign.

IS PETERBOROUGH MUSICAL?

Is Peterborough a musical city? Yes and no. We have a plentiful supply of musical talent; the possibility of great musical achievement. In that sense we are musical. But in the sense of musical taste developed according to the higher standards, we are not musical; that is, not as much as we might be. Taste in everything needs cultivation. To the uncultured taste a cheap chromo is as good as a Rembrandt masterpiece, and better—for more square feet can be got for the same money. To an uncultured taste exasperating "ragtime" music tied to banal, threadbare doggerel sentimentalism is better than the music of the great masters. Taste can be improved in both cases by taking lessons, not half-hour lessons from some costly masters, but seeing and studying great pictures, by listening to inspired music, interpreted by artists. If the people of Peterborough have cultured taste in music they keep it pretty well under cover. An opera house can be crowded by a presentation of cheap, banal comic stuff—the very shoddy of musical texture, while an aggregation of first rate artistic musicians like the Welsh Ladies' Choir (to take the most recent example) is listened to by the average "small, but select audience." To listen to music such as they produced is the highest form of musical education. Those who heard them were delighted to enthusiasm. The same story follows them wherever they go. In Toronto they crowded Massey Hall and aroused such enthusiasm that the lights had to be turned out before the audience would leave the hall. And Parkhurst, in the Globe, perhaps the sanest musical critic in America, gives their work unstinted endorsation. It is seldom that Peterborough people are privileged to listen to such perfection of choral singing, and such beauty of solo work. The return of the Welsh Ladies' Choir to Peterborough should be hailed with delight and those who did not hear their magnificent music should not lose the second opportunity.

PUBLICITY FOR PETERBOROUGH

The combined Board of Trade and citizens' meeting in the hall of the Collegiate Institute to-night, is for a most desirable object:

"To formulate a policy for better advertising the City, with a view of securing more manufacturing industries."

Some effective policy of this kind must be devised and adopted if we are to hold our own in the industrial race with other Canadian towns and cities. Edmonton, Alberta, is a type of a city that keeps itself in the "spot light." It has compiled a little slip—"information bulletin"—printed in red, the size of a postal card. This slip contains a meaty summary of the resources and facilities of Edmonton, a comparative record of the building permits, custom returns, bank clearings, post office revenue, etc. This slip is issued by the Board of Trade and supplied to merchants and business men to be inclosed with every letter sent out from Edmonton. Thousands must have been printed; for every one of the many letters received at this office contains one of these slips. Thus, all over the country, Edmonton, with its capabilities and advantages, is thrust in the face of the public and attention must be called and interest aroused.

It is to be hoped that those who attend the meeting to-night, will have thought the subject over and come prepared to add something practical and valuable to the collection of opinion which the meeting to-night will amass.

Peterborough cannot live on its reputation, unless that reputation for being live and go-ahead is sustained, and sustained in a practical, effective way. To this end publicity is a most important means. It is not all, however, and, in connection with it, must be the adoption of a well-considered policy that will not only interest but capture manufacturing industries seeking sites for their establishment. It is to be hoped that the meeting will be, as it is designed to be, the beginning of a more energetic campaign, having for its object and attainment the building up of Peterborough. It is trusted that a large and representative meeting of the members of the Board of Trade, the citizens, and above all, all the members of the City Council will result.

NATIONAL WASTE.

Our neighbours to the south of us are suffering and stand to suffer more, from forest waste and waste of coal fuel and other material resources. The New York Herald places the timber destruction by cutting and forest fires at $510,000,000, nearly forty millions worth of timber beyond the value of timber cut for commercial purposes, having been destroyed last year by fire. To make up for the present terrific drain upon United States forest resources there must be each year a gain of at least thirty cubic feet per acre, by growth or planting. As it is, there is a growth of less than ten cubic feet per acre. At this rate of decrease it is estimated that the timber resources of the United States will be exhausted within the brief space of twenty years.

Our neighbours in answer to the national impulse of conquest of their natural resources are plunging ahead regardless of the future. They are doing as the spendthrift, who, not content with his income, wastes his captial in riotous living. Are we in Canada doing much better? We are perhaps not going the same pace, but we are none too careful in husbanding our forest resources. What, perhaps lends complacency to the suicidal waste of our neighbours is the lurking idea that when their timber is wasted to the last twig, they will have the comparatively virgin resources of Canada to draw upon. We would not be unneighbourly, but we must look out for ourselves. We must husband our timber resources. They are being disposed of rapidly enough by reckless cutting, forest fires, the ravages of insects, etc. We have no timber to spare, except the surplus of matured timber in excess of our domestic needs. We must provide that the annual cut, added to the annual waste, shall not exceed the annual increase by growth, supplemented, if need be, by reforestration. By adopting measures to provide for this, we shall have for centuries a supply of timber at least for our own needs. If any part of our forest wealth is to be exploited, we must see that we get the highest price for it, not only so much, board measure, but that Canadian labour, Canadian capital, and Canadian industry shall be permitted to reap the harvest of the reduction of our timber, pulpwood, or pine, to its ultimate stage of manufacture. We should take a lesson from the folly of our neighbours, and avoid the reckless waste of natural resources, which obtains south of the international boundary line. According to the Herald's computation the national waste of 1908 in timber, coal, and other resources amounted to the amazing figures of 4,089 millions of dollars. We should take the lesson to heart. In the matter of timber conservation we may falsify the proverb that we cannot have our cake and eat it. By prudent dealing with our forest capital we may enjoy all the legitimate fruits of its necessary use and still keep it practically intact, and at the same time collect handsome dividends in the form of profitable employment for labour and capital.

CATARRH CURED

No Cure, No Pay, is a Most Generous Offer.

To get an antiseptic strong enough to kill catarrh germs and not destroy the tissues of the membrane at the same time, has been a problem which was never solved until the discovery of Hyomei (pronounced Hy-o-me).

Hyomei is prepared from eucalyptus, the most powerful yet healing antiseptic known. Breathe it through the inhaler over the inflamed and germ-ridden membrane four or five times a day, and in a few days the germs will disappear.

The inflamed condition will go, too, and the snuffing, hawking and offensive breath, and the discharge of mucous and crusts in the nose will cease.

Then why should any catarrh sufferer hesitate when Wm. Madill has such faith in Hyomei that he offers to return your money if after a fair trial Hyomei does not cure catarrh.

A complete Hyomei outfit, including the inhaler, costs $1.00, and extra bottles, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents. Hyomei also cures asthma, croup, sore throat, coughs, colds or grip.

MI-O-NA Cures Dyspepsia.

Your money back if it don't. Gives immediate relief from heartburn, sour stomach, stomach distress and sick headache. 50 cents a large box at Fears Use of Tobacco, Continued From Youth, May Shorten Her Life.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 6.—Mrs. Indiana Hogan, one hundred and four years old, and her son, Levi Howard, seventy-one years old, whom she characterized as "my baby," passed through this city to-day en route from Anabel, Mo., to the Ozark regions, where they are going for the son's health.

The mother has smoked a pipe since she was young, and regrets it now because she fears it will shorten her life.

Mrs. Hogan, who is self-reliant and erect despite her age, is able to recall the battle of Tippecanoe. Her father fought under General William Henry Harrison. She had five sons in the Civil War, two of them being killed.

Clean Within!

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills Purify the Blood and Prolong Life

Figures taken at 70 due to Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills.

If as much intelligent care were given to keeping the body clean and pure within as well as without we would see more healthy, vigorous old men and women. The daily bath does its part by keeping the pores of the skin open so that they throw off much of the body's impurities, but it is even more important that the bowels and kidneys should be kept regular and active.

If the bowels fail, as they often do late in life, to move regularly at least once a day, the waste matter from the food accumulates, decays, poisons the system and upsets the stomach.

If the kidneys are sluggish the impurities which they should filter from the blood remain and cause rheumatism.

Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills regulate the bowels, stimulate the kidneys and open up the pores of the skin. The result is a body clean within—pure, red blood—good digestion—and a hale and hearty old age.

Three generations have proved the value of Dr. Morse's Indian Root Pills, and their sale is steadily increasing all over the world.

History Of A Shameful Charivari Invasion In Dummer Township

Such Exhibitions Characterized as Survivals of Barbarism—Should Find no Place in Twentieth Century Civilization

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—It seems that some misrepresentations are abroad with reference to the rowdyism carried on by the charivariers at the home of Mr. Lazarus Payne, Dummer, on Sept. 22nd, on the occasion of the wedding of his daughter Lena, to Mr. R. Northey, of Smith. We received a few hints that the charivariers might make some trouble, but we did not arm, or make special arrangements to defend ourselves against them. On the contrary we received them courteously outside the house as the night was warm; and the bride and groom went out and shook hands with them, while the guests and waiters seated at the third table were finishing their supper, after which we carried out a large quantity of pies and cake and even bridescake, and fed them well, and gave them tea and water to drink. As soon as they were through eating, they asked to see the presents, which was only an excuse to get inside as we heard that they had other plans to carry out if they gained entrance. As there was about 75 guests present and two long tables, seating 30 persons, in the dining-room the unreasonableness of the demand was apparent. Besides, some of them were dressed indecently and others with dirty old clothes stuffed with hay, corn, browse, etc., and wearing many sorts of hideous masks, and I understood there was between 40 and 50 of them in the gang. When refused admittance they made a rush for the dining-room door, worthy of the savage Indians under Pontiac, but it was locked. They then rushed for the side door, where we carried out the provisions for them; three of them getting in ahead of me in the rush. They got inside the first door, but one of my sisters called out to another sister who was ahead of the charivariers, to look the inside door, which was done. The captain, and two others then began to sit down on the floor of the washroom to wait us out, when, not knowing at the time that they had been drinking liquor, I told them that when they were used like gentlemen, they ought to act like gentlemen. They said something about having asked to get in. I told them gentlemen would not go into the house unless they were allowed. Whereupon the captain, jerked off his mask and gripped me by the throat, injuring it so that I had to visit two doctors, Dr. Fraser, of Lakefield, and a throat specialist, Dr. Buchanan, of Peterborough, costing me between $4.00 and $5.00 doctor bill. He banged my head into a looking glass hanging on the wall, smashing it, and cut or scratched my head so that the blood ran down my face. Two or three men attempted to stop him, but as he was very strong they were also very roughly handled: They assaulted several other persons, including some ladies, and most of the time using awful language at us, not fit to be repeated, both vile and profane. On the earnest solicitation of my sisters and others to give him a chance to settle it out of court, and not knowing at the time that it was illegal to do so, I promised to give him a chance. So we agreed to let him off if he apologized to each person he assaulted, or attempted to assault, and pay damages, and the doctor's bill.

He did the rest except the doctors' bill, paying only $5.00 to my father and $5.00 to me, as we did not want them to think we were trying to make money out of him; and when I wanted to speak to him about the doctors' bill he refused to listen to me and gave me vile abuse, so I sent the bill by mail, but he refused to pay it, but instead, some of the ruffians disturbed, and probably intended to molest us one night soon after, between one and two o'clock at night, but we were on guard, and part of the disturbers are known. The roads in the vicinity of the scene of the wedding on the following morning bore evidence of the hasty retreat of charivariers on the evening previous, as they were strewn with cast away garments, masks, padding and improvised musical instruments in such profusion that it reminded one of the hasty flight of the Syrians from the siege of Samaria. It was represented that I was fighting, but I deny the charge, as I am not a pugilist and never have been one. It was said by some that there was something the matter with my neck before the row, but there was nothing the matter with it so far as I know, and neither of the doctors said there was anything wrong with it except the injury caused by his grip on my throat. Some parties tried to intimidate me with threats that his brother, who has been out west, might come back, who is, if anything, worse than this fellow, and another that someone might set a match to my barn, and another that they were intending to boycott me, but I wish it clearly understood that if such threats had any effect on me it was to make me more determined than ever to bring such miscreants to justice in future, instead of making me a coward as they evidently take me to be. They were so utterly ungrateful for the mercy shown them that they even talked of having me hauled up, because I did not prosecute them, so in future I hope they will not have another chance of laying such a charge, and I think every fair-minded person will commend such a course. It was not fear in the least that made me drop the case, but my promise given, which I hold sacred even if I suffer for it. Is it not time such doings as charivaries were frowned down and abolished, when they engage in such lawlessness? We had a very pleasant time till they arrived, when they spoiled the rest of the evening for us, thanks, partly to the beer kegs shipped to Warsaw, of which I heard they had been drinking before they came to the charivari.—Yours respectfully,

WM. F. PAYNE.

Hall's Glen, Ontario.

We, the undersigned, wish to issue the following warning to all whom it may concern, that any person or persons found on the premises of either of our farms, uninvited, during any future wedding at our homes, do so at their own risk and peril.

(Signed) WILLIAM PAYNE,
LAZARUS PAYNE,

"Bronchitis"

is generally the result of a cold caused by exposure to wet and inclement weather and may be recognized by a tightness across the chest, sharp pains and a difficulty in breathing, a secretion of thick phlegm, at first white, but later of a greenish or yellowish color coming from the bronchial tubes when coughing, especially the first thing in the morning. Cure the first symptoms of bronchitis by the use of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

Bronchitis Cured.

Miss Martha Bourget, Little Pabos, Que., writes: "Last spring I was very poorly, had a bad cough, sick headache, could not sleep, and was tired all the time. I consulted two doctors, and both told me I had bronchitis, and advised me to give up teaching. I tried almost everything but none of the medicines gave me any relief. One of my friends advised me to try Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. I had scarcely taken the first bottle when I began to get better and when I had taken the fourth bottle I felt as well as ever, my cough had left me and I could sleep well."

"Dr. Wood's" is the original Norway Pine Syrup. It is put up in a yellow wrapper, three pine trees the trade mark and the price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PENITENTIARY FOR PERJURER

Morris Levy Subornod Witness and Goes to Kingston for Three Years.

"Perjury is getting to be too common in our courts. It is especially so among people of your nationality, where the contradictions are so glaring that it is evident someone is telling untruths," said Judge Winchester to Morris Levy, of Hamilton, in the Court of General Sessions yesterday afternoon.

His Honour then proceeded to sentence Levy to three years' imprisonment in the Kingston Penitentiary for subornation of perjury.

There was a large audience present, composed mostly of Hebrews, who had watched the case with great interest during the four days' trial. As the sentence was pronounced a number appeared to be on the verge of hysterics, from which they were rescued by the shock caused by his Honour's directions to arrest Isador Hersborn and Louis Kerewits, two witness for the defence on a charge of perjury committed during the trial.

The prosecution of Levy followed the confession of Solomon Altman to the effect that he had been induced by Levy on the promise of $50 to give false evidence in a case before Mr. J. S. Cartwright. Altman said that Levy only paid him $20 and refused to pay any more. This proof of ingratitude coinciding with the development of a feeling of remorse, Altman knew no peace till he had told the authorities. He himself was tried, convicted and sentenced to a term for perjury.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE TOM MARKS COMPANY.

The popularity of the Tom Marks Stock Company was strikingly demonstrated last night when their opening offering of a week's engagement at the Grand was greeted with a crowded house and demonstrations of enthusiasm that left no doubt as to the heartiness of their welcome. For the past generation the Marks Stock Company has been a prime favourite in Peterborough and the company will lose none of its friends on this visit if the high standard established last night is kept up during the week.

"Bergeant O'Rafferty," a strong four act military drama with two acts laid in Cuba at the time of the Spanish war, was selected as the opening bill and furnished the company with many opportunities to display their talent. Mr. Marks has surrounded himself with some very clever people this season and there are few weak spots in his cast.

In last night's offering Miss Ivy Evelyn, as the heroine, made a most favourable impression by the realism of her acting and her charming stage presence. Louis Anchor, as the villainous Capt. Powell, displayed considerable cleverness, while Mr. Marks in his favourite role of an Irishman, was responsible ofr a very large share of the laughter that was a constant echo to the performance.

The specialties were fully up to the Marks' reputation. In this line little Miss Arlie Marks in her songs, "Stingy Kid," and "Yip-I-Addy-I-Ay" won much favour, while Miss Evelyn displayed a sweet soprano voice in her illustrated song hits, "Daddy's Little Girl" and "Two Blue Eyes." Chris Allen was very funny in a witty monologue, and Joe Lyons, always a favourite, has lost none of his skill in dancing, as he demonstrated satisfactorily last night.

There's not a dull moment in a Marks' production, and no doubt the comedy will play to capacity business all week. Their bill to-night is Hall Caines "The Hypocrite."

At the Wednesday matinee to-morrow the company will present "Because She Loved Him So."

ST. JOHN'S A.Y.P.A.

Most Successful Meeting of the Young People Was Held Last Evening.

The Young People's Society of St. John's Church held a most successful meeting last evening. Mr. Roland Palmer gave a very interesting talk on the new hymnal, taking several of the hymns for discussion, giving their origin, a sketch of the author, and valuable information about the more familiar of the hymns. The talk was most interesting and valuable.

Miss Humphrey of the Barnardo Home, gave a talk on the Mission Work of the church in the Canadian Northwest, which was intensely interesting. Several curios were exhibited which added to the interest of the talk. Musical numbers of a high order, were pleasingly rendered and completed a very entertaining programme. The next meeting will be held November 23.

CURED OF LAME BACK WHEN 84 YEARS OLD

Gin Pills did it.

Anyone, seeing Mr. Samuel Martin, of Strathroy, Ont., for the first time, would guess his age at about 60 years, instead of eighty-four. He is as spry on his feet as a cat and is the picture of health.

It is hard to believe that Mr. Martin passed twenty years of his life in misery, suffering tortures from Lame Back. He tried nearly all the advertised remedies and household recipes, but received no benefit from any of them.

Some months ago, seeing Gin Pills advertised, Mr. Martin purchased a box from W. H. Stepler, a popular druggist of Strathroy. The relief, which Mr. Martin experienced after he had taken one box, was so great that he knew he had found the right remedy at last. He bought and used two more boxes of Gin Pills, which completed the cure.

Age is no barrier to Gin Pills. They never fail to cure Lame Back and Stiff Limbs, because they cure the Kidneys and Bladder, which are the cause of the troubles. Gin Pills also act on the Liver and assist in curing Biliousness.

ADAM HALL - PETERBOROUGH

MRS. E. C. SRIGLEY'S FATHER PASSED AWAY

Mr. James Whytock, Sr., of Madoc, Died in His 77th Year.

Madoc people and others who now reside in Peterborough will read with interest the following account of the death of James Whytock, Sr., taken from Madoc's last week North Hastings Review:

"After a brave fight against the 'grim reaper' for several weeks, death yesterday morning claimed one of Madoc's sturdiest and oldest citizens, in the person of James Whytock, Sr., in the 77th year of his age. He had been in declining health for the past year or two, and a complication of severe stomach troubles during the past few weeks hastened the end. Only his wonderful vitality and bodily strength kept him alive for many days past, but it had been his boast that he had never been ill a day in his life.

Mr. Whytock was a rugged representative of that forceful race that has helped to maintain British supremacy and dominates trade and commerce throughout the world. He was born at Barnhill, Perthshire, in Scotland, June 20th, 1833, son of John and Margaret Whytock, and came to Canada at an early age, settled eventually in Madoc in the early sixties. He married Miss Miller, who survives him. From small beginnings, his business grew to one of the most extensive in the County of Hastings. He had a wonderful mind for business details, and could work out problems in his head easier than many could with pencil and paper.

He served this village in a public capacity faithfully and well for many years, first as councillor, and afterwards as reeve and member of the County Council. He was never averse to a "fight" in municipal politics, and many opponents succumbed to his popularity at the polls.

Surviving him are his widow and grown-up family of eleven children. James, Jr., Charles and Walter, of Madoc, and David of New Hampshire; Mrs. Miller, of Toronto; Mrs. Srigley, of Peterborough; Mrs. Fox, of Prince Edward County; Mrs. Alex. MacGregor, Mrs. W. J. Hill, and Miss Martha of Madoc, Mrs. H. Conner, Marmora.

The funeral services were held in St. Peter's Presbyterian Church on Friday afternoon, at 2.30 o'clock, and were conducted by his pastor, Rev. H. S. Graham. The remains were carried to the grave by the six sons-in-law of the deceased."

STRANGE AS FICTION

Newspaper for Kidney and Rheumatic Sufferers.

In Germany there is a newspaper published in the interests of all rheumatic sufferers, and each week symptoms and treatments are discussed by both laity and medical men. One scientific contributor related that a formula originated especially to relieve kidney diseases, had almost phenomenal virtue, in the treatment of all forms of rheumatism.

No secret is made of this formula, which is composed of one-half ounce fluid extract Buchu, one ounce compound fluid Balmwort and two ounces compound syrup Sarsaparilla, mixed in a bottle, and to be taken in teaspoonful doses after each meal and one at retiring.

A local druggist expressed the opinion that every rheumatic and kidney sufferer will be grateful for this item.

A MODEL HUBBY

Mrs. Van Nostran's Recital of His Virtue Like Arabian Nights.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Samuel W. Van Nostran who was adjudged the "model husband" at the second annual "hubby show," held Saturday at the home of Mrs. James Sidney McCullough, No. 5120 Kenmore avenue, received from his wife yesterday credit for being the possessor of all the virtues necessary to make an ideal mate.

"Other than possessing the almost super-husband quality of being good-natured before breakfast," said Mrs. Van Nostran, "my husband allows me to carry the family pocketbook and declares, just as if he meant it, that my cooking is so far above mother's efforts in the culinary line that there could be no comparison. If that is not glory enough for one small woman I would like to know what is."

The complete list of desirable qualities attributed to Mr. Van Nostran by his admiring spouse, besides those already mentioned, reads like a page from the "Arabian Nights." The virtues, given in the order of the "importance" attributed to them by Mrs. Nostran, are:

Prompt at meals.
Good to look at.
Good entertainer.
An adept with the chafing dish.
Good judge of feminine beauty.
Generous and kind-hearted.
Enjoys home more than the club.
Happiest when among friends.

Mr. Van Nostran, who also received the prize for his almost womanly ability to sew on a button, is 35 years old and has been married nine years. He is employed with the Thomas Cusack Company, an advertising concern, and lives at 4558 Kenmore avenue.

Cough and Colds.—If everything has failed, try Allen's Lung Balsam and be cured.

The matter printed under this heading, is contributed by and under arrangement with those opposed to local option.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—Will you kindly permit me to lodge a protest against those people who are responsible for the posters put up, using in them the name of the unfortunate man, Hunter, of Bobcaygeon, to promote the interests of local option. What a spectacle of uncharitableness it is. Surely, if any cause has to be promoted by the use of means of this kind, it must be a very weak cause.

It appears to me that the passing over of the name "Hunter" indicates that some of the enthusiasts are, after all, ashamed of this procedure. The poor man is dead and will stand before his God for judgment, which I think will be more merciful than man would give him. But the family is left behind, with the stigma of murder and suicide resting upon them. Not enough to have this to suffer, these so-called Temperance enthusiasts increase the sad plight the Hunter family is in, by publishing broadcast, in glaring posters, the lamentable act of the unfortunate man, who, instead of being denounced, should have our heartfelt pity. I say again, "Shame" upon those who, to further their cause, have to assail the dead. I think the case speaks for itself.

Respectfully yours,
TEMPERANCE.

Hotel Keeper Was Fined $100 For Illegal Sale Of Liquor

Hastings, Nov. 8.—On Saturday afternoon, the patrons of Ormond cheese factory met in the annual meeting, reviewing the season's work. After reviewing the season's work, the subject of rebuilding the factory was discussed, and it was decided to advertise for a cheese-maker to operate the factory, as it has been done in the past. The report of the Secretary showed that the actual cash loss from the fire amounted to about $280.

Some extra men have been put on the concrete work at the dam in order to get the job finished before winter sets in. It is beginning to look as though it was nearing completion and promises to be a fine piece of work.

It is said that Mr. H. McClelland has disposed of his jewellery business here to Messrs. Gibson and Huycke. We understand that Mr. McClelland intends taking a trip to the West with a view to locating in some western town.

A wedding of local interest was solemnized at the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. F. Tyler, on the 27th inst., the contracting parties being Mr. Newcombe of Warkworth, and Mrs. Charlotte Tudhope, of town. Their many friends here join in wishing them a long and happy wedded life.

HETTY GREEN'S SON AND THE REPORTERS

Arranges for an Interview in a Dining Room and Dishes Out Food for Thought.

Dallas, Nov. 9.—Everybody in Texas knows that E. H. R. Green has money, a railroad, an aeroplane and racing cars. It is also well known that he is the son of Mrs. Hetty Green, who has more money than Ed.

Therefore, when Ed. Green sent out an invitation to Dallas newspaper men to meet him in the ladies' ordinary of the Oriental hotel there was quite a flutter among them. The "ordinary" of a hotel, as you recall is the place where the cuisine is served. Nobody knew whether the occasion was to be a birthday party or just a mere good fellowship banquet, but everybody was willing to find out. The news was even tipped off to some of the boys who hadn't been invited. They were all at the ordinary when Ed. arrived and every mother's son of them was hungry.

Mr. Green surveyed the bunch benevolently. He made a little talk urging them to boost the automobile meet in which he was interested. Then, whipping out a gold, diamond-studded cigarette case, he selected a fat Turkish cork-tip, lighted it, daintily inhaled the smoke and announced to three of the famine sufferers that he had appointed them scorers for the meet. "That is all, gentlemen," he added.

There were no eats. But then, he hadn't said anything about eats, had he?

REFUSED TO BE OBEYED

Anderson, Ind., Nov. 9—The marriage of Perry Cullen, a wealthy farmer, fourteen miles north of this city to sixteen-year-old Mary Gill, of West Virginia last June, was recalled in the divorce court to-day when the bride brought suit for separate maintenance.

ADVERTISE IN "THE EXAMINER"

RECOMMENDS AN APPEAL

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Executive Council of the American Federation of Labour in a report which was read this morning recommended that appeal be taken to Supreme Court against the conviction of Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison for contempt of court, and against the injunction order. They also declared in favour of trial by jury in every case where personal liberty is at stake and condemned the denial of this to be their leaders in their trial for contempt. Protest was also made against execution of Professor Ferrer by Spanish Government. Report of executive was very lengthy, taking three and one quarter hours to read.

DID NOT USE A KNIFE

Antonio Alyard, who appeared before Magistrate Edmison yesterday afternoon on the charge of assaulting Peter Cavanagh, the foreman over a gang of labourers at the new dam, was allowed to go on suspended sentence upon paying the costs, which amounted to nearly $14. It was alleged that the prisoner had attempted to strike the foreman with a knife one night last week, but on the stand Cavanagh could not say that Alyard had a weapon in his hand. It was about midnight and the prisoner was one of the night gang. He was under the influence to a certain extent and Cavanagh told him not to leave off work that night. The assault was supposed to have been the result the Italian apparently being in an ugly humour at the time. Mr. G. N. Gordon, who appeared for the defence submitted that Alyard had drawn from his pocket a bunch of cigarette paper and although a blow was struck the prisoner said he had not used a knife. A ripple of laughter was heard from the audience when it was submitted that only a bunch of paper had been used as a bluff.

CONVENTION IS OPENED

Hon. Dr. Reaume, Mayor Oliver and Robert Gleckling Present at First Meeting of Big Organization In Toronto — Past Year Has Been the Best Financially In the History of the Federation.

Toronto, Nov. 9.—Labor's big convention has captured Toronto. Not by conspicuous display of pageantry or violent denunciatory harangues, but rather by the quiet business-like manner in which the delegates have inaugurated their first meeting on Canadian soil. Sir James Whitney, through the medium of Hon. Dr. Reaume, extended the greeting of the Provincial Government, and Mayor Oliver beamed welcome on the labor delegates. In one short day the convention has already won golden opinions by the progress which it has made.

Following the usual preliminaries inside the hall, the addresses of welcome from Toronto and Ontario by the mayor and the representative of Sir James Whitney and the representative of Canadian unionism, President Samuel Gompers, the presidents of the federation, now under sentence by a United States court to serve a term in prison for contempt of court, opened what is generally conceded as the most important conference in the history of the labor movement in America.

Mayor Oliver, in the course of a trenchant speech, pointed proudly to the fact that the municipality of Toronto paid union wages.

Hon. Dr. Reaume proved an able substitute for Sir James Whitney, his witty remarks delivered with a strong French accent provoking considerable amusement.

President Wm. Glockling of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada hoped that the visit of the labor convention would offset any threatened division of Canadian union forces.

Then arose President Samuel Gompers to reply to the addresses of welcome. He placed his propositions in a nutshell, and delivered his plans for the amelioration of the working classes and the spread of unionism in short, pithy sentences.

But when he concluded his speech, laying stress on the fact that unionists, unlike manufacturers, had nothing to hide, the pent-up enthusiasm of the delegates broke loose. Again and again they cheered the speaker, who seemed overcome with the warmth of his reception.

Opposition was evinced before the credential committee's report was adopted. The committee recommended the unseating of the delegates of the electrical workers, who have come under the ban of the Federation of Labor for refusing to expel workers from local councils.

The opposition, however, was swept aside and the following delegates were unseated: John P. Egan and L. O. Pouchet, Ohio State Federation of Labor; James B. Drake, Birmingham, Alabama, Central Labor Body; Henry H. Belchie, Davenport Central Labor Union; E. G. Stewart, Cedar Rapids, Ohio, Central Labor Union; David Healy, Detroit, Mich., Federation of Labor.

In contrast to this address were the short, business-like speeches of Secretary Morrison and Treasurer Lennen, who submitted their statements for the approval of the sub-committees.

Secretary Frank Morrison presented a report showing that the financial condition of the federation was never better. At the close of this fiscal year $167,383.46 is in the treasury, the highwater mark in the history of the American Federation of Labor. Of the amount on hand, $115,977.14 is in the defence fund for local trade and federal labor unions.

The Aluminum Company of America, a Pittsburg concern, has filed notices of increase of capital stock from $6,200,000 to $20,000,000.

Portland Township Council, Frontenac County, has ordered a vote to be taken in the next municipal election for the repeal of the local option law in operation.

In a gale yesterday the home of F. A. Ward of Victoria, B.C., was wrecked, the family falling with the second floor and being hurled in the debris. Mrs. Ward, who was ill in bed, may not recover.

The loss to the Big Four Railway by the defalcations of C. L. Warriner, local treasurer of the road at Cincinnati, will ultimately amount to about $500,000, according to a statement issued yesterday.

High school pupils in Cleveland object to morning and afternoon sessions, because an afternoon session takes away the chance of schooling from those who must work half the day to earn their education.

The premature explosion of a blast in Victoria, B.C., sent a boulder crashing through a third storey window in the residence of Dr. O. M. Jones, while others struck Contractor J. R. Williams. He may die.

Woman a Degenerate.

Belleville, Nov. 9.—Frances Beaverstock, the woman arrested in Tyendinaga Township on Friday charged with infanticide, will appear before Magistrate Masson next Monday for a preliminary hearing. She is 30 years of age and of four children born, only one is alive, a six-year-old boy, who smokes and chews tobacco like an old man. The woman herself appears to be a degenerate. She admits having given birth to a child last July in the woods, which she buried at once. Her mother says she saw another baby that had apparently been choked to death.

The family have lived in a slovenly way, in a rudely constructed shanty. About ten years ago, the father of the accused served a prison sentence for incest.

James White Appointed.

Ottawa, Nov. 9.—James White, Dominion Geographer since 1904, was yesterday appointed secretary of the commission for the conservation of natural resources, which was sanctioned last session.

R. E. Young will probably succeed him as geographer. The latter left for England yesterday to attend the International Geographical Congress.

Lionel Brough Dead.

London, Nov. 9.—Lionel Brough, comedian, died yesterday, aged 73. He published the first number of The London Daily Telegraph and instituted a system of selling newspapers on the streets. During his career he played in almost every first-class theatre in the United Kingdom, America and South Africa.

Walks Mile With Mangled Foot.

Prescott, Nov. 9.—Thomas Hall, an Indian, aged 18, from Deprister, N.Y., had his left foot cut off just a little above the ankle by a G.T.R. train. He came from St. Regis on a freight and in jumping off fell under the train. He walked over a mile on the stump to the nearest house.

Parents to Penitentiary for Perjury.

Fort Frances, Nov. 9.—The parents of Gertrude Young, a girl who gave birth to a child which she strangled and buried, were convicted of perjury in swearing to ignorance of the crime, and sentenced, the mother to three years and the father to two. The girl was freed, as being insane.

WEAK LUNGS, CATARRH, BRONCHITIS, HAWKING.

Even Though Head and Throat Are Diseased From Neglected Colds, Cure Is Certain.

Hundreds die of chronic catarrh that could be cured by persevering with a remedy of real merit. Look for these symptoms in your own case—they all mean Catarrh in some form:

"Is your voice rough?"
"Do you cough up phlegm?"
"Is your nose stuffed up?"
"Do you snore at night?"
"Does your nose itch and burn?"
"Have you frontal headaches?"
"Do your eyes pain?"
"Is it a dryness in your throat?"
"Do you sneeze, hawk, cough?"
"Have you droppings in throat?"
"Are you losing sense of taste?"
"Have you stomach nausea?"

Catarrh has been pronounced a disease caused and maintained by germ life, and, like other diseases where germs are present, is impossible to be cured by the ordinary constitutional medicines.

Hundreds of different remedies have been tried. Inhalers which produced steam, vapors and sprays were introduced, but turned out useless, as the vapor condensed and the medicaments were left deposited in the large bronchial tubes long before the air reached the smaller cells of the lungs.

Catarrhozone

is the only germicide ever found volatile enough to impregnate every particle of air breathed, yet leaving it FREE from moisture, thus enabling this powerful germ destroyer to reach every part of the air passages in the head, throat, and lungs, where it at once kills the bacilli that cause catarrh, asthma, bronchitis, colds, etc.

It cures by inhalation, and because it cannot fail to reach the seat of the disease. It is guaranteed, and incurs not the slightest danger of inconvenience to the patient.

BEGIN TREATMENT NOW.

Catarrhozone is absolutely certain to reach the source of the disease. It possesses marvelous healing properties, and quickly restores the raw, congested membranes to a normal, healthy condition. In a few breaths it clears away all foul mucous discharges, and quickly allays coughing, headache, pain over the eyes, and the manifold unpleasant symptoms of catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, coughing, sore throat and colds.

QUICK CURE IS GUARANTEED.

Now, bear in mind, you breathe Catarrhozone. Do you not think this is a rational method of treatment—a reasonable way of reaching the diseased surfaces, which lie so far in the cavity of the body or of the head that they can be reached in no other way?

You cannot possibly fail to obtain quick cure if you will use Catarrhozone. Two months' treatment, absolutely guaranteed, costs $1.00, smaller size, 50c., at all dealers in medicine.

THE COAL STRIKE OVER AT LAST

Montreal, Nov. 9.—As far as the Dominion Coal Co. is concerned, the strike at Glace Bay is over. Yesterday morning F. L. Wanklyn, vice-president, received a wire from General Manager Duggan saying that they did not want any more men, and that the daily output is now about nine thousand tons.

At a meeting yesterday is was moved by W. D. Matthews, seconded by J. K. Osborne, and unanimously resolved, "That the board of directors place on record their high appreciation of the zeal and loyalty of and the efficient services rendered by the general manager, the mining engineer, the district mine superintendents, and the mine managers and other officials of the company during the difficult and trying times of the labor trouble, from which the company has just emerged, and that the suitable recognition of such services be left to the executive committee to be dealt with."

RATHER QUEER PROOF OF DOCTRINE

New Orleans, Nov. 9.—J. C. Wilson, formerly of Boston, Mass., a disciple of Mrs. Eddy's Christian Science doctrine, threw himself in front of a trolley car to prove his faith, and the fact that he is still alive convinces him that the strange test has justified his belief. He suffered concussion of the brain and was a mass of bruises. When he recovered consciousness yesterday in the hospital he declared that he was not suffering any pain and said he hoped to be well enough soon to give further demonstration of his faith in the doctrine. He says he contracted tuberculosis and was cured by Christian Science in Denver. Wilson was born 29 years ago in Sherman, Texas.

MESSENGER BOY'S THEFT IS COSTLY

Toronto, Nov. 9.—It developed in the Police Court yesterday that the theft of $3.75 from the G.N.W. by George Warring, a messenger boy, may cost the company $10,000. At least his tearing up a cable message that was entrusted to him and pocketing the charges resulted in a loss of $10,000 to a large wholesale house, who were ordering a consignment of goods from England, the price of which has advanced to that extent since then. They may press the telegraph company to make this good.

Warring was sent to jail for sixty days on this charge, and for the theft of a c.o.d. of $13.25 from Routery & Walker, Bay street tailors, in May, 1903.

German Interest In Canada.

London, Nov. 9.—The Canadian Associated Press learns that the German Government is considering the advisability of establishing a new consulate-general at Ottawa, which will be almost ambassadorial in its scope and character. Plans already have been suggested for the erection of a building in which a record and museum of German manufactures and products suitable for the Canadian market might be accommodated.

NEWS of SPORT of NEW

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH HOCKEY CLUB

Now for hockey!

All players and friends of the Peterborough Hockey Club are reminded that the annual meeting of the Club will be held on Thursday night of this week, when cost sweaters will be presented to last year's senior players and sweaters to the junior team. The reports from last season will be read and the location of officers for the coming winter will be held.

The outlook for the season close at hand is encouraging, and the fans are likely to see some classy hockey. The finances are in good shape from last season, and on the whole the prospects are the brightest in some years.

It is almost certain that Peterborough will be represented by both junior and intermediate teams, and a lot of attention will be paid to the juniors. Last year the youngsters made a very good showing, and there is every reason to hope for improvement this season. Look for a big boom in hockey this winter.

PROSPECTS IN CITY LEAGUE

Annual Meeting of Local Hockey Body Will be Held Next Week—New Teams are Probable.

KEENE WANTS FRANCHISE

The annual meeting of the City Hockey League will be held early next week, as provided for by the constitution. The prospects before this most successful organization are as bright as they have ever been, and there is every reason to expect a successful League with keen competition all the way. Already the teams are beginning their campaign after players and the star puck chasers of the city are in demand.

It is a little early to say just what teams will be represented in the League this season. The Strathconas, winners for two years and runners up last season, will be in line again, stronger than ever, the Commissioners say. The West Ends, who made a creditable showing with a young team last year may also be regarded as a certainty, and the 57th Bugle Band will be represented by a team. It is not known what the Belmonts or the T. A. S. are going to do. It is hardly probable that Lakefield will be in, although last year's champions may get the fever and build up a team. Quinn and Simpson the mainstays of the champslast year are away from Lakefield and their places will be hard to fill. Keene is anxious to get a franchise in the League it is said, and if so they will be accommodated with a place in the schedule.

The date of the annual meeting will be announced in a day or two.

BRINTONS DEFEAT THE NORMALITES

Carpet Weavers Twice Vanquish the Students.

A second football match took place on Saturday between Brintons F. C. and the Normal school on the Oval. Last week the scholars were easily trimmed by 5-1 and for this match they had on a much stronger team, inclusive of several outsiders and they played with the intenton of getting even. They could not quite manage this and retired after a good game, beaten by 3-2. It was a splendid afternoon for football and fast play was seen all through the game. Robinson 2 goals and Moule 1 scored the goals for the winners. The best run of the match was made by the scholars' left, who took the ball half the length of the field, beating both the Brintons backs and then the goalkeeper. The Normalites have challenged for a third game and this they intend winning—if they can.

FRITZ MOHL TO MEET BULGARIAN WRESTLER

Chaakir, the Oriental Brought From Bulgaria by George Kennedy, is His Opponent.

Montreal, Nov. 9.—Fritz Mohl, the big German wrestler who was a frequent visitor to Montreal a matter of three years or so ago, is coming back here again.

He has been matched to meet Chaakir, the Bulgarian, whom George Kennedy brought back from the East with him, best two or three falls to a finish. Should Chaakir overthrow the husky Fritz the deed will go a long way to building a big rep. for him on this side of the water.

For figuring it out, Mohl has an advantage of something like forty pounds in weight on the speedy Chaakir.

The latter tips the beam at 185, Mohl, when he was last here, went over the two hundred mark, and is now said to touch 225, in good condition at that.

The match will form one-half of a big programme at Sohmer Park for Friday evening next.

The latter should be a feature match, Tremblay has lost none of his old time skill and cunning, as he showed in the encounter with Billeter a fortnight ago.

RUGBY

That touchdown Allan Campbell scored for Peterborough on Saturday was the first to the credit of the Peterborough team in two seasons. The last one before that was scored by Wallace Dickson in that memorable game at Montreal in December of 1907.

The Toronto Central Y. M. C. A. team beat Lindsay 10 to 5 at Lindsay on Saturday, and a Scugog despatch says that the "Y" boys were the heavier team. They must have been some heavy to discount Murdie McHugh and Company.

St. Michael's College look to have a cinch in the junior O. R. F. U. series. They have been running up big scores on every team they have met.

The Tigers play Argos in Toronto on Saturday. If you can count on the Oarsmen's performance at Montreal Saturday they should give the Jungle Cubs a good argument. But Montreal probably went out of training before that game, and any way Tommy Stinson, their crack full back only played one quarter so that Argos' win does not count for as much as it would under other circumstances. It is probable that when the census is taken Ben Simpson's cohorts will have much the larger end of the score.

TO BE SENT BACK

Harry Watters Will be Released as Soon as Arrangements Can be Made to Deport Him.

Magistrate Dumble received word this morning from the Department of Justice at Ottawa that Harry Watters, now confined in the local gaol might be released just as soon as arrangements were made for his immediate deportation to the Old Country. Watters was sentenced a little over a week ago, to one month in gaol on a charge of vagrancy. He refuses to work and has for some time made his home on the hill.

FIRED INTO THE AIR

Witness Says That Young Men at Springville Were Not as Nearly Shot as They Thought They Were.

Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—In regard to the article in last evening's Examiner about the shooting in North Monaghan on Hallowe'en night. Five shots were fired from a shot gun into the sky in order to scare away the intruders, so that the facts printed last night seem rather strange. As the bunch of marauders and the names of most of them are known they may think themselves lucky they were allowed to go with only a scare as there is justice for all. A little fun on Hallowe'en is all right, but to take a man's gate away and let all his cattle into his root field, along with other damage, which caused considerable delay, is going too far.—Yours, etc.

A WITNESS.

RHEUMATISM Strikes the Heart and then Kills

Causes: A run down condition of the system, poisoned blood, and Uric Acid. The joints become clogged with irritating secretions and grow stiff. Every movement tortures and racks the sufferer. Cure is not possible until the blood is purified. The most potent blood purifier is Ferrozone. It is a perfect solvent for Uric Acid and an antidote for all other poisons liable to cause inflammation or Rheumatic Pains. But Ferrozone doesn't stop here. It provides the enfeebled sufferer with an abundant supply of pure, invigorating blood. This quickly results in more strength with which to fight the disease, starts a rebuilding of the system, ends in a permanent cure. Mr. Thos. Egan, of 92 Pearl Street, New York, suffered so intensely from Rheumatism that his friends believed he could not recover. "The Rheumatism," writes Mr. Egan, "crippled me for four years. It seemed to run to the joints, which swelled and caused dreadful pain. I wasn't able to walk and my strength rapidly decreased. My heart became so weak I had to be bolstered up in bed. I was at my wits' end when I heard of the wonderful cures of Ferrozone. Twelve boxes cured and I am now strong and perfectly well." There is no better remedy. ● Severe tests have proved it superlative to all others. ● If you want the BEST and most scientific treatment for Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, or Sciatica, use Ferrozone. No case too chronic. Price 50 cents per box or six boxes for $2.50. Sold by all druggists.

LITTLE WAYS OF IMPROVING ONE'S HEALTH.

We can't all be beautiful, but we can at least be healthy, and to a great extent, health is beauty.

Carlyle said that genius was an infinite capacity for taking pains. He might have added that beauty and health might be acquired in a similar way.

If nature has marred us in the making the task may be a more difficult one, but it is nevertheless undoubtedly a fact that however unprepossessing a person may be, a due regard for one's body will improve one's general appearance.

To take proper care of one's skin, hair, teeth, eyes, ears and nose as well as the body in general, requires very little time or trouble in comparison to the great benefits which result and we are beginning to realize that it pays us to pay promptly the little debts we owe our bodies rather than to put them off until the inevitable day of reckoning arrives.

As a matter of fact, if has been estimated that an average of three-quarters of an hour a day is all that is required to perform one's toilet in the most thorough and satisfactory manner—a period of time which every man, woman and child could easily spare, no matter how exacting his or her duties might be.

The care of the skin is of the utmost importance not only from the standpoint of appearance but for the sake of one's general health. Although it is not generally known, it is a fact that the nutritive effects of food are greatly influenced by the condition of the skin. In fact, a well-known English sanitarian has pointed out that "the same food which is required to make four children that are kept dirty thrive, will serve to make five thrive where skins are daily washed and kept clean."

The reason is more or less apparent. The principal function of the skin is to discharge various waste matters of the body which have no other outlet. Unless the skin is kept clean, perspiration, which under ordinary conditions is a harmless fluid, will accumulate upon the skin, mingle with the dirt and clog the pores. The waste matter of the body is unable to escape and thorough assimilation of new materials taken in the form of food is prevented.

Then again colds and fevers as well as many internal disorders are directly due to neglect of the skin which plays an important part in the regulation of the bodily temperature.

The care of the skin means the daily bath. All the skin preparations on the market will not do a particle of good if the daily bath is neglected, whereas regularity in this important item of the daily toilet will render cosmetics and pomades of all descriptions entirely unnecessary.

The cold bath is undoubtedly the best for those who can stand it. The effect of cold water is at first to chill the surface of the body by driving the blood inwards. This is one of the principal objects of the bath—to stimulate the organs by stirring up the circulation. The natural movement of the blood should be further encouraged by brisk rubbing while in the water with a flesh brush or mittens of crash towelling.

There is no advantage to be gained by remaining in the water longer than is necessary to give the body a thorough rubbing—in fact if the bath be unduly prolonged harm may result instead.

The bath should produce what is known as a reaction which is evidenced by a sudden rush of the blood to the surface of the body, making the skin glow and resulting in an increased appetite and a clearer mind.

Of course, some people are constitutionally unfitted for this strenuous morning bath, but, in that case, a tepid bath should be taken.

The morning bath and the subsequent rubbing and drying should not take more than fifteen minutes at the outside.

Had Given Up All Hope of Living.

Heart Trouble Cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. Andrew Savoy, Grattan's, N.B., writes:—"In the year 1905, I was taken sick and did not think I could live any length of time. My trouble was with my heart and people told me that nothing could be done for a case like mine. I consulted the very best doctors, but they could do me no good. For seven weeks I could hardly cross the floor. I had no pain, but was so weak nobody in the world can believe how I felt. I had given up all hopes of living and had given my little girl to my sister-in-law.

"One day a friend came to see me, and calling me by name, said, 'Lizzie, if I were you I would try a dose of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills as they are good for heart trouble.' My husband got me a box, but for two days I was not feeling any better, but on the fourth day my husband said, 'I believe those pills are doing you good.' I was able to say, 'Yes, I feel a good deal better this morning.' He said, 'Well, I will get you another box right away.' I took two boxes and three doses out of the third one, and I was perfectly well and have not been sick since then.

"I will never be without them in my home for God knows if it had not been for Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I would not have been alive now."

Price, 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

There was a good meeting in St. Paul's last night, the attendance being considered excellent for a Monday. In making the announcements, the pastor, Mr. Pogue, expressed the joy he had felt at the response made by the people to the efforts put forth in connection with these special services. He urged during this closing week that all would continue praying for a special blessing to attend the meetings. The meetings will conclude Friday night. There will be a special meeting for boys and girls of the schools in St. Paul's at 4.15, on Friday, and it is hoped there will be a large attendance for this meeting.

Mr. MacBeth took for his subject last night the third Epistle of John, verse 2, "Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health even as thy soul prospereth." John had evidently been inquiring about the man to whom he specially wrote this letter, and the letter throws a beautiful light on the life and customs of the early Christians. When one asked for the welfare of another, it was evidently understood as referring, first of all, to his spiritual condition, and not to his material circumstances. If we are anxious for the Kingdom, and for those whom we are inquiring, this will still be the case with us. But it is not always so in this material age. As soon as John has ascertained how Gaius, the man after whose welfare he had asked, was flourishing in health of soul, he thought it then safe to pray for his business success and for his good health of body anid mind. This is in accordance with the mind of Christ. We are to put first things first. He said: "Seek ye first the Kingdom of God and His righteousness and all these things shall be added unto you." The health of the soul is the first consideration. Once that is assured, we can safely trust that soul with the control of health and wealth. In such a case health and wealth will be used for the glory of God, and for the good of humanity.

In closing, the speaker told how Jesus, the Great Physician, would regard the low state of health in which many souls are, even amongst professing Christians, and for them He would prescribe suitable Spiritual food, exercise in religious work, and a dwelling in the atmosphere of the Cross.

ST. ANDREW'S.

In St. Andrew's church Rev. Mr. Atkinson delivered an eloquent address, taking the following as his subject, Act. 16, "The story of Lydia and the Philappian jailer." Paul says in one of his letters that there are diversities of operations but the same God worketh. This story is an illustration of that principle. We see how the same God through the same spirit and by the same grace works on utterly diverse characters. Lydia, a refined, cultured and spiritual woman. The jailer a coarse, cruel and Godless man. The church of Christ to-day should learn this lesson from this that Christ works the extremes of character. Mary of Bethany and Mary Magdalene, Nicodemus and the dying thief.

Next was noted the diversity of operation by the spirit of God. Of Lydia we read her heart the Lord opened, Jesus says, "Behold I stand at the door and knock. If any man open the door I will come in." So simply and quietly He aproaches the spirits of men. He holds out His hand and asks for our friendship. Can we refuse Him and exclude Him In 99 cases out of 100 thus is conversion accomplished. On the other hand God sometimes departs from the ordinary and makes use of the exceptional. He uses the earthquake of a sudden temptation, of a great fall, of a severe trial, of a shattering blow to faith so that in the midst of some catastrophy to hope, and love when all is darkness, men cry, "What must I do to be saved?" and the answer comes, "Believe in Jesus Christ."

KNOX CHURCH.

"The Beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ" was the text of Rev. Dr. Farquharson's address last evening in Knox church. There was a good attendance and an impressive service. Dr. Farquharson pointed out the necessity of dipping into the river not at its mouth, but at its source, and seeking the Gospel, just as presented by Jesus himself. What impressed Peter and John and others? His teaching had a wonderful effect. But there was something more. His manner of dealing with men like Nicodemus and Zaccheus, and women like the woman of Samaria and Mary Magdalene was effective, but something more, it was his personality. But this was not all of the original gospel. There was His death and beyond that His resurrection. And yet we have not reached it all. What made such a marvellous difference to those disciples was not in these things alone. It was in this truth, that Jesus the Living Lord came and took up his abode in their hearts. This is the Gospel of Christ. People get this Gospel by taking hold of it, by opening their hearts to it. His address was closed by an earnest invitation to accept Christ.

Mr. Keith spoke for a few moments emphasising the appeal and leading the congregation in a prayer of consecration. Rev. Dr. Langfeldt, who was present, also led in prayer, and closed with very helpful remarks.

The subject for this evening is: "Seeing and Believing." Mothers' prayer meetings are being held each day and to-night there is a prayer meeting for men at 7.45 p.m., in Miss Warren's class room.

FOUND GUILTY OF THEFT

Jesse Airriess was this morning found guilty of stealing a watch from the room of Mrs. A. P. Poussette at the Hotel National, and a ring from M. G. Clarke's room, during the progress of the fire there a week ago last Friday. He appeared before his Honour Judge Huycke in the County Court. His Honour reserved sentence until to-morrow morning. The accused was represented by Mr. B. F. McWilliams and Crown Attorney R. E. Wood prosecuted.

The evidence for the prosecution was practically the same as that given at the preliminary hearing in the police court. P. C. Newhall told of the arrest of the prisoner, when the latter was about to return the watch to Mr. Poussette and afterwards upon search being made finding Mr. Clarke's ring on the prisoner.

A well-known local young man was the first witness called for the defence. He stated that he had been talking to three ladies, who stopped at the hotel. He saw the prisoner at the window of one of the young lady's rooms. He went up and brought down a fur coat. The accused, another gentleman, and the witness volunteered to go and bring down things from the rooms. Witness put things in his pockets to bring down and accidentally left a fountain pen in his pocket which he afterwards returned to its owner.

To Crown Attorney R. E. Wood he said that if was at the request of one of the young ladies that he brought down her things.

The first young lady called said that she resided at the Hotel National previous to the fire. On the evening of the fire, she went down to the hotel about ten minutes to five. She saw the prisoner there. He volanteered to go up and open the window. He went in and brought down her fur coat. She saw him empty out his pockets, giving her everything. He worked very energetically and did muche for her, in saving various things. She told the young man not to go to any risks, but he very willingly got out everything. In looking over the articles given the witness found things mentioned by Mr. Clarke in his evidence at the police court, as having been lost by him, and returned them to Mr. McWilliams. They were produced in court.

The next witness was another young lady, who had resided at the Hotel. She stated that the prisoner had given several articles which he brought down from her friend's room. She corroborated what the previous witness had said regarding the articles produced. Witness did not lose anything.

The third lady, also a resident of the Hotel, stated that her room was next to the other witness. Witness had insurance on her things, and was advised not to touch them. She went around to assist the other ladies. She saw the prisoner bring down the fur coat and a steamer trunk. Witness asked for her jewel case and the prisoner ventured to go after it, but it wasn't he who returned it to her.

BANQUET DISTURBED

Premier Says That International Situation Has Vastly Improved During the Past Year and Understanding With Germany is Possible—Women Break Stained Glass Window With Stones.

London, Nov. 10.—The Lord Mayor's banquet at the Guildhall last night was the scene of a suffragette incident. The lord mayor was responding to the toast to the King, when a crash of glass was heard and stained glass windows fell in fragments into the banquetting hall.

"Shouts of votes for women," resounded through the room causing considerable excitement, and some amusement. Two women who had gained the roof and thrown the stones were arrested. Another suffragist, in evening attire, who accosted Winston Spencer Churchill, President of the Board of Trade in the vestibule, was ejected.

Premier Asquith, who was the principal speaker at the banquet, avoided reference to home politics and dealt with international affairs.

He was happy to be able to speak without the lurking apprehensions which clouded the international horizon last year, and although there still were possibilities of disquiet in eastern Europe, there was nothing, he believed, which would not yield to time and tact, and he knew of nothing which need stand in the way of a full and friendly understanding with Germany.

With reference to the Congo, His Majesty's Government, the Premier declared, earnestly desired Belgium to make such dispositions as would justify the recognition of annexation.

HYPNOTIST IS JAILED

Arthur Everton, a Performer Pleads In Cell to Authorities to Let Friend Try to Revive Hypnotic Subject, But Attempt is a Failure—Everton is Charged With Manslaughter—A Novel Plea.

Somerville, N.J., Nov. 10.—While Arthur Everton, self-styled professor and traveling hypnotist, sobbed in his cell three calm medical men witnessed a weird performance in the morgue of the Somerset Hospital late yesterday afternoon. There Wm. N. Davenport, secretary to the mayor of New York, and a student of hypnotism, vainly tried to bring back signs of life in the rigid body of Robert Simpson, a former street car conductor of Newark, who apparently died Monday night after having been put into a hypnotic trance by Everton before a large audience at the Somerville Theatre.

Davenport failed, Simpson was declared officially dead, and an autopsy was held last night.

Meanwhile, charged with manslaughter, unnerved and shaken, Everton remains in prison, where he must await the action of the grand jury as a sequel to a stage trick familiar throughout the country and abroad.

It was at the piteous instance of Everton while in jail after his ineffectual attempts to revive Simpson that Davenport, a friend of Everton, came into the case yesterday. Notwithstanding the declaration of physicians that Simpson was dead, Everton pleaded that Davenport be allowed to revive him. Accordingly the autopsy, first arranged for two o'clock yesterday afternoon, was postponed and the student of hypnotism was summoned.

First he felt the body to detect any possible heart beat; failing in this, he placed his ear on the victim's chest. Then, invoking the power of suggestion, he spoke in the dead man's ear: "Bob," he said, "Bob, your heart action—your heart action—your heart action is beginning. It is beginning."

Slowly and systematically Davenport repeated this in the ear; then, changing his tone of voice to an imperious command, he cried sharply: "Bob—Bob—can't you hear me? Your heart is beginning to beat. Your heart is beginning to beat."

Again and again he repeated this assurance to the inanimate form, while the medical men looked grimly on. Not a muscle of the body stirred and there was absolutely no sign of animation.

Again Davenport changed his methods. Leaning over Simpson's right ear, he spoke confidentially: "Oh, I say, Bob," he said, in a quiet, conversational tone, "look, your heart is beginning to beat."

He repeated this soothingly time after time, but without effect, Simpson was apparently as dead as a door-nail.

Simpson, the victim, was 35 years old, and was accustomed, it is said, to drinking heavily. It is generally admitted that he was intoxicated during the test Monday night. No relatives have appeared to claim the body.

Everton has employed counsel, and he will fight the case. It has been suggested that he will make the novel plea that the man was still alive when the autopsy was performed, citing various cases of suspended animation as proof of this.

Fined for Landing Alien.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 10.—Because it landed an alien, in alleged violation of the U. S. labor law, the Richelieu & Navigation Co. was yesterday fined $250 by Justice Hazel in the District Court.

The alien is Joseph Story of Toronto. The Government's contention was that he came to Charlotte aboard one of the company's boats to get work in Rochester. He was ordered back and was transferred to another of the company's boats and again landed. Story has been confined for about two months as a witness, but the Government had to pay him witness fees for every day that he was so confined.

Mr. Borden Not Talking.

Glencoe, Nov. 10.—When asked by a reporter yesterday what attitude he would take with reference to F. D. Monk's speech at Montreal Monday night on the proposed naval program, R. L. Borden declined to make any comment, saying that he had not had sufficient time to consider the matter.

Police Permitted Auto Speeding.

New York, Nov. 10.—Alleging that members of the bicycle police squad have been allowing chauffeurs to break the speed bylaws, in return for the free use of autos and other inducements, Commissioner Baker yesterday made a number of transfers and dismissals. In October 22 were killed and over 100 injured in auto accidents in the city.

WANT TRIAL BY A JURY

Trial by One Judge for Contempt of Court in Case of Disobedience of Injunction is Strongly Criticized by Report of Committee—Scheme for Pensioning Old Union Men is Proposed.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Declaring that the use of an injunction writ in contentions between workers and employers is an unwarranted extension of the equity power of the courts and an interference with the rights and liberties of the workers, the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor yesterday recommended that an appeal be taken from the decision which condemns to prison President Gompers, Vice-President Mitchell and Secretary Morrison for contempt of court.

The report strongly attacked the single judge system and held that in the case of violating an injunction, the penalty of which means possible imprisonment one should be entitled to trial by jury.

The report was submitted by Jas. Duncan, first vice-president of the A. F. of L., who took about three hours to deliver it.

It stated also that the $80,000 voted at the last convention at Denver for headquarters at Washington was not sufficient, and that temporary quarters would be used this year.

The bill, which is being introduced by Congressman Wilson, one of the federation delegates, explained in the report and a special committee will report upon the bill before the convention closes. The scheme provides for an "Old Age Home Guard," consisting of men and women over 65 years of age, and citizens of the United States for fifteen years, and by writing to the War Office are enrolled in the Old Age Home Guard entitled them to $125 a year. No one can enlist, however, who owns more than $1,500 worth of property.

According to the report organized labor recognize industrial training and the committee urges that children be educated along this line between the ages of 14 and 16, which in the belief of the committee, would prove an incentive to specialize in some particular line.

In reference to the action of the United States courts in sentencing three of the principal officials of the A. F. of L., the executive council decided to carry the case to a higher court, and have submitted their decision in the form of a resolution to the members of the federation.

"We recommend that an appeal be taken from the decision rendered in both the original injunction as well as contempt cases growing out of it. We cannot permit these decisions to go unchallenged. They affect fundamental rights, and either the courts or Congress must safeguard them.

"We hold that except where contempt is in the presence of the court, the liberty of no citizen should be committed to the keeping of any man, regardless of who he may be or what position he may hold: on the contrary, we hold that a citizen, charged with violating an injunction, the penalty of which involves imprisonment, should always have the same legal right to a trial by jury that is always accorded to a person charged with violating the criminal law.

Trade Relations With U. S.

Detroit, Nov. 10.—James R. Garfield, former Secretary of the Interior, and J. S. Willison of Toronto, editor of The Toronto News, were the principal speakers last night at a dinner given by the Wholesalers and Manufacturers Association of Detroit for the purpose of discussing better trade relations with Canada.

Editor Willison said in his address: "Canadian restrictions upon the export of pulpwood and saw logs cannot be properly described as discriminatory (although they do chiefly effect the United States), because they apply alike to all countries. And I am bound to say that the provinces are unlikely to consider any reversal of policy, and there is no doubt that the movement for a federal export duty will become more formidable."

Confesses to Manslaughter.

Taunton, Mass., Nov. 10.—While the attorney for "Prof." Frank L. Hill, the Fall River herb doctor, who yesterday pleaded guilty to an indictment of manslaughter, was making a statement in the nature of a confession, reporters in the neighboring City of Fall River found in a spot indicated in the confession the head of the victim, which completed the dismembered body of the young woman, Amelia St. Jean of Woonsocket, R.I., who had died in Hill's office as a result of her own act, after the herb doctor had refused to give her the surgical relief which she sought.

May Be $2,000,000 Short.

Cincinnati, Nov. 10.—Apparently well-founded reports last night suggest that the shortage of Chas. L. Warriner, formally local treasurer of the Big Four Railroad Co., who is now accused of embezzling $643,000, may exceed $1,000,000, and may possibly reach $2,000,000. Warriner claims to have been blackmailed for part of the loot.

Library Institute Meeting.

St. Catharines, Nov. 10.—The St. Catharines' District Library Institute was in session here yesterday. Addresses were delivered by Miss Witmer, Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Judge Hardy, Brantford; E. A. Hardy, secretary Ontario Library Association; Inspector Nursey; Dr. Jessop, M.P.P.; Dr. King and Sheriff Dawson.

THE HOSTELRY OF GOD

JEANNE MANCE'S LABOR OF LOVE IN MONTREAL.

Great Hospital Founded by Romantic Young French Gentlewoman Two Hundred and Fifty Years Ago Stands a Splendid Monument to Her Memory—Defied Her Relatives and Crossed to New World.

"Hotel Dieu"—God's hostelry, how sweet, how quaint, and yet how appropriate; for, is it not through suffering that many are brought back to the arms of an All-seeing and kind Father—is not this often like the cornhusks of old, the means which brings back to the paternal hearth the erring prodigal? Is not man like to the playing child which may temporarily forget the mother, but which, on the slightest injury, betakes itself to the maternal knee, there to receive the only balm effective to soothe its fretted little heart? Yes, and the guests at this hostelry are all sufferers; stricken units of the great human family, washed in by the buffets of a cold and often cruel world, like wreckage on the seashore. Truly is it called "Hotel Dieu."

In the dim and distant past of some 250 years ago, when this country's greatness was but in embryo, and when enthusiasm over the colonization of what was then New France was widespread in the Old Land, affecting both King and peasant alike, there was one,—a gentlewoman, still in the springtime of life, raised in the very lap of luxury, the well-beloved and idol of her family,—who was affected by the general sentiment. The mind of Jeanne Mance—for of her we speak—was filled with jubilation, and her heart throbbed at the thought of all the good to be done in the new land. Many the roseate dreams had she, but the realization was rendered possible only by the death of both her parents. Opposition arose, friends, relatives put forth the dissuading hand, her family rebelled, the idea of a young girl crossing to what was then a virgin wilderness, a stronghold of barbarism, was unheard of—but her quiet, God-given determination overcame all obstacles. Thus she aroused curiosity. Ladies of the highest society—even the Queen herself—sought the society of this romantic girl, and finally Madame de Bullion, a widow of wealth, say in her the means of accomplishing a life-long desire of her heart—the establishment of an hospital in the new world.

Where at present stands this mighty gateway of Empire — this metropolis of a vast Domain, there once alighted a frail, gentle girl. Hers were the first white woman's feet to press the virgin sward. Alone she stood in the darkness—vainly she sought for some welcome sound, but naught broke upon the ear but the weird Indian warcry, or mayhap the echo of an Indian drum beating wildly and mournfully on the mountain-side. Her womanly heart beat in trepidation, but her heaven-given resolve bade silent its flutterings.

An angel of mercy had she come, nor was there a dearth of field for her endeavors. Strife was rampant; blows were given and returned; blood flowed and danger stalked about on all sides. Never did she fail; with the wide-open arms of Christian Charity, she recognized her brother in both Red man and Colonist. Alone in the improvised hospital—a mere hut—we see her in the dreary stillness of the midnight hour, keeping alight the dying embers, making a soothing draught for parched lips, or with a tenderness more than motherly, cooling the fevered brow of some French boy or bathing the wounds of some untutored savage whose eyes in return but darted hatred and whose lips muttered in accents of rage as she bent over his couch.

For some fifteen years did she thus expend herself in the service of humanity. With no other assistant than a pious woman to second her efforts, she carried on the great work, fulfilling in person all the offices connected with the hospital. It is related, that oftentimes she would be seen in the grey dawn of an autumn morning, with her gentlewoman's hands, at the ice-bound pools, washing garments repulsively reeking with filth and contagion.

Probably on one of these errands of mercy was it that she met with an accident, the result of a fall on the ice, which deprived her of the use of her arm. Through a lengthy period of excruciating agony did she pass, only to be assured that consultation of some renowned Old World physician would be the sole hope of relief. Broken-hearted at seeing her work thus brought to an apparently tragic end, she braved the vicissitudes of an ocean voyage. There was no hope; she was maimed for life. Repressing the first movements of despair surging upon her deeply Christian heart, and buckling on her pristine heroic courage, she again turned her face to the New World, this time accompanied by three sisters, who had volunteered to take up the work. With hearty acclaim was she received, and the wild woods rang with the sounds of rejoicing, the faces of man and woman beamed joyous welcome when the news passed round that the "Angel of the Settlement," the hallowed Mademoiselle Jeanne Mance, had again taken up her station in their midst.

That is some two hundred and fifty years ago—and the same gentle, whole-souled angel of mercy is still doing her work. What matter it, if her institution has change from a mere hut—through the various stages—till it is now the largest of its kind on the Continent of America? What matter, if, in the ceaseless roll of years, the personnel has been transformed from one solitary self-sacrificing attendant to hundreds not one whit less self-sacrificing? What matter it if, instead of the lurking form of a crouching savage, the signs of a highly-cultured civilization are seen from the windows? Jeanne Mance is as surely at the head of her well-beloved institution to-day as she was then.—Montreal Standard.

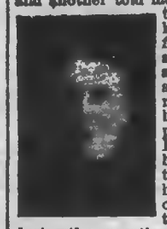
DOCTOR ADVISED OPERATION

Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound



Canifton, Ont.—"I had been a great sufferer for five years. One doctor told me it was ulcers of the uterus, and another told me it was a fibroid tumor. No one knows what I suffered. I would always be worse at certain periods, and never was regular, and the bearing-down pains were terrible. I was very ill in bed, and the doctor told me I would have to have an operation, and that I might die during the operation. I wrote to my sister about it and she advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Through personal experience I have found it the best medicine in the world for female troubles, for it has cured me, and I did not have to have the operation after all. The Compound also helped me while passing through Change of Life."—Mrs. LETITIA BLAIR, Canifton, Ontario.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has proved to be the most successful remedy for curing the worst forms of female ills, including displacements, inflammation, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, and nervous prostration. It costs but a trifle to try it, and the result has been worth millions to suffering women.

Polar Eskimo.

To the south Greenlanders the polar Eskimo are a kind of fabulous race, living at an immense distance, clad in bearskins and feeding on raw flesh.

Placemakers' Bible.

The "Placemakers' Bible" is so called from a typographical error which makes Matthew 5, 9, read, "Blessed are the placemakers," instead of peacemakers.

Farewell.

Farewell originally signified may you fare or travel well or in safety.

Ancient Inks.

The ancient inks closely resembled black paint, and on account of the large quantity of gum employed in their composition the letters stood up in relief on the parchments as though embossed.

Wood Consumption.

While the forests of the United States are increasing at the rate of 7,000,000,000 cubic feet a year, the country is using 23,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood each twelve months.

Arctic Air.

All degenerative diseases that cause so much suffering and death in civilization are absent from the Eskimo—no arteriosclerosis, Bright's disease, cirrhosis, diabetes, cataract. The pure, sterile arctic air contains no germs, but the Eskimos invariably take a bad "ship cold" when they go aboard white men's ships.

Washington's Death.

George Washington died on the last hour of the last day of the week of the last month of the last year of the century. He died at midnight, Saturday, Dec. 14, 1799.

Draughts.

Draughts or something very like it was played in 5000 B. C. The game, much as we know it now, was played in sixteenth century Europe, and its name appears as early as A. D. 1400. Draughts means simply moves and was used by Chaucer and others for the moves at chess.

AN INDIAN SHIPYARD.

No Noise of Hammer Where Birch-bark Canoes Are Built.

In the far Canadian wilds, in an Indian shipyard, are built and launched such craft as the voyagers use in traveling the rivers and lakes of that region even as far as Hudson Bay. Noise of hammer and hiss of white-hot bolt have never been heard in that shipyard, and it has neither dry dock nor high slanted and greasy ways. Hidden in the deep grass are long and wide rolls of birch bark treasured against future need, and all about are shavings of the cedar, while the charred remnants of the fires used to melt and purify some of the shipbuilding material perhaps shine black in a little pile.

Here perhaps for many seasons in succession the Indians have built their birch-bark canoes. Bits of the long and pliant but touch root which the Indians pull from its shallow burial to make binding thongs are to be found here and there. This root when split has about the thickness of the cane used in weaving chair bottoms and the deft needlewomen of the Indians make it serve to a nicety for sewing the seams of the birch bark with which the canoes are covered. From strips of cedar two inches wide and hardly more than a quarter of an inch thick are made the ribs. Over this frame is laid with nice fit the birch bark in pieces of suitable size and the joints are secured with long strips of the pliant root.

All this, however, is not sufficient to make a canoe seaworthy; the seams must be made water-tight. This is accomplished with a mixture of spruce gum and bear's grease, though lard will serve nearly as well as the latter. The spruce gum is melted in a pot over an open fire and cleansed of its impurities by skimming. Then a sufficient quantity of bear's grease is added to make the mixture at a moderate temperature of about the consistency of shoemaker's wax.

The whole craft remains measurably pliant yet sufficiently rigid to be handled and carried without danger of collapse. One thing, however, the Indian looks to, that his canoe shall not grate upon sand or shingle when he lands. In fact, he stops short of the shore and in shallow water leaps out into lake or stream and unloads his canoe before carrying it ashore and laying it in a shady place safe from the damaging effects of the mid-summer's sun. Small canoes are built in this fashion for the use of one or two oarsmen, and with proper strengthening of materials, big canoes 35 feet long or more are built to be paddled by 10 or 15 oarsmen and to carry great loads all about the region upon the errands of business that keep these hunters and trappers afloat much of the time so long as there is open water in that far north.

A Handsome Gift.

It has come to light that the late Mrs. Goldwin Smith's will contains a provision for a free gift of the Grange and the fine historic residence upon it to the city of Toronto. The mansion will be devoted to the uses of an art museum, and the splendid collection of pictures and art treasures it contains will fall into the city's possession.

Dr. Smith said the idea of "The Grange" becoming an art museum was suggested to him by Byron E. Walker, of the guild of civic art, and conveyed through him to his wife who readily assented.

The grounds with their beautiful lawns and spreading elms are an ideal of stately beauty, and have invariably excited the admiration of distinguished visitors of whom there have been many.

The main portion of the building was erected in 1820, by D'Arcy Boulton, eldest son of Justice Boulton. Later a wing and conservatory were added. "The Grange" is said by competent authority to be the finest specimen of the early era of brick building in York County. Originally, the gate was at Queen street, and the mansion stood in the centre of a park of 100 acres.

The halls and rooms are finished in black walnut, a portion of the wood-work in the hallway containing wood carvings over 200 years old. The paintings that adorn the walls are highly valuable, and include thirteen portraits of noted English historic characters.

William Henry Boulton, the founder, was the first husband of Dr. Smith's late wife.

End of Militarism.

The Labor Congress at Quebec will oppose and condemn the passing wave of militarism. If the workers would vote as wisely in political affairs as they do in their conventions there would soon be an end of militarism in all countries.—Toronto Globe.

It Takes 21 Days to Make Each Cake

Three weeks are required from start to finish of the cake of Taylor's Infants' Delight Soap that you get at your dealer's.
We have put forty-four years of experience into this soap.
We bring our olive oil and cocoanut oil ten thousand miles—none but the highest grade will do. We use otto of roses that costs us ten dollars an ounce.
These oils are filtered through Fuller's earth. They are boiled and then boiled again, with hundreds of gallons of pure water, passing through to remove all possible impurity.

Infants' Delight Soap

A pressure of thirty tons removes the water. Then the soap is stamped into cakes and again inspected for any possible flaw.
Ordinary fresh or "green" soap is not hard and firm. It wastes away quickly.
We put Infants' Delight Soap through eight separate "agings" until it is hard and firm and ready for immediate use. It will wear as thin as a wafer.
Infants' Delight Soap will make your skin like velvet. It is the mildest soap made—the best for the infant and equally good for grown-ups.
For insuring against chaps and roughness no soap can take its place. Get a cake today.

HE ENJOYS HIS MEALS NOW

For He Keeps a "Little Digester" Handy

Mr. Glasco, of Toronto, wrote us on May 13th last:

THE COLEMAN MEDICINE Co.,
509 Church St., Toronto.

Dear Sirs,—

I wish you would send me another box of your "Little Digesters". All the members of my family have been using them and have obtained the most satisfactory results.

I congratulate you on your success in putting up a tablet for the cure of Indigestion. I suffered for years and tried everything that was recommended to me. Nothing gave me relief, at last I was persuaded to try your "Little Digesters". Now I never suffer from Indigestion. I enjoy my meals and am not afraid to eat, because I know a "Little Digester" after each meal will digest my food.

I recommend them to all my friends who suffer from Indigestion and would further say that you may publish the above if you wish. I know there are thousands of people suffering from Indigestion who will be glad to know there is a safe and sure cure for them.

Yours very truly,

DISEASE ORIGINATES IN THE BLOOD

Pure blood is a safe-guard against disease. Keep your blood rich in Iron, and its essential elements, and the body will be healthy, strong, and well. The best way to administer iron is by taking VINOL, which is a combination of the medicinal elements of Cod Liver Oil and Tonic Iron—it makes red blood corpuscles and thus creates strength quicker than any other method.—McDermid and Jury, Druggists, Peterborough, Ont.

$500 TO SEE SHOW

Wealthy Invalid Saw "A Gentleman From Mississippi" in an Hospital.

John Langdon Randolph, a wealthy planter, of Gulfport, Miss., was in Duluth, Minn., loking over some lumber interests, and was taken to the hospital Monday, suffering from a slight attack of paralysis of the lower limbs. He had had his mind fully made up to witness A Gentleman from Mississippi, then being given in that city by Barr McIntosh, Will Deming and supporting company, when he was stricken. Having once set his mind on a thing, he was not going to let a little trifle like money stand in his way, if that could accomplish his desire.

The representative of Messrs. Brady and Grismer, the managers of the play, was telephoned for, went to the hospital, entered into negotiations with Mr. Randolph, and left with a check for $500 in his pocket. The entire company went to the hospital Thursday morning in a large tally-ho, gave the performance in street attire and improvised "stage settings" much to the satisfaction of Mr. Randolph, the other patients, doctors and nurses, whom he had invited to attend.

Tending the Wounded on the Battlefield

The Ambulance Arrives on the Battlefield

IN the good old days of long ago it used to be customary to refer to England as "merrie" and to Britain as "the tight little island." But England is not very merry in these decadent days and "fright" instead of "tight" should be the adjective of her description. The pall of semi-panic is upon her and you have only to mention the word Germany to obtain results.

For to the British nation, whose power up to the last few years has been unapproached upon the sea, a great rival is rising. Germany (cramped for space and desirous of expansion) is laying heavier and yet heavier levies upon her people for the formation of a great navy.

Great Britain fearful of the results should any other nation possess a sea equipment even remotely approaching her own, which has been so long completely dominant, builds her Dreadnoughts at a crushing cost of money, and, so far, has kept her dominance.

But in the last year or two another factor has entered into the calculations of the world Powers which has added to her apprehensions. A new engine of destruction has come which will, perhaps, in a few years render almost useless the mighty fleets of war ships to which she now looks for her defence.

The flying ship has appeared, doubtless to become subject to a wonderful development within the next few years, which has even now rendered Great Britain practically a part of the mainland of Europe. And in regard to airships Great Britain is in a more backward stage than her great rival, whose experiments in the field of the air have been upon a far more extensive scale.

It is for this reason that for the last year or so Britain has been in a state of consternation which is greater than that which was active at the time, one hundred years ago, when the nation waited for the threatened invasion of Napoleon. Even conscription was discussed for a while, but that was something which no administration would dare to press, so much against the spirit of the British nation has it always been considered.

There has, however, been a general campaign in the direction of fanning the English military ardor. Field Marshal Lord Roberts is going about England preaching the formation of shooting clubs, Kipling is firing people by his verses, the leaders in English politics are pointing out the defenceless state of the island should a landing be effected by a foe such as Germany, and the general result has been to develop England into something approaching the characteristics of a military camp. Lieutenant General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell has founded the boy scouts with the principal idea of inflaming the youthful military ardor of the rising generation and to teach them also something of the craft of war.

Women Take Up Arms.

But this is not all. England's war scare has even gone further than that. It has now spread to the Universal Feminine. Women in that little island wish, it appears, not only for votes, but for the smoke of battle. They have struck the camp and hit the tented field, and, like true veterans, sleep under canvas and engage in many of the exercises of war or of those things which trench upon war. To be specific, there has been formed what is termed the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps, which at the distance would seem a far step toward that condition when English women may take the field as veritable Amazons of modern days, with sword and rifle.

For the First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps, while, of course, as its name implies, purely a nursing organization, yet is such a development from what we regard as the nurse of convention as to be well nigh revolutionary, for its services are not connected only with the sick bed of the hospital ward and with the rear of battle, but the idea is that the women shall care for the wounded as they fall and shall practically enter the area of the fight. Nor is this all.

For the whole responsibility and management, as well as the practical work consequent upon it, is in the hands of the women, from the currying of their horses to the pegging of their tents. These nurses have to possess an expert knowledge of horsemanship as well as a knowledge of military tactics. They have to parade and are subject to the most rigid military discipline. Upon the field of battle they would be confronted by exactly the same hardships and dangers as are the men of their nation. They will be to all intents and purposes units of the army, save that they will handle the salve instead of the sword.

The First Aid Nursing Yeomanry Corps has been formed about twelve months and went into camp recently at Lee, near Lewisham, for three whole days, to the accompaniment, it must be sadly confessed, of some light newspaper jesting, which was, of course, masculine. Headings appeared in those solemn British prints which almost approached an airy lightness. One of them even headed its account "Yeo Ho," with a couplet for a subhead which ran:—

"For the bold Yeomaids of Lee
And their tents beneath the tree."

From which it will be seen that if the English take their pleasures sadly they take their serious businesses not unjovially.

The Ladies in Camp.

Twenty lady members constituted this latest thing in camp life, and its six army bell tents were pitched, with that touch of the femininely picturesque, underneath some old cherry trees within private grounds. There was an ambulance wagon, there were real horse lines, and there was a canteen, within which lady troopers might be seen walking around with cowboy shirts (it may be seen to what extent England is becoming civilized), with red neckerchiefs. Others had brushes in their hands grooming the horses which belonged to the camp.

The canteen is a large tent, after the manner of the masculine canteen, but is softened by several touches of woman's influence. For instance, there is a piano with a real leather covered stool at its front, and its tables have vases and flowers. It has also cut glass and silver plate and artistic serviettes and cold pies and beef and salads, but it must be remembered that these are the piping times of peace and that there is no sense in the yeomaids undergoing unnecessary hardships just for the fun of the thing.

It is more than probable that our bold male defenders would wish for these comforts, too, if it were at all possible that they should get them. So we must not permit too great an amusement at the expense of the maids who can. The smaller tents each contain three beds which can be raised, and these tents have boarding on their floors, and even photographs have been discovered in one or two of them, but again it may be urged that it is better to do things gradually.

The full dress uniform of the Yeomen is, however, truly military and most attractive. There is, first, a neat peaked cap, with chin strap. There is a coat of the same general cut that we see upon our streets on any day of military festival—that with the flapped front pockets and shoulder straps. They have leather waist belts, for no corsets are allowed (it will thus be seen how very serious may be the results of possible invasion), and there are straps coming in cross directions which hold the medicines; and there is a plain three-quarter skirt and gloves and a whip to finish off with.

The routine of the camp is as close as possible to that which might be imagined as the activities of the corps in the field of war and so far from a smiling business. The night is spent "under military conditions," with "no talking" and "all lights out," and these are two hour turns at "sentry-go" till the morning, when the reveille sounds and the camp is awakened by its strains. Then the camp fires are lighted and the military tripods erected, and the pot is slung and the first meal is taken thus. After this cleaning about the camp goes on, each party attending to its own tent and each maid to her own bed. After this the routine of camp work comes.

The military maids polish shoes, pipeclay belts, brighten facings and put their military garments in spick and span condition. The horses are picketed and groomed, given their food and watered, and these preliminaries being completed the lady bugler sounds the bugle, and Lieutenant Stobart, who is the married daughter of Sir Samuel Boulton and the feminine head of the corps, gives orders for all to fall in for the purpose of drill.

Just Like the Men.

Horse parade is now indulged in, under the eyes, however, of a masculine—Captain Baker, whose duty it is to see that things are done in the masculine military way of Great Britain. The parade is, however, in every respect a very thorough performance, as horsemanship of a high quality is demanded in the sort of work for which the corps is prepared. Jumping exercises are also indulged in and the horses are put at hedges and even fences of a fair height. The ladies, however, do not ride astride, as would seem the more practical method, but still keep to the side saddle, as England, though very fearful, is conservative still.

After this the practice of actual field life is gone through. The horses have been picketed again, when a male trooper, perhaps, will be seen riding in with a despatch, which Lieutenant Stobart, as the commanding officer, opens. It is a call for aid, so the bugle rings out once more and the order given to "fall in." The horses are untethered and saddled by female hands, the ambulance wagon is made ready and all are soon galloping to the scene of action. Here a thoughtful government has provided a number of "wounded" men, whose ailments must be pleasurable for once.

On the arrival at the battle field the organization of the ladies shows itself. The lady lieutenant gives her orders and a certain number stoop down, while others attend to the waiting horses. The ambulance rattles up after a while and the worst cases are placed in here. In the case of the slightly wounded, they are placed upon a horse and, supported by one of the gallant Yeomanry, go quickly back to camp. The corps is working hard now. One of them is bandaging a shattered limb, another a wounded head. Other wounded ones are being revived. Four "yeomen" are carrying a stretcher for one of the badly hurt. All these things are done as far as possible under the actual conditions of war, though of course the somewhat important factor of whistling bullets is necessarily omitted, as is equally the case with male parades.

In the camp wounded soldiers will approach on foot and will be taken care of. In the headquarters of the corps are nurses of the kind we have a greater knowledge of, with white apron and cap, who are not "yeomen" at all, but only nurses.

Once back at camp the horses have to be picketed and cared for again by the maids of war, but after this there are the pleasures of the camp, too—evening round the camp fires, when letters are read and songs are sung, and there are confidential talks between friends—perhaps not wholly unacquainted with the subject of mankind.

So the war scare in England has been of some good. It may be responsible for another race of Amazons who in future years will dash down upon the serried, pitiful ranks of the army of men with an impetuousness which will shatter them.

It may be the means of keeping for England the sovereignty among European nations she has held for so long.

And, of course, it supplies the woman suffragists with another argument.

So it really must not be regarded lightly.

$25,000 WAITING FOR OWNER

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Twenty-five thousand dollars is lying in the safe of the German Hospital, awaiting the finding of heirs to the estate of Mrs. Tindel, who died at that institution of apoplexy.

The money was in large bills, concealed in Mrs. Tindel's clothing, and was brought to light, together with her will, after her death.

Apoplexy claims hundreds of victims every year. Yet apoplexy is but an advanced stage of blood poisoning which manifests itself in headaches and backaches. Very frequently the cause is constipation.

Such a case as the above shows the importance of keeping the bowels active, the kidneys regular, the skin healthy, so that the blood will be always pure and rich.

"Fruit-a-tives"—the famous fruit liver tablets—are safe and efficient regulators for stomach, liver, bowels, kidneys and skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c a box, 6 for $2.50 or trial size, 25c.

THE LOST ANTELOPE.

Beautiful Story of Motherly Love From the Wilds of Africa.

A native hunter in Somaliland brought in a baby antelope to the camp of two Englishwomen. He told them that the mother was alive and unharmed; that he had ridden them down until the little oryx, exhausted, had to drop and the mother fled on. In "Two Dianas In Somaliland" Agnes Herbert tells of restoring the tiny creature to its mother. The hunter had declared that if it was taken back to the place whence it came the doe would assuredly find it.

"We decided to try this, but to secrete ourselves and cover the baby back with our protecting rifles; otherwise it was quite likely that a lion or leopard would make off with it ere its mother could retrieve it. I took the timorous creature across my saddle—it seemed all struggling legs and arms—and made for the place, some two miles off, where he first started the oryx.

"We set the baby down alone, so fragile and small it looked, and then hid ourselves in a great thorn brake. The little oryx did not wander far. Sometimes it bleated in a little treble. Once or twice it lay down, tucking its long legs beneath it, to rise and wander, all lonely, among the low thorn bushes. Two hours or more we waited, and then a gentle whinny, and almost before we realized it a perfect oryx doe cantered toward the fawn. She nosed it all over, and her joy expressed itself in every imaginable way. It was a most beautiful and pathetic sight. We made some movement, and all alert again the graceful creature sailed away, the baby trotting beside her."

this domino a smart tip up by pressing on its corner. The domino which lies flat above the lower arch will be knocked clean out, while none of the other dominos will be disturbed. The experiment is an illustration of the power of inertia.

Ripples—A Mother Goose Game.

Let the party be seated in a circle, and any one may begin by announcing the title of some well known verse, "Mother Goose" or anything else, so that it is likely to be familiar to every one in the company. Then the next player on the left says the first word of the verse and the next the second, and so on, running quickly around and around the circle until the quotation is finished. Then the next player may announce another selection, to be repeated in the same way. The success and fun of the performance lie in the rapidity with which the words follow each other. There should be no pause or hesitation, but the verse should go on as quickly and smoothly as if one person were reading the whole sentence. The effect is very odd as the verse goes rippling around the circle.

This is a good play to begin an evening with, as it breaks up any feeling of diffidence or constraint and sets things a-going.

A SCIENTIFIC WONDER

The Secret of a Famous Healing Balm.

The re-discovery of a secret that has lain hidden in the dust of 20 centuries is an event full of fascinating interest, and the story of Zam-Buk, the world-famed first-aid and skin-cure will always enlist attention. Zam-Buk is the virtual descendant of those wonderful and mysterious herbal balms by the use of which the manly athletes of Ancient Greece and the stalwart gladiators of Rome ensured the healthiness and ready-healing of their skin.

Many are the attempts that were made to produce a perfect balm for the skin, but only in Zam-Buk has the ideal been realized. Since its discovery Zam-Buk has been welcomed in mansion and cottage, and the people of two hemispheres realized that they have been placed in possession of an absolutely unique cure for skin complaints.

The reasons for this triumph of science are simple and few. Taking a lesson from the Ancients, the proprietors of Zam-Buk first of all wisely decided that the ideal balm must be purely herbal and contain not the slightest trace of rancid animal fats or poisonous minerals. Thus Zam-Buk is made solely from rich and pure essences obtained from certain rare medicinal herbs. These juices and extracts are prepared and refined by ingenious scientific processes, and then so skilfully blended that a unique, effective, and yet perfectly natural preparation for dispelling skin diseases is secured.

Zam-Buk has an affinity for the human skin such as an ordinary ointment or liniment can possibly possess. Besides soothing pain and allaying irritation, it possesses unique antiseptic and germicidal qualities, which virtually chase disease germs out of their hiding places in the skin tissues; at the same time it purifies the pores and invigorates the natural functions of the skin in a way that no other preparation can.

Zam-Buk solves in a perfect manner the problem of always having at home or at one's work an ever-ready and reliable first-aid for cuts, burns, scalds, bruises, lacerations, scratches, etc. Zam-Buk is without equal for eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, scalp sores, festering sores, sprains, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, face sores, chafing, chapped hands, cold-sores, frost-bites, sore feet, diseased ankles, and all itching, irritation, and inflammation.

Zam-Buk is a daily need in every household and is sold by all druggists and stores at fifty cents a box. Refuse harmful and dangerous substitutes sometimes "pushed" as being "just as good."

"Grannie's Tea."

All the players sit in a row, except one, who sits in front of them and says to each one in turn, "Our old grannie doesn't like tea. What can you give her instead?"

Perhaps the first player will answer "Cocoa," and that will be correct; but if the second player should say "Chocolate" he will have to pay a forfeit because there is a "t" in chocolate. This is really a catch, as at first every one thinks that "tea" is meant instead of the letter "t." Even after the trick has been found out it is easy to make a slip, as the players must answer before five is counted. If they cannot or if they mention an article of food with the letter "t" in it they must pay a forfeit.

What Ails You?

Do you feel weak, tired, despondent, have frequent headaches, coated tongue, bitter or bad taste in morning, "heart-burn," belching of gas, acid risings in throat after eating, stomach gnaw or burn, foul breath, dizzy spells, poor or variable appetite, nausea at times and kindred symptoms?

If you have any considerable number of the above symptoms you are suffering from biliousness, torpid liver with indigestion, or dyspepsia. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is made up of the most valuable medicinal principles known to medical science for the permanent cure of such abnormal conditions. It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at these will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of native American medical forest plants. "What did your European trip cost you?"

"Two hundred and fifty dollars in tips and a few incidental traveling expenses."—Chicago Tribune.

Their Specialty.

The little woman with the standing collar and compressed lips was a red-hot suffragette. For two long hours she had been trying to convince the captain of the ship that, as far as usefulness was concerned, man might as well slip off the earth.

"But I don't approve of these suffragettes," said the bluff old skipper.

"And why not, sir?" snapped the agitator.

"Well, in the first place, I don't think women have any business in politics. I think a woman should pass her time darning mitts and stockings, and the like."

"You do, eh? Well, we suffragettes spend our time darning too."

"Darning?"

"Yes, darning the whole stupid sex of mankind."

And then the captain retreated to the bridge.—St. Louis Republic.

NO TRUTH IN STORY.

Detective Grier Investigated Actions of Bedfort In Canada.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Investigation by Provincial Inspector Grier into the record of John N. Corry, who under the name of John W. Bedfort, confessed in London, England, a month ago, to the murder of Ethel Kinrade, in Hamilton, on February 24, has shown the utter impossibility of his story.

Corry, or Bedfort, it appears had been working at Simpson's, and on the day of the murder was on duty from 8 a.m. til 5.30 p.m., during which time the murder occurred. On March 29, he was discharged from Simpson's, and after five or six weeks spent in Muskoka, returned to Toronto, and was engaged as cook to a camping party on the Island, composed of members of the Baptist church.

It is believed that he is the same man who wandered away last winter and was found in a semi-starved condition on the Yonge street wharf, being taken to No. 1 police station, and afterwards to St. Michael's Hospital.

From Corry's wandering proclivities and his known highly strung imaginative nature, which have shown themselves at times in fits of despair, it is deduced that he was given to brooding on the Kinrade mystery, and this is assigned as the reason for his late confession.

Deputy Attorney-General J. S. Cartwright has forwarded a statement of the result of the enquiry to the Department of the Secretary of State at Ottawa, through whom it will be transmitted to the Scotland Yard authorities.

Bedfort Insane.

London, Nov. 10.—William Bedfort, who confessed to the murder of Miss Kinrade, was remanded yesterday until Thursday. The prison doctor says Bedfort was insane, but is now not insane. He says he doesn't remember "confessing."

Iron Stack Falls; One Dead.

Brantford, Nov. 10.—One life was lost, and the lives of a score of employes in the moulding shop of the Pratt & Letchworth malleable iron works here were imperilled last night by the falling of a mammoth iron smoke stack, which crushed through the roof into the shop.

Mark Boudler, 22 years of age, son of E. Boudler, boss carpenter of the shop, was the victim. George Flaherty and an Italian were slightly injured.

Recently the firm decided to install electricity in two large heating furnaces, above which stood a large iron stack. Charles Woodden, a Burford contractor, was given the contract of tearing the stacks down. One was being removed when something gave way allowing it to descend with a crash, and in its fall it broke the guy wires supporting the second stack. The latter fell through to the shop below, where the moulders were busy pouring off. Boudler was decapitated. He had been at work removing bricks from one of the furnaces. His mate, Flaherty, on the other side of the furnace barely escaped. The partial fall of the first stack gave warning to the other employes who fled before the second stack fell.

Casket 45 Inches Wide.

Goderich, Nov. 10.—The arrangements for the funeral of John Miller, Canada's heaviest man, who weighed 467 pounds, have been completed, and the cortege left his late residence at Carlow for Goderich Cemetery this afternoon. The casket arrived from London last night, where it was specially made. It is six feet six inches long and the inside measurement 45 inches wide, and 29 inches deep. There are eight handles, reinforced with iron stripe inside. It required eight large men to carry it, and would not permit of being slid into a hearse, a special wagon having been secured for the removal to the grave.

The shell is seven feet eight inches long, four feet two inches wide and 33 inches deep.

Labor Delegate Dies.

Toronto, Nov. 10.—Earl E. Russ, delegate to the American Federation of Labor Convention from the Typographical Union of Niagara Falls, N.Y., was found dead in his room at 22 Shuter street last night.

The gas jet in the room was turned half on and the room was filled with fumes, which were not, however, very dense. Coroner J. M. Cotton is investigating, but an inquest is unlikely.

Curtail Yarn Production.

Berlin, Nov. 10.—The Association of German Cotton Spinners yesterday issued a circular to the mills urging the curtailment of yarn production as an absolute necessity, in order to prevent the further heavy rise in the price of raw cotton.

Many Hurt In Wreck.

Let the pain-destroying properties of Nerviline sink through all the cords and muscles that are lame—tension and stiffness will ease off—lameness will disappear after the third application.

A QUIET BIRTHDAY.

King Spends Day at Sandringham—Fisher Is a Peer.

London, Nov. 10.—King Edward yesterday celebrated his 68th birthday at Sandringham Palace, surrounded by most of the members of his family and a few intimate friends. Telegrams of congratulation were received by His Majesty from all parts of the world. His health is considerably improved.

From early morning the tenantry of Sandringham were feasted by the King and Queen Alexandra, who made a point of personally looking after the wants of their guests.

Simultaneously with the King's birthday celebration Sir John Knill, the new Lord Mayor of London, was inaugurated for a term of office. The time honored circus parade was discarded, its place being taken by a procession of citizens, soldiers, naval volunteers, fire department and boy scouts through beflagged streets.

The only survivor of the early theatrical show was the gilded chariot of the lord mayor, which Londoners are not yet prepared to see banished.

Admiral Sir John Arbuthnot Fisher, Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty, and first and principal naval A.D.C. to the King, was yesterday elevated to the peerage. Sir John Fisher has been armiral of the British fleet since 1905. He was born in 1841 and entered the navy when 13 years old.

Hart of Thomastown, Maine. The schooner, is also believed to have been lost, causing the death of all her crew of five. The Bennett was owned by A. W. Henry & Son of Liverpool, N.S.

Meagre details were brought here yesterday by Capt. Bullock of the schooner William Janes, which picked up two Filipino sailors, members of the Bennett crew, which consisted of Capt. Do You Suffer From Headaches?

There are few people who have never experienced a headache from one cause or another. It effects all ages and both sexes alike, but the female sex is naturally the more effected through the higher nervous development and more delicate organization of the system. Those also of a nervous temperament and studious or sedentary occupation are subject to it.

The presence of headache nearly always tells us that there is another disease which, although we may not be aware of it, is still exerting its baneful influence, and perhaps awaiting an opportunity to assert itself plainly.

Burdock Blood Bitters has, for years, been curing all kinds of headaches, and if you will only give it a trial we are sure it will do for you what it has done for thousands of others.

Headache and Constipation Cured.

Mrs. John Connors, Burlington, N.S., writes: "I have been troubled with headache and constipation for a long time. THE FIRST SHOT IN PETERBOROUGH'S CAMPAIGN FOR MORE INDUSTRIES FIRED 'MID GREAT ENTHUSIASM

"Build Up Peterborough" Meeting Last Night Attended by Large and Representative Body of Citizens, Who Were Unanimous in the Opinion That City Must Wake Up and Advertise Her Many Great Advantages as a Manufacturing Centre---The Appointment of an Industrial Committee Strongly Advocated and Enthusiastically Agreed Upon.

Over two hundred citizens, thoroughly representative of all branches of the city's life, united in a most enthusiastic meeting under the auspices of the Board of Trade in the auditorium of the Collegiate Institute last night and fired the first gun in a campaign that promises to mean much in the industrial expansion and growth of Peterborough.

It was the most successful meeting of its kind that has ever been held in Peterborough and enthusiasm in the objects of the conference was a feature.

It was agreed unanimously that Peterborough had not been sufficiently taking advantage of her great natural advantages, that it was necessary to adopt a system by which these advantages could be pointed out to manufacturers looking for a location, and that the best manner in which this could be done was by the appointing of an industrial commissioner, an official whose whole time would be devoted to advertising Peterborough and to looking after manufacturing concerns.

A strong resolution was unanimously carried, recommending to the council the advisability of such an appointment, and pointing out the necessity for energetic and intelligent action on the part of Peterborough.

Among those present were Ald. G. A. Gillespie, President of the Board of Trade; T. Q. Quartermaine, secretary; J. H. Larmonth, Ald. W. H. Bradburn, D. W. Dumble, J. C. Shook, M. A. Morrison, W. H. Denham, D. O'Connell, W. H. Meldrum, J. H. McClellan, A. W. Cressman, John Nugent, Thomas Barrie, Wm. Langford, F. H. Dobbin, R. E. Wood, R. Fair, P. Campbell, Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., W. S. Dodd, R. J. Todd, T. F. Matthews, Mr. Wainwright, manager of the Bank of Ottawa; W. H. Moore, B. F. Ackerman, Wm. Might, F. W. Doan, Rupert Gliddon, F. D. Kerr, R. F. McWilliams, Ald. R. Hicks, Geo. E. Elliott, Geo. Denton, V. Eastwood, A. P. Poussette, Rev. Canon Davidson, Ald. Duffus, Ald. Morgan, Ald. McIntyre, S. R. Armstrong, E. L. Goodwill, T. J. Wilson, Frank Linton, B. Shortly, Ald. Phelan, H. R. H. Kenner, Jas Downing, Dr. Carmichael, Col. J. W. Miller, James Bogue, Ald. Metheral, G. W. Hatton, Harry Morgan, Frank Adams, Dr. Frederick, D. E. Eason, W. S. Robinson, W. R. Thompson, Wm. Richardson, Chas. McClelland, and many others.

Objects of the Meeting.

Ald. Geo. A. Gillespie, chairman of the Board of Trade, after inviting Mayor Rush to a seat on the platform, opened the meeting with a short speech, in which he pointed out that it had been decided that Peterborough was in a critical condition just now, and must adopt different methods and a different system than had been employed in the past. In the years gone by the city council and the Board of Trade had done their best to advertise Peterborough and to bring new industries to the front, but it was necessary now to adopt new tactics.

The subjects to be discussed by the meeting were the best mode of advertising Peterborough, the power question, and the best method of procuring industries to use that power.

Ald. Gillespie informed the meeting that the City Council had not been idle during the past year and the Manufacturers' Committee had been in communication with fifty-five different concerns. Of these six had located in the province and six had remained where they were located. Twenty-four did not reply at all; ten had done nothing and nine were still in communication with the Council in regard to establishing their industries here.

The working of the Manufacturers' Committee and the Power Committee during the year had been done quietly and along lines that did not permit of the details being made public.

Mr. Denham.

Mr. W. H. Denham, of the Quaker Oats Company, stated that he had been requested to speak on the subject of railway facilities and shipping.

"In the first place, however," remarked Mr. Denham, amid loud applause, "I wish to say that I am exceedingly pleased to think that this meeting is an opening wedge to an early and substantial prosperity for Peterborough."

"We citizens, as a unit, are apt to be much as individuals who are inclined to believe that everyone else is better situated and has better advantages than themselves, whereas, if they would only stop and consider their good points, nine out of ten times they would succeed. It is just so in Peterborough.

"There are many advantages over other Canadian towns which Peterborough has. We should list them, advertise them, and if I may use a common expression "blow about them" so that there will be a draught all over Canada."

Mr. Denham pointed out that the two chief needs of manufacturers were, first, plenty of power at reasonable rates, and, secondly, good shipping facilities for receiving raw material and shipping out finished goods.

"In the matter of shipping, Peterborough was favoured with two trunk lines, the C. P. R. main line, and the Grand Trunk, the connecting links between the manufacturing east and the grain-growing West. Peterborough was situated right at the point of the fork of the branch north at Georgian Bay and the one south of Georgian Bay, and was therefore much better situated than Hamilton, Welland, and other places, which were twice as far by water from Ft. William than Peterborough would be when the Trent Valley waterway was completed. Of course, the rates were the same, but there were a great many commodities in the transportation of which time must be considered, and this would throw the balance in favour of Peterborough. These cities were on a roundabout route, and when navigation was closed the balance of the advantage would be on Peterborough's side. The Canadian Northern Railroad could not afford to pass by Peterborough, the speaker believed. Last year Peterborough manufacturers had paid out $750,000 in freight charges to the railroads, the Quaker Oats Company paying $460,000 freight on grain. Within the past thirty days the Quaker Oats Company had paid $700,000 for grain, and there was now lying at the dock at Midland a boat with 528,000 bushels of grain for Peterborough for the Quaker Oats Company. The reason his company had decided upon Peterborough as a location was on account of its water power and shipping facilities.

Traffic Figures.

Mr. Denham read the following traffic figures from the C. P. R.:

Total number of loaded cars passing through Peterborough, east bound 100,000; total number of loaded cars, west bound, 70,000; number of people passing through Peterborough every day on passenger trains, 1,000.

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH

MR. D. O'CONNELL,
Mover of Resolution at Last Night's Meeting Advocating the Appointment of an Industrial Commissioner.

Peterborough was a distributing centre with a vast area around it for distributing its manufactures. It was far better located than the towns west of Toronto, such as Welland.

"I cannot help but consider Peterborough as one of the principal points in Canada for manufacturing purposes," concluded Mr. Denham. "It is situated in the very heart of Ontario, which will always be the manufacturing end of Canada, and it is only natural to suppose that industries will flock in where there are other industries and make Peterborough a town of 100,000 people, instead of 16,000."

Mr. T. F. Matthews.

Mr. Matthews agreed with Mr. Denham in regard to the railway facilities afforded Peterborough manufacturers.

"The treatment we get from the railways in Peterborough is superior to that given us in Brantford and Ottawa, where we have branch industries. The service is much quicker, although there is not much difference in the rates. It is very seldom that there is a shortage of cars in Peterborough. In the fall there are more loaded cars coming into this city than there are going out, hence we are never hindered in our shipping by a shortage of cars." In regard to industries flocking to cities where industries were already located, Mr. Matthews stated that a short time ago Brantford offered an illustration of this fact. Thee is a plow manufacturing establishment there, and it was learned that an American firm was looking for a location in Canada. The Cockshutt Co. of Brantford wrote to the firm, recommending them to locate in that city with the result that the Company followed their advice.

Mr. Matthews thought the city's industries could help considerably in this way.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman.

Mr. B. F. Ackerman supported Mr. Matthews' statements in regard to the surplus of cars practically at all times in Peterborough.

"I can load a car here for Edmonton," he said, "and have it delivered to Edmonton within eight days, and to Calgary in ten days." We want to let outside towns know what we are doing." The fact that Peterborough canoes are known throughout the world, seemed to Mr. Ackerman, to be a significant fact in support of a general advertising of Peterborough and the facilities it offers to manufacturers.

Mr. J. H. Larmonth.

Information regarding Peterborough's power supply was given by Mr. J. H. Larmonth, who said in part:

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH

ALD. GEO. A. GILLESPIE
President of the Board of Trade, Who Presided at Last Night's Most Successful Meeting.

The question of a power supply is a secondary one to that of freight rates. There seems to be a feeling in Peterborough that the price of power in this city is exorbitant. There is no company more interested in Peterborough's development than the Company with which I am connected. We depend upon the citizens' use of street cars, power, etc., and we realise the importance the development of the city means to us. Our power business has doubled during the last few years and is approaching the limit of our power house, with the result that we will have to increase our equipment before long."

Mr. Larmonth referred to the Peterborough Light and Power Company's negotiations with the City Council, and the by-law which is to be submitted at the January elections. "We are in a position to supply power at a charge of $20 per h. p. for 24 hours. Orillia offered a rate of $16, but other facilities are deficient, and manufacturers prefer to locate in good centres. Niagara Falls and Welland could offer better power inducements, but no other municipalities were in a better position than Peterborough in that respect.

"In pushing forward the growth of the city we ought to realize that we have cheap power and be prepared to dispute it. If there are one or two places that can deliver power cheaper that is no reason why we should not get industries. We should have a man to go after companies and to have authority in making negotiations. If we had somebody who was devoting his entire time to trying to induce industries to locate here I think we would find that we would make rapid development.

Ald. Bradburn.

Ald. W. H. Bradburn said: In negotiating with manufacturers the first question they ask is the price of power in Peterborough, and from what they have heard they consider that they should get it at a rate lower than this city offers. Two years ago the Council appointed a Power Committee which entered into negotiations with Mr. J. A. Calverwell. We thought his price—$125,000—for the power and water at Burleigh Falls was too high. We tried other powers on the River. At Burleigh Falls there will be 8,000 h.p. when developed, but it is still tied up. If the city at the beginning of 1910 appoints a commission I think the Power question should be handed over to them. It is a difficult matter to settle and it is most important that we secure a good supply of power.

Ald. Hicks.

Ald. Robt. Hicks thought the promoters of the meeting could congratulate themselves upon its success. He had often felt that the citizens did not support their Council and Board of Trade as much as they might have done without over exerting themselves. In order to have a hard working Council and Board of Trade it was necessary to have a hard working body of citizens. Ald. Hicks referred to the case of Welland which had some advantages which Peterborough had not and it was not surprising to find them getting industries.

"When we find, however," remarked the speaker, "a city such as Guelph, with power selling over $20 per horse power and with no such advantages as Peterborough for distributing manufactured articles, securing new industries, one would come to the conclusion that there is something wrong in Peterborough and that this city should make efforts to advertise its advantages in a better manner than has been done.

"Peterborough offers better advantages to a manufacturer than ninety per cent. of the towns and cities of Ontario, but has never advertised itself in a proper manner. I believe the city's business should be treated in the same manner as we would treat our own business.

"We should make every effort that can be made to advertise our advantages and the appointing of an industrial commissioner would solve the problem. We have become almost dorment in getting manufacturers."

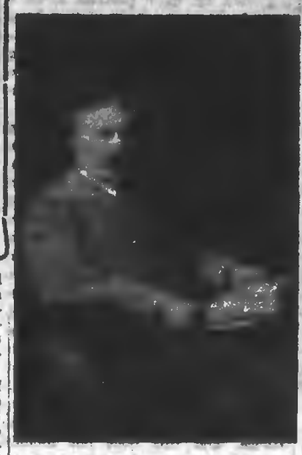
The speaker very strongly advocated the appointment of such a commissioner, a man whose business it would be to put forth every effort to secure new industries, to lay before the manufacturers the advantages possessed by Peterborough, in other words to show them the goods that this city has to offer them. He believed that such an appointment would be a profitable one for Peterborough and the question was being taken up at a proper time as it would guide the new Council to go ahead with the project at the beginning of next year.

"I would be willing if I was in the City Council next year to endorse such an appointment," said Ald. Hicks in conclusion," and a clearly defined policy of this kind would be upheld by me."

Mr. D. W. Dumble.

Mr. D. W. Dumble said he was pleased to see such a large gathering of citizens to give the case to the Council as to what the citizens want. In days gone by we relied on our water power, but the development of the Niagara Falls power had deposed Peterborough from its position of pre-eminence in this respect, and a stiffer fight was necessary to secure industries. There was no use waiting for something to come. We must go after what we want. The City Council was composed of ordinary men, and perhaps they did not have a very wide vision and enough confidence in their own judgment. Then there were committees, and the committees, and the committee-men were inclined to look too much to the chairmen. The aldermen often were too much afraid of the people. Mr. Dumble made a strong plea for an industrial commissioner. Toronto had one, and Peterborough needed one right away. He should have power to act and to know that the citizens were behind him. Peterborough's development depended upon new industries. There could be very little more development of the agricultural resources in this district. The limit had about been reached in this respect. The question of securing industries was not so much one of local ability. The co-operation of the citizens was what was wanted.

BUILD UP PETERBOROUGH



MR. D. HUGHES-CHARLES.
Seconder of The "Greater Peterborough" Resolution.

Dr. M. A. Morrison.

Dr. M. A. Morrison said it seemed to him that they were only reiterating to-night what was thrashed out a year ago. The Board of Trade had looked upon it favourably last year, and a committee from the Board had waited on the City Council, advocating the commissionership. If it was again presented to the Council it would be a good thing to let the Council know the people were in earnest. He thought the appointment of a commissioner would be a wise step. Whether the expenditure of $3,000 or $4,000 a year would be justified for his salary was a matter along with other points, that should be gone into thoroughly.

The Power Committee should consult with the representatives to the legislature and the parliament to see what could be done concerning the power question.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., the next speaker, said that the next question was that of power. If there was enough power available the city then wanted some person to go out and get after the manufacturers and show them that Peterborough had the goods to deliver. In the matter of power the Hydraulic Power Commission had twice offered their services to Peterborough, had sent engineers who had gone over the ground and had made reports which were now in the hands of the Power Committee. Mr. Bradburn agreed with the other speakers that a competent man should be appointed to act as industrial commissioner.

"We require manufacturers here," remarked the speaker, "and if we don't get them we are bound to come to a standstill and die of dead rot."

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P.

Hon. J. R. Stratton, M.P., who was next called said that he was present as a listener, to hear what the citizens had to say about the important matters before the meeting.

As far as power was concerned Peterborough need have no fear whatever, for when the canal was completed there would be plenty of power available not only above, but below the city. The Healey's Falls power was about to be developed and the Government was to take steps to control those powers, which would mean that Peterborough would have an opportunity to get power at reasonable rates. There was no need of complaining of what was paid for power in Peterborough now, as there were few places where there was cheaper light or power.

Welland with its canal available to bring in cargoes from Lake Superior and have them developed there had an advantage but it was not sufficiently serious for the people of Peterborough to fold their arms and say "Welland has advantages over Peterborough too great to be overcome."

The matter of appointing an industrial commissioner had been thrashed out nearly two years ago. Mr. Stratton found that what was everybody's business was generally nobody's business, and he was heartily in favour of the appointment of a capable man. Mr. Stratton referred to the Canadian Northern Railway, which might yet come to Peterborough. The Scarboro Heights and the waters of Rice Lake were in the way of this, but the engineers might be able to overcome these difficulties and have the road come to Peterborough. He had been informed by the Deputy Minister of Railways and Canals that Dam No. 8, one of the most valuable in the district, was to be developed and this site could supply all the power that Peterborough would require for years to come, as there was a 36 foot drop at that point Owing to the conservation of the waters in the back lakes there would be no lack of power for the manufacturers during the coming winter or in the spring when the rain came.

Mr. Stratton did not think that the appointing of a commissioner, such as suggested, would cost more than $2500 per year, and it would be a capital investment.

"I expect to see Peterborough with a population of 40,000 or 50,000 in the next ten or fifteen years," remarked Mr. Stratton as he concluded.

COMMISSIONER MEANS MORE INDUSTRIES.

The resolution which was unanimously carried by the representative Citizens' Meeting last night was as follows:

Moved by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, seconded by Mr. D. Hughes Charles:—

Whereas the present rapid development of Canada must necessarily result in increasing the number and magnitude of the manufacturing industries of the Province of Ontario.

And whereas it is apparent that it is only such municipalities as adopt energetic and effective means of bringing their advantages to the notice of the manufacturing public, that are likely to procure their proper share of such industries.

And whereas the City of Peterborough possesses, in an exceptionally high degree, local and natural advantages, resulting from its geographical position, railway facilities and water power.

And whereas it is imperative, in the best interests of the city, and necessary for its future progress, that proper and effective means be adopted, at once, to lead to a comprehensive and clear understanding of the extent and value of these advantages, and to have them utilized in such a way, as will tend to promote the future industrial development of the city.

Therefore be it resolved, at this meeting of the citizens of Peterborough, called at the instance of the Board of Trade, that it is the opinion of this meeting, that effective and energetic means should be forthwith taken by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough to promote the industrial interests of this city, and that the services of a competent and efficient officer be procured, who will devote his whole time and energy in acquiring knowledge of the peculiar advantages possessed by this city in consulting and advising with the Municipal Council, respecting the same, and in promoting and in advancing the industrial welfare and interests of the city generally, and that proper funds be placed at his disposal for efficiently carrying out the objects of his appointment and for the purpose of defraying his salary and expense, provision be made by such additional levy as may be necessary, which in our opinion would be covered by half a mill on the dollar.

NORTH ESSEX.

What has happened since October 26, 1908, to make it desirable that the late Liberal representative should be replaced by a Conservative in the by-election now on, in North Essex? All Canada is prosperous in all its interests, and the note of progress is still heard. The Liberal government is supported by a loyal and undivided party in its plans on natural aggrandizement. Mr. Borden leader of the Conservative party, stands by the policy of the government in the matter of naval defence, a policy unanimously endorsed by parliament last session. In no way has the government forfeited the confidence of the country, and North Essex has no precedent for declaring against it by sending a hostile representative.

COMING INTO THE LIMELIGHT.

Canada is increasingly engaging outside attention and our southern neighbours are beginning to take us seriously. Uncle Sam has discovered our wealth of pulpwood and he has also discovered that he can't bulldoze Canada by tariff tail twisting. He was badly fooled when he was led to believe that he could bring Canada to her knees by imposing an almost prohibitory tariff on Canadian pulp and paper. He has found out his mistake. We simply ignore such attempts to bring us into line, and hold our own way. We have adopted, if not in form, at least in spirit, the policy of getting the most profit possible out of our pulp wood. We make the conditions and if they do not suit our neighbours they may go to Sweden and Norway for their pulp wood. Lord Northcote gives sound advice when he counsels a course to the Federal Government, which will result in Canadian pulp wood being converted into paper in Canada. Another evidence that the United States is beginning to take Canada seriously is the fact of the New York Herald sending a representative to Ottawa to transmit to one of the most widely circulated journals of the United States his impressions of the way in which Canadian Parliament deals with the affairs of the Dominion. And above all the enterprising moving picture machinist has come to Canada to work up a drama the "Girl Scout," using in the work "A" & "B" Batteries, Kingston, to work out the details of the story of a series of incidents in the Boer war, in which Canadian troops played a no unimportant part. When we shall get a comic opera, scene laid in Canada, our cup of glory will be full. This will be something greater than stealing a hundred thousand "farmers" a year from the United States, or aiding and abetting Montreal in robbing New York of the grain carrying trade of the interior of the continent.

CLASS REPRESENTATION.

Is there any tenable ground for the contention that proportionate numerical representation in parliaments of any particular class is necessary to proper protection of its interests? The bye-elections in West Middlesex and North Essex have developed the plea that the farming class is inadequately represented, in the matter of numbers, in parliament. If this were a fact, instead of being, as it is, a misapprehension, does the history of Liberal Government, since 1896, lend any support to such a plea? In no similar period of Canadian history has more been done by a minister or a department of agriculture to promote the interests of the farming community and to develop the resources of the agricultural industry. A similar result would have been achieved if there had not been a single practical farmer outside, of the government, occupying a seat in the House. In no similar period of this country's history have the interests of labour been more concretely and generally dealt with. This has been done without any approximately adequate specific representation of labour. The Liberal Government is the only government that has enacted an extensive and admirably comprehensive code of labour legislation. This was done, without any specific labour representation. The minister inaugurating it was not a practical member of the labour class, but a gentleman of legal training, a man of wealth, and in the social class indicated by his possessing a title. Yet, no man, if advanced from toil in a trench, could have been more sincere and earnest in standing by the rights and interests of labour, and could have brought to bear the trained skill in dealing with the parliamentary problems involved—in devising legislative expedients to give effect to his convictions. While both agriculture and labour representatives are to be welcomed to Parliament, the point to be emphasized is that their interests are not necessarily neglected by their possible absence from Parliament. Both classes have the right to adequate representation. It is not a fact that the farming community has disproportionate representation in the present Parliament.

The London Free Press, misled by a statement of J. E. Armstrong, Conservative M. P. for East Lambton, thinks that the agricultural interests of the Dominion are being neglected because there are not enough farmers in the House. Based upon a statement made at West Middlesex by Mr. Armstrong, that there are only twenty farmers in the House the Free Press is constrained to endorse the candidature of a farmer instead of a lawyer. In the first place Mr. Armstrong is wrong in his figures. According to the sworn statements filed with the clerk of the court in chancery, there are 26 farmers in the House, and this does not include several who may have been designated as following other occupations, who are also practical farmers. Mr. Armstrong says there are 600,000 agriculturists in Canada, and therefore they are not duly epresented. Mr. Armstrong should remember that, assuming the population of Canada to be 6,500,000, a representation of 20 for 600,000 would leave 200 men to represent the remaining 5,900,000, which would make the representation nearly equal. However, the farmers are even better off than this, for the 600,000 agriculturists are represented by 26 men in the House, leaving only 192 men of other occupations to represent 5,900,000 people. This gives the farmers the larger proportionate representation; they have one member for every 21,428 voters, while it requires 30,730 voters to elect each one of the remaining 192 members that compose the House. If it required as many electors of the agricultural class to elect a member, as it does to elect a member of the other classes, the 600,000 agricultural voters would only be able to elect 12 members, whereas they now elect 26.

It does seem strange that Conservative arguments on even small matters don't agree with the facts. Even in this regard the farmers of West Middlesex are being misinformed by Conservative platform speakers during a campaign when the honest plan would be to tell the truth. Mr. Armstrong in his own election petition filed with the clerk of the Crown in Chancery describes himself as a farmer.

WHAT WE DON'T KNOW.

(Montreal Herald.)

In a class of twenty-four in an American university six could not give the full name of the president of the United States, and not one could give the full name of a justice of the Supreme Court. Probably none of us would like to be subjected to tests equally simple. How many of us could give off-hand the names of those who compose the Supreme Court of Canada? And yet all of us would probably resent it if accused of gross ignorance. A man would cheerfully own up that he does not know the name of the member for the next county but one, and still consider himself a good citizen. A newspaper might in the heat of an election argument give judicial title to a man who is still in political life, as happened the other day in Montreal, and still consider itself a safe counsellor in affairs of state. The truth is we no longar charge our memories with the multitude of facts in which we have interest. We keep the limited storage accommodation provided by the brain cells for a relatively small number of things about which we are very particular. As to everything else, we content ourselves with knowing where to look at need. It is no disgrace not to know, provided one knows wher to look; then he can spare himself the confession. The trial of the college class was made by way of testing the application of a proposed law which would make the voting franchise subject to educational tests. The experiment established, what everyone feels, that such restrictions are dangerous. Man for man, it is not always the best instructed in books who is the best informed, nor whose character is most to be admired. The man who can succeed without the advantages of learning must have extra good qualities to draw upon. We none of us know too much, and almost all of us allow our views to be formed without much part of our own in the fashioning.

In regard to the statement made above, the point is "knowing where to look at need." This is illustrated in the case of lawyers. As a matter of fact, lawyers don't positively know much more law than intelligent laymen. Ask a lawyer the simplest question of law and he will pull down his books and consult them. Where he has the advantage of ordinary mortals is that he knows where to look for information and how to appraise and apply what he finds. The education that cuts the largest figure in practical life is that which grounds us in principles and equips us for applying them. We are loaded, in our schools, with a vast burden of lumber which we could produce ourselves if we were thoroughly grounded in principles and the art of applying them. What makes a speech of Sir Wilfrid Laurier more commanding than that of a political stumper? Give both the same material and one makes a country-shaking oration, and the other a harrangue; one knows how to use his materials according to the principles of sound oratory and the other, comparatively, talks at random.

NAVAL DEFENCE AND THE PARTIES.

Within a few hours Parliament will be in session again, and one of the most important items for discussion will be the naval policy of the Government.

Last session the House of Commons passed a resolution moved by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, which declared for the organisation of a Canadian Navy in co-operation with the Imperial authorities. This resolution was passed unanimously. Subsequently two Federal ministers, the Minister of Militia nd Defence and the Minister of Marine and Fisheries proceeded to England and conferred with the Imperial authorities at a conference called to deal with matters affecting the defence of the Empire. The result was an agreement between the Home Government and the Government of the self-governing dominions as to certain measures of naval defence.

The ministers who represented Canada at the conference spoke with the authority of a united parliament behind them, and whatever solution of the problem they arrived at should be accepted by the House in the same spirit as the resolution which was passed on 29th March, 1909.

It is somewhat strange that the Parliament of Canada should be unanimous upon a question, and after many months members of the Conservative party, some in the Dominion and some in Provincial politics, now seek to belittle the idea of a Canadian navy.

With respect to Conservative members of the Dominion House, there is no excuse for this attitude. They had an opportunity during the discussion of the resolution to state their views and register any objection they pleased, but on the contrary they permitted their leader, Mr. Borden, to announce that the resolution, with some slight amendments which he suggested, was acceptable to every man upon his side of the House. Sir Wilfrid Laurier accepted the suggestions of Mr. Borden and the resolutions passed the House unanimously.

At this late day, after Canadian ministers have carried to London the united wishes and desires of the Canadian people, and have co-operated with other self-governing dominions and the Imperial authorities upon the lines authorized, we find Hon. Mr. Roblin, of Manitoba, and Hon. Robert Rogers, speaking in terms of contempt of a "tin pot" navy and alluding to the project of establishing a system of co-operative defence as a "toy navy."

Fortunately for Canada these two men are in no sense representative of Canadian opinion on the subject of defence of the Empire. Their field is provincial, and their views are provincial, they both seem unable to think Imperially and consequently they cannot act Imperially.

With regard to the Conservative members of the Dominion House, and the Conservative members of Provincial Governments, who are now endeavouring to embarrass the Government, and stulify Mr. R. L. Borden, they are referred to Mr. Borden's recent speech in Toronto, wherein he re-affirms the position he occupied on March 29, 1909 ,and states positively that the resolution then passed voiced the unanimous sentiment of the Canadian Parliament..

The present show of hostile spirit, seems to be the outcome, and expressions of local political ambitions so limited in view as to be willing to give effect to the parochial outlook at the expense of national harmony and imperial interests.

Convict Leaves Prison With The Sum Of $6,500 In His Pocket

Served Sixteen Years for Shooting Man While Drunk—Won $5000 in a Guessing Contest and Was Bequeathed $1100—Was a Good Prisoner.

WENT OUT A HERO

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 9th.—A convict who entered barely sixteen years ago, penniless, has just left the Kansas prison with a fortune of $6,500; 500 of which was earned while behind the prison bars observing the discipline in every way.

The money allowance made to convicts is 2 cents a day, or $164.25 for fifteen years, so that no such sum as Philip Killion took with him from the office of the Kansas prison warden could have been accumulated except by outside effort.

From another point Killion left the institution a hero, while he entered it a murderer. He went out to a farm and [illegible]ed with as good a record as ever a man made behind the bars. The secret of his wealth is that he inherited $1,100 while in prison, and won $5,000 in a guessing contest nine years ago. The money was invested for him and added a reasonable amount by interest.

In 1892 Killion, then a young farmer of Wellington, Kan., shot and killed a town marshal with whom he had been friendly. Killion was intoxicated and quarrelsome, and the interference of the officer caused him to lose self-control. He was convicted of murder in the second degree and sentenced to serve twenty-five years.

A few years after he was confined he discovered a fire in one of the prison factories. Without outcry, he risked his life and unknown to any one except a few guards, extinguished the blaze. The warden of the prison on leaving, gave him a letter which vouched for the fact that Killion's bravery had saved the State $100,000 and probably some lives.

A few years later Killion had just reached the top of the coal mine when a fire alarm was sounded. He volunteered to redescend and bring out the imprisoned convicts. This he did, at great personal risk. When the last man had left Killion returned to the ruins, entered the workings and did much to save the mine from destruction.

A commutation of his sentence was asked, but sentiment was still strongly against him in the town from which he had been sent to prison, and the effort to free him failed.

He had, however, ingratiated himself with the authorities of the prison and life was made as easy for him as possible. He was one of the few men who never had to be driven to work. Not once in the fifteen years was he known to break the least of the rules. Finally, he was given an opportunity to study, and he improved it.

About that time, in 1900, Kansas City began the rebuilding of a convention hall that had been destroyed by fire. One of the schemes for raising funds rapidly was a guessing contest, for which a capital prize of $10,000 and several others, ranging from $5,000 down were offered. Killion invested $13 of his prison savings in tickets and sent in thirty guesses. He won the second prize of $5,000.

A short time afterwards a distant relative left him $1,100. He gained considerable fame as "the wealthy convict." Lawyers swarmed to him with offers. Others suggested that he would get an absolute pardon for $1,000. Others asked from $500 to $900 to get him out of prison. Killion saw the humour of the situation and offered $50 down and $500 upon release. There was a noticeable falling off in his mail and list of callers.

A LETTER FROM FLUFFY RUFFLES

Peterborough, Nov. 10th, '09.

Dear People,—Just a few pointers on my movements and what I was doing at Brock St. Rink last night.

I went into the rink at 8.30 p.m., and went immediately to the ladies' waiting room and a littel boy helped me to fasten my skates on. He evidently did not strap them tight enough as one came off before I had gone around the rink and I sat at the south end of the rink and strapped it on again. I then went on round, went into the ladies' waiting room and there was a lady in there who was having trouble with her skate. She said she had tried four different pair and could not get a pair to fit. I then came out and walked down west spectators' side of rink and noticed a business man take out his watch and look at it; it was then 12 minutes past nine by clock in rink. I then went out and skated round and the lady with a wide white collar and green bow tie fell and I assisted her with the help of a friend to her feet again.

I then went in grand march and was introduced to a lady just before march started. After grand march I went for a skate with a young man out of a hardware store, and then went with a young man with auburn hair; he works in Mason's I believe, and then I went with a young man and made him change and let me skate on inside, as I took pity on him, as I thought I was better able to pull him than he was to pull me. I saw Mr. Brown who sings at the Crystal. He was introduced to several young ladies in a row with me, but I was missed.

To-night will be the last chance to catch Fuffy Ruffles. Perhaps there will be two, so everyone will have a good chance to win.

To-night I must be caught.

Suffered Terrible Pains From His Kidneys.

Perhaps no other organs work harder than the kidneys to preserve the general health of the body, and most people are troubled with some kind of kidney complaint, but do not suspect it.

There is no way of getting the kidney poisons out of the system except through the kidneys, and no medicine so effective in taking them out as Doan's Kidney Pills.

They help the kidneys to flush off the acrid and poisonous impurities which have collected, thus clearing out the kidneys, bladder and urinary passages.

Doan's Kidney Pills are entirely vegetable, and may be safely taken by old and young.

Mr. Dougald A. McIsaac, Broad Cove Banks, N.S., writes:—"I was troubled with my kidneys for nine months, and suffered with such terrible pains across the small of my back all the time that I could hardly get around. After taking two boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills I began to feel better, and by the time I had taken three I was completely cured."

Price 50 cents per box, 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

In ordering specify "Doan's."

THE FIRST SHOT IN PETERBOROUGH'S CAMPAIGN FOR MORE INDUSTRIES FIRED 'MID GREAT ENTHUSIASM

Mr. D. O'Connell.

Mr. O'Connell expressed his pleasure at seeing the large number of citizens present and congratulated the Board of Trade upon the success of their efforts to bring about a gathering of the ratepayers to discuss several matters of public interest.

"The keynote of the situation lies in the fact that Canada is growing faster than ever in its history," he said. "It is no information to you to know that Canada is growing today faster than the United States at any time in its history. The heavy emigration to the Northwest is of great importance to Ontario, which will be the manufacturing province of the Dominion for all time to come," Mr. O'Connell gave his reasons to substantiate his prediction in this regard.

"This province must have springing up during the next 10 or 15 years important manufacturing cities. Many of these cities will acquire this position through the enterprise of their citizens, from natural advantages or from the geographical situation. We see this growth emphasized today by Toronto, Hamilton, Guelph and Brantford, which have rapidly developed during recent years, and Welland which was hardly known 10 years ago, is now a place of manufacturing importance. While they are making satisfactory progress Peterborough is standing practically still. It is true there has been an increase in population but the fact remains that situated as we are and boasting of our advantages, Peterborough is not making the progress desired. We are situated here on two lines of railway with comparatively cheap and easy access to the ctnres of raw material in Canada."

Mr. O'Connell dwelt upon the importance of the Trent anal to Peterborough, particularly when it is completed. Grain laden vessels and barges will make the trip from Georgian Bay to Trenton and will return with empty holds if there are not manufacturing cities along the route. For this reason Peterborough will have better shipping facilities to the Northwest than other Canadian cities.

Why is it that in face of advantages enumerated this evening that Peterborough is making no industrial progress? It is as has been stated that that which is everybody's business proves to be nobody's business." Mr. O'Connell said that the promoting of the interests of the city should be left in the hands of an intelligent, enterprising man who could devote his time and energy solely to that purpose. This, he said, is an absolute necessity because the city has found that under the old conditions Peterborough is not making the progress it is entitled to. It is not to be expected that members of the Council should neglect their business in order to look after the city's interests in endeavouring to secure new industries. That should be the duty of one man expressively engaged for that purpose. The increase of half a mill on the dollar would amply provide for a commissioner's salary and expenses. In concluding, Mr. O'Connell stated that the progress along the lines referred to would not be made without the hearty co-operation of the citizens but with a live Council supported by an active Board of Trade and an energetic commissioner, the desired progress would be realized. Mr. O'Connell then read the above resolution.

Mr. D. Hughes Charles.

Mr. D. Hughes-Charles in seconding the resolution, referred to the great success of the meeting, "I have not seen such a representative meeting in Peterborough since I came here," he remarked.

Touching upon the power question Mr. Hughes-Charles said that he was convinced that Peterborough had power and cheap power too. There was 2500 horse power ready to be delivered at $20 for a 24 hour per day service, and he understood that when the new waterworks dam was completed the city would have available 800 or 1000 h. p. The power question need not worry Peterborough for a very long time to come and it was only necessary to bring in people to use the power that was available. For the first four years he had been in Peterborough the city had made considerable progress, but during the last three years it had been standing still. It was a case of relying too much on the natural resources of the city to attract manufacturers. He had represented the Board of Trade at Guelph and had found that that city, with no advantages compared to Peterborough, had secured three new industries this year and four last year.

He hoped that a commissioner would be appointed by the new Council and that the resolution would be carried unanimously by the meeting to show the Council that the citizens were a unit in the matter. The city should adopt an aggressive policy and not be afraid of spending a few thousand dollars.

Mr. R F McWilliams.

Mr. R. F. McWilliams was of the opinion that the city had been losing time at the very point when it could not afford to lose any time. There were new competitors in the field which would have to be met. However, a great deal of work was being quietly done by the Council, and no opportunity was offered that was not taken advantage of.

In his opinion it was necessary to advertise the city and this should be the first act of the commissioner when appointed. Other cities especially in the west were publishing attractive literature and placing it everywhere it would be of advantage and this was a system that could be adopted by Peterborough. He supported Mr. O'Connell's resolution.

Mr. V. Eastwood.

Mr. Vincent Eastwood, reviewing the points brought out, said that Peterborough must be made a healthy and attractive city in addition to an industrial centre. He suggested that when a committee is being appointed to consider its advancement along industrial lines that two other committees be chosen to look after the city's health and its beauty. The secretary of the Board of Trade could send out ballots to the gentlemen present who could select the men they considered most fitted. The men on the committees should be public spirited and able and prominent financially.

Mr. Reg. Turner thought that before a commissioner was appointed the city should be satisfied that there was sufficient power to supply the wants of the manufacturers.

Ald. Hicks, in replying to Mr. Turner, stated that the Council had a letter from the Peterborough Light and Power Company to contract with the city up to 1000 h. p. at $20 per h. p.

Mr. O'Connell's motion was then carried unanimously and the meeting adjourned after singing "God Save the King."

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

MARKS BROS.

Despite strong counter attractions Tom Marks Company played to a splendid business at their second offering last night at the Grand when Hall Caine's "The Hypocrite," was presented in a manner that was most creditable to a stock organization. All the roles were in good hands and the company showed what their first night's work had promised, that Mr. Marks has one of the strongest acting companies that has supported him in his long career before the footlights. The exacting demands of such a powerful play as "The Hypocrite" did not find the cast wanting and the company made new friends for itself last night.

The vaudeville features were in line with the merit of the rest of the performance and kept the audience in good humour throughout. The specialties are bright, up-to-date and clean and are given by clever people who fully understand their mission of amusing an audience.

To-night Mr. Marks will have a play after his own heart, when "That Irish Boarder" will be presented. The offering gives the well known comedian an opportunity to display some very funny comedy methods.

Friday night will be "amateur night," and the mere announcement should be enough to cause the standing room only sign to be hung out long before the orchestra plays the overture. The management is offering a prize of $5 in gold and already a large number of names has been handed in.

IN AGONY WITH PILES

Mr. G. W. Cornell, with the Shaw Milling Co., St. Catharines, Ont., writes, "For six years I was a victim of itching, protruding piles and was in dreadful agony day and night. Doctors were unable to help me and I was about as miserable as any creature could be. My druggist advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, which I did and obtained relief from the first box and complete cure with the second. This ointment would be cheap at fifty dollars a box in view of what it did for me."

(The matter appearing in this column from time to time is furnished by the Temperance and Moral Reform League of this city, who have arranged for its publication.)

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear Sir,—The Executive of the City Temperance and Moral Reform League wish to reply as briefly as possible to the letter of yesterday signed "Temperance."

We are sorry to know that it was written by one who should have had better judgment than to sail under false colours.

2. The entire letter was a gross misrepresentation of the motives of the League, a spurious profession of sympathy and a covert defence of whisky.

3. When the news of the death of the unfortunate man referred to, was flashed every where across the continent the Citizens' Committee charged with the Local Option movement felt that a severe blow had been dealt the reputation of a man who did not deserve it. Every one who ever knew him, the Presbyterian clergyman, who was his friend while in confinement, his relatives, and friends all testified to his unvarying kindness. How was it possible for a man with all the manly qualities to be suddenly turned into a crazy man with his death-dealing passion? Had he been living a double life? Not he. There is only one answer—one cause. Must his memory go down with the lives of his relatives as one whose black heart did such an awful deed of shocking shame and cruelty? No a thousand times, NO. How necessary, therefore, his last message to the world should be made known. It was whisky that did it. He had been kindly and genial, but whisky robbed him of his senses, and the friends and relatives will be the very first to save the reputation not merely of the man who is gone but of hundreds more.

It is the very heart of the Citizens' League to help make this world a better and brighter world here and now, and to seek to save not merely men from awful lives and awful deaths, but to save the wives and mothers from the ignominy and shame that must result from the baneful and blighting curse of drinking whisky. The message of this man to his son regarding the future is the estimate that we form of the man's true self.

As soon as the League understood that the name of the man referred to had been printed in large type corresponding to the printing of merchants' names, because done in the same printing office, Mr. Stocker, who had only posted five of the bills, was asked to cover the name out of deference to any friends. It is very easily seen that discussion upon this subject will not be very comforting to any friends, and the letter of yesterday is enough to show that there are some men who would continue the awful procession with the cry: "He's gone, bring on another!" Every citizen must feel his own responsibility in this matter.

Yours for a liberated manhood, and homes and city free from blight.

COLLEGE WOMAN THE BETTER WIFE

Statistics Which are in Favour of the Fair Co-Ed as Head of a House.

Cincinnati, Nov 9.—The college woman is the better equipped to serve in the home and for the uplift of humanity, according to the consensus of opinion shown in the discussions in the annual convention of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae in session here. This organization is composed entirely of college women from all parts of the country, who are graduates of the twenty-four leading women's colleges.

Miss M. Cary Thomas, president of Bryn Mawr, chairman of a committee that has taken statistics on college women in the United States, reports that when men and women are educated together there is no greater number of marriages than when they are educated separately: that 778 out of 1,000 college women enjoy excellent health; only eight college women out of 1,000 have ill health; that the health of women improves while in college; that college women in general have better health than women who do not attend college; that college women marry stronger men; and they choose more wisely, and these are men with a little larger income, and that one-third of the husbands of college women have higher salaries on the average than the husbands of women who have never attended college.

As to bearing children, Miss Thomas declared college women had 3 6-10 children, while non-college women had 3 5-10, so college women were in the lead slightly, although they married later in life than women who never attended college.

All old people suffer from attacks of sudden exhaustion, weak heart action and prostration. The best aid in such cases is Ferrovim, the invigorating tonic which is prepared from fresh lean beef, Citrate of Iron and pure old Spanish Sherry Wine. It stimulates the digestion and strengthens the whole body. $1.00 a bottle.

Has Resigned The Position Of Conductor Of The Band

Mr. J. Mendel Greene is Succeeded as Leader of Salvation Army Band—Growing Business Demands His Time—Has Rendered Good Services.

OTHER BAND OFFICERS

At a recent meeting of the Salvation Army Band a change was made in the officers, the most important being the retirement of Mr. J. Greene from the position of bandmaster. This was brought about at his personal request on account of his increasing business duties, which demand more of his time, and also because of his health beginning to fail him. The officers of the band are as follows:

Band Master—Mr. Wm. H. Berrier.

Band Sergeant—Mr. Jos. Thomas.

Deputy Band Master — Mr. Will Ford.

Band Secretary—Mr. Wm. Payton.

At the meeting held recently Mr. Greene introduced the new Bandmaster, and expressed the hope that the band would make good progress under him. Mr. Greene's leadership and his services have been fully appreciated and a vote of thanks was tendered him. Mr. Greene replying, explained his reasons for retiring from the position of conductor. He will still play an instrument as a bandsman, and will not have the same demand on his time as in the past.

To Mr. Greene belongs the credit and honour, to a large extent, of bringing the Salvation Army Band to its present efficiency. A number of years ago there was an influx of musicians, who added strength to the organization, and a marked change was soon noticed. The standard of the band has been made higher since that time, and Mr. Greene has devoted his time and care to its development. Himself a thorough musician he aimed at the musical advancement of the band individually, and as a body, and its present status is evidence of the success of his efforts. Mr. Greene not only enjoyed the confidence of the members of the corps, but was also recognized by the citizens at large as a good musician and bandmaster, and general regret will be expressed upon his finding it imperative to retire from the conductorship.

His successor, Mr. Berrier, takes up the baton with the band in good condition, thanks to Mr. Greene's work in past years and it is hoped that he will continue the good work that has been done. During Mr. Greene's regime the band has made material progress. In the many Ontario towns and cities it has visited the band has won a reputation that is not only a credit to itself, but also to the city. New uniforms were secured a short time ago and the instruments are newly plated and in good order.

Mr. Berrier is an accomplished cornet player, having been a member of the Temple Band of Toronto and the staff band of Cleveland. He was a member of the Marleybone band of London, Eng., and although he had held the position of deputy band master, this is his first bandmastership.

GET NEW INDUSTRIES

The folowing letter from Mr. John Crane was received too late to be read at the meeting last night.:

Peterborough, 9th Nov, 1909.

Geo. A. Gillespie, Esq., Pres. Board of Trade.

Dear Sir,—I regret that on account of a previous engagement I shall be unable to attend the Board of Trade meeting to-night

I fully recognize the importance of the consideration to be placed before the meeting, and trust that a policy may be outlined that will have, as its object, the broadening of our industrial industries here. A waiting policy, while to a certain extent successful in the past, is no longer what is required, and the time has come for an aggressive campaign in the matter of securing industries for the city. A considerable sum should, in my opinion, be set aside for a vigorous advertising of the location and advantages of our city; this is being done by many growing centres in the west and the results are most apparent.

I should also view with favour the selection of a competent official who could give his special attention to this work, and be on the outlook continually for industries for loactions it is not to be expected that this can be successfully done by members of the Council or Board of Trade who are engaged in their own vocations.

Your action in calling this meeting is most commendable.—Yours truly,

(Signed.) JOHN CRANE.

Wauseuka, Big Indian Of Carlysle Team, "Lost His Head"

In the game between Pennsylvania and Carlisle Indians on Saturday, a scrap between an Indian and an official took place. The Record of Philadelphia says:

Next to Miller's wonderful work from a spectator's viewpoint came the run in between Waseuka, the Indian left tackle and the officials: When Penn scored the second touchdown, and Braddock kicked goal, Waseuka hurled his leather head-gear at the ball with the evident intent of disconcerting Braddock. For this unsportamanlike act he was reprimanded by Umpire Edwards and the Indians were penalised five yards on the kick-off. A moment later Waseuka stood over Fretz, who was prostrate on the ground, and deliberately tried to stamp the cleated shoes in his face. The same Indian was guilty of much dirty work in the line and he finally got his punishment for a particularly brutal attempt to lay out Miller. The Penn captain had been thrown out of bounds by an Indian tackler and while he was stretched out on the ground flat Waseuka fell on him with his knees. The play occurred near the middle of the field and by the side lines in front of the south stand where the Pennsylvania coaches and substitutes were located, and it was in plain view of Umpire Edwards. The big official collared Waseuka and was marching him off the field when the Indian lost his head completely and grasping Edwards by the throat tried to choke him. Immediately there was a seething mass of players, coaches from the side-lines and officials. Fretz, the ruddy-faced Penn tackle, who had previously been roughed by Waseuka grabbed the heavy side-line stick and rushed in to help Edwards handle the pugnacious redskin, while Coach Warner, followed by several Indian substitutes, came running over from the side lines in front of the north stand.

LINDSAY TO PLAY A SUDDEN DEATH GAME WITH ST. MIKES

Mr. Parnell McHugh, secretary of the Lindsay juunor rugby club, received official notice this morning from headquarters as follows:

"The first of the O.R.F.U. junior semi-finals has ben arranged, St. Michael's, the winners of section No. 1, will play a sudden death game with Lindsay, the winners of the eastern group, in Lindsay next Saturday. Jack McDonald, of Varsity, will be the referee."

The above orders mean that Lindsay rugbyists will have to get down to good, hard, systematic practice, during the next few nights. St. Miques have a strong line-up and are well trained. They are tricky, and that is where Lindsay loses. In Saturday's game with the Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. it was quite noticeable that the Y. boys had the tricky plays down well and they were good in the long passes to the wing men. Lindsay ought to be the same. The wing men of the Lindsay 14 are fast runners and should be given a chance to make more runs. Get the long pass working.—Lindsay Warder.

Canadian Farmers Lost A Million Dollars This Year

On Season's Dairy Trade—Cheese Output Has Fallen off But the Farmers of Eastern Canada are Selling Cream to Americans at Large Profits.

RESULT OF PAYNE TARIFF

From the standpoint of the cow, that serenest of all the barnyard throng, the Canadian farmer has a million dollars less in his pocket this year than at this time in 1908. In other words, Canada's trade in cheese in 1909 is $1,000,000 less in value than it was in 1908.

This year the Canadian farmer received an average of one cent. a lb less for his cheese than he received last year. An approximate estimate of Canada's cheese make in 1909 is 2,100,000 boxes. A box of cheese weighs 80 pounds. This would indicate that there was a decrease this year of $1,680,000 in the value of Canada's cheese make. But it cost the farmer one-third less this year to produce milk than a year ago, and the cows yielded more milk than in 1908 The weather was more favorable, making it possible to let the cows graze longer and consequently less feed had to be bought for them. Taking these facts into consideration it would be safe to state that the value of Canada's cheese make this year is $1,000,000 less than in 1908.

PAYNE TARIFF ON CREAM

By a mistake on the part of the framers of the Payne tariff bill, the dairy farmer of Eastern Canada is reaping a nice little harvest of the rectangular green this autumn from his cream. Had the conditions created by a slip of the Payne pen existed from the commencement of the dairy season this year some astonishing figures would have confronted the statistician at the close of the year.

They say it was a slip of the pen. The framers of the last United States tariff bill evidently had a strong desire to make a direct thrust at the prosperity of the Canadian farmer when they proposed to impose a duty of 5 cents a pound on Canadian cream going into the United States. Instead of the duty being 5 cents a lb., which duty as originally intended, would have been absolutely prohibitive, the Payne tariff bill has passed providing for a duty of 5 cents a gallon on Canadian cream going into the United States. In the vernacular of the street, this duty is a "cinch" as far as the Canadian farmer is conversed. During the past two months the farmers in the Brockville district and throughout the Eastern Townships have been shipping a large quantity of their cream across the border. American buyers are coming over and buying the cream from the farmer. The neighboring states need the cream this year, for they have experienced severe droughts and the productivity of the cow has been at a minimum.

BENEFITS CANADIANS

Perhaps that slip of the pen was intentional, because the metropolitan centres of the northern states needed the cream and were not particularly desirous of paying a prohibitive duty of 5 cents a pound. The Canadian farmer is just now wondering how long this slip in the tariff will be left uncorrected, as he is making a handsome thing out of exporting his cream across the border. It won't be long, if the men at Washington learn that part of the new tariff is greatly benefitting the Canadian farmer.

"Had it not been for this low duty Canada's cheese and butter make this year would have shown considerable increase over that of last year," said Mr. Arthur Hodgson, a prominent local dairy exporter, to The Herald.

"Is the Canadian farmer making big profits from his cream export to the United States?" Mr. Hodgson was asked.

"Surely. He would have to sell his butter at his factory at 32 cents a pound to make the same profit he is making from selling his cream to the Americans." (The average price for butter at the present time is about 24 cents.

MADE A NICE PROFIT

It is paying the Canadian farmer well to dairy at the prices he is realising this season. Although he received an average of one cent. a pound less for his cheese this year than in 1908, he still has a nice margin of profit. It hasn't been his fault that he is a million dollars poorer than a year ago.

Who is responsible for the heavy decrease in the value of Canadian cheese output this year? The only party upon whom the responsibility can be safely placed in New Zealand. New Zealand is rapidly gaining on Canada in the matter of dairy production. In fact, the quality of New Zealand cheese and butter is now higher than Canada's. Not only is New Zealand nosing Canada out in the matter of quantity and quality, but she is able to undersell the Canadian exporter in Great Britain. For this reason the Canadian farmer has been compelled to be satisfied with a cent a pound less for his cheese.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

ST. ANDREW'S.

A large and interested congregation asembled at St. Andrew's church last night. The Rev. J. R. Webb, of Murray St. Baptist church was present and gave helpful counsel. Miss Olive Howell sang very sweetly, "Sweet Peace the Gift of God's Love."

Mr. Atkinson took for his subject the words "The handwriting against us; that was contrary to us," (Colossians, 2 vs. 14. A man is always making a record. He is his own recording angel. What we do and say becomes a record that is ineffaceable Every idle word we must give account of.

A man's record can be against him in many ways. Against his material interests, against our characters, against our moral purposes and aspirations, against our hopes for a better life. Things that should be our friends are by the record turned into foes.

We may by the record be brought to despair of ourselves. But then comes the message of grace. "O grace thou hast destroyed thyself but in Me is thine help."

The record against us Christ has taken out of the way. He bare our sins and became sin for us. He nailed it to the cross and has made it a dead issue between us and God. It is at the cross that hope revives and despair flees.

The address was amply illustrated by incidents that had come within the speaker's knowledge. The practical power of the cross in men's lives to-day was the truth brought home.

To-night Mr. Atkinson will speak about "Those over forty years of age, a special message to men in their prime."

A male choir will conduct the praise service to-night.

KNOX CHURCH.

In Knox church last evening Dr. Farquharson took up the theme, "Seeing and Believing," so many people are hindered by the desire of seeing and thoroughly understanding before they believe. The Divine order is the reverse. Man must believe before he sees. The incident of Mary and Martha at the tomb of Lazarus was recalled. Jesus said, "Said I not if thou wouldst believe, thou shouldest see the glory of God." We desire to see the glory of God even though the desire be hidden. Man in his mistake may glory in wealth and power. We know the man when we understand what he glories in. We desire to see God's glory as Moses did. He cried "Show me thy glory," and the reply came, "The Lord God, merciful and gracious." God's glory is revealed in Jesus. Many a person through affliction sees the glory.

The question is how are we to get it. If I could see I would believe, God says believe me and trust me and then you shall see.

Rev. Mr. Keith followed, emphasizing the necessity of accepting before we feel what it is to be Christians.

The subject for to-night is "Confessing Christ."

ST. PAUL'S.

One of the largest and most impressive meetings yet assembled on a week night came together in St. Paul's church last evening, when Mr. MacBeth spoke on "The Trial of Jesus Christ." The centre of the church was well filled to the door, and there was overflow into the side seats. Rev. H. E. Abraham of Port Hope, was present and took part in the opening service. The pastor, Mr. Pogue ,read the bulletin, which gave a most encouraging report of the meetings now being held in eleven different places in the Presbytery. There is wide-spread interest and profit. Mr. MacBeth reminded those present that it was the King's Birthday. He said they were told to "Fear God and honour the King," and that as Christians they should carefully exercise their gifts and opportunities not only in the Church, but as citizens in the state. Edward VII. in these recent years had won the name of Peacemaker, and they should be grateful for what he had striven to do. In the Spirit of a true prayer, Mr. MacBeth said they would all join in singing "God Save the King" and the audience rose and sang the National anthem with much fervour. During the offering, Miss Davies sang with fine expression the beautiful hymn "Saved by Grace". Mr. MacBeth then spoke on the trial scene, where Christ is before Pilate. The Roman Governor of Judea, with his keen, legal mind, saw at once that Jesus was innocent. He said he found no fault in Him, but he gave way to the outcry against Him and delivered Him over to be crucified. Pilate's action was universally condemned. But let us be careful lest we ourselves may be doing the same thing. Every human heart is a court room in which Jesus stands on trial and we each have to face the question: "What shall I do with Jesus, who is called the Christ." Sins cry out that we should cast Him forth as an imposter, crucifying Him afresh and putting Him to an open shame. But there is overwhelming evidence calling us to give our decision for Him. His character, purpose, teaching, His proven claims were all dwelt upon in detail and people asked to make decision. We were clothed by God with the power of choice, and must accept the responsibility of decision. Bye and bye this same Christ who is now being judged by us, will be our Judge. Let us confess Him now and He will confess us in that Great Day.

The meetings will be continued every night concluding on Friday with a mass meeting of all who can come at 8 p.m. At 4.15 on Friday there will be a meeting in the church (St. Paul's) for the boys and girls of the city.

SAID "HELLO KID" AND WERE FINED

Two Toronto Men Accosted Three Young Women With the Familiar Phrase.

Toronto, Nov. 10th.—Saying "Hello, kid!" to young women on the streets of Toronto will soon rank among the more expensive amusements, if Mr. Kingsford has his way. In the Police court yesterday afternoon he had costs for using the offensive phrase to three young women on Keele street. Henry Rannis, who was with Leadley at the time, and who figured in the disorderly conduct which followed the girls' complaint, was fined $5 and costs.

The three young women all said that Leadley accosted them with the words, "Hello kid!" so they complained to an officer.

The defendant protested against the fine, saying that one of the girls had used improper language to him.

"I am sorry to say I do not believe your evidence. I do believe the evidence of the girls," said his Worship.

A VICTORY FOR ROSS

Late Member of Ontario Legislature Defeats MacLauchlin With a Plurality of 145, After a Hard Fought Battle—Strathroy Gives Him a Good Lead Over Opponent—No Contest in N. Middlesex.

Strathroy, Nov. 11.—Duncan C. Ross (Liberal), former member of the Ontario Legislature, was elected yesterday to represent West Middlesex in the House of Commons to succeed W. S. Calvert, who was appointed to the National Transcontinental Railway Commission.

Mr. Ross' majority over his opponent, Robert McLauchlin, is 145, secured principally in his own town, Strathroy, where he had 123 to the good, and in the Township of Caradoc, which surrounds Strathroy, where he had 121. The other three villages, Glencoe, Wardsville and Newbury went for the opposition candidate. Mr. Ross' victory was no surprise. There were no sharply defined issues.

The total vote will equal, if not exceed, that of the last general elections of 1908. In many divisions every available vote was polled.

The Liberals of North Middlesex have practically decided not to contest North Middlesex for the Legislature.

Work Hard, Says Borden.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—"While we did not succeed in wresting from the Government West Middlesex, a constituency they have held so long, it was almost too much to hope that we should, having regard to the usual course of bye-elections."

Mr. R. L. Borden spoke these consolatory words at the annual meeting of Ward Two Conservative Association in Victoria Hall last night.

The leader who was enthusiastically cheered, said he had found a fine fighting spirit in West Middlesex, and that confidence was strong that the seat would be captured at the general election. He urged that Conservatives should not be discouraged by the long period in opposition, repeating Carlyle's admonition to the Edinburgh students, "Work and despair not. I bid ye be of hope. These be my last words."

Whether the concluding sentence had reference to his rumored retirement, Mr. Borden didn't say, but the meeting didn't see anything subtle in the allusion.

Canada Does Not Discriminate.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 11.—The following resolution was unanimously adopted at the close of the speaking at the banquet of the Detroit Wholesalers' Association Tuesday night: "Resolved, that in the judgment of this association Canada does not unduly discriminate against the United States within the meaning of our tariff act of 1909, and with all due deference we beg to express our sense that it is the duty of the President to proclaim the minimum tariff as to Canada on March 31, 1910; resolved that the president of this association, and the board of directors are empowered to effectuate, as far as possible, our intent herein expressed."

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 11.—A runaway car of lumber, crashing into a crowded passenger car filled with early morning workers on the interuban line of the B. C. Electric Railway Co. between Vancouver and New Westminster yesterday killed fourteen men almost instantly, while many others are seriously injured, three of whom will likely die from fractured skulls.

Motorman McDonough and Conductor Wiggins of the freight were arrested, pending the result of the inquest.

The accident occurred while it was yet dusk. The passenger car, the occupants of which were chiefly employes of the B. C. Electric, bound for the car building shops in New Westminster, left the Vancouver terminus at 5.30, following up an electric freight consisting of a motor box car and flat car laden with heavy timbers, the latter fifty or sixty feet long and very heavy.

Three miles out, at the head of a grade which the freight had just climbed, the coupling of the flat car gave way, and it started backward, gaining tremendous speed by gravitation and momentum. The passenger car was but a quarter mile behind, and just leaving Lakeview station when the runaway rounded the curve.

The speed of the death dealing car must have been tremendous, for the motorman of the passenger had not time to move his seat. The heavy timbers at the moment of impact ploughed through the passenger as a battering ram. Not a passenger escaped being crushed between the woodwork and the flying timbers. The passenger coach was literally reduced to matchwood.

Two Boys' Perish.

Berlin, Nov. 11.—A fatal fire occurred yesterday afternoon when a house occupied by Geo. Uttick, a Russian Jew, on Strange street, was destroyed and two children were burned to death. Another is in a dangerous condition at the hospital. The children, boys, were 3, 4 and 6 years of age, and had been locked in the house, while the mother was looking for coal along the G.T.R. tracks. She had been gone about fifteen minutes when the house was discovered on fire by neighbors. The firemen had a long run, and on arrival found the youngest boy on the kitchen floor, burned to a crisp. The other two had made their escape, but were terribly burned. They were removed to the hospital, where the second youngest died an hour afterwards.

The cause of the fire is unknown and the parents are in a pitiable state of mind.

Maritime Express Ditched.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 11.—The Maritime Express on the I.C.R. struck a broken rail fifty miles west of Campbellton. There were nearly a dozen members of Parliament on board on route to Ottawa. Three Pullman cars and diner left the rails and turned over on their sides, but no one was injured.

3,000 Gallons of Oil Lost.

Stratford, Nov. 11.—The Stratford branch of the Queen City Oil Co. has decided to drop the investigation into a Hallowe'en outrage, when some unknown person unscrewed the top of one of the big storage oil tanks, allowing 3,000 gallons to escape. Detectives found it impossible to get any clue.

KNOW NO BOUNDARY

Jerome Jones of Atlanta, Ga., at A. F. of L. Convention Says Labor Men Must Realize That Movement Is Not a National One—Suffragist Appears and Presents Case — Many Resolutions.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—When President Gompers called the convention of the A.F. of L. to order yesterday morning, he announced that Delegate E. Russ of the Typographical Union, a resident of Niagara Falls, N.Y., had been asphyxiated in his room the previous night, and he requested the delegates to stand silently for a brief period as a tribute of respect to the memory of their late colleague.

Delegate Jerome Jones, Atlanta, Ga., who was present at the Dominion Trades and Labor Congress held in Quebec last September, delivered his report.

He said that as far as Canadian workers are concerned, their sympathy is entirely with the American Federation of Labor and the ideas for which that body stands. The policy "Canada for the Canadians" is as distasteful to the average Canadian unionist as the open shop policy is to his American brother. They are anxious to keep intact the brotherly bond that exists between Canadian unions and those of the United States. They had the foresight to see that the union movement is not merely a local affair or one which each country can work out for itself.

Referring to his impressions gained at the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress he commented upon the fact that both French and English were used by the delegates, but though many were unable to speak both languages, it was demonstrated beyond doubt that their ideas were identical, and their loyalty to the international union movement was unquestionable.

He was confident that though Canadians were loyal subjects of Great Britain, it would have to be a very vital matter on which they would take up arms against another country. In conclusion, he paid a tribute to the late President Alphonse Verville, M.P.

Miss Potter of the University of Minnesota, representing the American women's suffrage movement, addressed the delegates. Following her introduction by President Sam Gompers, she at once plunged into her subject, stating that she became a convert to the suffragette movement a year ago in Chicago. She thought that the militant method practiced by English women would not be needed in America.

By the adoption of the supplemental report of the credentials committee, the Buffalo Trades and Labor Council has been expelled from the federation. This means that Bro. Johnston, delegate from that council, is not allowed to take his seat. The expulsion of this council has been the result of a violation of the constitution of the A.F. of L. in retaining in its body a local dual union of millwrights. Otto Zimmer, a would-be delegate from the Labor Educational Association of Ontario, was denied his seat in the convention, as was also the Des Moines, Iowa, delegate. Sioux City also came under the ban of the credential committee.

John P. Fry of Cincinnati spoke of the splendid reception which he received when acting as delegate to the British Trades Congress in England. He was much impressed with the steady increase in the membership of the British Labor party in the mother of Parliaments.

John Mitchell, vice-president and chairman of the special committee on industrial education, will present that committee's report to-day.

Some of the resolutions submitted are: One by the maintenance of way employes, asking the executive to urge the United States Government "to stop the mad expenditure of public money for the purposes of war," and urging economy; another by the Brotherhood of Carpenters favoring a postal savings system in the United States. The Pennsylvania Federation of Labor wants the power of special constables curtailed. The Central Federated Union of Greater New York wants to protect actors and actresses from the corrupt business methods of theatrical employment agencies. The National Federation of Postoffice Clerks want an eight-hour day, and the Tailors' International Union in a resolution ask that work be not taken home.

Libraries Want More Money.

Brantford, Nov. 11.—Representatives of Norfolk, Brant, Oxford and Haldimand County public libraries, in annual session here yesterday, decided to memorialize the Government to secure a larger grant, and to ask for legislation enabling rural municipalities to contribute towards support of libraries. It was thought that the minimum membership demanded in order to secure the grant should be reduced from 100 to 75. Dr. Kitchen, St. George, was re-elected president.

Brantford Rejects Postoffice.

Brantford, Nov. 11.—The offer of the Dominion Government to erect a new $150,000 postoffice building on a portion of market square, in exchange for the present postoffice, the latter to be used as a City Hall, was voted down by ratepayers yesterday by 45 majority, the vote being, for 849, against 804. The plan involved the removal of the market from its present central location to South Colborne, opposite the Kerby House.

COLLECTED COURT MONEY

Berlin, Nov. 11.—A series of odd frauds upon the first provincial court of Berlin was interrupted yesterday by the arrest of Lothar Luedicke, a former court employe, and two confederates, Willy Warnicke, a professional bicyclist, and Hans Meier, a cook.

These men were in the habit of breaking into the court room late in the afternoon. By putting on judicial caps and robes they were able to deceive the janitors. At their leisure they examined the court records, making a note of the names and addresses of persons owing money to the court. Helping themselves to the forms and seals, they drew up the necessary documents for the collection of these debts, and, armed with forged credentials, served them in the pretended capacities of bailiffs. They collected various sums, and are known to have been successful in no less than thirty instances.

When exposed the three men were said to be planning a raid upon the Imperial Supreme Court at Leipsic.

WOMEN ACQUITTED OF ARSON CHARGE

Whitby, Nov. 11.—In the Assizes yesterday Mrs. Bowler and her daughter Ellen were acquitted of a charge of having set fire to the stables of Mrs. Wilson, a neighbor. It was alleged the women had climbed a ladder, poured coal oil through a knothole eleven feet from the ground and applied a match. Sandy Wilson swore that on June 9 last Ellen Bowler had said: "Yes, mother and I set the place on fire because the devil told us to do it." Defendants denied it and Henry Atfield, who had been present, said he hadn't heard the expression.

AN "ANTI" LETTER.

Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder's Views on Woman Suffrage.

"So far from force being mediaeval, it is in constant use to regulate and protect our daily life. Therefore the argument of force holds as strongly as ever, being a part of the fundamental and inescapable argument of sex." Thus Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder, president of the National League For the Civic Education of Women, sums up the votes-for-women question in a "Letter on Woman Suffrage" which the "antis" are distributing. The "letter," which was written at first "with no thought of printing," amplifies this idea and adds some other arguments.

"The women who ask for suffrage are dazzled by a word," says Mrs. Gilder. "They attach to the franchise a value that in their case would be fictitious, for they would hold their right only by the force of the men who were willing to defend that right. If men should see fit to withdraw, women would scarcely be able to exercise their rights. They would have to appeal to the stronger sex."

Mrs. Gilder thinks, furthermore, that women are mentally disqualified for government. "If men have burdened themselves with the state," she says, "they have left women free to be their critics, their intelligent advisers. How is it that if they have a real sense of government they have not been more felt?" Mrs. Gilder "cannot but think that there is something in the nature of women which made the founders of the republic indifferent to their help in the government of the republic."

Then she has a personal objection to votes for women, to her the strongest argument of all: "To make little men of women is so ugly, so intensely inartistic." To her mind all arts, and the greatest of all, the art of living, "are in the hands of woman. . . . She alone can make men nobler and purer, not by going down to struggle with them, but by rewarding the best with her praise." Her "real rights" are "those that are the Lord's work," of being the life giver, of keeping a happy corner where the weary can rest, of keeping men—who naturally relapse into barbarism when left too long alone—keyed to the more delicate harmonies of life.

FATIGUING SLEEP.

Avoid Muscular Strain and Rest the Mind at Night.

One of the most skilled of trained nurses thinks "fatiguing sleep" an exhausting habit to which many women are addicted. They do not know the full meaning of natural sleep. They do not realise that they are no longer dead weights on the bed. They try to hold themselves instead of letting the bed do it.

This authority goes on to say to women as well as men that they must give up working themselves to sleep if they would receive any benefits. She thinks the especial point of trouble is the spine. The perfect position in which to get complete rest is to be sure that the spine leans against the bed and that it touches at both ends.

She says there are few women who have not a half dozen muscular strains upon their bodies while sleeping, but the strain on the spine because of incorrect posture is the most important and injurious.

The usual complaint, "I can't stop thinking," is not, to her mind, the trouble of sleeplessness. If the muscles are entirely relaxed one can think all one wants to. When the body is completely easy the mind will follow suit. So watch yourself if you find you arise tired in the morning or do not sleep restfully at night.

Put all your thoughts on letting go your muscle strain. Find just where the trouble is. You may think you are quite at bodily ease, and upon careful investigation you will discover that your knees are drawn up, your feet contracted, your hand is clutching the pillow. Then quickly let go. Like everything else in life, the trained faculty of knowing just where the trouble is makes you apply the remedy.

When you find your mind catching on to every new thought, direct its feverishness to the working out of muscle relaxation. It will have so much to do that when its object is achieved it and the body will sink into complete rest.

"Caught Cold."

Had a Distressing, Tickling Sensation In The Throat.

Mr. Albert MacPhee, Chignecto Mines, N.S., writes: "In Oct., 1908, I caught cold by working in water. And had a very bad cough and that distressing, tickling sensation in my throat so that I could not sleep at night, and my lungs were so very sore I had to give up work. Our doctor gave me medicine but it did me no good so I got a bottle of Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and by the time I had used two bottles I was entirely cured. I am always recommending it to my friends."

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup combines the potent healing virtues of the Norway pine tree with other absorbent, expectorant and soothing medicines of recognised worth and is absolutely harmless, prompt and safe for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Croup, Sore Throat, Pain or Tightness in the Chest, and all Throat and Lung Troubles.

There are many imitations of "Dr. Wood's" so be sure and get the genuine when you ask for it.

Put up in a yellow wrapper; three pine trees the trade mark; price 25 cents. Manufactured only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

A 50-cent bottle of

Scott's Emulsion

CORINNE RYDER KELSEY.

Highest Priced Choir Singer in the World.

The highest priced choir singer in the world is Corinne Ryder Kelsey, who receives $4,000 a year from the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in New York city, for singing once every Sunday nine months in the year, according to an interesting article found in Hampton's Magazine. In her single person she is the whole choir, and the entire appropriation for vocal music goes to her. In addition, her outside earnings from concerts, it is claimed, bring her total income close to $20,000 a year.

For the singer with ambitions the choir has usually been a stepping stone. Girls with more voice than means have been glad to accept a church position for the chance of being heard, with little more by way of salary than compliments and car fare. But Mrs. Kelsey chose her field deliberately because of its freedom from the disadvantages inseparable from the theater. She has sung in opera and knows. She was born in Rochester, N. Y., but early went west and received the grounding of her musical education in Chicago. Then she went to New York for further instruction. To help pay for her lessons she sought a position in a church choir and finally found one with the First Presbyterian church in Brooklyn. Within a year she was a concert star.

She resigned her position and, putting her earnings to still further study went abroad. Merit and hard work won her a debut in London at Covent Garden in 1896. To most young women it would have seemed that she was on the threshold of her career. But Corinne Kelsey sat down to think over her situation. The beginner in opera, she knew, had a long wait for doubtful fame, certain competition with the best voices in the world, life without a home and all the whims of managers and jealousies of the profession to meet. So she decided she would go back to the old field she had left—the church—as a profession. It was a crowded field, but not with voices of her quality. The well to do congregation of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, gave her the appreciation she craved and had the means to gratify it.

Fascinating as her success seems and easily as it wears the air of having come, Mrs. Kelsey would be the last to advise another young girl to attempt it unless she were very sure of her voice and very confident of her presence. There are no rules, but if Mrs. Kelsey were to attempt to formulate one she would make it short. "Be sure," she says.

USEFUL DOMESTIC HINTS.

When ankles are weak they should be bathed every day with salt water and rubbed vigorously. Cold water bandages are also good for strengthening weak ankles.

If salt fish be required for immediate use, it will freshen much more quickly if soaked in milk. Milk that has turned sour will answer the purpose just as well as fresh milk.

Fish scales can easily be removed by pouring hot water on the fish slowly until the scales curl, then scrape quickly. Wash in several waters, having the last cold and well salted, and no slime will be left.

To get rid of mice spread some mint leaves (or, if you cannot get these, a few drops of essence of mint will answer the purpose) wherever these pests are to be found. They are said to have such an aversion to the smell that they will not return.

In many homes where cheese is not an article of quick consumption it is often found difficult to prevent its getting hard and dry. This may be prevented by dipping a piece of butter muslin in vinegar and wrapping the pieces of cheese in it. It turns out quite nice and fresh even after the lapse of several days.

Lemons are useful in health and sickness. Lemon sirup made by baking a lemon twenty minutes and then squeezing the juice upon half a cupful of sugar is excellent for hoarseness and to break up a cold. Tie a piece of lemon on a corn at night for five nights, leaving it on all night.

The Greatest Woman.

It is safe to say, observes the Boston Traveler, that there are no suffragettes in the town of Cawker, for here is a report of the Woman's Debating society:

"Who may rightly be said to be the greatest woman in history? The answer that was awarded the prize was this: 'The wife of a man of moderate means who does her own cooking, washing and ironing, brings up a family of girls and boys to be useful members of society and finds time for her own intellectual and moral improvement is the greatest woman in all history.'"

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

To draw a boil to head, peel the skin from a boiled egg, wet and apply at once.

Ringworms disappear when painted a few times with iodine. Repeat application if required.

Bind the white of an egg over burns or scalds. It will form a coating like varnish and give instant relief.

When giving castor oil take a small tumbler and squeeze into it a tablespoonful of orange juice; next pour in the oil, then add more juice. The oil will form a globule in the center of the juice and can be swallowed without being detected.

Vinegar has been largely used to reduce stoutness. Its power in this regard is due to acetic acid. It succeeds at the cost of the user's health. By it the blood is impoverished and anaemia is caused. The occasional use of vinegar with food does not work harm, but where there is any tendency to anaemia it should be almost excluded from the diet.

If poisoned with ivy, cover the irritated parts with a poultice of bread soaked in a paste of baking powder and water. After fifteen minutes remove the poultice and let the skin dry off for a quarter of an hour, after which soak the bread again and apply, repeating the process until relieved. Keep the soda solution from garments and rugs, as it is caustic and will damage any fabric.

Pale, colorless lips are so disfiguring that women will resort to all sorts of artificial means to get rid of them. This is usually a mistake, as the skin on the lips is very sensitive, and paint only succeeds in making the skin hard and wrinkled and leaving them stiff and unpliant. Look for the cause instead. Almost invariably it will be found to be from a rundown physical condition, which causes anaemia. Get rid of this by healthful diet, and the color is apt to come back to your lips without artificial means.

Opal Lamp Shades Help Eyes.

If you read by artificial light use a reading lamp with an opal glass shade, open below. This should be white on the inner and green on the outer side. It does not much matter whether one uses oil, gas or the electric light, for all three can be employed on the table with such a shade as described. If you cannot get this simple affair, sit so that the back is turned to the light. If that is impracticable, wear a shade over the eyes to guard them from the light. Always try to have the book at the eyes' proper focus and so near the level of the eyes that the head has not to be bent. Reading in bed is no more hurtful than reading elsewhere provided one obeys the foregoing rules.

Cure For Boils.

Job need not have suffered so long or so severely with his affliction had he known of this cure for boils, says its inventor: Mix one teaspoonful of castor oil with five drops of turpentine. Apply on a linen cloth after the boil has been thoroughly poulticed with hot water.

Plaster Figures.

Cover plaster of paris figures with a thick coating of starch and water, let it dry on the surface, and the dirt will brush off with the dry powder.

Don't Interrupt.

One of the social tricks that a young girl must guard against is the bad habit of interrupting some one else's conversation.

This does not mean joining a group or a couple who are talking and entering into their conversation or calling one of the persons away from it.

It means never letting the other person finish a sentence. It is a custom more observed in the breach than the performance, and it is markedly impolite.

No matter how long a sentence may be or how eager you are to do something else or have your own say, keep quite quiet and let the other talker finish that sentence.

It will teach you self control, and this is in itself a great gain.

It will teach you courtesy, and this is imperative if you desire people to like you.

When Age Begins to Tell.

Age begins to tell after sixty.

A woman must dress to meet it.

There is absolutely no reason for a figure to lose its straightness or its good lines. These deplorable conditions are always due to indolence.

Women of this age should never think of wearing any color except white, black, pastel blues, shades of violet and soft grays.

Stiff linen is not for them or heavy cotton, but soft muslin in all its forms, embroidery of every kind and lace. But age must never tamper with inferior qualities of either lace or embroidery.

Man's Hands and His Pockets.

"Nowadays," said Judge Willis, "men will even stand talking to women with their hands in their pockets." The observation is wholly accurate, but if it is intended as an illustration of the impudence of modern men we take leave to say there is some mistake. The truth is that the poor creatures do not know what to do with their hands. The pocket pose expresses diffidence, not assurance; is, in fact, a compliment. The embarrassment of the man, leading him to feel all limbs and extremities, is plainly a tribute to the dazzling qualities of the woman.

Feminine Observation.

SIRES AND SONS.

D. O. Mills, the banker, is eighty-four years old.

Ludovic Halevy, the famous librettist of the Offenbach operettas, was born seventy-five years ago.

Lord Strathcona has been high commissioner for Canada since 1896. He was born in Scotland in 1820.

The first foot of the Duke of the Abruzzi was the ascent of Mount St. Elias, on the far borders of Canada and Alaska, a mountain some 18,000 feet high.

Alvin Smith of Barre, Vt., ninety-five years old, has not missed the Dog River Valley fair at Northfield since the fair was started there thirty-seven years ago.

John Fred Landis, son of former Congressman C. B. Landis, has been awarded the highest army medal for sharpshooting at West Point, where he is the youngest man in the class to be graduated next June.

Andreas Dippel, the tenor, was born in Cassel in 1866. He was originally connected with a banking firm in Cassel, but studied music in Berlin, Milan and Vienna and made his first appearance in 1887 in Bremen as the pilot in "The Flying Dutchman."

Count Zeppelin finds himself too popular, and a notice has been issued in the German newspapers calling on the German public to desist from adding to Count Zeppelin's invalid condition by worrying him with unnecessary communications. The number of letters received daily from his admirers is asserted to have reached 4,000.

Charles B. Pugh, first vice president of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, has seen one-half of a century of service with that company. Mr. Pugh became a station agent on Oct. 1, 1859, and since that time he has filled the positions of passenger conductor, train dispatcher, general agent, general superintendent, general manager and vice president.

Things Theatrical.

Hattie Williams is to play a season in Australia.

Frank Keenan is now general stage director for Henry B. Harris.

Georgia Drew Meodum, is the "Via Wireless" company, is a niece of John Drew.

Walter Lawrence has a new play by H. H. Boyd, entitled "A Citizen's Home."

Grace Van Studdiford is to have a new opera, with music by Reginald De Koven.

The play of Brandon Tynan in which Mme. Nazimova is to appear is called "The Passion Flower."

Harry Woodruff is to go on tour as the star of "A Prince of Tonight," which had a long run in Chicago.

Church and Clergy.

It took thirty-two years to built St. Paul's cathedral in London.

Nearly 100 electric fans are employed to keep the air cool in St. Thomas' cathedral, Bombay, probably the only place of worship in the world so equipped.

The inside of the tower of the parish church at Clare, England, has been rebuilt, but the outside stones, which were laid in the fifteenth century, were not disturbed during the operation.

The Methodist churches of Ohio will hereafter be conducted without clocks. Bishop Thomas B. Neely said that he found clocks an attraction which continuously disturbed his congregations and himself.

The Cookbook.

It is better to wipe over meat with a wet cloth than to immerse it in water or let water run over it.

If one has forgotten to add flavoring to cake batter, try sprinkling the required amount over the cake as it stands in the pan before baking.

The yolks of eggs will not turn dark when hard boiled if they are put in boiling water rather than cold at first. A half hour is none too long to cook them.

Never throw out sour milk. The best hot cakes and waffles, the spongiest, lightest sweet cakes and delicious boiled salad dressing can be made from it.

Woman's World

MRS. ALICE SUTCLIFFE.

Great-granddaughter of Fulton, Who Has Written Book About Him.

Mrs. Alice Crary Sutcliffe, a great-granddaughter of Robert Fulton, who christened the replies of the Clermont, the steamboat invented by her famous ancestor, has paid a splendid tribute to the genius of steam navigation in a book recently published, "Robert Fulton and the Clermont." The popular estimate of Fulton has been very largely monopolised by his success with the Clermont, but there are many other elements in the life of this energetic American which will well repay attention. His ability as an artist was so great that shortly after his arrival in London in 1786 several of his paintings were exhibited in the Royal academy. Benjamin West, whom he knew in childhood, was one of his closest friends and painted his portrait twice.

MRS. ALICE CRARY SUTCLIFFE.

Fulton himself painted portraits of Benjamin Franklin, the family of Benjamin West, Mrs. Walter Livingston, the mother of his wife; Joel Barlow and the Earl of Stanhope, with whom he was closely associated in many of his experiments in London.

"He was not only an inventor," says Mrs. Sutcliffe; "he was also a reformer, a statesman and a patriot. It is characteristic that in his writings he capitalized the word 'ideas' and spelled 'money' with a small initial. Thus, as the world gauges success, he died poor, yet as a century translates that poverty it becomes golden with a wealth of honor."

Looks Affected by "Nerves."

What should she do? What would any one of you do if you found you were developing "nerves?" First remove the cause. If you have been overworking, "slow down," for a time at least. Try a modified rest cure. Get nine or ten hours' sleep at night and if you are a domesticated woman make a point of getting one hour—two hours if possible—in bed after the midday meal.

If there is another cause, any chronic health weakness such as many women have to work along in spite of, go to a doctor and get a systematic course of treatment. It is worth spending time and money if you are to gain health, and rest will not effect a cure if there is another reason than overstrain behind your chronic fatigue and nerves. A doctor will be able to tell if overwork or strain is the cause, and you must treat yourself accordingly. Secondly, rest your mind as well as your body. Try the self control treatment for nerves.

The brain is a creature of habit, and if you accustom it to worry it will worry; if you deliberately determine to be cheerful, to see the bright side of things, it will respond in time. By exerting your will power you will gradually attain command of your nerves.

If you will persevere on these lines you will discover that you are not so pale and worn as you were when "nerves" ruled your existence. Looks are very much affected by nerves. The nervy woman gets sandy and sallow, thin and almost sour looking. Her appetite goes, and she neglects her food. That is fatal for the woman or girl who has to work hard for a living, so that you must pay special attention to your diet.

An Ocean.

Teacher—What is an ocean? Johnny—A body of water necessitating bathing suits.—New York Sun.

NICKNAMES IN COMMONS.

Familiar Cognomens of Some of Great Britain's M.P.'s.

In nothing, perhaps, is the boyish love of the British Commons for the conviviality of the playground and the cricket-field, the river or the racket court, more forcibly illustrated than in the free and easy fashion in which members address one another.

Nicknames follow their victims sometimes to the end of their lives. Those who were at Eton with Mr. Herbert Gladstone still speak of, and in rare cases to, the present Home Secretary as "Tuppence." Why this curious sobriquet was bestowed no one probably can recall. So of Sir Frederick Banbury, the senior member for the City of London. He is still pursued by his old Winchester cognomen of "Buns." Again, for years the brilliant and popular First Commissioner of Works, Mr. Lewis Harcourt, is almost universally spoken of in the House as "Lulu." That was a name held by a trapezist who earned fame at the old demolished Royal Aquarium, Westminster.

Because of some fancied resemblance conceived by an Irish member, Mr. Claude Hay, one night while endeavoring to make an interminable vigil of a certain sitting, found himself addressed as "Little Tich." The sleepy members who heard laughed, but to this day Mr. Hay is known jovially as "Tich" and "Little Tich." A "terminological inexactitude," as Mr. Winston Churchill would say, it is taken up with characteristic zest by the Stock Exchange, with which other "House" the member for Shoreditch is professionally connected.

Lord Helmsley, Lady Warwick's genial son-in-law, is known as "The Pocket Adonis"; and, traveling to the Upper House, there exists in Lord Hemeage "Smike." Not the least felicitous is the name given to the chief Tory Whip. Sir Alexander Acland-Hood is a fiery blood, and for that he is called "The Pink 'Un," also "The Scarlet Pimpernel." Though in many respects the "pink" of party whippers-in, Sir Alec bears his sobriquet rather as a personal color and badge. Sir Alec's foil, the chief Ministerial Whip, though christened Joseph, is known as "Jack" Pease, which probably synchronises with the sporting proclivities of the hon. gentleman. He is, like all the members of the famous firm of Pease and Partners, a fine shot and a good rider.

And Mr. Arthur Balfour—has Parliamentary invention nothing for the Unionists chieftain? Not by any means. He came up from his university, where he was known as "Miss Amelia," and Miss Amelia he remains.

Mr. George Wyndham is known to his friends as "Agag," who pranced before the King and lost his head. Mr. George Bowles, M.P. for Norwood, is known as "The Ditty Box," after a little book of naval verses which the young cadet wrote and courageously published. Sir Samuel T. Evans, the Solicitor-General, is designated "Pickwick."

To get to another phase of Parliamentary designation, we come to the manner in which members and ex-members address each other.

The Prime Minister bears no nickname, and he never melts into any recognition other than Asquith. He is not Herbert nor Henry, both of which belong to him, and no one could bring himself to address the right hon. gentleman either as Bert or Harry. His looks do not encourage [illegible]. [illegible] usually signify the Home Secretary as Herbert Gladstone and his second in command as Herbert Samuel. Both are, of course, Herbert to their colleagues. But there is no such tenderness towards the Minister for Education, who, while Walter, is invariably addressed or spoken of as Runciman. Like the Premier, he looks above nursery things.

Died of Broken Heart.

A Grimsby, Eng., septuagenarian, Francis Jeffrey, died recently from grief under circumstances not less dramatic than pathetic. A few weeks ago he awoke early in the morning to find his aged wife dead by his side, and from that time he had been inconsolable. About a week later at midnight a constable on duty near his home heard the old man hail him from the bedroom window. The policeman entered the house and found Jeffrey alone. The septuagenarian stated feebly that he felt he was dying. Seeing that the old man was genuinely ill the constable sent for a nurse and a doctor. But insisting that his death was near at hand, the patient bade the constable sit down, and after giving him the address of relatives he dictated his will, finishing by creating the policeman trustee of the estate and impressing on him the duty of carrying out testator's wishes. Having completed this task the old man died, despite the efforts of the police surgeon who attended him, death being due to the effects of grief on an enfeebled constitution.

If more persons are to to be saved you have to pull up the contrary end of the rope, fix this at the hook and go on till nobody is left."—Punch.

Henry Took Ann at Her Word, but Little Jimmy Rebelled.

By LOUISE OLNEY.

Copyright, 1909, by Associated Literary Press.

Ann Mark's eye flashed. Direct as her name, she refused to marry Henry Jasper. He stood before her a little awkwardly, but yet a man that most women would have considered kindly. He was not forty, well off for the simple community, highly respected, and his wife, Caroline, had been dead three years. Being a mere man, how could he know that Ann, his old schoolmate, had suffered agonies when as a young man he had courted and married her cousin?

No one knew why Ann had not married. She never wore her heart on her sleeve. Now, in spite of herself, her heart softened to him, noting how his hand ruffled his hair as it always did when he was puzzled and unhappy.

"I never did think I could be second best in any man's life," she went on rather cruelly. "And I don't see how at my age, thirty-five, and I don't care who knows it—I don't see how I can begin playing mother to another woman's child. The boy will hate me, as all children do a stepmother. No; ask some other woman." The man flushed angrily.

"Don't insult me, Ann. You know I don't want any other woman. I've always—you know I can't tell you what I always thought of you. It wouldn't seem fair to Caroline, who did her best by me."

The world knew she had been a weak, fretful, untidy woman, jealous, thriftless, her baby beauty gone in a few years. And it knew of his loyalty. He could not tell this woman how in the years she had been about his house helping Caroline his heart had gone out to Ann's cheery strength, her wholesome, healthy kindness. He tried one word more.

"Ann, if you knew how I needed you in every way you would come. Do you think I have forgotten how to love?" Still she shook her head. He turned slowly away, climbed into his buggy and drove to his own farm. Ann sat thinking, for she remembered many things. She finally rose and went into her sister's house, where she was visiting. Molly looked at her curiously as she entered, waiting to be told something, for she had guessed Henry's errand. But she was forced to respect Ann's silence.

In the crisp September morning Ann started out for a walk. She went over the hill where she used to play with Molly and with Henry and Caroline. How strangely things had worked out! She thought of her busy life as forewoman in a big shop, her practical, busy, useful, lonely life. How soon her visit to the old place would be over! Reaching the top of the hill, she sat down in the falling leaves, pushing the heavy dark hair back from her face. Her big eyes were soft and kind and dark, like an animal's eyes. She was tall and vigorous.

Down in the valley she could see Henry Jasper's house and barnyard. He was hitching the bays to the buggy, and presently he drove away. A sudden temptation assailed her. She had heard Molly say his most recent housekeeper had left. Should she go and have a look at things? She did not see the boy about. Probably Jimmy was at his grandmother's. She rose and walked across the stubble.

The door was locked, but she found the key under the mat and entered. She could have groaned at sight of the kitchen—dishes unwashed, floor ditto, disorder rampant. The sitting room, the bedroom, everything was a sorry sight to her housewifely eye, for she was first and always a housekeeper. Things had been bad enough in Caroline's time, but now they were impossible.

She had no compunction about entering. She had always been in and out before she went to the city. He would not care. She looked at the clock and calculated that he could not get back from town under two hours. Then she rolled up her sleeves and skirt and went to work—dishes first, then the floor, then sweeping, dusting and making beds. Before she knew it three hours had gone and it was noon. She found a bite to eat and decided to go on even if he caught her at it. She did not care.

Knowing it would take weeks to get everything as it should be, she chose these points to put to rights that would make for sheer comfort. She made some pies and ginger cookies and doughnuts and boiled some corned beef from the barrel, trying not to see the condition the cellar was in. The afternoon wore on, and still Henry did not return. She mended some of Jimmy's clothes, poor child!

She had decided that she would keep at work as long as possible and then slide out the back way when she saw him coming, but it was not to be. About 4 she suddenly was aware of a wailing in the yard and from the door beheld Jimmy, fish pole in hand, limping along and crying at every step. He was a boy of ten, like his father as one pea to another. She ran to meet him and saw that his foot was cut and bleeding. She picked him up and carried him in, washed his foot, dressed it and put him on the sofa, where she fed him. As she came to take away the plate he suddenly, in the most unboylike fashion, snatched her about the neck and kissed her. Then he fell asleep.

By this time she had no thought of going back till the child's father came. She moved about the kitchen and dining room in her orderly, effective way—a way businesslike, eminently womanly and good. The waste apparent everywhere annoyed her thrifty soul. She saw forty ways to better and save. She set the table with a fresh cloth and put a good supper to cook on the stove she had blackened at the cost of her pretty, plump hands, her one beauty save her eyes. It was nearing 6 o'clock.

After a little Jimmy awoke and without warning began to cry, refusing to tell what troubled him, but denying that it was his foot. Finally Ann got a low rocker, took the child in her arms and began to rock him. Great boy that he was, he snuggled to her, his unloved little heart accepting the comfort, trusting this soft voiced, smiling, mother armed woman who called herself Aunt Ann.

As she sat thus, her attention quite absorbed, Henry Jasper came wearily to the kitchen door, his arms loaded with groceries, his face hopeless. He had been wondering where to look for Jimmy, who had been allowed that morning to go to a neighbor's.

Then with unbelieving joy he saw the clean room, the spread table, the new air of comfort, and, best of all, in Ann Mark's kind arms he saw his sleeping motherless child—a child nearly as unmothered before his own mother's death as after it. She looked up at him and smiled.

"He cut his foot and came home crying. I came over, and when I saw so much to do I went to work. I knew you wouldn't mind, Henry."

Mind! The hard thing was that she should come just to go again; that she should give him a taste of this calm comfort, let him see her like this and deny him a continuance of it. He was very miserable in his gratitude.

"Put your packages on the sink," she commanded, "and when I have laid Jimmy down I will put them away. Will you open the oven door and look at the biscuit?" He obeyed her, then stood looking while she deftly put everything in its place. The milk pail shiningly waited for him to take it and go out to milk, but he lingered. And Jimmy awoke and wanted to tell his father about the enormous fish that nibbled at his hook and got almost caught and how he had cut his foot on the broken bottle and found Aunt Ann to bind it up.

"Supper is ready, and you had better eat before you do the rest of the chores, Henry," she said, helping the boy to limp to his place.

They ate joyfully, talking, laughing, the man wondering how many minutes would pass before she rose to go. The future yawned emptily. She was asking him about his housekeepers, what he paid them, advising him what he should do. Finally when she rose he rose too. They stood facing each other, and her clear eyes smiled.

"You are— Oh, Ann, you have been good!" he said awkwardly. "Shall I hitch up and drive you home, or will you walk?" So he had taken her at her word. It was evident that he had no thought of anything permanent in all this. But the woman had. She saw here her place, her opportunity. The old hurt and anger had passed, and she was again at heart the simple girl who had loved in secret this man who was at last hers. She paused a moment, still looking at him. There was now no thought of being "second best." She would make herself all to them.

"I'll wash the dishes up first, and then after you have done the chores you can walk back with me." Jimmy set up a sudden wail from his chair, where he still sat at the table.

"I don't want you to go away," he cried, "and I won't stay alone while papa goes with you!" Ann went behind his chair and put her arms around him. She did not look at the child's father.

"Listen, Jimmy. Auntie must go tonight, but if you will be good till papa comes back I will come again."

"When will you? How long will you stay?" he demanded, with the definiteness of childhood. No uncertainty for Jimmy! She did not hesitate.

"I will come back—in the morning—and I will stay always—if papa says that I may!"

Jimmy, forgetting his foot, jumped at her neck like a little boa constrictor. But his father set him down, wanting her himself just then.

"Are you going to let her stay, papa?" Then Henry Jasper laughed, and the burden of unhappy years rolled from his shoulders. Ann was presently forced to hand him the milk pail as a hint to let her get at the dishes.

Pantomime Performances.

Most pantomime characters were originally borrowed from the Italians. The first real English pantomime was produced at a theater in Lincoln's Inn Fields in 1720. It was called "Harlequin Executed," and its subtitle was "A New Italian Comic Scene Between a Scaramouche, a Harlequin, a Country Farmer, His Wife and Others." The performance was very successful. About the middle of the eighteenth century the character of pantomime performances was completely altered, chiefly because of the genius of the famous Grimaldi, who made the clown the first figure in the pantomime. Grimaldi first appeared at Sadler's Wells theater, where he played the part of a monkey. He was actively engaged on the stage for forty-nine years, and at the close of his career he took a benefit at Drury Lane theater which realised nearly £600. He also received £100 from the Drury Lane fund. This was in June, 1828. He died in 1837 and was buried in the churchyard of St. James' chapel, Pentonville Hill.

Creagh's Strategy.

There is a good story of Gen. Sir O'Moore Creagh, K.C.B., who is on his way out to India to replace Lord Kitchener in the command of nearly 400,000 troops and about 2,000,000 square miles of territory.

The general had an orderly who never seemed capable of understanding an order, and Sir O'Moore lost patience, and rapped out:

"Why, you noodle, I don't believe you know what w-o-m-a-n spells!"

"Trouble, as a rule, sir," was the man's ready reply. And the general decided that he was not so stupid, after all.

Sir O'Moore Creagh is an Irishman from County Clare, joined the army forty-three years ago, and has seen forty years of service in the east.

He won the V.C. in the Afghan War of 1878-80. In this war he was, on one occasion, with 150 men behind a "snugum" — a hastily constructed stone wall—when they were attacked by 1,500 Afghans. It was night, and the brave officer, clad only in pyjamas, and accompanied by his native orderly, left the cover of the "snugum," and, with a couple of Snider and many rounds of ammunition, got on the flank of the enemy, and opened a rapid fire.

The ruse was successful, and the Afghans, thinking they were really being subjected to a serious flank attack, retired.

The Bo'sun's Memory.

On a certain occasion when George III. proposed to visit a man-of-war at Portsmouth, the captain, who was a religiously-disposed man, was thrown into great consternation lest his crew or the officers under him should fail in proper respect.

The boatswain, though an invaluable seaman, was a particular source of fear; and knowing from the familiar habits of His Majesty that he would probably have something to say to each one on board, the captain called this man aside and informed him how he should behave.

"Mind especially," said the captain, "that he must always be called 'your Majesty'."

The boatswain seemed very tractable, and the captain was pleased; but his worst fears were verified when, on the King addressing some question to the boatswain, that seaman stammered, twitched at his waistband in mental perplexity, and at length turned towards the captain, exclaiming:

"There, cap'n; hanged if I arn't forgot it! What did you say I was to call the old buffer?"

A Saving in Bread.

At a meeting of Braintree, Essex, Eng., Board of Guardians the master of the workhouse reported that since the guardians had permitted him to serve out bread to inmates as required, instead of supplying a uniform scale ration, he had effected a saving of two tons of bread per annum. During the eight years the system had been in operation 15 3-4 tons of bread had been saved from waste, representing in value $700.

Disapproval.

"What makes those two women turn up their noses at each other so superciliously?"

"Possibly," replied Miss Cayenne, "each got a glimpse of the current novel the other was reading."—Washington Star.

AN IDEAL GUEST.

British hostesses regard King Edward as an ideal guest. Far from being a stickler for form as was his mother, the late Queen Victoria, His Majesty never allows his kingly rank to be unduly emphasized when paying a visit. Indeed, it seems to be his aim to set his host and hostess at their ease and to relieve them of any undue anxiety or worry upon his own behalf. When, for instance, he had his unfortunate accident at the house of the late Baron Ferdinand Rothschild a few years ago by which he displaced a cartilage of one of his knees his first remark to those of his household who were about him was: "This is really too bad to come to a man's house and cause him all this fuss and annoyance."

In order to give his host and hostess as little trouble as possible the King makes it a rule never to be accompanied by more than one equerry upon these private visits, and the Queen similarly limits herself with regard to her ladies in waiting, Hon. Miss Charlotte Knollys being as a general rule her sole companion.

His Majesty expects his incognito to be most strictly observed during these visits, and none of the guests may address him by his title; "Sir" is the proper mode of approaching or announcing him, and "Madam" suffices in the case of the Queen. No one, however, it is well understood, may speak to the King or the Queen without being first addressed by them.

Both their Majesties, however, make it an invariable rule to set every one at his ease the moment they enter a house, and always aim at making the conversation general. Thus it comes about that those whose first experience it is of meeting the King and Queen in their personal capacity quickly lose something of the awe that at first oppresses them. It is necessary, of course, to rise at the entrance of His Majesty and to wait until he gives the signal for those present to resume their seats. This is, however, practically the only formality that is observed.

At dinner, of course, no toasts are drunk. It is customary for the King to take wine with the host and hostess and such other guests as it is his desire especially to honor. If the host be a member of either service, however, it is usual for him to rise and give the toast to His Majesty in the usual naval and military fashion: "Ladies and gentlemen, the King! God bless him!"

Of late years the King has had to be very careful of what he eats and drinks, and his dinner is therefore of quite a light nature. Before he retires for the night, however, he greatly enjoys a slice of cold beef, not too well done, and it is therefore understood that a joint of this nature shall be kept during his visit.

His last action before he leaves the house is to call for the host's visitors' book, which he signs and hands to the hostess with his thanks for the entertainment that has been afforded him. He is also ready to give his autograph to any of his fellow guests who may desire it.

Artist and Comedian.

How many people are aware that the popular London comedian, Mr. George Robey, is a painter of pictures? And he is no mere dabbler in the art either, for he has exhibited at the Royal Academy and the Royal Institute of Painters in Water Colors. Nor is this the extent of his hobbies. Everyone, of course, knows of his enthusiasm for cricket and football, but his weakness for the study of Egyptian history and antiquities is not so generally known. He is also much interested in the geography and exploration of Africa, but does not intend to follow in the footsteps of Stanley when he leaves the stage.

Artificial Limbs For Animals.

The supplying of artificial limbs to animals is by no means uncommon. A well-known London firm fitted a cow with a wooden leg as far back as twenty-five years since, and some time ago the Comte de Paris had a valued dog fitted with a leg of wood and leather. The late Col. North had a new foot supplied to a greyhound valued at $5,000, and Lord Denman rejoices in the possession of a wooden-legged bullock.

Palpitation of the Heart.

One of the first danger signals that announce something wrong with the heart is the irregular or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again, there may be a most violent beating, with flushings of the skin, and visible pulsations of the arteries.

There may also be experienced a smothering sensation, gasping for breath, and feeling as though about to die.

In all such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart and restoring it to its normal beat, is, beyond all question marvellous, as our thousands of testimonials will show.

Mrs. Martha Mason, Marlbank, Ont., writes:—"Just a few lines to let you know what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me. I have been troubled with weakness and palpitation of the heart, would have severe choking spells and could scarcely lie down at all. I tried many remedies but got none to answer my case like your pills did. I can recommend them highly to all with heart or nerve trouble."

Price, 50 cents per box, or 3 boxes for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Hotel Nearly Destroyed By Fire.

Smith's Falls, Nov. 11.—The Central Hotel at Jasper village had a narrow escape from destruction by fire yesterday morning. The inmates were awakened by the smoke which filled the house. The blaze was in a coal shed at the rear of the hotel, and is thought to have been of incendiary origin. The alarm was given, and by the hard work of the villagers the flames were subdued and confined to the hotel building. Connerty's store, adjoining, had a close call. The hotel was badly damaged.

Montreal Merchant Dead.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—The death took place suddenly yesterday morning of Mr. B. J. Coghlan, the well-known steel merchant, at the age of 73. He was for many years a prominent member of the Board of Trade, and took an active interest in politics as a Liberal. He was born in Ireland in 1837, and was educated at Trinity College, Dublin. He went into business on his own account, and made a marked success of it. He was also agent for the White Star Steamship Co.

HINDUS STARVING.

Many Are Living In Misery on Outskirts of Seattle.

New York, Nov. 11.—A special despatch to The World from Seattle says: Starving, not because of the fact that they cannot obtain food—because their religion forbids them to eat any prepared by one who is not of their caste—one hundred or more Hindu laborers are in sad straits on the outskirts of this city. Town after town in the Canadian lumber district forced the Hindus to leave their confines, and wherever they go they are being persecuted by the white people. At Tacoma the Hindus were refused shelter at the police headquarters, and a shed obtained on the outskirts of the city was utilized as sleeping and eating quarters for a week. Seattle officials have refused to care for the British subjects, and suburban residents set their dogs on the wanderers.

Gathered together, a band of probably 100 have occupied an abandoned lumber camp near Mukilteo for several weeks. Hunger is fast weakening the Asiatics, and unless the sentiments of the white people change many will starve. The Hindus will not steal, but begging seems to be a natural gift. They eat a sort of black bread baked by one of their number and drink tea.

For smoking tobacco they are using hemp rope chopped fine. Many of them are afflicted with consumption, and the damp weather is causing rheumatism to affect many.

Fruit Growers Meet.

Toronto, Nov. 11.—"The Spy and the Baldwin, those two apples can be produced with such excellence in Canada, that we should made a national specialty of them," remarked E. D. Smith, ex-M.P., of Winona, as president of the Ontario Fruit Growers' Association, which opened in the Temple Building yesterday.

"The people want Ontario fruit and, by persistence in overcoming transportation difficulties, by Governmental assistance, our regulation of the enemies of the orchard, and with a confidence in their own line of work, fruit growers of Ontario are going to give these people our goods, and be in return well remunerated."

Mr. Smith's address bristled with facts and encouraging examples. He condemned the careless and parasite fruit producer; the railways even were congratulated in the way they had endeavored to meet demands of the fruiterer during 1909.

"We have seven million bearing apple trees in Ontario," said the speaker, "and I am safe in saying that not over one-third of the crop could be packed for export. Spraying, pruning and cultivation will remedy this evil." An instance of the value of such work was given in the orchard of Joseph Tweddle of Fruitland, who packed 3,200 barrels from 12 acres of Spies—an average of $800 per acre.

New M. and M. Adventure.

Victoria, B.C., Nov. 11.—In connection with the extension of the Canadian Northern transcontinental railway through the Yellow Head Pass, and thence by way of the Thompson and Fraser Rivers to Vancouver, with a ferry connection to Victoria and final link to metal reaching a seaport terminus at Numakemis Bay, Barclay Sound, a contract has been arranged by the British Columbia Government with Mackenzie and Mann, assuring the establishment and operation of a variety of new steamship services to act as feeders to the traffic of the new railway, and its auxiliary branches on this coast.

The most important of these will be a new fast line of four passenger steamer operated in the Japan and Hong Kong trade, and another four steamer line to ply to Australia and New Zealand ports.

House Opens To-day.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Everything is in readiness for the opening of the second session of the eleventh Parliament of Canada this afternoon with the usual pomp and ceremony. His Excellency Earl Grey will be escorted from Rideau Hall by a military escort, and the gathering of the nation's prominent men in the Senate chamber will include the Lieutenant-Governors of Ontario and Quebec.

In reference to the prospective legislation for the session the naval defence bill will, of course, hold first place, and the speech will note that the proposed legislation for the organization of a Canadian navy will be based on the resolution unanimously adopted by Parliament last March and on the advice of the British Admiralty.

Jailed For Defending Jews.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 11.—M. Gillerson, a leading attorney of this city, was yesterday condemned to a year's imprisonment in a fortress because of a speech which he delivered on June 22, 1908, at the trial of the participators in the Jewish massacre at Bialystok. Gillerson appeared at this trial as counsel for friends and relatives of the Jewish victims, of whom 73 were killed and 62 wounded. The indictment charged that in his speech in court he had irrelevantly introduced arguments which incited the workmen against the Government.

King Thanks Daughters of Empire.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Mrs. Nordheimer of Toronto, president of the Imperial Order, Daughters of Empire, who is in Ottawa, for the opening of Parliament, cabled the congratulations of the Order to His Majesty the King Tuesday. The following reply was received yesterday from Sandringham, Eng.: "The King thanks the president and members of the Imperial Order, Daughters of Empire, for their loyal congratulations."

His Comment.

"This preacher," remarked Mrs. Snarle, "declares that he will never again marry a fool or an idiot."

"He'll starve to death, then," commented Mr. Snarle, "if he depends on marriage fees for his living."—New Orleans Item.

Taking Steps Too Great.

Paris, Nov. 11.—At the conclusion of the Steinheil case, Minister of Justice Barton will propose certain change of procedure in the trial courts of France. This decision was influenced largely by censure in England and America of the French methods now in vogue, through the operation of which the presiding judge appears in the role of prosecutor.

It is unlikely, however, that any effort will be made to abolish the general method of court procedure in all the latin countries, through which the examining magistrate in an exhaustive preliminary investigation collects testimony often not strictly admissible under Anglo-Saxon rules of evidence, upon which the state establishes its case against the accused.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Cables Firm—East Buffalo Market Fairly Steady.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 10.—(Special.)—At the Canadian Pacific live stock market this morning offerings were 1300 cattle, 800 sheep, 500 lambs, 1200 hogs and 300 calves. An easy feeling prevailed for cattle, and especially so for the lower grades, owing to the continued liberal supplies coming forward. A large percentage of the stock offered consisted of northwest ranchers, of which several carloads were sold at 5½c per lb., but these only averaged 950 lbs. each, while carloads of heavier stock brought 4½c, and 5¾c was bid for round lots of others, and refused. The supply was in excess of requirements, but a fair trade was done, considering the mild weather and the heavy run of stock earlier in the week. A few choice steers sold as high as 5c, but the bulk sold at 4¾c to 4¾c, with good at 4c to 4¼c, and medium at 3½c to 3¾c per lb. Cows brought from 3c to 4c, and bulls were 1c per lb. lower, at 2½c to 3½c, while canners sold at 1½c to 1¾c per lb. Owing to continued heavy supplies of sheep and lambs, prices have declined ½c per lb. There was an active demand, as dealers have commenced to put them away in cold storage. Sales of sheep were made at 3½c, and lambs at 5½c per lb. The demand for calves was good, with offerings fair, and sales were made at from $3 to $18 each. Hog supplies were larger, and demand good from packers, and prices ruled steady, with sales of selected lots from west of Toronto at $8.75, and from east of Toronto at $8.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Nov. 11.—The steamer Isaac L. Ellwood rammed the upper gate of the Poe Lock in the Sault Canal yesterday, demolishing the south leaf of the gate and placing the big boat out of commission. Two steamers and two barges in the lock were undamaged.

Capt. Cummings of the Ellwood declares that he signalled his engineer to back the engines, but that instead he went at full speed ahead. The Canadian lock can with some delay take care of traffic during the rest of the season.

CATHOLIC SOCIETIES ASSIST IN PAYING FOR THE NEW CHURCH

St. Peter's T. A. S. Make Gift of Main Altar and Memorial Windows are Presented by Other Organizations.

TAKES PLACE TO-NIGHT

The members of St. Peter's T. A. S. will meet in St. Peter's School hall to-night to present an illuminated cheque for $1,100 to His Lordship Bishop O'Connor, representing the Society's gift of the large altar in the new church. At the same time the ladies of the Sodality will present a cheque for $150, the cost of their memorial window in the church. Both societies are expected to be largely represented.

The C.M.B.A. and Catholic Order of Foresters, it is learned, will also present cheques for windows which were their gifts.

The cheque the T. A. S. is presenting is a handsome piece of work and when it is passed at the Bank of Ottawa will be returned and framed.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

THE TOM MARKS CO.

"That Irish Boarder" a very funny comedy, gave the Tom Marks Company another capital opportunity of demonstrating their versatility at the Grand last evening and the talented company increased the firmness of their hold upon local theatre-goers. Mr. Marks himself was at his best in the requirements of the title role and he was capably supported by his cast. It was one of the best offerings the company has given on its present visit to the Grand. New specialties were presented between acts with the result that there was something moving during the whole three hours of the performance.

There was a very large matinee audience yesterday afternoon when the comedy drama "Because She Loved Him So," was presented successfully.

Amateur night to-morrow night after the regular performance, promises to attract the biggest crowd of the week. A large number of local amateurs are after the $5 gold piece offered by the management, and even the fear of "the hook," will not deter them from making their debut before the footlights.

To-night the Marks Company will present the favourite comedy drama, "Under Southern Skies."

The Saturday offering will be "Jerry the Tramp," into which Buster Brown and his dog Tige will be introduced.

SIGNALS OF DISTRESS

Peterborough People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress.

The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful.

Backache is constant day and night

Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help.

Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Mrs. Geo. Hawes, of 857 Water St., Peterborough, Ont., says:

"I suffered for some time with many painful and annoying symptoms of kidney trouble, and, although I had tried many remedies and doctors, I found little or no relief. My back was weak and a dull bearing-down pain had settled across the small of it and extended into my shoulders, and around my sides. I was weak and languid and the least exertion would tire me out. Dizzy spells were frequent and often I would awake with a severe headache. I tried Booth's Kidney Pills through an advertisement at McDermid and Jury's Pharmacy, and soon found them to benefit me. I continued their use and in a comparatively short time I was as well and strong as ever, and without a symptom of the painful and long standing disease."

Sold by dealers. Price 50 cents. The E. T. Booth Co., L't'd., Fort Erie, Ont., Sole Canadian Agents.

HARD LABOUR FOR SUFFRAGETTES

London, Nov. 11.—Alice Paul and Amelia Brown, the window-smashing suffragettes, were yesterday sentenced each to one month at hard labour. Both are members of the Mrs. Emmaline Pankhurst organization.

During the banquet at Guild Hall in honour of the King's birthday last night stones were thrown through a window of the dining hall, the crash of glass startling the company and interrupting the speech of the Lord Mayor. The affair proved to be a suffragette demonstration, and the two offenders were arrested.

CUSTOMS DOUBLED

Receipts for October Practically 100 Per Cent. Better Than Same Month Last Year.

The Customs returns for October were practically double last year's showing for the same month. The receipts for October, 1908, were $14,-684.43, and at the end of October this year $28,797.73 was the grand total for the month. The figures give an idea of what the conditions were a year ago and the increase of nearly 100 per cent. will be an encouragement to everyone.

RETURNED FROM DEER HUNT

Mr. R. J. Soden has returned from a most successful deer hunt in the Parry Sound district, bringing with him two fine deer as proof of his shooting ability. Mr. Soden was a member of a Midland party of ten who are hunting on the North Magnetawan River. He stated to the Examiner to-day that the deer were very plentiful in that district, and that he had no trouble in securing his complement of venison. The party had secured twelve deer on Saturday night and expected to get the balance of the twenty allowed them before the rest of the party returned this week.

FOUND A KEG IN BACKYARD

Blacklisted Man Fined for the Third Time in Police Court This Morning—Told of Finding a Keg of Whiskey and He Drank From It.

HE PLEADED GUILTY

For the third time since being placed on the black list, a well known young man was fined this morning for a breach of the liquor license act. He appeared before Magistrate Dumble and pleaded guilty to having been drunk on Saturday, October 30th. Mr. G. N. Gordon was present in the interests of the accused, who was fined ten dollars and costs, amounting to $11.15. He also pleaded guilty to using profane language on the public streets on the same day and was fined two dollars and costs, amounting to $5.75.

When put in the box to tell where he got his liquor, the defendant told a remarkable story of finding a keg containing about five gallons of whiskey at the rear of the Commercial hotel. It had not been opened, but by driving a nail in it he made an opening sufficiently large to let out his favourite beverage. A cup, he said, was lying beside the keg, which he admitted he used freely.

"How many hotels keep a keg in the back yard for the benefit of the "Indian list men?" asked His Worship.

"Well you know this was Hallowe'en," Mr. Gordon jocularly replied.

Inspector Stewart intimated that he intended making a full investigation into the matter.

ART ASSOCIATION

Miss McCrae's Address a Feature of Tuesday's Meeting.

A most interesting and enjoyable meeting of the Peterborough Art Association was held Tuesday afternoon in the Bank of Montreal board room, when a large number were present. The feature of the afternoon was the address by Miss McCrae of the Normal School staff on "Why Art is Taught in Our Schools." She spoke for about half an hour and proved very interesting. A number of exhibitions of drawings were shown including some representing a child's conception of celebrating the King's birthday. Miss McCrae explained that she had told the scholars that yesterday was the King's birthday, and for them to draw a picture representing the same. The pupils were those who had been at school since September last.

The speaker then laid special stress upon the lecture to be given by Miss Antone Stolle, of Boston, on Nov. 26th, in the Collegiate Assembly Hall. This lecture will be illustrated by a number of coloured lantern slides.

SHAKESPEARE'S LOVE

Methodist Divine Expresses a Few Individual Ideas.

Albany, N.Y., November 11.—Bishop William A. Quayle, of Oklahoma City, who is here to attend the annual conference of the general committee of foreign missions, which ed an interesting lecture last night formally opens to-morrow, delivered at the First Methodist church. Among the other things he said:

"I have never been in the theatre in my life and I do not expect to be in one in the late to come. Shakespeare was in love with every woman he met. The test of character of every man and woman is how they treat their inferior. There is not a heart in the world that does not want to love and be loved. The only honourable occupation in this world is loving.

"The fewer sorrows people have the more they think they have. I do not believe God sends trouble. Nine-tenths of the divorces would never take place if the principals in them smiled at the right time. The man who argues with his wife has not been long married. I would like to have hold of a fellow who wrote that book called Geometry. Some people cannot see a joke. The only persons who do not have fun are corpses."

THE REAL TEST.

Of Herpicide Is In Giving It a Thorough Trial.

There is only one test by which to judge of the efficiency of any article and that is by its ability to do that which it is intended to do. Many hair vigors may look nice and smell nice, but the point is—do they eradicate Dandruff and stop falling hair.

No, they do not, but Herpicide does, because it goes to the root of the evil and kills the germ that attacks the papilla from whence the hair gets its life.

Letters from prominent people everywhere are daily proving that Newbro's Herpicide stands the "test of use."

It is a delightful dressing, clear, pure and free from oil or grease.

THE EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN

KNOX CHURCH.

There was a fine meeting in Knox church last night and an attendance which is very encouraging. It is evident that there is an increase in power from evening to evening and last evening many felt the refreshing. The climax was reached when the pastor, Mr. Keith, in the stillness that might be felt, asked as all heads were bowed that all should subscribe with their hand unto the Lord items dedicating themselves to the Lord Jesus Christ. Almost the whole congregation responded, among whom were a goodly number whose act was the proclamation that they had come unto the light and had for the first time given themselves to Jesus..

The address of Dr. Farquharson was a warm and earnest appeal for an open and frank confession of Jesus. His text was, "Whosover, therefore shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father, which is in heaven, and whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father, which is in heaven." He pressed the claim that there are no Christians who do not show it. There are Christians outside the recognized church, but none whose new life is invisible. Life cannot exist without expression any more than fire can exist without heat and light. Try to hide it, curtail its expression to ever various limits and the candle is snuffed out, the life dies. Even if you could seal up a soul that no light would come from it all through life, if you could give it as it were a through ticket to heaven, what would be the use of it? A soldier who never turned up in the day of battle would be useless to his king or country. The speaker drew a vivid picture of the heroes who at the field of Waterloo stood in the face of such stern work and he appealed to all present to take their place in the ranks of the mighty host, which was mustering under their leader to do His work, fight His battles and manifest His spirit.

There will be another meeting this evening, when the subject will be "The River of the Water of Life." It is hoped and expected that the interest will go on increasing to the end and that through these services a rich refreshing will be received.

ST. ANDREW'S.

There was a very large meeting at St. Andrew's Church last night to hear Rev. Mr. Atkinson deliver his special sermon to men in middle life. The male choir was present again, and rendered an excellent programme of music.

Rev. Mr. Atkinson spoke from Acts 4:23. The man was about 40 years old on whom this miracle of healing was wrought. The speaker described the mid-life as being the plateau of life. Youth was the ascent, old age the descent. Between these extremes the level of the years.

This period was characterized by fixity of habit, monotony of habit, and a decline of spiritual vision. The danger of this period lay in the immobility of character. Men were not moved by passion or devotion. The sins of middle life were not those of passion but of deliberation. Along with this was often found a decline of faith. The things that are temporal and material submerge the eternal and spiritual. The remedy for these subtle and quiet dangers is the friendship of Jesus Christ, whose spirit keeps alive and increases the cause of faith and hope and love.

Many a man has been wrecked on the reef at forty. A hidden danger unseen beneath the surface of the quiet seas of mid life. Then as in every other time the controlling influence of Christ is needed in the life.

On Friday afternoon at 1.15 o'clock a meeting for children will be held in St. Paul's church.

The closing meetings in all the churches will be held on Friday night.

S. PAULS.

Those interested in the success of the Evangelistic services are greatly pleased with the steady increase in number and interest in the services at St. Paul's. Last night there was a splendid attendance and evident deep interest. Mr. McIlroy sang in excellent voice, "I heard the voice of Jesus say." Mr. MacBeth's subject last evening was from the 2nd chapter of the Acts where the people moved by the great scenes of Pentecost cried out to the Apostles, "Men and brethren what shall we do?" The speaker said that the outpouring of the Spirit at Pentecost was evidence for the fact that Jesus had reached the Heavenly Home because He had promised to send the Spirit when He would return to the place of glory, Pentecost with its spiritual blessing in abundance was not a special but a specimen day for the Church and we ought to expect such blessing whenever we come with one accord into one place. The question of the text implies an awakened and anxious state of mind., The people saw others awakened and rejoicing and they cried out in eagerness looking for the same joy and life. God had done His part and they wished to know what they should do to get the blessing. So it is to-day. God had done all He can do for us whose wills are left free. He will not coerce or force us and hence we must set ourselves or be lost. God has revealed Himself, he has shown us our sins in their reality by the light of conscience and the Bible. He has shown us that "the wages of sin is death," but He has always shown us that we can have the salvation He grants in Jesus Christ. In answer to the cry of the people, Peter said: "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Repentance was more than mere sorrow for wrong doing that had been unveiled, it was grief over it and a determination to stop sinning. Christ would help us to conquer sin if we were in earnest. The coming into the church, as Peter said, would be a source of strength to men in their fight against sin. We did not join a church because we were good enough, but because we were bad enough to need all the help we could get. Let us avail ourselves of the refreshment from the wells of salvation so that we can continue without fainting on the journey of life.

Mr. Pogue announced the meeting for boys and girls on Friday at 4.15 to which all who come are welcomed. There will be some special hymns for the young.

Only two evening meetings remain of the Mission, Thursday and Friday evenings, and a large attendance is looked for.

CANADA LED WORLD'S TRADE

Increase During Past Decade Much Greater Than Increase in Other Countries With Exception of Argentine.

JAPAN IN THIRD PLACE

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—During the decade from 1898 to 1908 Canada led the world, with the exception of Argentina in comparative increase in trade. During the preceding decade from 1897 to 1907, Canada ranked third in respect to trade growth, Argentina in comparative increase in now ranks third. This is the most interesting fact brought out in the annual report of the Trade and Commerce Department, just issued. For the last fiscal year the statistics of trade, as already stated, show a falling off of $67,916,284, as compared with the preceding year. The Deputy Minister, in his report, lays stress on the fact that this decrease was almost wholly in imports, the decline in exports being only $3,446,586. Compared with other nations, Canadian trade figures for the year show that the financial depression was felt much less severely here than elsewhere.

FEW DOSES PUT BAD KIDNEYS IN ORDER

Lame Back, Bladder Misery and all Other Kidney Disorders Vanish.

Usually sufferers from backache, bladder trouble or out-of-order kidneys feel relieved after several doses of Pape's Diuretic.

Misery in the back, sides, or loins, sick headache, inflamed or swollen eyelids, nervousness, rheumatism, and darting pains, heart palpitations, dizziness, sleeplessness, listless, worn-out feeling, and other symptoms of inactive, sluggish kidneys simply vanish.

Uncontrollable urination (especially at night) smarting, discoloured water and all Bladder misery ends.

Feeling miserable and worried is needless because this unusual preparation goes at once to the out-of-order Kidneys and Bladder, distributing its cleansing, healing and vitalizing influence directly upon the organs and glands affected, and completes the cure before you realize it. The moment you suspect any Kidney or Urinary derangement, or feel rheumatic pains, begin taking this harmless medicine, with the knowledge that there is no other remedy, at any price, made anywhere els in the world, which will effect so thorough and prompt a cure as a fifty-cent treatment of Pape's Diuretic, which any druggist can supply.

Your physician, pharmacist, banker or any mercantile agency will tell you that Pape, Thompson & Pape, of Cincinnati, is a large and responsible medicine concern, thoroughly worthy of your confidence.

Only curative results can come from taking Pape's Diuretic and a few days' treatment will make any one feel fine.

ST. THOMAS TO HAVE CIVIC PLANT TO SUPPLY STEAM AND HOT WATER

Will Prove Itself a Pioneer in Novel Scheme Which Engineer Bell is Now Endeavouring to Perfect — Was Talked of in Peterborough at one Time.

THE CIRCUMSTANCES

St. Thomas, November 11.—This city, which prides itself upon its ownership of public utilities, bids fair in the near future to operate another and somewhat new and advanced system of public service, which will be as great, if not a greater revenue producer, than the water works department. The city also owns and operates its street railway, but it is not a revenue producer, but a loser to the extent of from $6,000 to $10,000 per year. But under new conditions, the completion of the subway in Rose street, the cutting out of dead ends, and providing a more expeditious service to the city's playgrounds, Pinafore Park, and a better service in the business portion of the city, will ultimately also be a paying proposition.

The new utility is the heating of public buildings, stores and residences by steam or hot water, as may suit the consumers. About four years ago, City Engineer Bell suggested to the council that the exhaust steam from the heat, light and power department could be used to advantage to heat the city hall. The heating of the municipal building cost $900 per year and being heated by hot water a controller was put in the H. L. and P. works and the steam reduced to hot water.

This proved so satisfactory that the Carnegie Library Building, the heating of which cost $600 per year, was also included in the service, with the result that in less than a year the plant had paid for itself. Then citizens became interested and applications for municipal heating came in until it was impossible to grant all requests.

However, contracts were entered into to heat the new Locomotive Engineers' building, the Columbia hotel and a block of stores and buildings within a radius of two blocks either side of the Light and Power works.

So many applications have been received for municipal heating that a special committee under the direction of City Engineer Bell has been appointed to prepare plans and to make an estimate of extending mains throughout the city so that all who may desire to have their premises heated by the municipal plant can do so.

It is the intention to provide steam, and where buildings or residences are equipped for hot water heating, controllers will have to be put in to reduce the steam to hot water. It is the belief that this new departure in municipal utility will prove even more profitable than either the water or light, heat and power department.

Chief Engineer Bell, who is the promoter of the new utility, was born in Middlesex in 1851, and passed a civil engineer in 1875, and has followed his profession in this city since 1876. Mr. Bell was one of two engineers who in 1885 superintended the construction of the Cantilever Bridge for the Michigan Central Railway over the Niagara River. He designed the waterworks system in this city, Tilbury, Aylmer, Milton, Paris and other places.

ITEM WELCOMED BY MANY MEN

This recipe can be filled at home, so that no one need know of another's troubles, as the ingredients can be obtained separately at any well-stocked drug store. They are in regular use and many different prescriptions are constantly being filled with them.

This will prove a welcome bit of information for all those who are overworked, gloomy, despondent, nervous, and have trembling limbs, heart palpitation, dizziness, cold extremities, insomia, fear without cause, timidity in venturing and general inability to act naturally and rationally as others do, because the treatment can be prepared secretly at home and taken without any one's knowledge.

Overworked office men and the many victims of society's late hours and dissipation will, it is said, find the restorative they are in need of.

If the reader decides to try it, get three ounces of ordinary syrup sarsaparilla compound and one ounce compound fluid balmwort; mix and let stand two hours then get one ounce compound essence cardiol and one ounce tincture cadomene compound (not cardamom), mix all together, shake well and take a teaspoonful after each meal and one when retiring.

A certain well-known medical expert asserts that thousands of men and many women are sufferers all because of dormant circulation of the blood and a consequential impairment of the nervous force, which begets the most dreadful symptoms and untold misery.

VOICE OF A GREAT NEED

The resolution which was unanimously carried by the City Council, Board of Trade and representative Citizens' meeting, November 9th, is as follows:

Moved by Mr. Daniel O'Connell, seconded by Mr. D. Hughes Charles:

WHEREAS the present rapid development of Canada must necessarily result in increasing the number and magnitude of the manufacturing industries of the Province of Ontario; and

WHEREAS it is apparent that it is only such municipalities as adopt energetic and effective means of bringing their advantages to the notice of the manufacturing public, that are likely to procure their proper share of such industries; and

WHEREAS the City of Peterborough possesses in an exceptionally high degree, local and natural advantages, resulting from its geographical position, railway facilities and water power; and

WHEREAS it is imperative, in the best interests of the city, and necessary for its future progress, that proper and effective means be adopted, at once, to lead to a comprehensive and clear understanding of the extent and value of these advantages, and to have them utilized in such a way, as will tend to promote the future industrial development of the city;

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, at this meeting of the citizens of Peterborough, called at the instance of the Board of Trade that it is the opinion of this meeting, that effective and energetic means should be forthwith taken by the Municipal Council of the City of Peterborough to promote the industrial interests of this city, and that the services of a competent and efficient officer be procured, who will devote his whole time and energy in acquiring knowledge of the peculiar advantages possessed by this city in consulting and advising with the Municipal Council respecting the same, and in promoting and in advancing the industrial welfare and interests of the city generally, and that proper funds be placed at his disposal for efficiently carrying out the objects of his appointment, and for the purpose of defraying his salary and expenses, provision be made by such additional levy as may be necessary, which in our opinion would be covered by half a mill on the dollar.

WEST MIDDLESEX IN LINE.

The courage of Mr. Duncan Ross, M.P.P., in resigning his seat for West Middlesex in the Legislature, to contest the Federal seat, is amply justified by the result. Yesterday he was elected by a majority of 155, This does not indicate much of a slump in popularity of the Laurier government. At the general elections in 1908, Mr. Calvert, a strong and popular candidate, got a majority of only 12. One significant feature of the result is that the naval policy of the government, founded upon the unanimous sentiment of Parliament, was advanced as a prominent issue. The anti-naval candidate was a farmer appealing to a class which we are told is hostile to Canada contributing to her own, and incidentally to imperial, defence. Mr. Ross will will make a good member and a worthy representative of one of the most advanced constituencies in Canada.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSIONER.

When Macbeth was "bending up each corporal agent to the terrible feat" of murdering King Duncan he clinched his resolution with these words:

> Whiles I threat he lives,
> Words to the heat of deeds too cold breath gives.

He acted and Duncan died. This is a lesson in connection with the admirable resolution unanimously adopted at the joint meeting of the Board of Trade, City Council and citizens on the King's Birthday. Nothing could be more admirable, more public spirited and marked by local patriotism than the discussion which took place. It was evident that the spirit of the meeting, the conjoint wisdom and enterprise of the important gathering were crystallized in the resolution that stands at the head of this column. To resolve is great, to do is greater. A nail is driven home because the energy behind it is concentrated in its point.

The point of the resolution is acting upon it. No good whatever will result if the resolution and all it involves is not applied. There has been too much folding of hands, too much resting on our oars already. The strokes should be hailed upon the iron while it is hot.

The City Council and Board of Trade have done well in combining and cooperating with citizens to reach the point gained. They will do better in taking immediate action. Before the snow flies a live Industrial Commissioner should be appointed and in harness. Thus the first and most important step towards the Greater Peterborough will have been taken.

The qualifications of such a commissioner—business ability, energy, push and go, tempered with sound judgment and discretion are easily patent. The selection of such an official will engage the patriotism and wisdom of the appointing body.

The only object to be aimed at is to secure the best man for the position, irrespective of every other consideration. He must not be chosen because he is a friend of any of the powers that be; one's own brother has no claim unless he can "fill the bill; that should be the only consideration.

The selection of a commissioner largely carries with it the immediate industrial future of Peterborough. Everybody recognizes the great need of such an official, if we are to keep, even level with rival towns and cities, not to speak of outstripping them in the race as we are qualified to do.

When we shall have selected the best possible available man our work is not done—only begun. The commissioner must be backed, helped, aided, encouraged by the forces that resolved upon his appointment—by the Board of Trade, by the City Council, and by public-spirited citizens. The Amalekites were smitten with the edge of the sword at Rephidim, because Aaron and Hur held up the hands of Moses as he prayed. If we select a capable commissioner, if we hold up his hands, he will do good work.

One way of upholding the hands of an industrial commissioner, is to provide him with the larger means. Our power to attract manufacturers consists of cheap power. An extension of our power resources provides work for our city authorities. We have, for the present, plenty of power, but if we back up bravely the capable commissioner we shall appoint—if he is worth his salt—he will succeed in exhausting our presently available power. If a commissioner cannot offer power he will be powerless.

Therefore, it is plain that the appointment of a live industrial commissioner, gives us no warrant to fold our hands and look at him work. We must stand by him; must act with him; we must provide him the ammunition, if we expect him to bring down the game.

The resolution is an admirable thing, a noble thing in print, but it must, to be worth a straw, be translated into action.

Let us act at once.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

One form of local option, nobody will oppose—local option on sites for new industries.

France is alarmed over its decreasing birth rate. It should take a leaf out of Quebec's book.

Who dares say that the Conservative Opposition has no policy? It has policies to burn—individual and sectional policies.

The London Suffragettes were not willing to see through a glass, darkly. They smashed the Lord Mayor's windows and two of the stone throwers got a month in jail at hard labour.

Special efforts are being made by the Dominion immigration officials to attract more Welshmen to Canada. The propaganda will be welcome if the men are anything like so sweet and attractive as the Welsh girls we had charm us with comeliness and musical culture the other night.

France has been for years anxiously concerned about her decreasing birth rate. The vital statistics for the first six months of the current year, which have just been published by the French Government, give ground for increase of that uneasiness. During the first half of 1909 there has been an excess of deaths over births amounting to 28,205, as against a similar excess of 10,508 during the same period last year. It is not to be wondered at that the decrease of population is causing alarm.

It is claimed by the little Canadian element of the Conservative party that Canada has no need of a navy, for the Monroe doctrine of the United States protects us from all danger of foreign invasion. The friendship of the United States, as expressed in its fiscal attitude towards Canada is dependent upon interest. They might protect Canada from foreign invasion—prevent any foreign power from seizing the plum the United States would steer towards its watering mouth if interest suggested; interest, or an isolation, that would make success possible. Appeal to, or reliance upon the Monroe doctrine by Canada, is a bid for imperial detachment. When we cease to identify ourselves with imperial interests, we become isolated and a prey to the most powerful.

THIS IS OUR CENTURY.

During the decade from 1898 to 1908 Canada led the world, with the exception of Argentina, in comparative increase in trade. During the preceding decade, from 1897 to 1907, Canada ranked third in respect to trade growth, Argentina first and Japan second. Japan now ranks third. This is the most interesting fact brought out in the annual report of the Trade and Commerce Department, issued on Wednesday. For the last fiscal year the statistics of trade, as already stated, show a falling off of $67,916,284, as compared with the preceding year. The Deputy Minister, in his report, lays stress on the fact that this decrease was almost wholly in imports, the decline in exports being only $3,446,586. Compared with other nations, Canadian trade figures for the year show that the financial depression was felt much less severely here than elsewhere.

"TAY PAY'S" MESSAGE.

Canadians may not have the pleasure of seeing and hearing Mr. T. P. O'Connor, M.P., during his present visit to America. However, he sends this message to the Canadian people:

"I love Canada; its beautiful soil, its kindly people, and its atmosphere of comfort, liberty and order. The future belongs to it, as Laurier put it, 'The Twentieth century is the century of Canada.' I may not be able to visit Canada this trip, but I shall visit it again whenever I get the opportunity. I send through you my greetings and handshake to the many good friends I have there; notably, your great Prime Minister, who is in agreement with the views of my party; to Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, who has added so much honour to his race; to D'Arcy Scott, my good friend and host; to M. J. Haney, also my friend and host; and, above all the others, to Edward Blake, Canada's finest mind, and one of the world's noblest characters."

FACT AND FICTION.

Simultaneously with the anti-Borden insurrection in Quebec, led by Mr. Monk, comes this intelligence from the Toronto News, anent the naval question:

"There is no lack of rumour with respect to the position of individual members of the cabinet. One hears of discontent, of vigorous objection. Certainly the cabinet's decision was not unanimous. There are signs also of uneasiness amongst the Liberal contingent from Quebec. Occasional mutterings are heard also from other districts. Sir Wilfrid Laurier will require all his diplomacy to unite the factions of his party in support of this naval policy. . . . . The Opposition will agree as to the importance of organizing a Canadian navy."

Here is the London Advertiser's correction version of the facts:

"There is no mistaking the position of individual members of the Opposition. One hears of discontent, of open rebellion. Certainly the Opposition are divided and distracted. Mr. Borden's French-Canadian lieutenant has raised the flag of mutiny in Quebec. Premier Roblin of Manitoba is heading a revolt in the west, aided by Mr. Magrath, of Medicinne Hat, and Mr. Herron, of South Alberta. Mr. Borden will require all his diplomacy to unite the factions in his party in support of his naval policy. . . . . The supporters of the Government in Parliament will probably be unanimous as to the importance of organising a Canadian navy."

ASK WM. MADILL

Parisian Sage, the Hair Grower, is Now Sold in Canada on Money Back Plan.

It's a mighty good thing for the women of Canada that Parisian Sage can now be obtained in every town of consequence.

No preparation for the hair has done so much to stop falling hair and eradicate dandruff and make women's hair beautiful as Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is the only certain destroyer of the dandruff microbe which is the cause of 97 per cent. of hair troubles.

These pernicious, persistent and destructive little devils thrive on the ordinary hair tonics.

Parisian Sage is such an extraordinary and quick acting rejuvenator that Wm. Madill, who is the agent in Peterborough guarantees it to cure dandruff, stop falling hair and itching scalp in two weeks or money back.

It is a magnificent dressing for women who desire luxuriant, lustrous hair that compels admiration.

And a large bottle of Parisian Sage costs only 50 cents at Wm. Madill's, and all over Canada.

Play-Off Is Expected To Be Rougher Than The Last Game

Ottawa Players Determined to Mix Matters With Tigers---Stronach Very Bitter Over Treatment of Referee ---Prides Himself on Playing Clean Game--Ottawa Side of Story.

Ottawa, Nov. 10.—Counting on a sawoff, the members of the Ottawa football team will resume practice to-morrow and Thursday afternoon, and play an exhibition game with the intermediates Saturday. The first four days of next week will be devoted to practice, arrangements having been made to get all the men off work at 2.30 in the afternoon.

A special meeting of the club was held last night and as a result vigorous efforts will be made to have the game played off in Montreal if there is a saw-off. It will be the executive of the union that will decide where the game will be played.

The bitterest feeling exists among the Ottawa players over the manner in which they were handled in Hamilton last Saturday, and unless pressure can be brought to bear by wiser heads, the saw-off is apt to be even more rough house than last Saturday, says the Free Press. The Ottawa players declare they went to Hamilton with the intention of playing clean football and were following out that policy till the attack was made on Stronach in the second quarter. When he fell on the ball Moore fumbled, half the Tiger team piled on top of him, and he was kicked in the head three times. This feature appears to have been entirely overlooked by newspapers outside of Ottawa, and the fact that the big Scotsman was unconscious at half time and played in the second half in a dazed state shows how badly he was injured. All the players are bruised up, McCann suffering from a kick in the head after he had rouged. The feeling runs high in Ottawa, and no matter where the play-off is an enormous delegation will be taken from the capital to see the team is given a fair shake.

Stronach is reported to have announced he would never play football again after the manner in which he was handled by both the Tiger players and the referee last Saturday. Stronach is one of those fellows who prides himself on his clean work on the field, and has taken the penalty Hendry unjustly gave him greatly to heart. Perhaps he can be persuaded to take part in just one more game, and have the satisfaction of assisting in beating the team from Hamilton.

There is no doubt Hamilton is shouting "dirty Ottawa" to cover up their own rough house tactics. Simpson was roughly handled, so were all the Ottawa backs. Johnstone, Christie and McCann were stretched cold during the game, but not a word to that effect was heard through the Hamilton or Toronto papers. Every time Simpson was thrown there was an awful yell put up by the crowd. That Hamilton team can play football, but they carry off the medals for squealing as well. The Hamilton papers boldly announced early in the week that the Ottawa players would be roughly handled, showing conclusively the whole affair was premeditated. Now they are squealing at their own tactics. It is a safe prediction that the Tiger players will not put up on neutral grounds the way they did in the presence of their own cohorts. Up till Saturday they have always been regarded as a model crowd of athletes. Some of them still carry that reputation, but Marriott and three or four others lost cast on Saturday.

SMOKER OF THE HOCKEY CLUB TO BE HELD TO-NIGHT

The annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club will be held to-night at 8 o'clock in the Oriental Hotel parlours, when the first arrangements for the coming season will be made. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of hockey in Peterborough to be present to help boom the game this winter. The meeting will take the form of a smoker, and in addition to the regular business will be featured by the presentation of sweaters to last year's juniors and coat sweaters to the seniors as a token of recognition of their services to the club last season.

Hockey will boom in Peterborough this winter. The enthusiasm has already commenced to simmer and before Jack Frost sets his seal of approval on the game things will be red-hot. There is every reason to expect that Peterborough will have two strong teams in the junior and intermediate series of the O. H. A. Material there is in plenty and every effort will be made to carry off a championship or two.

Every lover of the game should be out to-night and help to start the ball rolling.

DETROIT TIGERS THREATENED WITH JAIL IF THEY HAD QUIT

Silk O'Loughlin, the well-known American League umpire, formerly of the Eastern League, arrived in Havana on Monday, to umpire the remaining games of the Detroit Tigers in Cuba.

The Tigers claimed to have been up against very bad umpiring, and, welcomed "Silk" with great demonstrations of joy. The most unusual feature of Sunday's game happened in the third innings, when the local umpire allowed a batter to go to first base on a balk.

It was too much for the Tigers and they declined to continue the game unless the man behind the plate could interpret the code a la United States. Finally the tourists began picking up their hats, telling Mr. Umpire that all was over between them.

But there was to be another chapter to the story. Enter the dusky Havana police force with an ultimatum that unless Matty McIntyre et al continue the game the whole outfit would be arrested and taken to jail. Here was a stunner! On the one hand the prospect of playing against the handicap of comedy umpiring, on the other the certainty of passing the night in the bastile.

PETERBOROUGH TEAM TO PLAY PARKDALE ON SATURDAY

The Peterborough Rugby Club will finish the season on Saturday when they play the last game of the O. R. F. U. series in Toronto against the Parkdale Canoe Club. The locals did not expect to have to make the Toronto trip as it was thought that Parkdale would prefer to call the game off in order to play off the tie with T.A.A.C. and get rid of that contest before the play-off in the Interprovincial. However Secretary Craig received a letter from Parkdale this morning notifying the Peterborough club that they expected them on Saturday and the locals will therefore as a matter of fairness have to send a team to Toronto. The strongest line-up available will be sent to Toronto to play the final game.

Frank Gotch Given Notice Of Claim For Breach Of Promise

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Before entering the ring to wrestle for the world's championship with Giovanni Raccvitch to-night Frank A. Gotch, holder of the title, was served with a summons in a suit brought by Miss Addie Currie, who accuses the wrestler of failing to keep his promise to marry her. She asks $25,000 damages.

Miss Currie, pretty, unsophisticated and 21, formerly lived in St. Paul with her parents, but for the last year she has been living in Chicago. According to William K. Pattison, her attorney, Miss Currie met Gotch in Minneapolis. He said he had a number of letters bearing on the alleged suit. While he was not entirely familiar with all the facts of the case, the suit being somewhat hurriedly filed in order to be served on Gotch. Mr. Pattison said Miss Currie had been deeply humiliated and injured by the failure of Gotch to marry her.

Gotch's New Job.

Frank Gotch, the champion wrestler, who made his first big match appearance in Chicago last night, drops the following interesting little bete to the Buffalo Express:

"Sporting Editor Buffalo Express—Have signed for seven weeks, starting this month, with the Jim Jeffries combination, known as the Big Combination, and am supposed to meet all comers in fifteen-minute bouts. I am provided with a valet, private compartment in a private car and other things too numerous to mention, a la Jack O'Brien. What? For this I receive the small pittance of $3,000 a week. Rather bad, eh, old sport?

Have noted what Zbysco said the other day and as Herman thinks the way he does the match is as good as made. Have received many propositions to wrestle this match in several places about the country. I will break into the combination dates to go through with the match at once, so that I expect my next essay on the carpet will be with the Polish champion.

Will have something important to say on the subject immediately after my match with Racevitch, the big Italian. That comes off to-morrow night in the Coliseum, and, as I need one more good workout, me for the gymnasium.

Regards to all my Buffalo friends and may I see them soon.—Yours truly, FRANK A. GOTCH.

Chicago, Ill., Nov. 9.

NOVEL CURE FOR CATARRHAL ILLS.

Stops Bronchitis, Relieves Hoarseness, Cures Asthma, Prevents Throat Irritation.

The most effective way to treat and cure ailment of the breathing organs is by inhalation.

New as this method is in application, its practice is as old as man. Down from Adam has spread the reputation of the air of the pine woods, charged with balsam and healing for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages.

Yet medical men neglected to employ the natural curative agency for diseases of the throat, lungs and nasal passages until the wonderful results which attended the Catarrhozone dry air method were brought to their notice and compelled attention.

The air of the pine woods, charged with little drops of balsam and ozone, has been enhanced by the Catarrhozone method through the addition of vegetable antiseptics more powerfully healing than the air of the pine woods.

This balsamic and healing vegetable compound is broken up by the air INTO MINUTE PARTICLES so small that the air is enabled to carry them to the remotest parts of the lungs, throat and nasal passages—in fact, it is the air of the pine woods concentrated a thousandfold, and you can have it at home.

FAILURE IS IMPOSSIBLE.

You can now understand why Catarrhozone cures with such certainty. It is medicated air carried to the seat of bronchitic congestion or situation where the micro-organisms which excite asthma or hay fever exert their baneful and dangerous influence.

The air distributes evenly over the entire diseased surfaces a covering of healing Catarrhozone. Immediately congestion is relieved, inflammation is subdued, the microbes which cause the trouble are destroyed, and cure follows as inevitably as the sun follows the night.

THOUSANDS CURED DAILY.

No other medicine has achieved such remarkable success, and to-day not less than twenty thousand physicians in America alone are prescribing Catarrhozone. And why? Simply because they realize that a healing remedy like Catarrhozone which air carries direct to the sore, inflamed membranes is bound to cure every form of Catarrh, all types of bronchitis and throat trouble, and will almost instantly stamp out coughs, colds, sneezing and bronchial deafness.

CATARRHOZONE CURES.

The reputation of Catarrhozone has grown by leaps and bounds. It reaches the diseased spot. It cures speedily. Almost the first use gives such relief in the worst cases that most people cannot understand its action.

Don't experiment longer—Catarrhozone means sure cure. Two months' treatment (guaranteed), price $1.00; smaller size, 50c, at all dealers, or the Catarrhozone Company, Kingston, Ont.

The annual meeting of the Peterborough City Hockey League, has been called by President C. G. Graham for next Wednesday night at 8 o'clock, in the Oriental Hotel parlours, when the election of officers and other arrangements for the season will be made. Every club that intends to enter the League is asked to be represented at this meeting. The coming season promises to be the most successful in the history of the League, and there will likely be some new teams in the running.

SPORT NOTES

Winnipeg may have two professional hockey teams.

Argos may give Tigers the biggest surprise of the year.

Ottawas have an off-day Saturday for the first time in seven weeks.

Hockey salaries will be lower this year unless the H. C. A. expands.

Catcher "Mooney" Gibson has received an offer to go into vaudeville.

Cornwall lacrosse team are still fighting it out for the city championship.

Ban Johnson would banish Johnny Kling from professional baseball forever.

Lawson, of Toronto, is credited with the longest football runs of the season.

The annual meeting of the City Hockey league will be called in a few days.

Tigers will likely be without Art Moore for this week's match against Argos.

Argos defeated Montreal mainly through their big advantage in weight.

Turner, the former Queen's boy, did some great tackling for Tigers against Ottawa.

Dr. Roller offers to wager Frank Gotch $1,000 that he cannot throw him once in an hour.

Ben Simpson said after last week's match that Stuart Christie was one of the best tacklers he had ever tried to dodge. "He's another Stronach," said Ben.

With the E. C. H. A. meeting at Montreal Saturday the hockey season will be inaugurated.

Nelson will not make a try for the Stanley cup unless they get dates in January or February.

Winnipeg Shamrocks have all of last year's men available for their Stanley cup hunting team.

Davie Tope will have to play his best to improve upon the work of Full Back Smith of the Tigers.

Clarke Griffith has picked an all-star ball team, without giving places to Hans Wagner or Tyrus Cobb.

Stuart Christie of the Ottawas is developing one of the very best outside wings in the Interprovincial.

Tigers may play Harvey at centre half on Saturday next and save Ben Simpson for the next match against Ottawa.

Should Argos down the Tigers, Ottawa and Varsity will play for the Canadian championship a week from Saturday.

Many of the Ottawa players say they would take Griffith and Hendry for referees of the saw-off against Hamilton.

Charles A. Murphy, of Chicago is heading a movement to oust Heydler from the presidency of the National Baseball League.

Ten or twelve thousand people will probably witness the saw-off between Ottawas and Tigers should it be played at Toronto.

If Argos and Tigers do not agree on officials for this week's match, the appointments will be made by Tom Clancy, of Ottawa.

Most of the major league ball teams have forbidden their men to play winter ball in the South. They say it makes them stale.

Although its team has been a losing one, the Ottawa University Football club will finish the season with a margin on the good side.

King Clancy expects the Ottawa back players to pull around and play the games of their lives when they next run up against the Tigers.

When Queen's lost to Varsity at Toronto they lost what little chance they had to figure in a tie for the Intercollegiate championship.

Another meeting of representatives of the C.A.A.U. and A.A.F.V. will be held this week to consummate the organization of the A. A. U. of C.

Many Ottawa men had not the slightest intention of betting when they went to Hamilton, but when Hamilton rooters waved greenbacks in their faces they couldn't resist the temptation to make a few friendly wagers.

Mr. H. B. Cowan Treasurer Of Horticultural Association

Mr. H. B. Cowan, of Peterborough, was elected treasurer of the Ontario Horticultural Association yesterday at the anual meeting held in Toronto and was also appointed to the Nomenclature committee.

Mr R B Whyte, of Ottawa, was elected president, to succeed Maj, H. J. Snelgrove, of Cobourg.

In his inaugural address the new president urged the 66 local societies which form the association to unite in a campaign of education, so that the value of more beatuiful parks gardens, and all public places be more fully realized.

The report of the Committee on Nomenclature roused some discussion.

"That word 'Gladiolus' seems to have an American pronunciation, as well as that used here in Canada," said one member. "I think it sounds foolish to hear both pronunciations used in our meetings. Why not stick to the old well-known way? I think the committee should take up a list of these names and decide just how we are to use them."

The idea was strongly supported by many present.

"I have already heard that word 'vase' pronounced three different ways at this meeting," declared one member, "and I don't know which to use. It has been 'vace,' 'vase,' and 'vauze,'"

"It all depends on the price paid for the vase," suggested another member, amid general laughter.

An Increased Grant.

That the work of horticultural societies justifies an increased grant, was the claim made by Rev. A. H. Scott, of Perth. Mr. Scott pointed out that increases had been made in almost every grant given by the Ontario Legislature and urged that the work of the association was of such an uplifting and ennobling nature as to warrant a greater sum being expended by the Government.

"I do not think that the people of Ontario would consider $25,000 too much to give for this work, instead of the $8,000 now granted," declared the speaker. An increase of $5,000 is asked.

Report from district directors showed that no municipal help is given in spite of the fact that the societies are using every effort to beautify the grounds of public buildings, and interest school children in raising plants and bulbs.

Are you getting full benefit of this flawless autumn weather? asks a writer in the Rochester Port.

There is just enough of an edge on the air to make the blood course at the healthiest gait and brace the lungs up for the winter that is to come; "None with a good pair of feet need envy the automobile owner the least bit at such a season as this. The walking was never better, there was never a better time to walk; get busy, if you want to find this a pretty good world to live in after all."

There has been very little rain and no excessive cold. There has been a tang in the air as tonically appealing as the pungent juice of grape-fruit. The first breezes of September brought the dry leaf's rustle—making each leaf a tambourine; the clatter of squirrels, the purple haze on the hills The alchemic winds of October turned the flaming leaves to gold, swept the skies of the cobwebby haze, opened the satin burrs of the chestnuts, burnished the flushing faces of the apples and scattered the white-winged seeds over field and wayside. Then came November—cowled in gray and sober, as befits the custodian of nature's stores, the accountant of the seasons. She is not melancholy nor unduly solemn, however, and Bryant was not quite fair to the pensive maid when he sang:

The melancholy days have come, the saddest of the year,
Of waiting winds, and naked woods, and meadows brown and sere,
Heaped in the hollows of the grove the withered leaves lie dead;
They rustle to the eddy's gust and to the rabbit's tread.

Helen Hunt Jackson's "Down to Sleep," is not so melancholy as "Thanatopsis," and, so far as the first part of the month is concerned, a trifle nearer to the truth:

November woods are bare and still,
November days are clear and bright,
Each noon burns up the morning's chill,
The morning's snow is gone by night,
Each day my steps grow slow, grow light,
As through the woods I reverent creep,
Watching al lthings lie down to sleep.

PEARED PARALYSIS

Mr. F. A. Kruts, Schwarts, Que., writes, "For one year I was a complete nervous wreck, could not rest or sleep, had indigestion and terrible headaches and constantly feared paralysis. Six boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food made me well and strong. There is no treatment in the world so good as this for building up the nervous system."

HAMILTON SPIRIT

Shown in Athletics as Well as Business Affairs—A Stimulant to Peterborough.

That organized band of "rooters" at the Hamilton football game was an influence in deciding the game—but it was more.

The referee has not yet been born who is unafraid of the cheers or the derision of solid banks of noisy supporters of the home team. The enthusiasm and the organized "rooting" of Tiger supporters helped to swing the result. The Ottawa team played the whole city of Hamilton.

But these "rooters" represented a broader and a better idea. They were an illustration of "local patriotism," if you like to call it—the habit of sticking together and "sticking up" for the home town.

That is the "Hamilton idea." That is one of the big factors in Hamilton's commercal and industrial success.

Under the very nose of Toronto—grabbing, selfish, Toronto—they are building up a city, great in its manufactures and in its wholesale and retail trade.

In spite of the one hour ride by rail to the departmental stores of Toronto—in spite of cheap boat fares in summer—Hamilton retail stores would be more than a credit to any city of the size.

An Ottawa man went into a Hamilton store to buy an article made in a dozen different cities in Canada. He was handed one made in Hamilton. The public support the home retailer—the retailer supports the home manfacturer.

Hamilton people have the "Hamilton idea"—loyalty to the home institution, whether it is a retail store, a manufactured article, or a football team.—Ottawa Free Press.

POST CARD COLUMN

Peterborough, Nov. 11.

One of our local school teachers, in speaking of the pupils of the public schools in this city, stated that in many cases the children were sent to school in an excessively dirty state and also went on to say, that he had seen some in a state of neglect productive of disease.

Should the above statement prove true, as we have no doubt it does, is it not time that the schools should be inspected, as regards their sanitary conditions and that of the pupils in attendance. PATER.

Sir,—The complaint about the murder and suicide poster is, of course, quite right. The truer the slander the greater the libel; and we should never speak evil of the dead. But! on account of its illogical reasoning the poster is wrong. We might complain of the sun, if we are sick through having too much heat. Whiskey is a chemical arrangement, composed, as is everything ponderable, of certain elements, which can never be evil, whatever results from man's disregard of the law.

WEDDING BELLS

FRASER—BRADSHAW.

At one o'clock Tuesday the residence of Mr. Frank Greenbank, Lowfields, Asphodel, was the scene of a quiet, but very pretty wedding, when his niece, Miss Alice Lilian Fraser, was united in marriage to Mr. James Henry Bradshaw, the popular west end grocer. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Tucker, Norwood, in the presence of only the immediate relatives.

On their return to Peterborough they will reside in their new home on Bolivar St.

THE BEST HERITAGE

If nervous energy could be secured by a large cash payment, every person would make a big effort to find the money.

By reason of well directed study, assisted by practical experience, a way has been found to supply energy to jaded and overwrought nerves, without its costing a fortune.

Pure fresh air, exercise, and eating the simplest foods will produce this desired result.

Among foods for human consumption none contain the necessary elements to sustain life in greater quantities than milk and wheat.

Orange Meat which is made from the whole wheat, thoroughly steam cooked, malted, flaked and toasted, contains the necessary elements to sustain life in greater proportions than any other cereal.

ORANGE MEAT and milk is a perfect food.

REAL PRINTERS MAKE DEBUT IN STAGELAND

Ten of Them Appear in the "Fourth Estate," and They Command Union Wages, Too—The Most Expensive "Supers" on the Stage To-day.

What is claimed to be the best picture of a newspaper composing room ever seen on the stage is depicted in one act of "The Fourth Estate," a play written by Joseph Medill Patterson and Harriet Ford, which is now being produced in New York. The composing room has real typesetting machines and real union printers—members of Typographical Union No. 6—and they covered themselves with all kinds of glory, if the Gotham critics are to be taken at their word.

In the last act a linotype machinist and four operators, together with editors, foremen, makeup and others, are hard at work, turning out hot linotype slugs on the Mergenthaler machines. Over the steam table a member of the stereotypers' union pounds his matrices, and the intense moments before the last edition goes to press are said to be realistically portrayed.

According to a New York paper, the stage manager was "greatly perturbed" when rehearsals begun, and all on account of his printing force. We do not vouch for the story but here it is:

Local color in any play is a good thing. Otherwise why have local color?

But at $31 per, multiplied by ten, it isn't such a good thing—at least so far as the box office is concerned.

All of which appertains to and touches on a feature of the production of "The Fourth Estate," which, while greatly enjoyed by the numerous people who go there nightly to witness the most realistic newspaper play yet produced, is not so keenly enjoyed by the owners of the play.

When the Messrs. Liebler & Co. set about selecting a cast for the production of "The Fourth Estate" the question of supers for the big composing room scene gave them little concern. Supers since time long forgotten could be had for 50 cents a night, and good supers at that.

It is quite true that supers can be had to carry any kind of stage property, from empty steins to battle scarred flags, but supers to run typesetting machines and to perspire to order over stereotyping steam tables proved to be a trifle different.

"Big Six," which to the initiated public means the printers' union would be only too glad to furnish ten men to appear in the composing room scene.

Rehearsal call the following morning found ten union printers, all in good standing, waiting outside the stage entrance at Wallack's.

"First call for composing room scene!" announced Ford in a businesslike manner. Stage hands promptly put typesetting machines in place.

Some experienced super had told the ten men that regular super wages were 50 cents a night, which rate as any good union man will tell you, is far and away below union rates.

"All ready, if you please, gentlemen," called Ford, who is not used to have unnecessary stage waits when he starts a rehearsal.

But the ten men were not quite ready. The important matter of wages had yet to be settled.

"Wages, wages," said Ford as Mulherne, who a moment before had been elected chairman of the chapel of "The Morning Advance"—the paper in the play—presented the demands of the men. "Why, regular super wages are 50 cents a night."

A second later when he turned around he saw the ten men calmly putting on their coats and preparing to walk out.

"Here, where you fellows going?" shouted Ford.

"Sorry, Mr. Ford," said Mulherne, "but we can't work for less than union wages."

"All right," said Ford, "union wages you get. What are they, anyway?"

"Thirty-one dollars a week," said Mulherne. And $31 a week these expensive supers get.

If other managers are to follow the example, good or bad, depending on the point of view, of Messrs. Liebler & Co., supers will soon be commanding wages that run neck and neck with the salary of the President of the United States.

Thirty-one dollars a week for fifteen minutes' work each night and two matinees is a little over 25 cents a minute.

Likewise it is considerably over $120 a day, nearly $800 a week and close to $45,000 a year.

Which all goes to show that realism in the drama comes high.

The New York Morning Telegraph in its issue of October 21, contained a critical description of the play written by A. Angyalfi, a member of the chapel of that paper. The article is an excellent word painting and reflects credit on the author.

Annual Dinner Of All Saints Church Drew An Immense Crowd

Surpassing all previous affairs of the kind, the annual harvest dinner held last evening in the Foresters' hall, Simcoe street, under the auspices of the Women's Guild of All Saints' Church, was one of the greatest successes ever held. From 5.30 until after 8 o'clock there was one continuous stream to the dining hall. The stairs from the street up to the hall were jammed with persons eager to get to their supper. But the ladies of the Guild are to be congratulated on the splendid manner in which they handled the crowds. The dinner provided was one of great excellence, and all were unanimous in their praise of it. The tables were prettily arranged and presented a very attractive appearance. The young ladies of the church assisted the members of the Guild in catering to the wants of the people by serving a plentiful supply of dainty viands. Booths, where fancy and useful articles and candies were disposed of, received a liberal patronage.

After supper, those in attendance assembled in the adjoining room, and an interesting and varied programme was rendered. The Rector, Rev. H. R. Trumpour, M.A., acted as chairman. In his opening remarks he expressed a harty welcome to all and appreciation on behalf of the ladies, for the manner in which the public had encouraged their efforts. The programme was as follows:

Vocal solo—Miss Ruth Dawson.
Recitation—Mr. J. Johns.
Instrumental duet—Misses Dawson.
Vocal solo—Mr. K. Shook.
Instrumental solo—Miss Sisson.
Banjo selection—Mr. F. R. Clarke.
Vocal solo—Mr. H. Lees.

During the evening brief addresses were delivered by Rev. F. J. Lynch, of Toronto, and Rev. Dr. Langfeldt. The very pleasant affair was concluded by the singing of God Save the King.

WALKING IN NOVEMBER

With the exception of one or two days of rain November has provided some royal walking weather. Sunday, for instance, was a grand day to "hant the stile-a," to jog along the country highway or hoof it across the fields. The air was as bracing as wine, and as one swung along, drawing deep breaths, one felt the thrill that tingles the nerves of the children of men when the great god Pan pipes the call to earth.

It is great weather to be abroad on foot, and nowhere on the face of this broad land of ours can you find more enjoyable walks than in the vicinity of Peterborough. You can have a different sceene every day if you will. If you cannot get out into the country, form the habit of walking to and from the office or the shop. It is a mistake to think that there is no zest in walking in the city streets, just as it is a mistake to think that one must walk long distances in order to derive benefit from the exercise. As a matter of fact, a moderate distance is the best—say four or five miles a day. The man who has formed the habit of walking this distance every day is in need of nobody's sympathy. He will get more sheer enjoyment out of living than the man who gets his exercise in an automobile.

Convention Of The Baptist Women's Missionary Society

London, Nov. 12.—The silver anniversary of the Women's Baptist Home Missionary Society of Ontario West opened its session in the Adelaide Street Baptist Church at half-past 9 with Mrs. Charles J. Holman of Toronto, presiding.

After a hymn and prayer by Mrs. William Scott, Mrs. John Alexander gave a brief Scripture reading.

The treasurer's report, which was presented by Miss Maria Buchan, showed a most decidedly satisfactory state of affairs.

The reports of the different associations show a total receipt as follows: Elgin Association, $518.75; Guelph, $401.61; Niagara and Hamilton, $599.33; Norfolk, $378.90; Northern, $239.37; Owen Sound, $173.07; Oxford and Brant, $918.25; Peterborough, $305.18; Toronto, $2,487.46; Walkerton, $177.59; Western, $279.99; Whitby and Lindsay, $214.71.

A comparative statement of the contributions of circles and bands for the past three years, proved unusually satisfactory. In the year 1906-07 there were 229 circles and 87 bands, contributing $6,918; 1907-08, 232 circles and 85 bands contributed $7,315.59; 1908-09, 243 circles and 97 bands contributed $7,439.03.

The total receipts for the year ending Oct. 30 amounted to $8,885.61. The disbursements totalled $8,043.07, leaving a very substantial balance of $842.54.

The Baptist Visitor.

Mrs. A. R. McMaster, the editor of the Baptist Visitor, reported for that publication, showing that it was carried on with a very narrow margin in order that it might be offered to those desiring it at a very moderate cost. The receipts amounted to $761.53, expenditure to $754.28, leaving a balance of $7.25. The report was adopted.

Mrs. R. C. Dancey reported for the bureau of literature, outlining the success of this department during the year.

The report of the recording secretary, Miss Emma Fox, outlined the work that had been done during the year, and showed the disbursements for missionary work in Ontario at $4,105, in Quebec $1,250, and Western $2,500, making a grand total of $7,980.

Indian Work.

Miss Lillian Murray, in her report of the Northwest Indian work, stated that Rev. and Mrs. Mallock had removed from St. Peter's River, and Mr. Every had been appointed to take charge. Dr. and Mrs. Clarke, at Fairfield, had reported that there was a very bright promise of success in the work there.

The morning prayer service was led by Mrs. Jessie Gibson: "No missionary work," she said, "can be carried on without the Bible. This has been proved by history. But where the Work of God has remained there His work has gone on.

"The Bible is full of precious promises, words of comfort and of advice, and all we need for help along God's way."

Officers Elected.

The elections were then conducted and resulted as follows:

President—Mrs. Chas. J. Holman.
First Vice-Pres.—Mrs. R. W. Laird.
Second Vice-Pres.—Mrs. John Lillie.
Recording Secretary — Miss Emma Fox.

The representatives of Murray St. Baptist Church at the convention are Mrs. P. Downham and Miss Nicholls.

THE VALUE OF TURPENTINE

When all else fails the physician recommends his wealthy patient to take a trip to the turpentine groves as a cure for throat and lung troubles. The turpentine of commerce cannot very well be used but by adding linseed Dr. Chase succeeded in getting up the most effetive treatment for throat and lung troubles that was ever discovered. It is known as Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine.

PUT ON "INDIAN LIST"

Two Men Blacklisted in Court To-day.

Two men were placed on the "Indian list" at the police court this morning. One came and asked to be posted, admitting that he was addicted to the excessive use of liquor to the extent that he neglected his work and spent all his earnings. The second man was blacklisted by his wife. The number of persons to whom the sale of intoxicants is prohibited now totals nearly one hundred.

Norwood Farmers' Club Held Successful First Meeting

About forty farmers were in attendance at the first meeting of the Norwood Farmers' Club, which was held in the Norwood Council chamber Tuesday evening of this week. Considering the fact that the season is unusually busy because of the late harvest, the number present speaks well for the future of the club and for the progressiveness of the Norwood agriculturists.

In opening the meeting, Pres. Jas. Andrews briefly outlined the object of the club and urged those present to seize the opportunities offered for acquiring greater knowledge in the science and practice of agriculture. The club afforded a golden chance to the members to qualify themselves for platform speaking and this Mr. Andrews considered to be no mean feature of the semi-monthly meetings.

A paper read by Andrew Knox on "Preparation of Stables for the Winter" showed very careful preparation Mr. Knox, in pointing out the value of well lighted, clean stables, laid emphasis upon the value of sunlight in the destruction of disease germs. In his opinion the windows in the average stable were altogether too small. Mr. Knox gave particular attention to the ventilation of stables and ably outlined the advantages of the muslin curtain, King and Rutherford systems. Either the King or Rutherford system wer none too expensive for the man with a paying herd, but lack of means should not prevent a farmer from fitting his stables with some means, however cheap or crude, for providing his domestic animals with wholesome air.

Following the discussion on points brought out by Mr. Knox, Mr. H. C. Duff gave a short address on 'The Growing of Alfalfa." After securing the experience of those present who had grown or attempted to grow this valuable crop, Mr. Duff outlined the necessary preparation of the soil to ensure a good catch, and showed the value of inoculating the seed with nitrogen gathering bacteria. He recommended the crop for the high dry hills common to many sections of the county and claimed that the growing of alfalfa would greatly lessen the cost of feeding stock.

The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 23. Mr. G. A. Brthen will read a paper on "Feeding the Dairy Cow."

What Has Become Of Some Of Knights Of Squared Circle?

What becomes of all the fighters? What do they do when their fighting days are over? This is a question which has often been asked by those who linger outside the ropes, following fighters, only through the columns of the newspapers. As soon as the fighter gets to the point where he can no longer interest his public he disappears from the sporting pages and from the face of the earth. If he has been a thrifty squirrel salting down the easy money when the salting was good, he will not fall on evil days. If he has been a grass hopper, singing all the summer and travelling with the high-flyers, it becomes another proposition.

The fighter without brains or a bank roll is a sad thing when cast on his small resources. He has acquired expensive tastes and habits, he likes to hear the "whang of the music and pop of the cork."

He wants to wear jewellery and loaf about the street corners; he thinks the world owes him a living and he rather looks to the good fellows with whom he spent his money to help him collect that debt.

Then comes the awakening and the beginning of the descent. The end of that journey is the panhandler who works on the dark corners.

"I was a good fellow when I had it," they say.

SOME OF THE WISE ONES

Now, for a few of the men who will have money when the improvident sons are eating snowbirds and drinking spring water. Taking them alphabetically we begin with:

James Edward Britt, the cream puff puncher who made an educated left win him a small fortune. Jimmy had few fights, as records go nowadays, but he made every fight count and he invested his money wisely. At that James was no hermit cram; he saw the white lights and he sang some all-yees over the popping corks but he had sufficient intelligence to buy a string of flats and now the wolf can howl and be disappointed.

Next we have Tommy Burns, a frugal soul. Tommy had a lot of luck and slipped through to what they call a championship by sheer fortune. He had a business man's head and sold his product in the best market. Tommy will be a millionaire if he lives. He has the money-maker's instinct.

Jim Corbett will never want for anything under the sun so long as he retains his ready wit and native ability. It is doubtful if Corbett took any of his great money winnings out of the game with him, for he was always a spender. His theatrical work has been quite successful, and should Corbett quit work to-morrow he need not care how soon the bakers combine put up the price of bread.

The same things goes for Bob Fitzsimmons, who was always a thrifty sort of a citizen. Bob says he is going to establish a physical culture school on the Muldoon order. This should be a great money-getter, and, for Bob's sake let us hope that he does forget himself and walk in with the wallop once in a while. Bob always did like to see the fat men fall.

MANY ARE SALOONKEEPERS

Eddie Harlon, most popular of all the boys turned out in the west, because the sagest, cleanest kid of them all; has his little saloon in San Francisco and friends enough to fill it at all times. He need not worry. "Eddie was good to the folks."

Jim Jeffries lives away up at the head of Easy street. He earned a lot of money, made a lot more, and has a wife who will keep him take care of it.

Jack Johnson will never have anything no matter how much money he makes. He is a natural born spender.

Ketchell made some money and invested some of it, not enough to put him in the Nelson class, however.

Bat. Nelson is the boy who has laid away his small change. Though he exaggerates his earnings a bit, it is known that he has enough money invested to take care of the whole Nelson family and leave some over for the next generation.

Jack O'Brien posed for a time as one of the wealthy fighters but business reverses in the past five years have accounted for most of the Quaker's coin. He has some Philadelphia real estate.

Tommy Ryan is another man who need not worry as long as peach trees bloom. His peach orchard will keep the wolf interested.

John L. Sullivan left the ring "busted" took several benefits, needed some more benefits and finally went on the water waggon. He has done well theatrically speaking, and has more money saved up at the present time than he ever had at any one time in his life.

And of course, our dear old friend, Tom Sharkey. Tom may have a tin ear, but there is no alloy in the Sharkey bank roll. He has every dollar he ever made in his life—all the dollars glued together in a solid block.

Jack Twin, and Mike Twin, two noble Romans, had no chance to pick up the great big purses, but they fought early and often and, by saving up every cent accumulated enough to hold the Sullivan family for a few generations to come.

Of course some of the fighters have been skipped. There are others of them who have done well and then again there are the ones who played the grasshopper act and are now wintering badly.

It is a charity not to mention the names of these men. They are enduring a long punishment, and perhaps the memory of dollars they burned sits up with them o' nights.

WASTEFULNESS OF MANY HOUSEWIVES

The waster throws out of a rented house more than will build a new one of her own. The careless or ignorant housewife throws out of the back door enough to build a home in a few years.

Consider for a few moments the ways of the waster. She wastes at least half of what she buys. We will assume that her allowance for household expenses is $800 a year. She throws out of the back door $400 worth of material.

Take, for instance, Monday. It is wash day in the waster's home. Look into the refuse pail. There is in it nearly a bowlful of fresh starch—a sinful waste. The waster may argue that it is a hot day and that starch soon spoils on a hot day. That is true, but only the waster makes more starch than she needs. Foresight would have told her almost to a spoonful how much she needed for the family laundry. A thoughtful housewife doesn't waste three tablespoonfuls of starch in a year. Brains are as needful in the kitchen as elsewhere.

Look again into the ash can or the refuse pail, and you see what? Untrimmed bones from yesterday's roast. At the ends of the bones near the joints are bits of fine, juicy meat that if eaten, would prove the old adage of "Nearest the bone, sweetest the meat." Now if those bones had been carefully trimmed, with a few potatoes and one or two left-over vegetables they would have made a tasty ragout. But they were wasted, and at half-past eleven the waster triumphs again. She buys a large, expensive steak for the midday meal. So she literally throws out of the back door the price of a steak, which would have been a considerable item toward the cost of the home of her own which seems so far away from the waster. In the pail or ash barrel you may find three potatoes and a discarded carrot and half an onion. There was plenty of material for a stew.

Or if there were an objection to the stew the carrot and the onion could have been used with the scorned heart of a cabbage and the beef bones to make a beef broth or a vegetable soup.

Many persons say they don't like made-over dishes, but that is only because the things are not made over well. Many dishes are better the second than the first time they are cooked.

Because there were not enough of them left for a heaping dish, some strawberries had followed the beef bones, the potatoes the carrot and the onion. Yet there were quite enough of them for a few delicious tarts, fruit dumplings or for a berry pudding.

Some dishes are as good or better when warmed over than at first. For instance, turkey hash is as good in the morning as the roast of the night before. The flavor is at once richer and more delicate. Spaghetti is better when warmed over than at first; for one reason, because not once in twenty times is it thoroughly done. The cook puts it over a furious fire and cooks the outside, leaving the inner part either raw or leathery.

"My favorite chicken is the warmed over kind," says May Irwin, and in her cook book she gives a recipe which she calls chicken a la Johns. Having made a dish from this, you will never again throw any bits of cold chicken away.

"Mince the bits of a cold chicken. Chop a green pepper, one small onion, four mushrooms if you happen to have them, and one cold boiled potato together until very fine. Mix thoroughly and season with red pepper and salt to taste. Have a frying pan ready with two tablespoonfuls of fresh butter browning in it, and stir it well. Cover it for a few moments and let it brown on one side, as hashed potatoes are done. Take it out on a hot platter and garnish with tomato sauce. This sauce is made by cooking two or three tomatoes for half an hour, strain and add a tablespoonful of flutter, flour enough to thicken a little, and salt and pepper. Take from the fire and add half a cup of cream."

Enough tomatoes are floating about on the surface of the pail or decorating an ash can to have made in combination with a few fresh eggs, the favrite dish of many, a tomato omelette, or with the addition of a green pepper an omelette a la creole. Or this dish might have been prepared from them.

The gas stove in the hands of inexperienced or careless housekeepers is another serious leak in the kitchen. Most women us three times as much gas as they need. Suppose some potatoes are to be cooked. The average cook turns on the gas before she peels the potatoes. Why she does this she never can explain. She simply doesn't think, also she usually forgets to put the water on to boil until the potatoes are ready.

Soap left to waste on the wash stand and in the dishpan full of water is a common cause of waste.

EARL GREY IN SPEECH FROM THE THRONE REFERS TO THE PROSPERITY OF CANADA

Congratulates the House Upon the Prosperous Condition of the Country—Sir Wilfrid Promises Mr. Borden That Papers in Naval Question Will Soon be Laid on Table of the Commons.

OPENING CEREMONIES

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—There was an unusually large attendance of fashionable Canada at the opening of the second session of the eleventh Parliament, and an exceptionally good muster of members. This is accounted for by the absorbing interest that the naval policy of the Government has awakened. The first mention of matters connected with it was made in the afternoon by Mr. Borden, the Conservative leader, who asked for the report of the Imperial Defence Conference, and the Premier assured him that the papers would be laid on the table next week.

One hundred and seventy-five members were in the Commons chamber at three o'clock. Shortly after three o'clock the Gentlemen Ushers of the Black Rod tapped on the doors of the House of Commons and with customary obeisances to the Speaker, summoned the Commons to the Upper House, where His Excellency read the speech from the throne in both English and French.

His Excellency congratulated the members on the prosperous condition of the country, referred to the great immigration, "drawn from the best elements," and to the increase of trade and commerce. The revenue had almost completely regained what it had lost in the recent period of depression.

His Excellency promised that the papers of the Imperial Defence Conference would be immediately brought down and a bill introduced accordingly; also, that the members would be asked to confirm the new French commercial treaty.

The construction of the Transcontinental Railway had made substantial advance during the year. The western division had been extended 66 miles beyond Edmonton, completing a total distance of 861 miles west of Winnipeg. Contracts had been let for 392 miles in the mountain division. Good progress was made on this work. The eastern division was now open for traffic from Winnipeg to Lake Superior Junction and thence by the Grand Trunk Pacific branch to the lake itself. The whole of the work between Winnipeg and Moncton was now under contract.

Tenders were being called for the substructure of the new Quebec bridge and a report of the explanatory surveys for the Hudson Bay Railway would be submitted.

In order to improve the facilities already afforded the public by the Government railways, and to enhance their value as part of the great transportation system of Canada, a bill would be submitted for the purpose of enabling the Minister of Railways, on the recommendation of the Government railway's managing board, and subject to the approval of Parliament, to lease any line or lines connecting with the Intercolonial Railway.

A measure would also be introduced respecting banks and banking, insurance, navigable waters, and other matters, and the estimates would be submitted at an early date. In conclusion His Excellency said: "I pray the Almighty Lord that He may guide and bless your deliberations, and that they may bear fruit in a further increase of our country's prosperity and well-being."

After listening to the speech from the throne the Commons filed back to the second chamber where the following new members who had been elected at bye-elections during the recess were introduced: D. A. Lafortune, Montcalm; E. Fortier, Lotbiniere, and J. M. Douglas, Strathcona. Hon. Mackenzie King was introduced after the bye-election in North Waterloo, rendered necessary by his appointment as Minister of Labor.

The Premier announced that the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the throne would take place on Monday.

R. L. Borden stated that to-morrow the Opposition would like to discuss the question of the delay in making certain judicial appointments in British Columbia. This refers to the fact that the British Columbia Government has created a Court of Appeal which came into effect on Nov. 2. It is probable that no judges will be appointed until after the provincial election.

The Opposition leader asked regarding the report of the naval defence conference and the Premier replied that he hoped to lay the papers on the table next week.

In answer to a question by Mr. Borden as to whether the Government had reports or information touching the operation of the United States tariff, which particularly affected Canada, or her relations with other countries, Mr. Fielding replied that the Government had had no correspondence on the subject. They were unable to forecast the interpretation of the U. S. authorities and before coming to any conclusion would await action by the United States Government. Mr. Borden asked if there were any documents relating to the French treaty which had not been brought down. Mr. Fielding said all the papers had been submitted last session.

In reply to Mr. Borden, who asked for documents or papers touching the position of the waterways treaty, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said the matter was still under advisement.

The leader of the Opposition asked when the Government proposed to lay on the table the papers relative to the resignation of Hugh B. Lumsden, Transcontinental Railway Commissioner. The Premier replied that he would call the attention of the Minister of Railways to the matter, whereupon the House adjourned.

CABLE COMPANIES STILL UNABLE TO OBTAIN WORD FROM JAMAICA

New York, Nov. 12.—Late yesterday no communication with Jamaica had been secured by the cable companies, who cannot explain what has happened. There has been no record of any earthquake on the seismographs.

All the submarine lines throughout the island from Kingston, Jamaica, on the west, to Trinidad, on the east, have been rendered inoperative by some agency which, up to the present time, it has been impossible to determine.

The circumstances indicate an earthquake on the floor of the ocean, but to affect the cable lines throughout the breadth of the Indies, such a disturbance would have to be remarkable for its extent and severity. No serious earthquake has been reported by any seismograph station, nor have the meagre reports from the points on the island of Jamaica, where the cables touch, indicated an earthquake on that island. It is possible, however, that some electrical disturbance, similar to the aurora borealis, will eventually account for the trouble.

The only islands with which telegraphic communication could be had yesterday are Cuba and Hayti, and the shore station at Jamaica, Holland Bay. It is equally impossible to reach the eastern islands of the Indies by way of Europe and Pernambuco, Brazil.

Officials of the Western Union Telegraph Co. here said that according to Holland Bay advices sufficient repairs would probably be made soon to permit the transmission of messages giving the nature and extent of the disturbance at Kingston.

Halifax, Nov. 12.—The Direct West India Cable Co. at Halifax have utterly failed to establish communication with Jamaica. A fierce storm was reported raging in Turks' Island, with tremendous rains. The last reports received last night said that the rains continued, with the wind blowing thirty miles an hour.

WILCOX IS RETURNED

That Town Has Gone Tory For a Long Time, and Its Majority of 149 Gives Oliver J. Wilcox the Necessary Lead In the Fight With W. J. McKee For Seat Left Vacant by Mr. Sutherland.

Windsor, Nov. 12.—After thirteen years with a Liberal representative in the House of Commons, North Essex yesterday elected a Conservative member, Oliver J. Wilcox, a farmer residing at South Woodslee, defeated W. J. McKee, lumberman, by a majority of 75, with two polls to hear from.

At the Conservative nominating convention, many of the prominent politicians of the riding counselled letting the election go to McKee, by default. Only the insistence of the rural delegates, and the willingness of Wilcox to make the run, resulted in a nomination. The election was to fill the vacancy in the House caused by the appointment of Hon. Mr. Sutherland to a judgeship.

To the greater majority of Windsor-

OLIVER J. WILCOX.

ites, Wilcox was known by name only, but he carried the city by 135 majority over W. J. McKee, who was born in Sandwich and has lived in this vicinity all his life. The Town of Walkerville, which is invariably Conservative, was the banner municipality for Wilcox, piling up a majority of 149 in his favor. This was enough to turn the tide.

These were the majorities for the respective candidates in yesterday's election:

BANDIT KILLS CASHIER.

Youthful Bank Robber Slays One and Wounds Two.

Louisville, Ky., Nov. 11.—In an attempt at bank robbery, a young man, who is believed to be Arthur Hall of Louisville, a dealer in second-hand furniture, entered the Merchants' National Bank at New Albany, Ind., shortly before noon yesterday and shot and killed J. Hangary Fawcett, cashier, and seriously wounded John K. Woodward, president of the bank, and also wounded James R. Tucker, a negro chauffeur, probably fatally.

With a pistol in each hand Hall entered the bank, and, after commanding everyone to throw up their hands and "get into the vault," began shooting.

Fawcett was shot through the chest and neck, and died almost instantly. President Woodward received a bullet through the liver and his intestines also were perforated. Tucker, the chauffeur, was shot through the body.

Immediately afterward the murderer rushed from the bank and tried to escape in an automobile, in which, at the point of a pistol, he had forced the negro chauffeur to drive him to New Albany from Louisville.

An alarm was given through a megaphone on a dredge and in a short time several policemen had started in pursuit in a fast motor boat.

They captured their man after a short run.

London Firemen Injured.

London, Ont., Nov. 12.—Fire Chief John Aitken, Assistant Chief Thomas Aitken and Fireman W. Robertson were seriously injured in a fire which destroyed the plant of the Ontario Spring Bed & Mattrass Co. yesterday morning.

The men were working in the building and half a dozen firemen were working on the floor above, where a quantity of straw, used for mattrasses, was saturated with water. The weight proved too much for the floor, which gave way. Part of the wall also fell out.

The men were buried under bricks and straw, but were speedily dug out and hurried to the hospital. The loss will total $25,000.

In Montreal on Monday two firemen were killed by the collapse of the interior of a mattrass factory.

London fire chiefs seem ill-fated. Chiefs Clark and Roe, who preceded Aitkens, both being killed on duty.

Fortunate Brockville.

Brockville, Nov. 12.—The Brockville Light and Power Department, controlled by the municipality, has closed another successful year. The total revenue received from gas and electricity was $51,915.36 and running expenses reached $34,144.91. For depreciation $9,967.29 was allowed and bad debts $26.5, the first in four years, leaving a profit of $8,462.03. The department has handed over $7,597.32 to be applied on the debenture debt of the plant.

The first motor boat of the local fleet to catch fire was a craft owned by Irvine Gilbert, which was in charge of F. Grundy, E. Higgins and S. Rice. It was being taken for a short spin on the river. Higgins jumped overboard and swam safely to terra firma.

Eleven Thousand Chickens Burned.

Hutchinson, Kansas, Nov. 12.—Eleven thousand chickens were burned to death when fire destroyed the plant of the United States Packing Co., here early yesterday. Loss, $50,000.

Third Child Dead.

Berlin, Nov. 12.—The third child burned in Wednesday's fire, which destroyed the dwelling of George Hutik, succumbed yesterday.

Conviction Quashed.

Kingston, Nov. 12.—A few days ago Louis Martin, Revere Hotel, was fined $100 and costs or a month in jail for selling liquor Sunday to Patrick McMenemy, Wolfe Island. D. A. Givens appealed the case on the ground that there was not sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction. Yesterday morning Judge Price quashed conviction.

Three After Mayoralty.

St. Catharines, Nov. 12.—There promises to be a hot fight for the mayor's chair for 1910. Three candidates are already in the field, James T. Petrie, James M. McBride and Dr. W. H. Merritt. All three are now aldermen. The first named is a Liberal, the second somewhat of an Independent Liberal, and Dr. Merritt a Conservative.

Alberta Bond Issue Over-Subscribed.

London, Nov. 12.—The Alberta and Great Waterways issue has been oversubscribed. The Canadian Associated Press has heard the opinion expressed by a prominent financier that the province had not been well advised in making an issue on so high a basis as 4 1-2 per cent. They should have done much better.

Trains to Haul Water.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 12.—Two hundred tank cars were ordered yesterday by the Shamokin division by the Reading Railway Co. to haul water to the collieries and towns that are now practically without water because of a prolonged drought.

FUTURE FERTILE FARMS.

Clay Belt Has Almost Unlimited Wealth For Farmers.

Samuel J. Martin of Kemptville, who has returned from an exploratory visit to the region along the Transcontinental Railway east and west of Frederick House river, speaks in high terms of the quality of the land there, says The Census and Statistics' Monthly. The soil is a rich clay and much of it is naturally well drained, standing well above the streams which unwater it. The timber is chiefly spruce and jack pine, 60 to 75 feet high and as straight as gun-barrels. The spruce is usually 10 to 18 inches in diameter and the jack pine 6 to 12 inches, and the wood is so dense that it can only be traversed safely along the banks of streams or on the surveyed lines, when flanking parties may be thrown out on either side within hearing distances. In this way the country may be explored securely and this was the plan taken by Mr. Martin and his party, who located about 15 lots for settlement near Frederick House river. The trees have no tap roots, and the stumps are readily cleared off with a team and chain when the trees are felled. Mr. Martin brought home some fine samples of wheat, barley, oats, clover and timothy which had grown this year from grain scattered at the feeding places for horses employed on railway construction, and he is sanguine that under proper cultivation these grains and grasses could not be excelled in quality elsewhere in Canada. The wheat shows 30 grains per head, plump and well matured, and the six-rowed barley 60 grains, and the timothy grows four to five feet high with heads of seed six inches long. Land growing such samples is sold by the Government at fifty cents per acre, and it is now said that the extent of the clay belt is not less than 30,000,000 acres which the railway traverses from east to west. The town of Cochrane, at the junction of the Temiskaming and Northern and the Transcontinental Railways, which was surveyed last year, has now 400 dwelling houses, 15 stores, two banks and a school house where 80 pupils are registered. This town is six miles east of Frederick House river, which flows northward to join the Abitibi.

A Story From Japan.

Those who peruse the joke columns of the newspapers have perhaps read stories relating to a curious and interesting custom in Japan—the scrubbing of the backs of guests, while in the bath tub, by the landladies of hotels. But these tales have been pretty generally set down as being products of the peculiarly active imagination possessed by jokesmiths in general. Here, however, is a tale that is true.

The other evening at a meeting of the Men's Association of St. Anne's Church, Toronto, a letter was read from Rev. R. M. Millman, now in Japan, who has a wide circle of friends and acquaintances in this country, and who was curate at St. Anne's before entering the mission field. One portion of the letter very much amused the young men assembled. It read thus:

"To tell a true story. A young man came out here recently to teach. His friends wanted to have some fun with him, so they asked him if he would not like a bath. He said he would. Then they told the landlady that this newcomer was particularly fond of having his back rubbed (which I suppose was perfectly true). They furthermore told her that if he seemed to object it would be because she was not rubbing hard enough. Anyway, the unsuspecting victim got into the tub, and scarcely had he done so, when in walked the landlady and began to rub. Of course he was shocked and strongly objected to the proceeding. But he did not know a word of Japanese, nor did she know a word of English; so the harder he talked in English the harder she rubbed in Japanese, till at last she felt her duty had been done, and she left him a cleaner and a wiser man."
